TWO HURT IN SMASH-UP

Gordan McKenzie's Collarbone Broken and Arthur Jones Badly Bruised.

RIG HITS DELIVERY WAGON.

Both Victims Taken to Hospital Where Jones Lay Unconscious for Several Hours—Hail from New York.

Gordon McKenzie and Arthur Jones, both of New York, the latter employed by the Walton Ambulance Company of that city, were taken to Muhlenberg Hospital Saturday night suffering from injuries sustained in a collision on East Front street, near Elm place. McKenzie sustained a fracture of the collarbone, while Jones received contused wounds and bruises as well as an injury to his right arm. He was unconscious for several hours.

Jones had been sent to Plainfield by his employers to get a team of horses which were being boarded on a nearby farm, and he asked his friend, McKenzie to accompany him. The two men left New York about 1 o'clock in the afternoon with a single horse and one-seated runabout, arriving here about 7 o'clock. While driving through East Front street, near Elm place, they approached one of S. Scheurer & Co.'s delivery wagons in charge of Charles Moscow, who turned to the right side of the road intending to stop at I. L. McVoy's residence. Jones was driving a spirited animal and in his efforts to turn out for the grocery wagon the horse began to prance and plunge. Before Jones could reach the opposite side of the road his rig struck the rear of the grocery wagon with such force as to throw the occupants out on their heads.

The men lay in the roadway helpless while assistance was summoned from police headquarters. Detective-Sergeant John Flynn responded and found Jones in an unconscious condition, while his companion suffering from broken bones was unable to move. The injured men were taken at once to the hospital, where they were attended by Dr. Albert Pittis.

An examination showed that McKenzie's collarbone was broken, while Jones suffered from contused wounds and bruises. The latter recovered sufficiently to leave the hospital today and he returned to his home in New York. McKenzie will be detained here for two or three weeks.

Lester R. Walton, of the Walton Ambulance Company, came to Plainfield yesterday intending to meet Jones at the Plainfield Cab Company. When he reached town he learned of the accident and at once took charge of the rig, making arrangements to get the company's team.

WELL KNOWN RESIDENT DIES OF ADVANCED AGE.

Following a weakness of long duration brought on by his advanced age, Patrick McNamara, one of the city's oldest citizens, died early yesterday morning at his home on Central avenue. His condition had been serious for the past week and the end was not unexpected.

Mr. McNamara came to Plainfield from Ireland in 1865 and had lived here ever since, most of the time on South Second street near Plainfield avenue. He entered the employ of the New Jersey Central when a young man and remained with it in various capacities until a few years ago. He is survived by a wife, one daughter, Miss Catherine McNamara, and six sons. They are Michael McNamara, living on Elizabeth street; William, Patrick, Daniel, David and Thomas, all residing at home. He also leaves a brother, Michael McNamera, of Hastings-on-the-Hudson. Mr. McNamara had a wide acquaintance in the city and borough, especially in the West End, and was held in high esteem by all who knew him.

The funeral will be held in St. Mary's church Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock and burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Local Silverware Plant Closed.

W. H. Rogers, manufacturer of silverware, closed his local plant on North avenue, today, and hereafter the goods will be manufactured at Muncie, Ind., where a plant is now in operation. Mr. Rogers will be located at the New York office of the concern. It is the intention of Mr. Rogers to sell his factory building here or lease it to anyone desiring such a structure.

Holy Cross Club to Dance.

Under the auspices of the Holy Cross Club an invitation dance will be given at the clubrooms tonight. Each member is privileged to extend one written invitation to a friend outside of the club. This will be the last social event by the club prior to Lent.

EVANGELIST MUNHALL SPEAKS AT THE Y.M.C.A.

L. W. Munhall, the Philadelphia evangelist talked at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon before an audience of nearly two hundred men, who were deeply impressed by his powerful message. His text was taken from John 5, 20: "And ye will not come to me that ye may have life." For fifty minutes the evangelist continued his discourse, urging his hearers to turn to Christianity while there was yet time.

He spoke of the opportunity for salvation offered to all men through the church, and urged an immediate decision for the cause of Jesus Christ. He stated that the conditions of salvation were three: Repentance, conversion and faith. Repentance, the initiative step toward Christianity, was defined as the realization of man's helplessness without God's help. Conversion was stated to be the decisive step for the right, and the helpfulness of the true faith to the converted man was dwelt on at length.

Dr. J. A. Chambliss introduced the speaker, and in the course of the meeting prayer was offered by Rev. C. L. Godrich. Music was a feature of the meeting, for Charles L. Lewis, of the Lotus Glee Club, sang and a delegation from the association orchestra under the direction of Martin A. Korff furnished instrumental music.

"HOLY CITY" RENDERED BY COMBINED CHOIRS

The rendition of Gaul's "The Holy City" by the combined choirs of the First M. E. and Westfield Presbyterian churches, at the First M. E. church last night, was considered one of the best efforts of these singers. The oratorio was given under the direction of J. Edmund Skiff, organist and choirmaster, who also assisted by singing the solo parts for tenor. The musical attracted a congregation that taxed the seating capacity of the edifice, and it was thoroughly enjoyed.

The soloists were Miss Bertha van Nuis Wills, soprano; Mrs. J. Edmund Skiff, mezzo-soprano; Miss Suzanne Zimmerman, contralto; H. Raymond Loder, bass, and J. Edmund Skiff, tenor. Miss Lillian Baille, of Westfield, was at the organ and Mrs. Harry Taylor at the piano.

The chorus was a particularly strong one and the parts assigned to it were rendered in perfect unison and with full volume of tone. Special praise is due the soloists for their work was delightful throughout. Miss Willis had but one distinct solo part, but in this she was heard in a manner that pleased her many friends. The singing by Mr. Loder, who is organist at the Church of the Holy Cross, was a revelation to the entire congregation. His true interpretation of the bass parts aroused sincere admiration for his fine voice. The work of Miss Zimmerman, Mrs. Skiff and Mr. Skiff fulfilled every expectation and largely assisted in the rendition of the oratorio.

Effective parts in the work were those from soprano, mezzo-soprano and contralto in part first and the one for treble and contralto voices and that for tenor and bass voices in part second, while the chorus accompaniment brought out the strongest that there is in the oratorio. In the afternoon the same work was sung in the Westfield Presbyterian church before a large congregation.

Busy Session of Council Tonight.

The regular March meeting of the Common Council will be held tonight when a considerable amount of business will be transacted. It is likely that the police board will present the plans for the proposed police headquarters' building for the approval of the Council and it is also probable that Chairman Buxton of the finance committee will be ready to present the annual tax budget. The committee has been busily engaged preparing the budget with a view to having action taken on it at this meeting.

Wheaton Club to Meet.

The annual business meeting of the New York Wheaton Club, of which there are several Plainfield members, will be held Saturday morning, March 7, at 11 o'clock, and after luncheon a "Home Talent" program will be presented by the younger members. Miss Ethel M. Millar, of Madison avenue, is secretary for the club.

King's Daughters' Tea.

The Daughters of the Cross have sent out invitations for a tea to be given on Friday, March 13, from 3 until 6 o'clock, at the residence of Mrs. Samuel St. John McCutchen, 84 Myrtle avenue. Fancy and useful articles, cake and candy will be on sale. Twenty-five cents will be received at the door.

SH! DON'T TELL ANYONE

Mrs. Webley, White, Married a Colored Man But Doesn't Want it Known.

WARNING TO NEWSPAPERMEN.

She Served Notice on Them in the City Court Today That the Matter Already Had Too Much Publicity.

Mrs. Catherine Fields, an aged colored woman living in the West End, appeared in the city court, this morning, as complainant against Mrs. Samuel Webley, white, who she charged with holding a trunk belonging to her. There was a lengthy argument during which Mrs. Webley got "real fresh" with everybody concerned but eventually agreed to give back the trunk if Mrs. Fields would pay her $2 she owed for board. This was satisfactory to the complainant and the case was declared at an end.

As the principals and witnesses started away, Mrs. Webley shifted her position so that she could look at the newspapermen in court and exclaimed in shrill tones:

"I want to say right here that I don't want anything more said about me and this case in the papers. It was in before that I was white and that my husband is a colored man and that don't concern anybody. I want it understood right here that it ain't to be put in again."

Judge Runyon inquired if it wasn't true that she was the wife of a colored man and she replied that it was, starting off at the same time on another verval volley at the newspapermen to the effect that it shouldn't be made public.

"Get out," was the injunction from the bench.

But Mrs. Webley, white, was so wrapper up in telling the newspapermen how little they amounted to because they had dared to report that she was the wife of Sam Webley, colored, that she failed to heed the warning.

"Do you hear, get out," came the command a second time, but though she started to move away she kept on talking.

"If you don't get out of here," shouted the magistrate, "I'll have you put in a cell and you may not get out in quite awhile."

It was impossible to tell whether the warning would have had any effect on the talkative woman as the next instant a couple of husky court officers started toward her and she made a bee line for the front door. She was still talking when she closed it from the outside.

Mrs. Webley is a middle-aged German woman and lives with her husband on West Third street just above Plainfield avenue. The police say she is sensitive on the subject of her marriage and that is why she took umbrage at the papers when they mentioned the difference in color. Accordingly, the gentle reader is requested to please not pass the word along as it wasn't intended to give away Mrs. Webley's secret.

"FIFTY-SEVEN VARIETIES" IN COLLEGE MEN HERE.

Plans are now underway for the annual university smoker for Plainfield college men, alumni and undergraduates, to be held at the Casino, Friday night, March 13. There are five hundred college men in Plainfield representing fifty-seven colleges. This year the committee expects to give a more elaborate entertainment than before and hopes to have about 400 present. The attempt to bring the local college men together was made two years ago and last year about three hundred men gathered to enjoy the occasion. The number is materially increased this year by reason of another year's graduation from the several colleges.

A program of special features, more varied than that of last year, will be presented. Because of the great number, it is necessary for those who expect to attend the smoker to respond to the invitations at once so that proper preparations can be made for all. Owen H. Fleming and Lewis A. Williams, Jr., have been trying to reach all with the formal invitations, but should anyone be overlooked, it will not be because he has not tried to get his address. Any college man who does not get an invitation is urged to send his name to either Mr. Fleming or Mr. Williams.

Considerable enthusiasm has been arouse among the local college men over the annual smoker, which is unique in that it brings men of all colleges together and they are earnestly requested to attend and "whoop it up" once more for his alma mater.

An Evening at Cards.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Letcher gave a card party at Truell Hall, Saturday night which was attended by a large number of their friends. Prizes were presented to the winners. Following the play dinner was served.

WHY CLERGY ORGANIZE

Closer Bond of Union for Civic Advancement is an Object of Ministers' Association.

ARE TO HOLD ANNUAL DINNER.

Christian, Unitarian and Jew Alike Welcome to Membership—Five Stated Meetings Each Year.

The Plainfield Ministers' Association has decided not to confine its membership along the narrow lines of Protestant Christianity but to represent the fellowship of Jew, Gentile, Christian and Unitarian alike. The major features of the organization will be its efforts in civic matters, says Rev. Dr. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, who has been elected president, but there will also be a social end for it is planned not only to hold a dinner annually but to have five stated meetings at Grace Episcopal church parish house, when it is probable addresses will be made by distinguished divines from other cities.

"It is our purpose," said Rev. Dr. Chambliss today in discussing the plans, "to give our undivided support of the City Council and other municipal authorities in their efforts to maintain the very highest standard of government. It is only fair to say that we have every confidence in the Mayor and the Common Council and we feel that we can be of material aid in many instances. Whenever we believe the circumstances warrant it, the Ministers' Association will take a stand on current matters that effect the morality and good government. It is our idea also to strengthen the bond of union among the clergy no matter what their theological views happen to be for ous is not a theological organization. The Unitarian, the Jew and in fact all will be welcome to membership."

"BLIND LUKE'S" DEATH CLOSELY FOLLOWS WIFE'S

John Lucdeux, for many years a familiar character in the West End and known in all parts of the city as "Blind Luke," because of an affliction, died yesterday morning at the Industrial Home. He had been quite weak for a long time and contracted pneumonia, the illness proving fatal inside of a few days.

Lucdeux was in his eightieth year and came to Plainfield shortly after the close of the Civil War. He had been a wealthy business man in the south but lost everything through the struggle between the North and South. His misfortune so disheartened him that he never fully recovered and with his wife, known as "Mary Luke," eked out an existence until nine years ago, when they entered the Home. The couple were devoted to each other and when the wife died last fall, "Luke" became utterly disconsolate and declared there wasn't any use in his trying to live any longer.

"Luke" was said to have come from France and as far as known he had no relatives.

DERBY HAT SAVES HIM FROM SERIOUS INJURY

Hervey K. Doane, son of Fire Chief T. O. Doane, who was severely injured in the Pennsylvania tube under the East River Wednesday afternoon, when a seven pound bolt dropped from the roof of the tube, striking him a heavy blow on the head, was able to resume his work today. The derby hat Doane wore was the means of preventing him from more serious injury, but a deep gash was cut in his head, which it required several stitches to close.

The young man is employed as inspector of work by the railroad, and the accident happened as he was inspecting Tube C, near the Long Island shore. Doane generally wears a soft hat while at his work, but Wednesday went into the tube with a derby. As he was passing through the tunnel, the heavy bolt slipped from a workman's hand and crashed through his hat, knocking him down. The young man has not been home since the accident, but has been confined to his boarding house in Long Island City.

Increase Church Membership.

Ten persons were received into membership at the communion service in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, yesterday, seven on confession and three by letter. At the First Presbyterian church three new members were received by letter.

EVERYTHING ALL WRONG

So Says Socialist Haranguer Who Flays Preachers, Newspapers and Politicans.

THAT BAD, BAD CAPITALIST.

Haranguing his audience for nearly three hours yesterday afternoon, Emil Frucht, a Socialist leader of Paterson, bitterly attacked the press, the pulpit and the politicians and urged his hearers to co-operate in a Socialistic reform to overthrow capital and give the workingman his rights. His proposition was the "program" of the Social Labor Party, that labor produces all wealth and is entitled to all its produces, and he urged his hearers to unite and take a stand that they might enjoy more of the benefits of their work, or as he expressed it, "live" rather than "exist."

The meeting was held in Pittis Hall and was attended by about fifty enthusiastic followers, who took every opportunity to interrupt the speaker with vociferous applause, whenever the words "capital," "trust," or "politician" were denounced. Everybody smoked, and the doors were kept shut. Near the end of his discourse, the speaker mentioned the Socialist party as inferior in comparison to the Socialist Labor party, and was instantly challenged by several men in the hall. The arguments waxed so heated on this point that the chairman of the meeting, Earnest Oakley, was forced to shout out "One at a time, gentlemen!" in order to keep the noisy debate orderly.

Rants at Capital.

Emil Frucht was late getting to the meeting. He came up from Paterson by trolley instead of by train, and was four hours on the road. But if he was chilly and disheartened at his arrival at the hall, the sight of such a representation of "the people" cheered him, and he soon launched out into heated, applause-provoking attacks on capital as vigorous as if he had just stepped from the tonneau of a big automobile.

"Whosoever does not work, neither shall he eat," he said, sounding the keynote of his discourse, and his hearers quit smoking to stamp the floor and cheer sullenly.

"Socialism," he continued, "is purely an economic question. It is a question of bread and butter, and social changes of the last hundred years, with the amassing of great capital for the oppression of the workingmen, has made it a vital question to the bread-winner of today. The workingmen of today live from hand to mouth, and a few capitalists have all there is worth living. They live, we exist.

"Our party demands that the workingmen, the real producers of wealth, shall get the sole benefit of the wealth they produce, that none of it shall go to the rich parasites who do nothing to merit the gains.

"The problem has been brewing since fendal times. Today it has reached a crisis. I am here to give you a message. Don't believe what I say, but think for yourselves. Buy our tracts, read them; subscribe to our newspaper and ponder over what you read there. Then act, and act as one man. Thousands of workingmen are out of work today, because the capitalists have decreed it. That means that there is lots of time to think on this question. The poor want the change to come, but they are handicapped in the effort to gain their object. They have not the means, as the capitalists have, to teach, to bribe, to confuse their opponents.

Newspapers Subsidized.

"The workingman of today is on the verge of starvation, and you know it. The press, the pulpit and the politicians are our bitterest enemies. Whether from a feeling of viciousness or policy, I shall not say. The newspapers, owned and controlled by capitalists, are dependent upon them for support, and do not dare to take our side. They could not make money if they did, for the capitalists would withdraw their advertisements.

"And the churches, too. Their doors are not open to the workingman. I believe that only the capitalist is welcome,—the rich man, who pays pew rent and goes to church in a white vest and silk hat, with his gold-headed cane. And the dominies do not preach about the workingman. I tell you, if those ministers had to earn their bread as we do, they would preach a different find of sermon.

"The politicians strive in every campaign to get office by keeping the working people confused and content. They are men of promises, but they keep us slaves. Reform will no do, we must have an entirely new system. We cannot gain what we want

COUPLE SEPARATED; WIFE VERSUS BULLDOG

Following a conference with Judge Runyon in the city court this morning, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Murphy, of West Sixth street, decided that they could no longer live together and "agreed to disagree." The magistrate used every effort to effect a reconciliation but to no purpose. Mrs. Murphy maintained that her husband failed to provide proper support for herself and children and that he remained away from home for weeks at a time.

Judge Runyon suggested at one stage of the argument that Murphy did not bring money home because he had been out of work.

"That's true at times, Your Honor," the wife answered, "but even when he does get it none comes to us. Why, only a short time ago he worked two weeks for the first in a long while and instead of giving the earnings to his family he bought a bulldog with them. I think you'll agree with me that his wife and children are of more importance than a bulldog."

The separation was finally agreed upon and though for a time both held out for the children, Mrs. Murphy in the end consented to part with them. There are two girls and a boy. The mother was in tears when she agreed to part with them but declared to the court that it was preferrable to trying to keep up the household.

MINISTER TELLS WHAT THE ANGLES LOOK LIKE

"What Do Angels Look Like?" was the question discussed by Rev. E. E. Roberson at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, last night, it being one of those taken from "Pandora's Box." His disputed the idea some people have that angels are women and that they are provided with wings, and in substantiation of his claim declared that angels are spirits and therefore can go anywhere without the aid of wings.

"If all angels are women I feel sorry for the men," said Mr. Roberson, "for they will have no part in the glories of the hereafter. I presume that one of the reasons why angels are always pictured as being women is that they are more beautiful than the men. The Scriptures teach that angels do not look like their pictures and I have every reason to believe that men as well as women become angels."

The chief purpose of Mr. Roberson's treatise of this subject was to disprove the impression that angels look like the pictures so often shown of these celestial bodies. Following the introductory talk Mr. Roberson delivered his regular sermon on the subject, "The Simplicity of the True Knight," in which his chief thought was that simplicity is the character of true greatness. The service was attended by a large congregation.

Mrs. Charles N. Thorpe to Speak.

The annual meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will be held at the church on Monday, March 9, and Mrs. Charles Newbold Thorpe, of Philadelphia, formerly president of the New Century Club, of that city, and president of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church, will make an address. Mrs. Thorpe has just returned from an extended visit to mission stations in China, Japan, Korea and India and she will tell of her personal impressions of what she saw and heard in the Far East.

Accept Pastor's Resignation.

The resignation of Rev. T. Moore-Smith was reluctantly accepted at the business meeting of the church held yesterday at the conclusion of the morning service. This is in accordance with the request of the pastor, who refused to reconsider his determination to withdraw after he learned that some of his flock thought he devoted too much time to his prize winning dogs. Members of the congregation deeply regret the action taken by their pastor. Rev. Moore-Smith has not yet announced his plans for the future. His resignation will go into effect April 1.

Successful Leap-Year Dance.

Under the auspices of the young people of St. Stephen's church a leap-year dance was given at Truell Hall, Saturday night, for the benefit of the parish. The affair was arranged by Mrs. R. H. McCready and Miss Catherine Knox. It was attended by about thirty people and excellent music was furnished by Charles Suhr's orchestra.

First M. E. Communion.

Six persons were received into full membership at the communion service in the First M. E. church, yesterday, and three by letter.

SHOT BROTHER AT PLAY

POLICE MAKE NO ARRESTS.

Victim May Lose Sight of Eye—Face Filled With Buckshot—Children of William Morris.

While playing "Indian" in the garret at his home on Regent street yesterday afternoon, Walter Morris, the seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Morris, was shot in the head by his brother Russell, fourteen years old. The little fellow, seeing the shot-gun pointed at him, ducked behind the foot of a bed in the room where the two were playing, and this barrier was doubtless the means of saving his life. His face was filled with buckshot, and several sharp splinters of wood from the bed were embedded in his cheeks and forehead. Dr. M. B. Long was summoned and an eamination showed that one of thes splinters had penetrated the lad's left eye-ball. It is doubtful if his sight can be saved.

Russell, who, it is claimed, is atypical-minded, was not frightened at what he had done, but calmly told the whole story to a Daily Press reporter at his home this morning. When the lads started playing, soon after dinner, the shot-gun was empty, but in order to make the game more realistic, Russell got some shells from the pocket of his brother Arthur's hunting coat, which was hanging in the room, and loaded the gun. Having done this, he deliberately announced that he was going to shoot his brother, and fired. His aim was good, and the heavy charge splintered the foot of the bed behind which seven-year-old Walter was hiding. "A shot-gun isn't much good for shooting," he said, in speaking about the matter, "but when I get big, I'm going to join the army."

Chief Marshal Weiss of the borough, was notified of the shooting, but no arrests have been made. Little Walter, who is one of seven children, is under Dr. Long's care at his home. Dr. Long said today that it would be a day or two before he could find out if the lad's sight would be affected. The eyeball is cut through to the inner chamber.

WITNESS IN THEFT CASE IS MADE A PRISONER.

A charge of theft preferred against Thomas Harliend, the colored man only recently released from State's prison, took an unexpected turn when the case was called in the city court this morning. He was accused of taking $2 from the home of Mrs. Murray, of Plainfield avenue, while she was out, and also a watch belonging to Thomas Johnson, a boarder at the house.

Lawyer Frederick Pope, of Somerville, appeared for the defendant, and brought out the fact that Mrs. Mandy Dunham, who had been called as a witness, had been at Mrs. Murray's home that day and had carted away a lot of clothing belonging to the latter. Harliend maintained that Mrs. Dunham had given him the watch. She freely acknowledged taking the clothing but not the time-piece, and in reply to a question said it must have been the Devil that induced her to steal what she had.

Mrs. Dunham contradicted herself on several points and the magistrate suddenly ended maters by ordering her locked up until she could refresh her memory about the watch. Harliend was discharged.

Large Accessions at Trinity.

The hearts of the officers and members of Trinity Reformed church were gladdened yesterday morning when fourteen persons were received into membership by Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, at the communion service. The number included five young men, two young women, two women and five girls, all on confession and all members of the Sunday-school, and three from other churches by letter. Each person joining by confession was very solemnly received in a kneeling position, Dr. Johnson placing his hands upon his or her head and asking the Heavenly Father to bless and keep him or her as His child. Those joining by letter were warmly welcomed by Dr. Johnson in a few well chosen words.

Finished Performance Assured.

Under the auspices of the Silver Cross Circle of the King's Daughters, a three act play entitled "The Elopement of Ellen," will be given at the Park Club tomorrow night by local talent. Rehearsals have been in progress for several weeks and a finished performance is assured.

Rasores Club to Meet.

The Rasores Club will meet tomorrow morning with Mrs. T. F. Budlong, 823 Madison avenue. Quotations from Macaulay.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The verdict in every city "The Four Huntings" and their company of forty players have played their topsy turvy musical comedy this season, is that when they play a return date the house will not be large enough to hold the crowds. The will appear at the New Plainfield theatre tonight.

Joe Hortiz, in the leading role of "Our Friend Fritz," will make his return appearance at the New Plainfield theatre next Friday, afternonn and night. "Our Friend Fritz" is a melodrama pure and simple, but not of the shoot-at-will variety. A generous amount of comedy at times almost overshadows the melodramatic tendency of the piece, and the effect of the entire play is softened by the songs introduced by Mr. Hortiz. The plot has to do with the robbery of United States mail, and secondly developes a search for hidden wealth around an old mill. In it are embraced the usual pair of villains, one a "gentleman," the other a thug; a wrongly accused girl, her stubborn father and compassionate mother, Our Friend Fritz and his waif assistant, and the three necessary comedy parts. The play is considerably above the average melodramas to which we are accustomed. The cast is an exceptionally capable one. Joe Hortiz as Fritz Schiller, the newcomer to the city, makes a decidedly good impression. A remarkable high tenor voice used effectively in yodles, adds greatly to his work.

When either the President or the politician "swings around the circle," they rarely describe more than an arc. It is your hustling irrespressible minstrel manager, like the indominitable John W. Vogel, he of the large "Big City Minstrels," who leads the genuinely strenuous life and tours the country of forty-five unremitting weeks on a continuous stretch. The thespians groan over a few one night stands during the season, but your Vogel in minsrelsy is ever on the move, and knoweth with his fifty performers and prodigious preliminary expenditures and running expenses, that he must cover a vast territory to place the figures in the profitable column of the recording ledger. We hear of Vogel during the season at Portland, Oregon and Portland, Maine; Washington City and Washington State; New York and New Orleans; at Boston and San Francisco, and marvel of his rapid journeyings from "pillar to post." And what a vast amount of work to be constantly accomplished. Street parades, rehearsals and performances, sometimes twice a day, and the journeying, journeying, almost the year round. In the words of the song: "The Same Thing Over Again," until the end of the season and the band plays "Home Sweet Home." John W. Vogel's big city minstrels will appear at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday, afternoon and night, under the auspices of Plainfield Aerie, No. 866, F. O. E.

Mrs. Alice Rutledge and son, of this city, have returned from a visit with friends at Bound Brook.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Sixteen persons were baptized in the Taylor Memorial church at Paulsboro yesterday.

After twenty-six years of faithful service, Dan, an express horse owned by D. P. Armstrong, of Paulsboro, is dead.

Rev. William Mitchell, pastor of the Trinity M. E. church, Millville, has accepted a call to St. Paul's church at Trenton.

On charge of threatening the life of her husband, Mary Ann Carpenter, of 1304 Broadway, was held in $100 bail by Justice of Peace Barr, in Camden.

St. Paul's Lutheran church, at Collingswood, Rev. I. M. Hankey, pastor, was dedicated yesterday. Rev. A. S. Hartman and S. D. Daugherty preached special sermons.

To answer to a charge of striking his mother, who is a widow, William O'Brien, twenty years old, of 524 Borton street, Camden, was sent to jail in default of bail in the Camden police court Saturday.

Jerome Plummer, son of Senator William Plummer, of Salem county, and Miss Etta Gibe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gibe, of Brighton, were quietly married Saturday by Rev. William E. Greenback, at Minotola.

Plans for the first parochial school to be built in Atlantic City were filed Saturday by the pastor of St. Nicholas' Catholic church. They call for a three-story stone and iron building in Pacific avenue, near New York avenue, adjoining the church.

Charged with threatening the life of his wife because she refused to put properties, left to her by her late husband, in his name, John Luski, thirty-seven years old, of 1033 Kaighns avenue, was committed to jail in default of $1,000 bail by Justice of the Peace Colding, in Camden, Saturday.

In accordance with the decree of the Supreme Court the Burlington County Board of Canvassers Saturday issued a certificate of election to M. Walter Maitland, Democrat, for the office of Common Council of the Second ward, over Joseph S. Swaim, Republican. Maitland will take his seat tomorrow.

A. S. Lupton has removed a large swarm of bees from a hollow in the eaves of the residence of Dr. Sophia Tomlinson, at Shiloh. The bees had entered through a hole the size of a dime, and they had been hiving there for three years, much to the discomfort of the doctor's family. The bees had stored about forty pounds of honey.

In the face of hard luck about the happiest man in Pitman yesterday was A. G. Muller, who had his home destroyed by fire Thursday. Until Saturday he believed that $600 of his hard earnings was also consumed in the flames. While digging in the ruins he came across the scorched purse and upon opening it found the money intact.

Henry Meek, fifty years old, was rushed from Port Republic, twenty-one miles inland, to the City Hospital at Atlantic City, in an automobile Saturday to be operated upon for appendicitis. Health Officer John Mahoney's car was used. The trip did not fatigue the patient, who was immediately placed in a ward in preparation for an operation.

Failing to find any township willing to adopt "No Man's Land," the Gloucester county freeholders have appointed a committee to meet in the Clayton Town Hall. All the surrounding townships will be well represented and will fight against any attempt to force the land on them. It is more than likely the Legislature will have to settle the matter.

Levi Grant, the proprietor of a hotel at Chesterfield, a few miles from Bordentown, was attacked by a highwayman Thursday night and robbed of $60. Mr. Grant had gone to the sheds attached to his hotel to see if everything was right for the night, when a man in hiding dealt him a stunning blow, knocking him down, and rifled his pockets. There is no clue to the robbery.

SPORTING SIDE LIGHTS.

Syracuse is to meet Colgate in football next fall in the Syracuse stadium November 7.

After the forward pass rule has received the benefit of the pruning shears and the trimming ax every year for a few more years it'll fit like something tailor-made.

McFarland says he is the master of anybody in the world at his weight except Joe Gans. In a year he hopes to surprise Gans.

Nelson may be easy for the confidence men, but he certainly knows how to get all the money there is when signing up for a match.

Hugo Bezdek, assistant to Coach A. A. Stagg of the University of Chicago, has accepted a position as director of athletics at the University of Arkansas.

A system of strict economy in athletics has been inaugurated at the University of California. Last year's receipts were about $2,500 less than the year previous, and in the near future a fixed amount will be allowed to each branch of sport.

The second annual convention of the Presbyterian Brotherhood of New Jersey will be held in the First Presbyterian church, East Orange, tomorrow. The men's clubs in the local Presbyterian churches will be represented.

The Best Silks That Come From the Looms

In a Great Sale That Brings You Real Bargains All This Week.

Only the most expert can tell good silks from bad. Those who buy them must trust the store that sells them, and a store's reputation for selling dependable fabrics is your only true guide to goodness.

To establish and maintain a good silk store we, in turn, have to place our dependence upon those mills that have made a reputation by producing silks that measure up to a high standard and hold fast to that standard thruout many years.

Our silks come from just such mills—only such mills. There are no doubtful qualities admitted to the stock. No experiments. So we come to you with this week's presentation of our regular dependable grades of silks with pride and with confidence—naming prices that we are very certain no store, taking quality for quality, color for color, pattern for pattern, will match. Only a few hints of the pricings are given today. There will be a continuous run of news in the papers thruout the week.

DISCHARGED, SHE WOUNDS EMPLOYER

Andrew Litvany, saloon and boarding house keeper, at No. 40 Mercer street, Newark, was shot in the shoulder while lying in bed Saturday morning by Julia Simon, seventeen years old, who had been in his employ several months as a servant. He discharged her on Thursday night and told her she would have to leave Saturday.

Angered and discouraged, the girl intended, she says, to kill him and herself. She obtained possession of her employer's pistol, which he kept behind his saloon bar, during the night and about 8 o'clock in the morning entered his bedroom without announcing her coming until, in her native tongue and with much excitement, she demanded to know if he really meant that she should leave the house. He replied that he did and turned his back toward her.

She stepped forward, placed the muzzle of the pistol against his shoulder and fired. Then, as Litvany uttered an exclamation of pain and sprang from bed, the girl fainted and fell to the floor before she could turn the weapon upon herself.

Boarders in the house, who were aroused by the shot and by the cries of Litvany, summoned the police and a physician. The girl was taken to the Fourth precinct police station and held without bail on a charge of assault with intent to kill. It was found that the bullet made only a flesh wound in Litvany's shoulder, and after it had been dressed he was arrested and put under bail as a witness.

Miss Simon declares that the mere fact of being discharged by Litvany from her position as a servant in his house did not actuate her so much in attempting to kill him as the fact that they were engaged to be married and he was casting her off. Litvany denies that he promised to marry her. He declared that he had decided to dismiss her as a servant because of reports of misbehavior.

ALL COLLEGE MEN WELCOME AT SMOKER

In the preliminary arrangements for the college smoker to be held at the Casino on Friday night, March 13, Owen H. Fleming, chairman of the committee, has only been able to obtain 325 of the 500 names of college men who were on last year's list. Any college man who fails to receive a card of invitation is urged to send his name to Mr. Fleming and thereby help him in completing the list.

The purpose is to make this year's affair bigger than ever and there will be a number of strong attractions, in addition to the abundance of things to eat, smoke and drink. Special efforts will be made to secure several prominent speakers, and it is possible that a president of one of the leading universities in this country may attend. As usual the different colleges will be represented in the list of toasts.

The committee will devote particular attention to the decoration of the hall and college colors will be used extensively in the scheme. Prompt replies to the invitations sent out will be of great assistance in determining the number to be provided for and they should be sent to either Mr. Fleming or Lewis A. Williams, Jr., at the earliest possible date.

VISIT STATE HOSPITAL.

Managers Want An Appropriation For Improvements.

Members of the joint appropriation committee and the joint committee on hospitals of the State Legislature at Trenton yesterday visited the State Hospital for the Insane, Trenton, to inspect the place and consider the financial needs of the institution.

The board of managers want for the ensuing year a regular appropriation of $185,200 and an additional appropriation for improvements of $140,000. The committee found the institution in good condition under the new management, which was appointed as a result of the Hahn investigation.

HIT BY TROLLEY, GETS $1,000.

George Albers, who declared that he was badly injured when a trolley car of the Jersey City, Hoboken and Paterson Street Railway Company struck the truck he was driving in West Hoboken was awarded $1,000 damages by a jury in Judge Vail's Court, Jersey City, yesterday

Officials of the trolley company testified that the company had received no report of the accident, and all the conductors and motormen who were working on the day in question were called as witnesses and they all denied knowledge of the accident.

Nathan R. Titsworth, formerly of this city, who has been conducting the Bound Brook Hotel, will leave there April 1 and move to Newark, where he has purchased a bowling alley on Clinton street, near Mulberry.

BASEBALL.

The officials of the Inter-City Amateur League are now at work on the season's schedule and it will probably be issued this week. As there will be two Plainfield teams, Y. M. C. A. and Clinton Avenue, local fans are already assured of a game every Saturday. Scotch Plains will be favored likewise, having the regular 'Plains aggregation while the Junior O. U. A. M., will also use the grounds on days when the league team is away from home.

It is still a matter of great regret that Somerville could not be induced to join the amateur league. Besides adding greatly to the sport, it would mean dollars and cents in no small way. The West Ends will have a strong team, however, and it is possible that a series of two or three games may be arranged between the locals and the Somerset county boys.

The Buffalo Club, it is reported, will secure Evans, a young first baseman being tried out with the New York Giants at Marlin Springs.

The Philadelphia Americans will play their first game of the season at New Orleans Sunday. Lave Cross will play with New Orleans against his old team-mates.

Barney Dreyfuss, of the Pittsburg Club, yesterday declared that Leach will spend the summer loafing in Cleveland unless he signs at the terms offered by the Smoky City management.

Pete Cassidy says that Montreal and Buffalo are after his services. He says if he doesn't play with the Indians he will stick to Wilmington. Cassidy recently disposed of his saloon and has started in the wholesale liquor business.

Manager Stallings, of the Indians, has arranged two exhibition games to be played with Charley Dooley's Utica team at the latter city. The dates are April 21 and 22. The Uticas are also billed to play there on April 16.

Harry Lumley, the hard hitting rightfielder of the Superbas, has been appointed captain of the team by Patsy Donovan, the manager.

GOLF.

Radical changes were decided upon at the annual meeting of the East Jersey Golf League, held last week. Most important was the abandonment of the home-and-home championship team matches, which have been a feature of the league ever since its organization, nearly ten years ago. It was the unanimous opinion of the delegates present that the time had passed for a hard and fast team schedule. In fact, the experiences of some of the clubs last season showed that it would be impossible to continue under the old basis. It has become a more difficult matter each year for the captains to muster their men for the away-from-home matches and on a number of occasions teams appeared short handed.

In future the league will devote its attention to tournaments. The spring tournament, as it will be called, will probably be a two-day affair, and June 19 and 20 have been suggested as the dates. The course of the Forest Hill Field Club was offered, and will undoubtedly be accepted by the committee.

The plan is to combine medal and match play in the spring tournament. According to plans, a team competition will be run off in conjunction with the eighteen-hole qualifying round. Teams would consist of four members from any one club, and the winner would be the one with the lowest aggregate total. The suggestion has been made to have the contestants qualify in flights of eights for the tournament proper.

The annual championship will be held as usual in the fall and probably over the links of the Deal Golf and Country Club. A team competition in conjunction with the qualifying round is also proposed for this tournament. The individual title last year was won by A. W. Main, Jr., at the Canoe Brook Country Club, his home links.

It was voted to abolish the old constitution, which was devoted almost exclusively to regulations for team matches. The minimum number of clubs in the league was placed at five, the present figure. In the past the league has usually limited its membership to six clubs, as more than that number would make it unwieldly for a team circuit.

The plan now is to greatly increase the number of clubs and allow any one belonging to a club in the league the privilege of competing in the spring tournament and the championship. When the new constitution is drafted it will provide that in order for a player to be eligible to compete for the title he will have to be a member of some league club at least thirty days prior to the tournament.

It was voted to reduce the annual club dues from $15 to $10, and it is the belief that this moderate tax will go a long way toward increasing the membership. The Roseville Golf Club which won the team championship last year, has gone out of existence, but to offset this it is thought that such organizations as the Upper Montclair Country Club, New Brunswick Golf Club, Westfield Golf Club, Yountakah Country Club, Arsdale Golf Club and Colonia Country Club will join.

Ward G. Thomas, of the Glen Ridge Golf Club, declined to serve again as president, whereupon Frank A. Wright, of the Canoe Brook Country Club, was elected in his stead. Mr. Wright was the secretary-treasurer last year. Douglas Gordon, of the South Orange Field Club, was elected vice-president, and Frank H. Thompson, of the Forest Hill Field Club, was elected secretary-treasurer. Mr. Thompson served in this capacity when the league was in its infancy.

The women will be greatly interested in the new and attractive line of dress goods; also the large line of house-furnishings as well as laces, embroideries and white goods. A well-appointed men's furnishing department will interest the men.

Franklin Murphy Off for South.

Former Governor Franklin Murphy, chairman of the Republican State Committee, will start for the South today for a two weeks' vacation. Mr. Murphy has not quite recovered from the accident which befell him some months ago and which kept him indoors for some time. On his return the State chairman will probably convoke the State committee to issue a call for the election of delegates to the national convention. It is hoped that by that time the Legislature will have passed whatever legislation it intends to in relation to primary elections.

THE DARROW AVE. SCHOOL.

The clear, concise and convincing explanation made by the Board of Education, exclusively in The Daily Press, on Saturday, as to the why and wherefore of its decision to favor the erection of a commodious primary school building at Darrow avenue and Essex street could not fail to deeply interest the taxpayers. The publication of the plans for this structure, for which it is hoped the Common Council will provide the necessary funds, undoubtedly served to clear up in the minds of a great number of people many misunderstandings concerning the entire proposition. That the able and conscientious membership of the Board as well as the energetic Mayor are heartily in favor of the scheme to relieve the overcrowded conditions of the schools is a sufficient guarantee that the best interests of the city demand the fulfillment of the plans, but recognizing that there are "two sides to every question," this paper invites any honest criticism. Communications on the subject will be gladly published as soon as received provided the writers' names are signed to them.

The announcement in these columns of the candidacy of William L. Gloak for the vacancy on the Union County Board of Elections when Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., resigns in the near future has met with the hearty approval of his many friends in the community. Mr. Gloak's knowledge of election procedure should stand him in good stead, and from what can be learned, it is quite certain that he will receive the appointment.

The ghost of Bryanism is vainly trying its best to scare the "safe and sane" Democracy into resurrecting the dead and disastrous issues, but in such times as these sensible men are not prone to dig their own financial graves by supporting policies that mean bankruptcy and distress.

The best evidence of the decline of the Democrat party in New Jersey is to be found in the fact that Bob Davis has been acclaimed as boss. He's the sort of leader that gives promise of guiding his party to just that place where the Republicans would like to see it eternally.

DR. M. F. DE HART STRICKEN.

Sudden illness will prevent Dr. M. F. DeHart, of Mercer street, Jersey City, attending today's meeting of the Political Study Club of Bayonne, where she was to have spoken. Dr. De Hart suffered a slight stroke of paralysis early Friday morning. Although she has rallied considerably, it will be some time before she is out again.

Dr. DeHart is one of the best known women in New Jersey. She was the first woman to practice medicine in Jersey City, and for nearly forty years has been prominent throughout the State as a lecturer and club woman. She has been an officer in the Jersey City Woman's Club since its start, fourteen years ago, and for two years was its president. She is State President of the New Jersey Woman's Suffragist Association and also the president of the Political Study Club of Jersey City. She is also one of the managers of the Girls' Home, the State Reformatory in Trenton and is identified with many public movements.

Co. K Fair a Great Success.

Co. K's annual fair closed Saturday night, being one of the most successful in the history of the organization. Dancing was the feature every night and this was enjoyed by hundreds of patrons. Saturday night just before the windup several awards were made. A. Rubenstein, of Netherwood, received a $10 gold piece; Philip Winter, of Westfield, a suit of clothes; J. Bates, of Westfield, a ton of coal and Philip Geise, of this city, a $5 gold piece.

ROOSEVELT FAVORS FRELINGHUYSEN BILL

President Roosevelt has expressed a desire that the movement in New Jersey for the preservation of game shall succeed, and in a letter to George Batten, of Upper Montclair, president of the Association of New Jersey Sportsmen, he declares against the indiscriminate slaughter of wild fowl. The President's letter is as follows:

"I will gladly accept honorary membership in your committee. While I cannot take an active part in your work, I have full sympathy with the purposes of your association, and especially to bring about legislation in all states that will stop all spring shooting and all summer shooting."

Grover Cleveland, whose love of duck hunting is well known, in a letter to President Batten writes:

"I have received your letter of the 11th inst. indicating that the association would be glad to bestow upon me a place upon the roll of its honorary membership. Being in full sympathy with the purposes of your organization, but with the express understanding that I cannot devote any time or attention to the work which it has in hand, I should consider it an honor to be placed in the list of honorary members."

A bill that would silence every huntsman's gun from December 31 to August 1 of each year has been introduced in the State Legislature by Senator Frelinghuysen, and during the next fortnight sportsmen will gather at Trenton to further the interests of this measure.

Legislators from the bay districts of New Jersey, where pot hunting flourishes, will make a fight against it, because they declare that it cuts off a means of livelihood for many of their constituents.

Protection during the breeding season would bring back to New Jersey in great numbers the black duck, the blue winged teal and the mallard, as well as some of the diving ducks, which breed abundantly.

FORMER GOVERNOR STOKES TO ADDRESS M. E. CONFERENCE

After Bishop Luther B. Wilson has made the opening prayer former Governor Edward C. Stokes will make the address of welcome to the members of the New Jersey Methodist Episcopal Conference, which will convene in the First church at Millville, on March 11. Bishop Wilson comes from Chattanooga, Tenn. Ex-Governor Stokes will be a delegate to the general conference in Baltimore in May, at which time the clergy and laymen will make the general laws for the next four years.

At the coming conference at Millville there will be three hundred clergymen delegates. One of the important themes for discussion is the local option movement.

SOUTH ORANGE TO REBEL.

P. S. Corporation May Wake Up to Find Municipal Lighting Plant.

Interest has been revived in the long pending movement at South Orange to establish a municipal lighting plant, which was temporarily sidetracked about a year ago, by the introduction by Senator Everett Colby of a bill giving the village power to construct or purchase suitable plants, works and machinery for supplying gas or electric lights for public and private use.

At present the Public Service Corporation is allowed to do business in the village without the semblance of a franchise, it is said, and there is much grumbling as a result. The present bill has a referendum clause.

WAITING FOR NO. 5.

Farmer, Having Buried Four Wifes, Hints It's Leap Year.

Joseph K. Norton, a prosperous farmer, seventy years old, living between Swedesboro and Centre Square, Gloucester county, has been married four times and has lost as many wives. Twenty children have been born to him, ten of whom are now living. Mr. Norton is in excellent health. In an interview as to his past life, he said he began working on a farm at the age of three.

Just whether Mr. Norton is looking for another wife can be best told in his own words. He says: "The Lord said it is not well for man to be alone; you know this is leap year, and I am a single man."

New High School for Bayonne.

The Bayonne Board of Education has decided to erect a new high school in the central location of the city. It will cost about $200,000. Today, in East East Twenty-fith street, Bayonne, ground will be broken for a grammar and primary school which will cost $160,000, be of brick and three stories in height and have twenty-four class rooms, which will accommodate 1,000 pupils.

Will Pay for "Church on Wheels."

The members of all the churches of the classis of New Brunswick have agreed to pay for a portable church built at Runyon, near New Brunswick. The classis met at New Brunswick yesterday and decided to take up a series of collections throughout its district for the purpose.

LICENSE OF NEWARK SCHOOL HEAD REVOKED.

Newark's school authorities were notified on Saturday that the New Jersey State Board of Examiners has revoked the first grade State certificate of Thomas J. Bissell, principal of the Charlton street public school of Newark, as the result of charges against him on which evidence was recently taken by the Board. Action in the matter will probably be taken by the Newark Board of Education today or tomorrow. It was charged against Bissell that for $200 he falsely sertified to the State Medical Board that Dr. Herman P. Reiger, of Newark, had completed a four years' course in the Flemington High School when Bissell was supervising principal of the Flemington schools. Bissell still has the right of appeal to the State Board of Education.

In the report of the finding of the State Board of Examiners it is set forth that the evidence showed that Dr. Reiger never attended the Flemington High School, and that, in the opinion of the Board, Bissell knew when he gave the certificate that the statements it it were false, and that he received $200 for it. The decision of the Board to revoke his license as a teacher and principal was unanimous.

MISTOOK OVERCOAT FOR BEAR.

William J. Worcester, of Bloomfield, N. J., while fishing through the ice with several friends at Stockholm, in Morris county, on Saturday hung his valuable fur overcoat to the limb of a tree, where it swayed gently to and fro with the wind. The party had just pulled several pickerel through the ice, when they were startled by a series of shots from a gun.

Down from the hill came a man in the garb of a sportsman and he carried a gun.

"Just shot a bear," he shouted to the fishermen.

Then he hurried to the spot where Mr. Worcester's coat had fallen. He picked it up, let it drop and disappeared on the run.

FARM MORTGAGES $3,000,000.

New Jersey farmers are preparing for a bargain day rush around the State treasury if a bill, introduced in the Legislature by Senator Price, of Sussex county, becomes a law. This measure provides that the State Treasurer shall lend the surplus of the State for mortgages on farms at 3 per cent. The surplus generally hovers between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000, and there is about $200,000,000 worth of farm property in the State. The State now banks its surplus at 2 per cent.

HELD ON KIDNAPPING CHARGE.

Charged with having kidnapped Blanche Neal, the fifteen-year-old daughter of Mrs. Annie Neal, of No. 232 Caspian street, Elizabeth, who has been missing from her home since Tuesday, February 18, Harry Lingerman, thirty-seven years old, is being held by the Elizabeth police. The charge against Lingerman, who lived at No. 484 Spring street, and who has lived apart from his wife for some time past, was made by the mother of the girl.

The warrant against Lingerman was sworn out on Thursday, before Mrs. Neal left Elizabeth to join her husband at Marietta, Pa. Lingerman was taken into custody Saturday by Police Sergeant Hiney. It is believed the girl is somewhere in Elizabeth. It is said Lingerman and the girl were seen together by a brother of the girl and that Lingerman offered the boy money to keep silent.

Lingerman denies knowing anything of the whereabouts of the girl. Police Chief George C. Tenney says that Lingerman will be held until the Neal girl is found, when he will be given an opportunity to prove his innocence.

DEMOCRATIC REVOLT IN HUDSON THIS FALL.

John J. Treacey, who, when a member of Assembly in 1900-1901, advocated many reform measures and who subsequently sought the nomination for Mayor of Jersey City in opposition to the wishes of the party leaders, declared yesterday that it would be a mistake for the Democrats to nominate Bryan for President.

"The Nebraskan is an able able man," said Mr. Treacey, who is regarded as the leader of the anti-organization Democrats, "but he is not the kind of man to lead the Democratic party to victory. If he is nominated he will be defeated just as he was in 1896 and 1900, and if the Republicans nominate Governor Fort for Vice-President they will sweep the State. Even Democratic Hudson would be in doubt."

Mr. Treacey said he had been urged by Assemblyman Hendrickson, Circuit Court Judge Charles Black and other prominent Democrats to run for Sheriff on an independent ticket. Unless the Democrats make strong county nominations Mr. Treacey said he might give the proposition favorable consideration.

Invents a "Pay-as-you-leave" Car.

A "pay-as-you-leave" car is the product of Geoge Bopp, a skilled mechanic, of East Orange. Bopp says he thinks it will become the "perfect trolley car" and that it will prove infinitely superior to the "pay-as-you-enter" car. One of the best features claimed by Bopp is that the single end cars now in use can be fitted up as "pay-as-you-go-outs" for $400, whereas the body alone of a "pay-as-you-enter" car costs $2,000. Bopp is already in negotiation with traction officials.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Former Councilman William H. Kuhns and family moved today to Anthony, where Mr. Kuhns has purchased a farm. He resigned from the council in January because of the "high-handed way which Mayor Swackhamer ran things," and shortly afterwards announced his intention of quitting Dunellen. His vacated house will be occupied by Mrs. Emile Muller and family about April 1.

In the interests of Local Option, several local Christian Endevorers went to Trenton this morning for the public hearing of the bill before the Assembly this afternoon. Rev. W. W. Casselberry, who has been booming the cause in the borough, was in charge of the local delegation, and Local Option was referred to in services at the Presbyterian and Baptist churches yesterday.

February 29, the leap year day, was fittingly observed in the borough Saturday by a series of informal leap year parties, in which the women took the initiative. Especially successful was the affair at the home of Mrs. George Coffey, of New Market, where a score of guests gathered in the evening, and spend the time with games and music.

At the meeting of the Piscataway Township Committee at Thornton's Hotel tomorrow night, the question of right of way through the township by the Interstate Telephone and Telegraph Company will be discussed at a public meeting. The proposition is creating considerable talk, and it is urobable that there will be a large turnout.

Several new members were received at the communion service at the Presbyterian church yesterday morning. Rev. W. W. Casselberry officiated.

Mrs. DeWitt C. Fulton, who was operated on at a Newark hospital last week, is reported to be improving steadily.

The G. E. Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Samuel Meeker tonight.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Henry Winters met with a painful accident at Scott's Press Works, Friday. While working about a machine a finger in some way became caught and before it could be loosened the digit had nearly been severed from the hand.

The Boys' Club of the Baptist church attended the Y. M. C. A. meeting held yesterday afternoon in Plainfield. Capt. H. B. Saunders had charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O'Keefe were the guests over Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Alberts, of Westfield avenue.

The members of the B. Y. P. U. held a consecration meeting last night in the parlors of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Paff, Sr., have been entertaining relatives from out of town over Sunday.

A number from here attended the closing night of Co. K's fair, Plainfield, Saturday night.

The baseball club's entertainment, "Oak Farm," will be held tomorrow night in the hall.

William Deegan has settled in the hotel again, moving in last night.

SOUTH PLAINFIEUD.

The Rev. C. W. F. Attlee was absent from his pulpit last evening, and the Christian Endeavorers conducted the service. The pastor is suffering from a bad cold, and had to be assisted in the morning service by the senior deacon.

On Friday, March 27, Rev. C. W. F. Attlee will give selections from "Oliver Twist" in the auditorium of the church. The proceeds will be devoted to special church objects.

Among those that shone at the Baptist musicale Friday night were George J. May and Grace Norman, whose names were omitted in the report of that event.

Mrs. Catherine Smith is entertaining Mrs. William Armstrong, of Avon-by-the-Sea, who is visiting her many friends. Her late husband was a former pastor here.

Marshall Reilly and Detective William Jenkins, in the usual Sunday round up, captured a full blooded Indian. He was sent back to his Indian reservation.

FIGHT WILDCAT FOR CHICKENS.

In a battle royal with a wildcat yesterday afternoon Willard Searls, of Caldwell, killed the animal in his hennery, but not until the beast had killed one hundred and fifty of his chickens and had devoured some of them.

Searls heard a commution in his hennery, and with his son rushed to the scene. Seizing an axe handle and a broom the two fought the visitor. Searl's hands and face were badly cut and bruised. The animal, it is believed, was driven from the mountains near Greenwood Lake by the cold. Searls will have the carcass stuffed.

Miss Conolly, of this city, is visiting Miss Emma Conolly, of Annandale.

LOCAL OPTION FIGHT ON

BILL'S DOOM IS MOST LIKELY.

Special trains were run to Thenton this morning by the Anti-Saloon League and the liquor interests to take thousands of the people of New Jersey to the committee hearing in the Assembly chamber this afternoon on the Crosby local option bill. The committee on municipal corporations, consisting of Assemblymen Moxon, of this county; Jos. Potter, Clark, Voorhees and Morris, gathered at 2 o'clock and the hearing will be continued until 7 or 8 this evening.

A delegation of Christian Endeavorers from the thirteen churches of the local Christian Endeavor Union are in attendance. Part of the anti-saloon workers, headed by Clarence B. La Rue, president of the local Christian Endeavor Union, left for Trenton at 9 o'clock, and the remainder of the delegation took a noon train. There are many supporters of the Local Option movement in this city, and Charles Windham, secretary of the Union, spoke at several of the local churches yesterday. At the conclusion of Dr. Munhall's address at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon, letters petitioning the Assemblymen to support the movement were distributed, to be signed and forwarded today.

The Anti-Saloon League has been very active throughout the State and has enlisted the interests of practically all the churches. Some idea of the wave in favor of local option can be gathered from the large number of petitions and letters sent to members of the Legislature. The signatures to the former run way up in the thousands and over 6,000 letters have been received by the committee in charge of the bill.

The big Assembly chamber at the State House is taxed to its utmost to accommodate the crowd this afternoon and the clergy are largely represented. It is exptected that the hearing will be ven larger than that of two years gao when the bishops' bill was up.

Bill Will Fail.

Men who watch legislation say that neither the Republicans nor the Democrats are anxious to tackle any excise legislation and on this basis declare that the local option bill will not get through both houses. Advocates of local option are confident that the voice of the people will be too strong to be resisted by the Assemblymen and Senators, so they feel sure that the bill will be passed.

The committee will devote this afternoon to hearing those in favor of the bill and it will probably be tomorrow morning before the liquor interests will have their inning. Saloonkeepers, however, and likuor dealers will be there in great force, especially from North Jersey. Several German societies and other "liberal" organizations sent delegations. Estimates of the crowd range all the way from 5,000 to 10,000.

Liquor Men Alert.

The brewers and saloon men have been keeping a close watch on legislation affecting their interests, but they realize that there is a deep sentiment for local option. Both sides are prepared to present strong arguments to the committee for and against the measure.

The anti-saloon option interests have distributed circulars in an effort to show that the brewers, malsters and distillers of the United States pay into the producing sources of the United States $334,851,097, besides more than $68,000,000 in State and government licenses, in addition to which are city licenses, real estate and personal property taxes that aggregate $70,000,000.

In many churches yesterday special services were held with local option as the topic to call attention to today's hearing. At Paterson, in the Market Street M. E. church, President Mead of the Anti-Saloon League and Governor Hanly, of Indiana, spoke yesterday afternoon.

There was a meeting at Elizabeth Saturday, at which arrangements were made to take 2,500 persons from that city to Trenton to oppose the bill. Of this number 1,000 are business men. There are evidences of how busy both sides are, and similar examples can be taken from nearly every city throughout the State.

The Rev. S. Monroe Van Sant, of Central M. E. Church, was recently selected by the Inter-Church Federation to speak for the bill on behalf of that organization.

Governor Hanly will speak this evening at a local option mass meeting for men and women in Taylor opera house, Trenton. Governor Hanly cancelled important engagements in his home State to come to New Jersey at the invitation of the Anti-Saloon League. The Rev. Dr. Charles L. Mead, president of the league, will preside at the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Shepherd, of Park avenue and Fourth street, will soon remove to Somerville, that point being more convenient to Mr. Shepherd, who is a train baggagemaster on the New Jersey Central.

NEGRO LYNCHED, BUT STILL LIVES

STRUNG UP AND VOLLEY FIRED AT HIM, HE IS LEFT FOR DEAD BY MOB.

IS CUT DOWN BY SHERIFF

Law May Do Better Job—Shooting of White Man Likely to End in Murder, Then Trial and Execution.

Dothan, Ala.—Grover Franklin, the negro who was hanged to a tree by a mob of 200 masked men the other Sunday night, is now in the hands of the legal authorities, alive, and will probably survive to be hanged again, this time by the law. The circumstances concerning this case of attempted lynching are unusual. Franklin was seized on Saturday night at about eight o'clock by the mob. The night before he had been caught robbing a cash drawer of the mill of a cotton oil company where he was employed. On being found he shot and seriously wounded the secretary-treasurer of the company. The negro then fled.

He was shortly afterward pursued by Sheriff Butler and a force of deputies. The man was finally captured by them and taken to jail.

The remainder of Saturday night and all of Sunday until evening he passed behind the bars. In the meantime word of his attack had run through the community. The victim is a man of wide popularity, with many friends, and it was determined by some of these that the negro was not to be allowed to remain alive until the law could try to hang him, in the event of death, which is considered likely to occur.

Three or four of the official's closest friends, accordingly, began the formation of a mob of determined men who could be depended upon to wrest Franklin from the grasp of the sheriff. Two hundred men, heavily armed and masked with black face cloths, were finally assembled. They rode to the jail and demanded the prisoner. In the face of such a force the sheriff was powerless and the negro was seized by the mob.

He was dragged to the northern part of the town, shrieking for mercy all the while. Here he was given two minutes to make his peace with God, and then he was swung up to the limb of a large tree. In the meantime Sheriff Butler had gathered a force of his deputies, re-enforced by a few law-abiding citizens, and this body was in hot pursuit. The members of the mob, therefore, hurriedly remounted their horses, fired a volley of shots at the negro—riddling him, as they believed—and dashed away.

On the arrival of the sheriff the negro was cut down. It was found that he was still alive. He was at once removed to a hospital, where it is declared that he has a good chance for recovery. Faulk's condition is very serious. If he dies and the negro recovers, Franklin will, in all probability, once more undergo the experience of being hanged.

It was found that only one of the many bullets fired at the negro had taken effect, and the wound was not serious. The lynchers, in their hurry, had failed to string him up high enough, and he was enabled to touch the ground with his toes.

Girl Leads Thief Gang.

Los Angeles, Cal.—When Mary Stuart, a dainty young Los Angeles girl, was held in Santa Ana under $3,000 bail on a burglary charge the extraordinary story of the strangest woman criminal the city has ever known came out.

It developed that she is the head of a band of male crooks who have operated everywhere from here to San Diego, and is herself an adept at men's make-up.

Two men of the gang were captured after robbing a Chinese store in Anaheim, in company with the girl, and they also were bound over under heavy bail.

Man Sees Own Grave Dug.

Winsted, Conn.—Charles Avery, 82, who still enjoys good health, is personally superintending the digging of his grave in Manchester, also the erection of a monument on his burial lot. The grave is being cemented on the sides and bottom.

FASHION HINTS.

The "new shape" is made of the same material as the old.

The turn-over collar will hold its own this season—if securely fastened.

In footwear the cardinal rule still prevails: "If the shoe fits, put it on."

In automobile costumes none but fast colors are employed, and, as usual, many are dying.

Although knickerbockers are not the thing, in swell circles the breath is often found in short pants.

Bathing costumes this year follow, in a general way, as heretofore, the styles set by mermaids and the fishes.

Hosiery is still worn rather full, especially by those inclined to be plump, and sometimes it is also worn threadbare.

The hose supporter has so universally superseded the elastic band that there is nothing left of the old-fashioned garter but the "Honi soit" maxim.

A variety of pleasing tastes dictate the wearing of milady's coiffure, but the practice of wearing it on her escort's shoulder is frowned upon by dames de confiance.

The vogue of the "jumper" as a garment for that part of the human anatomy which does not jump would seem to logically call for the use of gaiters as corset-covers.

In determining the quantum of sleeve regard should be had to the proportion of arm available; the less arm you have the more the sleeve you will require, et vice versa.—The Bohemian.

WITH THE SAGES.

A word is a winged seed—none can tell when once it has gone forth what its harvest may be.—Sydney.

Whether our crosses are bearable or not depends upon our method of carrying them.—Elizabeth Gibson.

None so little enjoy life, and are such burdens to themselves, as those who have nothing to do.—Jordan.

Clemency can never exist itself with more applause than when there is the justest cause for resentment.—Pliny.

Bring to bear upon thyself the resolution of a noble mind; thou mayest be what thou resolvest to be.—Mencius.

Do good constantly, patiently and wisely, and you will never have cause to say that life was not worth living.—Hines.

A good disposition is more to be prized than jewels of gold or silver. It is more precious than sapphires, and all the riches of the mighty are not to be compared to it.—Martineau.

The shortest and the surest way to prove a work possible is strenuously to set about it; and no wonder if that proves it possible, that for the most part makes it so.—South.

Let a man take pride in his achievements of virtue. Let him take satisfaction in his moral conquests. Let him have faith that he can do, and no height is inaccessible to him.—Marter.

SUNFLOWER PHILOSOPHY.

Which does a woman prefer? Alimony or insurance?

No man can be contented who has too much time to think of the things that don't suit him.

An Atchison man is so cross and stingy with his wife that when she tries to get him to give her a dollar she calls it "working the growler."

When everything else fails to furnish talk the neighbors can always think of some mother too indulgent, and some stepmother too impatient.

When a man marries a woman for her money the people applaud when she ties it so tight he can't touch it, and then can't reconcile such sense with the folly she showed in marrying him.

If a girl is young and pretty enough people will overlook her affectations and frills; the plain-looking girl must have common sense and a cool head, even when the family horse is running away.—Atchison (Kan.) Globe.

KILLS BUCK DEER; SAVES MAN'S LIFE

WEALTHY INDIANA FARMER HAS NARROW ESCAPE FROM FRIGHTFUL DEATH.

HUNTER FIRES JUST IN TIME

Pet Animal Becomes Vicious and Charges Owner—Neighbor Comes Upon Scene Not a Moment Too Soon.

Logansport, Ind.—A big buck deer, the first killed in Cass county in 30 years, was shot on the farm of Wilson Searight, three miles west of this city, the other afternoon by George Webster, a Logansport hunter. The deer was one kept in captivity by Searight and but for Webster's unerring aim it might have killed or, at least, seriously injured the owner. Webster, with gun under arm, opportunely arrived just as the buck had Searight penned in a corner. The animal was about to charge when the farmer yelled to Webster to fire. Webster did as ordered and the buck keeled over in death at Searight's feet.

Searight, who is one of the wealthiest farmers in Cass county, has three bucks and a doe, ducks, pheasants and other wild animals and birds on his farm. He is an enthusiastic nimrod, journeying into the north woods every year to hunt deer, moose and bear. The deer held in captivity are trophies of various hunting trips. They and other animals are permitted to roam at large over Searight's broad fields and woods and signs are posted everywhere warning hunters to keep off.

One of the bucks recently became vicious. Previously all were very tame and Searight could approach them at will. But this one buck in particular developed an ugly streak. At first it simply fled when the owner approached, but a few days ago it started new tactics and charged at Searight whenever he tried to approach.

The other afternoon the farmer started to cross a small inclosure in which the deer were gathered. He paid no attention to the animals, but was bent on getting to another part of his farm. The beat of hoofs and the sound of a defiant snort behind caused him to turn. Approaching with blazing eyes and lowered head was the buck which had developed the bad streak. Searight tried to scare the animal off by waving his arms and throwing small missiles, but the buck stood its ground, and then began another advance.

Searight now became thoroughly frightened, and he turned and fled. The deer followed, snorting savagely. The farmer made for a nearby fence corner with the buck close at his heels. Nearer and nearer it approached, and Searight, breathless and almost exhausted, fell into the corner. The buck was so close he feared to climb over and he turned and faced the oncoming animal.

When Searight fell the deer halted and gazed threateningly at the cornered man. There was a baleful gleam in its eyes; it pawed the earth savagely and seemed only waiting an opportune time to charge and toss Searight into the air on its broad antlers. At this moment George Webster, who had been hunting in an adjoining woods, and was on his return to Logansport, came along on the opposite side of the fence. He took in the situation at a glance. The buck's threatening attitude caused him to raise his gun to his shoulder. Searight yelled for him to fire. But Webster simply stood. Seemingly he was affected with "buck fever," so common to hunters who see their first deer. Searight yelled again and, combined with the animal's preparations to charge, it brought Webster out of the spell. He fired and the buck, after a leap high into the air, fell at Searight's feet and keeled over dead. Webster had fired none too soon.

John Rehwald, a Logansport butcher, was summoned and the animal was dressed. Searight intends to give a venison supper to his friends to celebrate his narrow escape. Webster will be the guest of honor.

LANGFORD of the THREE BARS

By KATE AND VIRGIL D. BOYLES

(Copyright by A. C. McClurg & Co., 1907.)

The examination proceeded. The air was getting stifling. Windows were thrown open. Damp-looking clouds had arisen from nowhere seemingly and spread over the little prairie town, over the river and the hills. It was very warm. Weather-seasoned inhabitants would have predicted storm had they not been otherwise engaged. There was no breath of air stirring. Mrs. Higgins had said it was a sorry day for the cattle when the river was running in December. Others had said so and so believed, but people were not thinking of the cattle now. One big-boned, long-horned steer held the stage alone.

The state proceeded to Munson's identification of the steer in question. After many and searching questions, Gordon asked the witness:

"Jim, would you be willing to swear that the steer you had held over at the stock yards was the very same steer that was the mascot of the Three Bars' ranch?"

This was Jim's big opportunity.

"Know Mag? Swear to Mag? Dick, I would know Mag ef I met him on the golden streets of the eternal city or ef my eyes was full o' soundin' cataracts! Yep."

"I am not asking such an impossible feat, Mr. Munson," cut in Gordon, nettled by the digressions of one of his most important witness. "Answer briefly, please. Would you be willing to swear?"

Jim was jerked back to the beaten track by the sharp incision of Gordon's rebuke. No, this was indeed not Jimmie Mac's court.

"Yep," he answered, shortly.

Billy Brown was called. After the preliminary questions, Gordon said to him:

"Now, Mr. Brown, please tell the jury how you came into possession of the steer."

"Well, I was shippin' a couple o' car loads to Sioux City, and I was drivin' the bunch myself with a couple o' hands when I meets up with Jesse Black here. He was herdin' a likely little bunch o' a half dozen or so—among 'em this spotted feller. He said he wasn't shippin' any this fall, but these were for sale—part of a lot he had bought from Yellow Wolf. So the upshot of the matter was I took 'em off his hands. I was just lackin' 'bout that many to make a good, clean, two cars full."

"You took a bill-of-sale for them, of course, Mr. Brown?"

"I sure did. I'm too old a hand to buy without a bill-o'-sale."

The document was produced, marked as an exhibit, and offered in evidence.

The hearing of testimony for the state went on all through that day. It was late when the state rested its case—so late that the defence would not be taken up until the following day. It was all in—for weal or for woe. In some way all of the state's witnesses—with the possible exception of Munson, who would argue with the angel Gabriel at the last day and offer to give him lessons in trumpet-blowing—had been imbued with the earnest, honest, straightforward policy of the state's counsel. Gordon's friends were hopeful. Langford was jubilant, and he believed in the tolerable integrity of Gordon's hard-won jury. Gordon's presentation of the case thus far had made him friends; fickle friends, maybe, who would turn when the wind turned—to-morrow—but true it was that when court adjourned late in the afternoon, many who had jeered at him as a visionary or an unwelcome meddler acknowledged to themselves that they might have erred in their judgment.

As on the previous night, Gordon was tired. He walked aimlessly to a window within the bar and leaned against it, looking at the still, oppressive, cloudy dampness outside, with the early December darkness coming on apace. Lights were already twinkling in kitchens where house wives were busy with the evening meal.

"Well, Dick," said Langford, coming up cheery and confident.

"Well, Paul, it's all in."

"And well in, old man."

"I—don't know, Paul. I hope so. That quiet little man from down country has not been much heard from, you know. I am afraid, a moral uplift isn't my stunt. I'm tired! I feel like a rag."

Langford was called away for a moment. When he returned, Gordon was gone. He was not at supper.

"He went away on his horse," explained Louise, in answer to Langford's unspoken question. "I saw him ride into the country."

When the party separated for the night, Gordon had not yet returned.

CHAPTER XVI.

Gordon Rides Into the Country.

Gordon rode aimlessly out of the little town with its twinkling lights. He did not care where he went or what direction he pursued. He wanted to ride off a strange, enervating dejection that had laid hold of him the moment his last testimony had gone in. It all seemed so pitifully inadequate—without Williston—now that it was all in. Why had he undertaken it? It could only go for another defeat counted against him. Though what was one defeat more or less when there had been so many? It would be nothing new. Was he not pursuing merely the old beaten trail? Why should the thought weigh so heavily now? Can a man never attain to that higher—or lower, which is it?—altitude of strifeless, unregretful hardness? Or was it, he asked himself in savage contempt of his weakness, that, despite all his generous and iron-clad resolutions, he had secretly, unconsciously perhaps, cherished a sweet, shy, little reservation in his inmost heart that maybe—if he won out—

"You poor fool," he said, aloud, with bitter harshness.

Suppose he did. A brave specimen, he, if he had the shameful egoism to ask a girl—a girl like Louise—a gentle, highbred, protected, cherished girl like that—to share this new, bleak, rough life with him. But the very sweetness of the thought of her doing it made him gasp there in the darkness. How stifling the air was! He lifted his hat. It was hard to breathe. It was like the still oppressiveness preceding an electrical storm. His mare, unguided, had naturally chosen the main-traveled trail and kept it. She followed the mood of her master and walked leisurely along while the man wrestled with himself.

If he really possessed the hardihood to ask Louise to do this for him she would laugh at him. Stay! That was a lie—a black lie. She would not laugh—not Louise. She was not of that sort. Rather would she grieve over the inevitable sadness of it. If she laughed, he could bear it better—he had good, stubborn, self-respecting blood in him—but she would not laugh.

"Why, Lena, Old Girl, We've Been Taking Our Time."

And all the rest of his long life must be spent in wishing—wishing—if it could have been! But he would never ask her to do it. Not even if the impossible came to pass. It was a hard country on women, a hard, treeless, sun-seared, unkindly country. Men could stand it—fight for its future; but not women like Louise. It made men as well as unmade them. And after all it did not prove to be the undoing of men so much as it developed in them the perhaps hitherto hidden fact that they were already wanting. These latent, constitutional weaknesses thus laid bare, the bad must for a while prevail—bad is so much noiser than good. But this big, new country with its infinite possibilities—give it time—it would form men out of raw material and make over men mistakenly made when that was possible, or else show the dividing line so clearly that the goats might not herd with the sheep. Some day, it would be fit for women—like Louise. Not now. Much labor and sorrow must be lived through; there must be much sacrifice and much refining, and many must fall and lose in the race before its big destiny be worked out and it be fit for women—like Louise. Down in the southern part of the state, and belonging to it, a certain big-barred building sheltered many women, when the sun of the treeless prairies and the gazing into the lonesome distances surrounding their homesteads seeped into their brains and stayed there so that they knew not what they did. There were trees there and fountains and restful bluegrass in season, and flowers, flowers, flowers—but these came too late for most of the women.

If it had been Langford, now, who was guilty of so ridiculous a sentimentalism—the bold, impetuous, young ranchman—he smiled at himself whimsically. Then he pulled himself together. He did not think the jury could believe the story Jesse Black would trump up, no matter how plausible it was made to sound. He felt more like himself—in better condition to meet those few but stanch friends of his from whom he had so summarily run away—stronger to meet—Louise. Man-like, now that he was himself again, he must know the time. He struck a match.

"Why, Lena, old girl, we've been taking our time, haven't we? They are likely through supper, but maybe I can wheedle a doughnut out of the cook."

The match burned out. Not until he had tossed it away did it come to him that they were no longer on the main trial.

"Now, that's funny, old girl," he scolded. "What made you be so unreasonable? Well, we started with our noses westward, so you must have wandered into the old Lazy S branch trail. Though, to be sure, it has been such a deuce of a while since we traveled it that I wonder at you. What's the matter now, silly?"

His mare had shied. He turned her nose resolutely, domineeringly, back toward the spot objected to.

"I can't see what you're scared at, but we'll just investigate and show you how foolish a thing is feminine squeamishness."

"Is that you, Dick?"

Gordon was not a superstitious man, yet he felt suddenly cold to the crown of his head. It was not so dark as it might have been. There would have been a moon had it not been cloudy. Dimly, he realized that the man had arisen from the ruins of what must have been the old Williston homestead. The outlines of the stone stoop were vaguely visible in the half-light. The solitary figure had been crouched there, brooding.

"I'm flesh and blood, Dick, never fear," said the man in a mournful voice. "I'm hungry enough to vouch for that. You needn't be afraid. I'm anything but a spirit."

"Williston!" The astonished word burst from Gordon's lips. "Williston! is it really you?"

"None other, my dear Gordon! Sorry I startled you. I saw your light and heard your voice speaking to your horse, and as you were the very man I was on the point of seeking, I just naturally came forward, forgetting that my friends would very likely look upon me in the light of a ghost."

"Williston! My dear fellow!" repeated Gordon again. "It is too good to be true," he cried, leaping from his mare and extending both hands cordially. "Shake, old man! My, the feel of you is—bully. You are flesh and blood all right. I don't know, though. Seems to me you have been kind o' running to skin and bones since I last saw you. Grip's good, but bony. You're thinner than ever, aren't you?"

All this time he was shaking Williston's hands heartily. He never thought of asking him where he had been. For weary months he had longed for this man to come back. He had come back. That was enough for the present. He had always felt genuinely friendly toward the unfortunate scholar and his daughter.

"That's natural, isn't it? Besides, they forgot my rations sometimes."

"I think you know, Gordon," said the older man, quietly. "It is a long story. I was coming to you. I will tell you everything. Shall I begin now?"

"Are you in any danger of pursuit?" asked Gordon, suddenly bethinking himself.

"I think not. I killed my jailer, the half-breed, Nightbird."

"You did well. So did Mary."

"What do you mean?"

"Didn't you know that Mary shot and killed one of the desperadoes that night? At least, we have every reason to think it was Mary. By the way, you have not asked after her."

The man's head dropped. He did not answer for a long time. When he raised his head, his face, though showing indistinctly, was hard and drawn. He spoke with little emotion as a man who had sounded the gamut of despair and was now far spent.

"What was the use? I saw her fall, Gordon. She stood with me to the end. She was a brave little girl. She never once faltered. Dick," he said, his voice changing suddenly, and laying hot, feverish hands on the young man's shoulders, "we'll hang them—you and I—we'll hang them every one—the devils who look like men, but who strike at women. We'll hang them, I say—you and I. I've got the evidence."

"Tell me anything? Not they. She was such a good girl, Dick. There never was a better. She never complained. She never got her screens, poor girl. I wish she could have had her screens before they murdered her. Where did you lay her, Dick?"

"Mr. Williston," said Dick, taking firm hold of the man's burning hands and speaking with soothing calmness, "forgive me for not telling you at once. I thought you knew. I never dreamed that you might have been thinking all the while that Mary was dead. She is alive and well and with friends. She only fainted that night. Come, brace up! Why, man alive, aren't you glad? Well, then, don't go to pieces like a child. Come, brace up, I tell you!"

"You—you—wouldn't lie to me, would you, Dick?"

"As God is my witness, Mary is alive and in Kemah this minute—unless and earthquake has swallowed the hotel during my absence. I saw her less than two hours ago."

"Give me a minute, my dear fellow, will you? I—I——"

He walked blindly away a few steps and sat down once more on the ruins of his homestead. Gordon waited. The man sat still—his head buried in his hands. Gordon approached, leading his mare, and sat down beside him.

"Now tell me," he said, with simple directness.

"Lie low here until I send for you," was Gordon's parting word.

CHAPTER XVII.

Fire!

The wind arose along toward midnight—the wind that many a hardened inhabitant would have foretold hours before had he been master of his time and thoughts. As a rule, no signal service was needed in the cow country. Men who practically lived in the open had a natural right to claim some close acquaintance with the portents of approaching changes. But it would have been well had some storm flag waver over the little town that day. For the wind that came slipping up in the night, first in little signing whiffs and skirmishes, gradually growing more impatient, more domineering, more utterly contemptuous, haughty, and hungry, sweeping down from its northwest camping grounds, carried a deadly menace in its yet warm breath to the helpless and unprotected cattle huddled together in startled terror or already beginning their migration by intuition, running with the wind.

It rattled loose window casings in the hotel, so that people turned uneasily in their beds. It sent strange creatures of the imagination to prowl about. Cowmen thought of the depleted herds when the riders should come in off the free ranges in the spring should that moaning wind mean a real northwester.

Louise was awakened by a sudden shriek of wind that swept through the slight aperture left by the raised window and sent something crashing to the floor. She lay for a moment drowsily wondering what had fallen. Was it anything that could be broken? She heard the steady push of the wind gainst the frail frame building, and knew she ought to compel herself sufficiently to be aroused to close the window. But she was very sleepy. The crash had not awakened Mary. She was breathing quietly and deeply. But she would be amenable to a touch—just a light one—and she did not mind doing things. How mean, though, to administer it in such a cause. She could not do it. The dilapidated green blind was flapping dismally. What time was it? Maybe it was nearly morning, and then the wind would probably go down. That would save her from getting up. She snuggled under the covers and prepared to slip deliciously off into slumber again.

But she couldn't go to sleep after all. A haunting suspicion preyed on her waking faculties that the crash might have been the water pitcher. She had been asleep and could not gauge the shock of the fall. It had seemed terrific, but what awakens one from sleep is always abnormal to one's startled and unremembering consciousness. Still, it might have been the pitcher. She cherished no fond delusion as to the impenetrability of the warped cottonwood flooring. Water might even then be trickling through to the room below. She found herself wondering where the bed stood, and that thought brought her sitting up in a hurry only to remember that she was over the musty sitting-room with its impossible carpet. She would be glad to see it soaked—it might put a little color into it, temporarily at least, and lay the dust of ages. But, sitting up, she felt herself enveloped in a gale of wind that played over the bed, and so wisely concluded that if she wished to see this court through without the risk of grippe or pneumonia complications, she had better close that window. So she slipped cautiously out of bed, nervously apprehensive of plunging her feet into a pool of water. It had not been the pitcher after all. Even after the window was closed there seemed to be much air in the room. The blind still flapped, though at longer intervals. If it really turned cold, how were they to live in that barn like room, she and Mary? She thought of the campers out on the flat and shivered. She looked out of the window musingly a moment. It was dark. She wondered if Gordon had come home. Of course he was home. It must be nearly morning. Her feet were getting cold, so she crept back into bed. The next thing of which she was conscious, Mary was shaking her excitedly.

"What is it?" she asked, sleepily.

"Louise! There's a fire somewhere! Listen!"

Some one rushed quickly through the hall; others followed, knocking against the walls in the darkness. Then the awful, heart-clutching clang of a bell rang out—near, insistent, metallic. It was the meeting-house bell. There was no other in the town. The girls sprang to the floor. The thought had found swift lodgment in the mind of each that the hotel was on fire, and in that moment Louise thought of the poisoned meat that had once been served to some archenemies of the gang whose chief was now on trial for his liberty. So quickly does the brain work under stress of great crises, that, even before she had her shoes and stocking on, she found herself wondering who was the marked victim this time. Not Williston—he was dead. Not Gordon—he slept in his own room back of the office. Not Langford—he was bunking with his friend in that same room. Jim Munson? Or was the judge the proscribed one? He was not a corrupt judge. He could not be bought. It might be he. Mary had gone to the window.

"Louise!" she gasped. "The courthouse!"

True. The cloudy sky was reddened above the poor little temple of justice where for day and weeks the tide of human interest of a big part of a big state—ay, a big part of all the northwest country, maybe—had been steadily setting in and had reached its culmination only yesterday, when a gray-eyed, drooping-shouldered, firm-jawed young man had at last faced quietly in the bar of his court the defier of the cow country. To-night, it would dance its little measure, recite its few lines on its little stage of popularity before an audience frenzied with appreciation and interest; to-morrow, it would be a heap of ashes, its scene slayed out.

TWO CLUBS ARE TIED IN THE CENTRAL LEAGUE

The Cranford Casino Club five-man bowling team is tied with Elizabeth's Club for second place and second prize, valued at $10, in the Central Bowling League tournament for 1907-1908. The Park Club of Plainfield wins the handsome silver loving cup, the trophy of the league, for the second time, and captures first prize, valued at $20. L. Wheelwright, of Elizabeth Club, captured the high average prize, and Saphar, of Cranford Casino Club, the high score prize. Saphar rolled 157 in the final match of the season. As yet no date has been set for the roll-off between Elizabeth and Cranford, but an effort is now being made upon the part of Cranford to get Elizabeth to roll three games at Elizabeth, and three at Cranford and, if the result should prove a tie, to decide by taking the total number of pins. The standing of the teams and averages of the bowlers at the close of the season follows:

N. P. H. S. GIRLS LOSE TO WESTFIELD H. S. FIVE.

The girls' five of the North Plainfield High School lost a close basketball game to the Westfield High School girls at the Westfield Casino Saturday afternoon by a score of 10-8. The girls were much hampered by the slippery floor, but the game was fast and closely contested throughout. The teams played the college game, using no territory lines.

At the end of the first half, the score was 8-4 in favor of Westfield, but the local five decreased the lead by close guarding and good shooting in the second half. The scoring was done by Miss Anna Daly and Miss Marjorie Cooley, the former making two baskets and the latter one. Two points were added from the foul line.

The borough five lined up as follows: The Misses Marjorie Cooley and Anna Daly, forwards; Miss Margery Hart, centre; Miss Helen George and Miss Ida Englehard, guards. Referee, Miss Margaret Mosher; umpire, Roy Springster; fifteen minute halves.

Y.M.C.A. JUNIORS WON LONG OVERTIME GAME

It took nine minutes overtime play to decide the basketball game between the Y. M. C. A. junior five and the Hope C. B. C., played at the association gymnasium Saturday afternoon. When the whistle blew at the end of the second half, the score was 10-10, but a basket and a foul by Hochberger, while a long time coming, finally decided the game for the Y. M. C. A. boys.

Kenney, for the Hope five, scored eight of the ten points for his team, making four baskets. Hochberger led in the scoring for the Y. M. C. A., caging the ball three times from the floor. At the end of the first half, the score was 6-4 in favor of the Hope five. The lineups and summaries follow:

Y. M. C. A.: Manley and Campbell, forwards; Hochberger, centre; Vail, Ulmer and Miller, guards. Hope C. B. C.: Firstbrook and Kenney, forwards; Muir, centre; Gage and Hoffman, guards.

Field goals: Kenney, 4; Hochberger, 3; Manley, 2; Campbell, Firstbrook. Goal from foul: Hochberger. Referee, G. L. Listman. Twenty minutes halves and nine minutes overtime.

"PREACHING STATION" NOT ENOUGH HE SAYS

At the Clinton Avenue Reformed church in Newark, yesterday morning, the Rev. Dr. D. H. Martin delivered an historical sermon, reviewing the work of the past forty years of the church's life, and speaking of the work of the future.

"Today we enter upon a new forty years of history," said Dr. Martin. "Truly we ought to do a far better work than in the past, if numbers count for strength. We ought at least to have 1,000 scholars in the Sunday school. Our church is located in the midst of a teeming population, children swarm in the streets all around us, and hundreds of houses are filled with non-churchgoers. It is up to the church to make itself indispensable to the community. This church will not grow unless we take active measures to attract the young men. It must be a social centre, and I believe the church of the future will utterly fail if it confines itself to the old notion of being simply a preaching station, open on Sundays and for one night in the week."

by voting for it. Agitate the matter and make it public by forming a new political party whose members shall not be after office, but whose sole aim shall be to assist the working classes and make class improvement.

"The newspapers never take our part in this struggle. Indeed they make us miserable on the hot summer days, when we read time after time of some capitalist's family who have just left to have a good time at Atlantic City or Newport. These men use the money we earn for their vacations, while we swelter at the lathe and bench, making money for them.

"Don't believe, know. The only hope for us will come when the working people commence to think out the solution of this problem. Co-operation of unions can do great things. We shall overthrow the unproductive laborers and establish the true claims of those who are really the producers, the working classes."

Speaker Puzzled.

After the discourse, there was a heated debate which started when one man wanted to know what assurance there was that would guarantee the representatives elected by Socialists would act true to the cause. The speaker could not answer this, so he tried to sell the interrogater a tract on "The Roman Plebs," containing, he said, a history of the problem of the Gracchi, which would clearly explain the question.

Two more meetings are scheduled, one next Sunday night on the cause of the present crisis, illustrated by moving pictures, and another the following Sunday afternoon, when the topic will be "The Way Out."

BASKING RIDGE WILL GET NEW POSTMASTER

Henry Tobelmann has been appointed postmaster at Basking Ridge to succeed Lewis Shafer, who has been removed.

It is understood that complaints of slow service, made by patrons of the postoffice at Basking Ridge caused the removal of Mr. Shafer. Another story told in explanation of the Washington authorities action represented that Mr. Shafer's eyesight is very poor.

Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of the Somerset County Republican Committee, said Saturday that Mr. Shafer had been in the postal service for many years and that he understood his eyesight was poor and that, consequently, he could not serve the patrons with any great degree of rapidity.

Mr. Shafer said yesterday that he had received no word of the fact that he had been removed and knew no reason for it. Further than that he declined to discuss the matter.

Mr. Tobelmann said that he has received no formal word of his appointment, and preferred not to make any comment.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The official board of the First M. E. church will meet Wednesday night following the prayer-meeting.

The annual meeting of the McAll Auxiliary will be held at the Public Library Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock.

The annual meeting of the Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will be held Friday afternoon.

Under the auspices of St. Ann's Guild a supper will be given in the parish house of St. Stephen's church tomorrow night.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church held a consecration service last night. Miss Lulu Fuller was the leader.

The Ladies' Aid Society of St. Peter's Lutheran church will meet at the parsonage, No. 2 Stone street, Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The members of the Plainfield Rescue Mission will meet with the First Presbyterian church at its mid-week prayer-meeting Wednesday night.

Miss Clara Belle Runyon and Claire Newman were received into the Congregational church at the communion service yesterday morning.

John Leal will teach the lesson at the meeting of the Sunday-school Teachers' Union, tonight, and A. J. Winans will lead the devotional exercises.

The Women's Association of the Congregational church will hold a sewing and business meeting tomorrow afternoon. Tea will also be served.

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will hold its annual meeting tomorrow afternoon, at which time officers will be elected.

The Men's Club of Warren chapel will hold a dinner on Monday night, March 9, for which elaborate arrangements are being made by the committee in charge.

Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, of this city, occupied the pulpit of the Congregational church, Bound Brook, yesterday, morning and evening, and will continue to do so indefinitely.

An all day missionary meeting will be held in Vincent chapel tomorrow, when the home and foreign missionary societies will meet to elect officers for the coming year. A basket lunch will be served at noon.

The Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church hopes to have Dr. Holt, editor of The Independent, address the members at the regular meeting Tuesday night, March 10. He was prevented from doing so last month on account of illness.

In the City Court.

Dominick Nevera, who was employed by the local street railway company for many years as track tender, was fined $5 in the city court this morning, on a charge of drunkenness. He couldn't produce the money and was sent back to a cell. Later Judge Runyon was informed that Nevera had been out of work for a long time and that his troubles had driven him to drink. The magistrate relented and the prisoner was sent away with a warning.

BIG DROP IN MILK IS REPORTED IN BOROUGH

A "green" horse, one of the team attached to the milk wagon belonging to J. A. Hebermann, of Warrenville, took fright while Herbermann was leaving milk at the house of Philip Kiernan, of Westervelt avenue, yesterday morning, and bolted, running to Jackson avenue, where its team-mate fell, getting badly cut and upsetting the milk wagon, spilling 100 quarts of milk. Herbermann, securing his brother's milk wagon, bought more milk and went on with his delivery, for the horse was but slightly hurt.

The horse which caused the runaway is one but recently purchased by the milkman, and is a fractious animal. In delivering milk, Herbermann did not tie the team and the new horse took fright at some noise and started off on the run. It ran on the gallop until the other horse slipped and fell, dragging it down and upsetting the wagon. There were 100 quarts of milk in bottles on the wagon, and this was a total loss. The front wheel of the wagon was splintered and the top badly damaged by the upset. The fallen horse was cut about the head and legs, but was able to proceed with the delivery.

YALE FOOTBALL CAPTAIN TALKS AT Y. M. C. A.

Stating that Yale men are more proud of the moral standard of the college than of their athletic victories, Lucius H. Biglow, formerly a member of the Y. M. C. A. boys department, spoke before the Sunday afternoon meeting of the association boys' department yesterday. He said that many of the prominent athletes of Yale, where he was captain of last season's baseball team, are prominent in the religious life of the college. "Tad" Jones and Stagg, members of the 'varsity eleven, are such men.

His topic was "Sincerity," and he spoke forcefully upon this element of character. There were about forty boys out, despite the storm, and the meeting was held in the boys hall.

Talked of Chinese People.

Miss Jean Cochran, of Watchung avenue, spoke at a meeting of the Y. W. C. A. yesterday afternoon on her experienced during a recent houseboat trip on the Yang-Tse-Kiang river in China. Her brother is a missionary in China, and her remarks were especially upon the domestic life of the people. The meeting was under the auspices of the missionary committee of the association, of which Miss Harriet Halloway, who led the meeting, is chairman. During the service, Mrs. Shellabarger sang several solos.

The Mayor Wants to Know.

Mayor Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield, has written to Sheriff Frank Ross, at Somerville, for an explanation as to why Julia Saueracher, committed to the county jail January 13 on a fifty day sentence, was released five days before the expiration of her term of imprisonment. Julia has a great love of the bottle, and is well known at the jail. She was seen at her old haunts in the borough on Thursday, and said that her sentence had been shortened by good behavior.

Plainfield Athletes Win.

The Plainfield Y. M. C. A. track team won from the Paterson association athletes at Paterson Saturday night by a score of 32-23. The local athletes got five firsts out of the six events, administering the first defeat to the Paterson team by any team in two years. Lawrence got first in the standing broad jump; three standing broad jumps and 12-pound shot put; Steiner took first in the running high jump, and Will Schoonmaker won the fifteen yard dash.

Mrs. William F. Foster.

Mrs. Phebe E. Foster, widow of William F. Foster, died this morning at the home of her son, Charles Foster, of Roselle Park. The family resided at Scotch Plains for many years. Mrs. Foster was in her seventy-fourth year and was well known in this vicinity. The funeral will be held at her son's home Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 and burial will be in the Scotch Plains cemetery.

Born on February 29.

Miss Marjorie Cooley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Justus H. Cooley, of Westervelt avenue, celebrated her third birthday Saturday. She received many tokens of remembrance, to make up for the four years wait between her birthdays. Miss Cooley was a member of the N. P. H. S. girls basketball team, which played at Westfield Saturday afternoon.

JUST JUMP THE ROPE FOR BEAUTY CULTURE.

To Retain Sylphlike Form Women Adopt New Fad.

If you would retain a sylphlike form, or attain one, in case the accumulation of adipose tissue has distorted your former slenderness into unsightly lines, jump the rope.

This is what certain Washington women are spending their spare time in doing nowadays. When you see a woman who once tipped the scales at 200 and now balances them at 135 you may be sure that she has been following the latest form of beauty culture.

From Paris comes the beauty culturist who introduced this simple method of flesh reduction, and though she pretends that some mysterious medicinal virtues emanate from the handles of her skipping ropes, yet those who have tried the system with ordinary skipping ropes report remarkable results from the sport.

As a matter of fact, this reformer herself might recommend almost anything in the line of beauty culture for flesh reduction and her adherents would follow it, even to standing on their heads, if that would do any good, for she has a sylphlike form herself. Encased in sheathlike corsets over which hangs easily a princess gown of white broadcloth, she presents a picture of grace that any woman would do much to acquire.—Washington Post.

The Ugly Rhinoceros.

"What is the most dangerous of all the wild animals that I have encountered? The rhinoceros," said one of the big game hunters of the world. "In equatorial Africa you will find the rhinoceros almost everywhere—in the high land and in the low land, in the open country and in the brush. You will find him when you least expect him, and most often when stalking through his habitat, wholly unconscious of his presence, you suddenly hear his 'chug-chug!' Then God help you if you are not provided with a rifle of large calibre and carrying steel bullets. Your only chance is to do a swift sidestep, and even then you have only three shots that will count—the brain, the neck and heart shot. When he is charging head-on it is impossible for you to reach either one."—Chicago Journal.

City Fathers Decline to Co-operate in Plan to Have Library Tax Law Changed.

ROUTINE WORK OF COUNCIL.

Title of Lighting and Trees Committee Changed—Firemen Fund Trustees Reappointed.

The annual tax budget and several other matters of importance not being ready for presentation at the March meeting of the Common Council, last night, the session was occupied chiefly in the transaction of business of minor consequence, including a number of petitions.

The communication received from the clerk of the Perth Amboy Council a week ago, asking the co-operation of the Plainfield Council in obtaining an amendment to the law which provides for appropriations to be made public libraries by taxation, was reported back by Chairman Tyler, of the public affairs committee, with a motion that the city clerk be instructed to notify the clerk of Perth Amboy that the communication had been duly considered, but that no action is deemed wise at this time. His motion was carried.

Schenck & McAfee, contractors, petitioned for the privilege of making alterations to the rear of the building occupied by T. B. Kolb, at 112 West Front street, the plans calling for the enclosure of a porch, the same to be covered with corrugated iron. The matter was referred to the fire and building committee.

A communication was received from Chief T. O. Doane, of the fire department, recommending that C. C. Graves and E. J. McCann be reappointed trustees of the fire department pension fund, their terms having expired. The recommendation was adopted on a motion by Councilman Hibbard, Mr. Graves being appointed for four years and Mr. McCann for three.

Rev. E. E. Roberson, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church and others, requested that a flag walk be laid on Monroe avenue, between Fourth and Seventh street, and the matter was referred to the streets and sewer committee. A petition from the J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company for permission to erect an awning in front of its premises at 620 North avenue, was referred to the fire and building committee. The company said that the improvement had the approval of Building Inspector T. O. Doane.

Mayor Fisk re-appointed Joseph H. Cooney as special policeman for one year and the appointment was confirmed.

Several resolutions were offered by Councilman Hibbard and adopted. One provided for the borrowing of $6,000 on account of sanitary sewer improvements, and another authorized the appropriation of an additional $368 for the extra work in auditing the accounts of the city, which was done by E. L. Suffern & Co. This makes the total cost $868, last year's Council having appropriated $500 for the work.

Another resolution by Mr. Hibbard authorized the city clerk to transfer $1,500 from the general fund to the fire fund, and still another one awarded the contract for furnishing the necessary supplies for the Board of Assessors to the Monarch Printing Company for $112.50, that bid being the lowest.

Rule five, of the rules of order was amended to read "street lighting committee," instead of "lights and trees committee." This change was suggested earlier in the year in view of the fact that the city now has a shade tree commission which looks after the trees. The motion to amend was offered by Councilman Suydam and adopted, after an unsuccessful attempt of Councilman Hibbard to change the rule in another way which was not believed to be legal.

Several petitions requesting that streets be macadamized were reported back by Chairman Gloak, of the street committee, with instructions to the city clerk to advise the petitioners that an ordinance is being prepared to cover the streets named.

The February report of Overseer-of-the-Poor A. D. Ayres was presented and read and ordered filed. It showed a total expenditure of $532.38, which included salaries, supplies, etc.

At the suggestion of Mayor Fisk, Councilman Tyler offered a resolution instructing the city clerk to secure from the secretary of state a certified copy of the act validitating sewer bond issues. The resolutlin was adopted.

In reference to the action taken earlier in the evening in amending the rules or order, Mr. Tyler stated that several changes would appear to be necessary as, in his opinion, there are many defects. The one he called especial attention to was No. 29, which provides that "any member

IN FELLING CITY TREES FOUND AN ODD TRUNK

The Shade Tree Commission began operations in the city park this morning by removing some of the overcrowded and defective trees. To perform this work the commission has engaged a number of linemen who were recently employed by the Public Service Corporation, but who were laid off because of a lack of work. They are thoroughly experienced and the commission feels fortunate in being able to obtain their services at day wages. R. P. Gay, the forester, employed by the commission, is in personal charge.

A peculiar and somewhat remarkable condition of a tree was discovered yesterday. The tree, which stood on College place, near the city park, was about thirty feet high. After it was cut down an examination showed it to be a beautiful carved piece of wood, the work of black ants. They had completely riddled and tunneled the trunk and in the opinion of Mr. Gay it was as fine a specimen of their work as he has seen. In speaking of the matter, Mr. Gay said that it would have been only a question of a short time when the tree would have blown over, as the life and substance of it were practically gone.

After the trees in the city park are cared for the commission will carry out its plans of thinning trees in the streets of the city, as announced recently. Survey of the city shows that there are many trees that should be removed to improve shade tree conditions.

CRUSHED STONE BIDS TO BE RECEIVED MCH. 26

Bids for furnishing the city with crushed stone, culverts and crosswalks during the coming year will be received by the street committee on Thursday night, March 26. A resolution authorizing the committee to advertise for bids was offered by Mr. Gloak, chairman, and adopted. Separate bids will be received for different size crushed stone, to be known as sizes A, B and C, and the provisions specify that the person getting the contract must weigh each load on scales designated by City Engineer Gavett and a way-bill must accompany every load. The crushed stone, as well as the stone for culverts must be in accordance with previous specifications as to quality and thickness. No Erie or similar stone will be accepted.

The contract for furnishing the crushed stone last year was given to the Watchung Stone Company, of which Warren B. Travell is the manager, and it is believed that the competition this year will be lively. Previous to last year the contract was held by Smalley Brothers and they are likely to be important factors in the bid for the work this year.

MRS. DUNHAM RELEASED.

Still Protests That She Knows Nothing of the Watch Stolen from Thomas Johnson.

Delia Dunham, who was ordered locked up by Judge Runyon, yesterday, because he thought a session in a cell would cause her to have a rush of memory to the brain and induce her to recall if she took the watch stolen from Thomas Johnson, of Plainfield avenue, was arraigned in the city court this morning and afterward released. She still protested her innocence, although acknowledging that she took other things from the house where Johnson boards, and held fast to the story that she knows nothing of the timepiece's whereabouts at present. Thomas Harllend, who was charged with the theft of the watch and let go after spending four days in jail, claimed that Mrs. Dunham had given it to him to sell and failing to dispose of it had returned it to her.

The police made an investigation of Harllend's story and became convinced that he told the truth. They were baffled, however, by the defense of Mrs. Dunham and the probabilities are that Johnson will have to get a new watch or look for a clock when he wants to know the time.

Offering for Foreign Missions.

The annual offering for foreign missions will be received at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church on Sunday. Last year the amount given in the congregational offering was $2,389.74, and it is sincerely hoped that this year's contribution will equal that and exceed it if possible. The prayer-meeting at the church tomorrow night will be devoted to the missionary interests of the church.

Sesame Club to Meet.

The Sesame Club will meet tomorrow with Mrs. Cone, 316 East Seventh street. At the last meeting of the club the members enjoyed a most interesting paper by Mrs. J. Hervey Doane on Milton's "Paradise Lost."

QUEER ENDING TO A RACE

Dog Chased Cat Into a Sewer Pipe and Both Became Wedged Fast.

NEIGHBORHOOD ROUSED UP.

Flurried Woman Telephone Police and Patrol Driver O'Gorman Does a Rescue Act, Gaining a New Title.

Thornton avenue had an awful scare at about 6 o'clock last night. Ordinarily Thornton avenue is a quiet thoroughfare and the residents have to go elsewhere for their excitement except in rare instances. One of these rare cases was last night and this is how it happened:

A little dog whose name in all probability is Towser was wandering about the avenue and chanced upon a Tabby cat. Like the wicked bow-wow that he is he made a spring at the inoffensive feline and she streaked for home on a Twentieth Century Limited schedule. But though she only touched the high places in her race for life, Towser had speed to spare and gained rapidly on her.

Tabby realized that it would soon be all over with her nine lives if she didn't use cunning so as a last resort she decided to dash into an iron sewer pipe that lay in the gutter. No sooner thought than done and she was half way in before the conviction came to her that it was too narrow to get all the way through and—Horrors—Towser was right behind her. Tabby began to yeowl just as Towser found that the quarters were too cramped for him and he started to back out but suffering Dachshunds—he couldn't move one way or the other. He must have thought his existence was going to end then and there and the agonized howls he left loose made the blood of Thornton avenue folks run cold.

The cries of Tabby and Towser roused up the entire block and when the cause of the trouble was learned efforts were made to get both animals out but without success. The racket inside the sewer pipe continued, and fearful that it was going to last until they became utterly exhausted, Mrs. Campbell, who lives directly opposite and thought the family might have to stay up all night, telephoned to the police.

The call for help was a new one on the cops. They made a hurried search of the "First Aid to the Injured" case but could locate nothing in it that would get a cat and dog out of a sewer pipe. They also perused the police manual and found that none of its 160 pages told how to do the trick. As a last resort, Patrol Driver O'Gorman was hustled to Thornton avenue with block and tackle and instructions to work out any scheme he thought best to end the trouble.

And maybe O'Gorman didn't have his hands full when he got down to business on the proposition. He was afraid to put his hands in the pipe through fear of getting bitten and the folks gathered around insisted that the rescue be effected strictly according to S. P. C. A. rules. The pipe was lifted up and joggled but neither Tabby or Towser moved an inch while their cries double in volume. O'Gorman finally secured a pole and by fastening a board at the end shoved the dog along until he collided with the cat. He was too frightened to bite and then the pair were moved until they fell out at the opposite end, completely exhausted. Sympathetic women applied restoratives and in a short time Tabby and Towser were ready for another race but neither cared in particular about it.

O'Gorman went back to headquarters with a triumphant smile on his face and he is now listed on the membership roll as "Chief of the emergency squad."

HE TOOK THEM BACK TO MOTHER'S KNEE.

The American Institute's annual amateur minstrel entertainment at the Berkeley theatre in New York was attended by several Plainfielders who enjoyed to the full together with the others in the big audience Lewis E. Weaver's contribution to the affair. Mr. Weaver, who lives on Orchard place, sang "It's a long way back to dear old mother's knee," during the course of the show. His fine baritone voice proved captivating and his rendition of the song met with loud applause.

Mr. Weaver took a leading part in the performance which proved very profitable to the Institute.

Weds Somerville Girl.

Earl Shields Hedrik, of Park avenue, and Miss Louise Crater, of Somerville, were married last night by Justice Hezekiah Hand at his home on East Sixth street. The ceremony was witnessed by Mrs. Hand and Peter Dooley. The couple will make their home on Park avenue. The groom is employed as a lineman.

MERCHANTS ARE BANDED

A. E. Force Chosen Head of Association Formed for Mutual Advantage.

MEETINGS ONCE EVERY MONTH.

Enthusiasm Marks Meeting At Which Plans Are Made for Regular Monthly Meetings.

Merchants of the city met at the store of F. A. Duttenhofer on East Front street, last night, and formed a permanent organization by electing these officers: President, A. E. Force; first vice president, F. Schuldenfrie; second vice president, F. A. Duttenhofer; secretary, H. P. Greenwood; treasurer, John S. Johnston. Bylaws were adopted and a committee of which Herman Schwed is chairman, was appointed to solicit new members. Jacob Fass is the chairman of the committee on rooms. The organization will be known as The Merchants' Association, of Plainfield, and meetings will be held the third Monday of each month.

Little outside of effecting an organization was accomplished, although there was some discussion regarding the advisability of adopting some method of protection against debtors. The matter will be taken up more fully at another meeting, together with other important questions. There was a large attendance of merchants at the first meeting and all were enthusiastic over the outlok. It is believed that the co-operation as outlined will bring about a far better condition in matters of trade.

MISS MAE E. BUCKLEY NOW MRS. A. C. BREMMER.

Miss Mae E. Buckley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Buckley, of Orchard place, and Albert C. Bremmer, of the borough, were married at St. Mary's church, yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, Father Delehanty officiating. The ceremony was witnessed by the relatives and a few friends. The bride was attended by Miss Agnes V. Mahoney as bridesmaid and the best man was James A. Buckley, brother of the bride. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents. After a wedding trip through New York State the couple will reside in the borough.

"The Elopement of Ellen," Tonight.

Those who attend the performance of "The Elopement of Ellen," to be given at the Park Club tonight by the Silver Cross Circle of The King's Daughters, will assist a worthy charity. The Circle together with several others are striving to help the unfortunate ones and the proceeds will be used for that purpose. The play, a three act one, promises to be exceptionally good.

SO-LONG!

I.

Scene 1—Downtown.

"Good morning, Ned!"
"How goes it, Jo?"
They stand a moment in the street,
And hand in hand they blithely greet.

"How's trade today?"
"So-so, so-so."
How's cotton?"
"Cotton's looking up.
Ned, don't forget that setter pup
You promised me last week, you know."
"All right! send for him soon.
So-long!"
"So-long, old fellow!" And they go
This way and that into the throng.

II.

Scene 2—Ned's House.

"Come, dear, it's nearly twelve o'clock."
A sweet round face is at the door.
A languid footstep on the floor.
"You surely must have heard me knock—
You're really mean to tease me so.
Why, Ned! Poor fellow, he's asleep.
I thought at tea I saw him nod."
Full softly now the footsteps creep—
A touch—a cry—O pitying God!

III.

Scene 3—Jo's House.

"Wife, where's the paper? Ah, I see.
Why don't you put it on my plate?
Do make my coffee, dear—I'm late.
Great heavens! What's this! It cannot be!
Found dead—last night at twelve o'clock!
Died in his chair—Lord! What a shock!
Why, only yesterday we met—
Ned Brown and I—His hand was strong.
His eye was clear, his voice—and yet—
Before we meet again—so long."

PUBLIC SCALES COMING

City Fathers Consider Mr. Tyler's Suggestion to Put Them at Police Station.

MAYOR FAVORS THE PLAN.

Promise Made That Police Board Will Act Favorably On a Third Ward Member's Proposition.

In the absence of more important business, which it was expected would be considered at the March meeting of the Common Council, last night, Councilman Tyler, chairman of the public affairs committee, made a suggestion which afterwards was put in the form of a motion and adopted, that public scales be established on the premises where it is proposed to erect a new police headquarters' building at East Fourth and Sycamore streets. He said that the question had been discussed more or less during the past two years and he believed that when the new police structure is erected it would be wise to put public scales there.

The motion offered by Mr. Tyler provided that the matter be referred to the Police Board and that the members, under the advice of the corporation counsel, prepare the proper ordinance for presentation to the Common Council for action. All the members but Mr. Montgomery voted in favor of the motion.

Speaking of the question of a public scales after the meeting, Mayor Fisk, who favors it, said that the only proper place for them is on property owned by the city and in view of the fact that the city has purchased a site for a new police headquarters' building he believed that the time was right to plan for a public scales. In his opinion the city should have such a means of weighing as it would obviate much difficulty experienced in the past.

Councilman Frank Randolph, chairman of the Police Board, was not at the meeting, but Councilman Gloak, of that committee, promised that the members would consider the matter promptly and follow the suggestion contained in Mr. Tyler's motion.

VENICE'S LITERATURE SUBJECT OF A PAPER.

A very comprehensive and interesting paper on "Literary Associations of Venice" was presented by Miss Susan S. Hubbell at the meeting of the Monday Afternoon Club, held yesterday afternoon at the Casino. Lights in the literary world like Byron Shelley, Browning, George Eliott and other who found in Venice an inspiration or a resting place, were among the celebrities who came under the thoughtful consideration of Miss Hubbell and elicited the keenest interest of her listeners. Other and varied associations were brought out in the discussion that followed.

Methods of presenting Current Events in the club came also under discussion and called forth much interest.

SAVINGS BANK PROSPERITY.

The annual statement of the Plainfield Savings Bank, published today in The Daily Press, shows a most satisfactory financial condition of this well-known institution of which the directors as well as every depositor should feel proud. The total assets on January 1 of this year were $878,181.93 as against $856,150.75 on January 1, 1907. The surplus this year is $63,899.80. The marked progress of this institution is evidence of the well-approved methods of the directors.

Authorities Don't Want Julia.

In reply to Mayor Townsend's inquiry as to why Julia Saueracher, committed to the Somerville jail for a fifty day sentence, was released five days before the expiration of her term of imprisonment, County Sheriff Frank Ross wrote to the Mayor saying that the time was taken off on account of good behavior. This is a prison rule, the Sheriff replied in his letter that the prison authorities were no more anxious to have Julia "in their midst" than the the North Plainfield police. Julia has not been arrested since last Thursday, having controlled her liquor appetite since her release from the county jail.

Mrs. Mildred McCorkle to Wed.

A wedding of considerable interest will be celebrated at Westfield on Saturday, when Mrs. Mildred McCorkle, of that place, and Frank R. Steven, son of John R. Steven, of Monroe place, Brooklyn, will be married. The groom is a grandson of James S. Connell, of Pierrepont street, Brooklyn. Mrs. McCorkle is the widow of Lieutenant Henry L. McCorkle, who was killed in the Spanish War, and a daughter of Major H. P. Ritzius, U. S. A. "retired," now living in Tennessee.

AGED MAN HAS HAD BUT TWENTY BIRTHDAYS

George H. Spicer, of Ashaway, R. I., brother of J. D. Spicer, of West Fifth street, and well-known among the Seventh-Day Baptists of Plainfield and New Market, celebrated his twentieth birthday anniversary on Saturday, although he is eighty-four years old. The fact that he was born in leap year was responsible for this unusual circumstance.

Mr. Spicer received many kind remembrances of the day, among them being a large pail of fruit and candy from the What Next Club, of Norwich, Conn. In the evening it seemed as though the whole town of Ashaway had turned out to honor its esteemed citizen. During the early part of the evening the young folks gathered and later the older residents began to call.

The table in the dining room was decorated with carnations and in the center was a large birthday cake lighted with twenty candles. The dates, 1824-1908, were inscribed on the cake. The whole affair was a surprise to Mr. Spicer, but he entered into the festivities with good spirit. Mr. Spicer is a son of Joseph Spicer and Cotent Potter, being born in Hopkinton, R. I., February 29, 1824. For the fact that he was born on this date he has had but twenty birthday anniversaries, one each four years with the exception of 1900, when he skipped eight years from 1896 to 1904. He has two children living, Elizabeth Spicer, of Ashaway, and Mrs. Fred Crowell, of Norwich. His many friends hope that they will be able to join with him four years hence in celebrating his twenty-first birthday.

VICE PRESIDENT LOVELL NOW ACTS AS CHAIRMAN

Leander N. Lovell, vice president of the Plainfield Board of Education, was in the chair at the regular monthly meeting of the Board at the Plainfield High School last night. No motion of a successor to the late Dr. Probasco, president of the board, was made at the meeting, and Mr. Lovell will be in the chair as vice president, until Dr. Probasco's successor is elected.

Aside from the payment of about $1,000 worth of bills, the business of last night's meeting consisted mainly in receiving financial reports for the past month. The tax collector's report was read, showing that $1,636.44 of school moneys had been collected during February. This amount includes $24.68 in interest. County Superintendent of Schools J. J. Savitz, of Westfield, reported $2,605.45 as the city schools' share of the ten per cent. reserve fund of the State tax for 1907-1908. The cash accounts of the custodian of schols and board of education were read, showing a balance of $51,510.12 for February. Superintendent Henry M. Maxson reported $957 from tuitions for the second quarter of the school year.

F. B. Clark, clerk of the board, was instructed to write a letter of thanks to Professor M. P. E. Groszmann for the course of lectures on education given this winter before the school teachers. Resolutions of thanks were framed to be forwarded to J. Ackerman Coles, of Scotch Plains, for the bronze bust of George Washington presented by him to the High School, as a gift from his father, Dr. Abraham Coles.

The bids for the school supplies will be advertised at once and the supply contracts awarded at the April meeting.

YOUNG PEOPLE ENJOY FIRST DANCE OF A SERIES.

The first of a series of invitation dances arranged by Arthur B. Caleen and E. F. Brown was given in the Camera Club rooms in the Babcock building last night. It was enjoyed by 100 young people from this city, Westfield, Dunellen and other places. Music was furnished by Squier's orchestra. The dance program included several of the Paul Jones two-steps that are becoming very popular and were greatly enjoyed. Refreshments were served at the midnight intermission.

During the evening, several vocal selections were rendered by John Salkeld, of Bayonne, a brother of Mrs. Frank W. Weed, of the borough. He possesses a voice of exceptional power and expression and the numbers he gave were heartily encored.

School Superintendents of Nation Say Increase in Salary is Now Necessary.

AT WASHINGTON CONFERENCE.

Supt. H. M. Maxson Reports On Sessions to Board of Education—More Personal Instruction Urged.

Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, of the Plainfield Public Schools, who was at the annual conference of school superintendents held at Washington, D. C., last week, made his report on the conference proceedings at the meeting of the city Board of Education at the Plainfield High School last night. Mr. Maxson was summoned home from the conference by the news of Dr. Probasco, president of the Board. His report follows in full:

"In accordance with the desire of the Board, I had the pleasure of attending the annual meeting of the National Superintendents' Association in Washington, last week.

"The meeting was the largest in the history of the association, about two thousand educators being in attendance; it was also one of the most profitable meetings. Among the most important topics discussed were Industrial Education, The Nurture and Protection of the Physical Well-being of Public School Pupils, The Supply and Training of Teachers, The School as an Instrument of Character Building, The Saving of Time and Energy in School Work.

"In discussing the matter of saving in school work, some of the important thoughts were that since children are so unequal in their powers and capacities more thought should be given to adapting the course of study to the individual child and that special attention should be given both to the slow child and to the bright child. Also that the school should do more to increase the child's capacity in his life work and to increase his earning power.

"While we should never lose sight of the fact that the real aim of the school is the formation of character and enlarged power to live aright, there is a strong feeling among educators that the school can do more than it has done to increase the child's industrial capacity and adaptiveness.

"Another thought was that pupils should be promoted as fast as their advancement permits, not simply at the end of the year. This has long been the custom with us, though from the nature of the case most pupils are promoted at regular intervals.

"It was also thought that time would be saved by removing defective or obnormal children from the regular classes and teaching them in special classes. Every school has several children that cannot do the regular work of the class. In some cases they are markedly defective, in other cases they simply vary from the regular type of children and do not fit into the school routine. A few cities are already collecting such children into separate classes and ptting them in charge of teachers specially trained for such work. This makes the school very much more profitable for such children; it also makes the work of the regular teacher much more effective by relieving her of the extra time and thought that such cases always require when in the regular class.

"Medical inspection, such as we have had for ten years, received general approbation; but in few careful prescription of physical training to meet special needs such as is given in our schools by Miss Jackson, the Supervisor of Physical Training.

"It was maintained that as the schools employ an architect as a specialist when erecting a building, so they should employ a physicaian as a medical expert not simply to guard against contagious disease but to study school conditions and their effect on the child to the end that measures may be taken to preserve his health and increase his physical vigor as he advances through the grades. I expect considerable profit to the schools in the next decade from advancement in this line in our larger cities, which will develop facts and principles that we may apply in the smaller cities.

"Discussion of the topic 'How to Improve the Teaching" brought out the fact that there is a quite universal scarcity of teachers and that it is increasing. One of the man causes seems to be the great enlargement of the field of labor for women and the fact that in so many cases the ease of preparation and the salaries are more favorable than in the work of teaching.

"There was general agreement that the first step toward improvement was raising the salaries and improving the conditions of work. This movement toward increase has taken quite a start in New Jersey, and the provision for pensions under the two

Joe Hortiz, for many years a favorite tenor and yodler with the best known minstrels of the country, will assume the title role of "Our Friend

Joe Hortiz, in "Our Friend Fritz," at New Plainfield Theatre Friday Night.

Fritz," which will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre next Friday afternoon and night. The play serves to introduce Mr. Hortiz in a part well fitted to his abilities, that of a comedian of the J. K. Emmet order. His ballads are particularly pleasing and delighting. The play is a musical comedy drama, and is presented in a praise-worthy manner, Mr. Hortiz having the support of well known people in the theatrical world. Humorous passages together with tuneful songs relieve the pathos of the story.

John W. Vogel, whose minstrels will appear at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night, is the owner of one of the finest private cars used in the theatrical business. It is very large and fitted up with all the comforts and conveniences that are found in a most luxurious home. One piece of furniture of which Mr. Vogel is particularly proud, is a bed. This is of the folding style, made of solid cherry, and provided with the best and most expensive springs and mattress. This was the bed used by Edwin Booth on his last tour throughout this country when he and Lawrence Barrett were starring jointly. The Booth-Barrett combination, of course, had its private car, and after the death of the eminent tragedian the car was taken back to its builders and sold, the company removing most of the expensive fittings. When Mr. Vogel was having his car built, he noticed this bed, and not knowing its history made the remark that it would be a nice piece of furniture for his car. When the traveling home was delivered the minstrel owner was astonished to find the coveted bed in place and then the builders told him its history.

A new original comedy, "Until We Meet Again," by Marguerite Merington, author of "Captain Lettarblair," and "Love Finds the Way," will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night. A cast of exceptional strength headed by Eugene Ormonde and Josephine Victor, and containing such well known dramatic artists as Seymour Rose, Rogers Lytton, Wilbur Collier, Hudson, Russell Bassett, Mabel Carruthers, Charlotte Lambert, Dickey De Laro and Mildred Hutchinson, will appear in the principal roles of the comedy. The story is one of intense interest, treating of the adventures, love, and otherwise, of a young German nobleman, whose fortunes having fallen upon evil days, comes to America in search of wealth.

RUNS UP STEPS; EXPIRES.

Haste of Henry Dieterick, of Newark, to Catch a Train Results in His Death.

Henry Dietrerick, aged fifty, of No. 202 Plane street, Newark, dropped unconscious on the platform of the West Eighth street station of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, at Bayonne, yesterday after he had run up twenty steps in an effort to catch a train. He was picked up and taken inside the station while an ambulance was called. When it arrived, in charge of Policeman Kroeller, there was no physician within, and the man was taken to the Bayonne Hospital.

There has been no resident physician at the hospital for two months. D.. Stevens, who chanced to be at the institution at the time, pronounced Mr. Dieterick dead. Death evidently occurred several minutes before, while the ambulance was traversing the streets.

Mr. Dieterick had been employed as a mechanical draughtsman by Babcock & Wilcox, boilermakers, of Bayonne. Before coming to this country, twenty years ago, he was a lieutenant in the German army. He was unmarried.

Interested in real estate, either to buy or lease, or life and accident insurance? George F. Brown, of Somerset street, is in the business and is ready at all times to make attractive offers. Look him up.

Mrs. W. H. Tams, of Trenton, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. E. D. Moffett, of Orchard place, has returned home.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Evelyn, two-year-old daughter of Archie Porch, of Clayton, fell against a red-hot stove and badly burned one side of her face yesterday.

Roland Playford broke through the ice at Franklinville, Saturday, and would have been drowned but for the timely assistance of ten-year-old Edward Green.

An order was issued by Mayor Ellis, in Camden, yesterday, in which the police are instructed not to engage in any other occupation than as preservers of the public peace.

Rev. Dr. D. C. Hughes, of New York city, father of Governor Charles E. Hughes, of New York, preached both sermons at First Baptist church, Trenton, Sunday morning and evening.

Sentiment in Gloucester City is apparently strongly against the scheme, secretly discussed by Camden county Republican leaders yesterday to annex outlying towns and boroughs to Camden city.

As a result of some one carelessly throwing a banana peeling on the sidewalk, Adam Berry, forty-nine years old, of 938 Newton avenue, Camden, had both his jaws broken yesterday. He was taken to the Cooper Hospital.

While his mother, a sister and a brother were in the same institution suffering from typhoid fever, Joseph Funk, seventeen years old, of 734 Cherry street, Camden, died in the contagious ward at the Cooper Hospital, yesterday, from the disease.

Names of the victims of Charles and Max Weisenhofer, who operated as a home furnishing company, Trenton, number over six hundred, and will be presented to the grand jury at its next session by Captain of Police John J. Cleary.

Another $50,000 damage suit, growing out of the wreck of the Pemberton accommodation train on Bridge avenue, Camden, on December 27, when three men were killed and a score injured, has been begun by counsel for Charles Brown, of Moorestown.

Jerry Peterson, seventy-eight years old, of Millville, went crazy Saturday night and chased his family out of the house. In his frenzy he overturned a stove, and when officers from the city hall arrived his neck and one ear were charred from burns of live coals.

Mrs. Mary Cronin, former matron at the Central Police Station, Atlantic City, and former Life Guard H. Jones were held under bail by Justice of the Peace Roberts Saturday night because relatives of Jones claimed he had deserted his family and paid too much attention to Mrs. Cronin.

Vexed at Dr. Walter Madden, Democratic Mayor of Trenton, because he vetoed an ordinence to give the assistant city engineer a salary increase, the Republican Common Council will pass the ordinance over his head, and at the same time refuse to report from committee an ordinance to give him a private secretary.

GOLF.

The handicap committee of the Metropolitan Golf Association announce that handicap reports for the season of 1908 have not been received from the Briarcliff Golf Club, the Fairview Country Club, the Hollywood Golf Club, the Saegkill Golf Club, the Tuxedo Golf Club and the Westfield Golf Club. In addition to these, the Country Club of Westchester, the Larchmont Golf Club, and the Mahopac Golf Club report that they have no players to be rated on this year's list.

The last meeting of the committee will be held in the next week, and the names of players of all clubs who do not send in their reports at once will be omitted from the official list.

A special meeting of the board of directors of the Fox Hills Golf Club will be held at the office of A. J. Stone, No. 71 Broadway, this afternoon, for the purpose of installing the directors, the election of officers and a new executive committee, and of passing upon the application of new members.

The decision of the house committee to keep the clubhouse open during the winter months has afforded the members no end of entertainment and pleasure. With clay pigeon shooting, skating, curling and an interesting nine-hole temporary winter course, nothing has been left undone to attract the members to the club at this dull time.

Friends of Willie Anderson are pleased with the success the former open champion has been having in the South. His latest achievements was to win the open tournament for the Northern Florida championship at St. Augustine. Anderson made the thirty-six holes in 74—73—147, beating Gil Nicholls, who was second, by two strokes.

Officials of the Wykagyl Country Club have succeeded in financing things so that they will this week be able to take title to the land at present occupied by clubhouse and links. There are 181 acres in the property to be purchased. Alterations and improvements will be made to the eighteen-hole course, which is now considered one of the most difficult in the metropolitan district. An open tournament will be held at Wykagl June 11, 12 and 13.

BASEBALL.

Peace reigns once more in the baseball world and Harry C. Pulliam is still at the helm of the National League, having won another fight for fair play. The resolution adopted by the national commission last week made the now famous blacklist resolution of the National Association, which forever debarred a contract jumper from playing in any league outside the Tri-State, inoperative and consequently null and void.

It was a rebuke also to the National Association for what was little less than an affront to the national commission. There may be those who still object to the method Mr. Pulliam adopted to accomplish his purpose, but there can be none who are sportsmen, that must not acknowledge that some action was necessary if the basic laws of baseball were to be maintained.

The trouble could have been avoided if the national commission had acted along the same lines at its meeting in January, as Mr. Pulliam took issue on the blacklist resolution then and did not declare open warfare until it was passed over. In due time the National Association of Minor Leagues may abrogate the resolution. It would be the manly thing to do. Any offender is deserving of a fair trial. The joint rules committee of the two major leagues, passed over many suggestions for changes last week and recommended only two. Hereafter a pitcher cannot discolor a new ball except by rubbing it in his hands, under penalty of a $5 fine.

A little damp mud in the pocket may now be an essential part of a pitcher's outfit—an evasion, of course, but one not easily discovered unless every pitcher is searched before he takes his place in the box. The other rule credits a batsman with a sacrifice hit on a fly ball that is caught but which results in a run being scored. This appears to be fair enough, although less skill is required perhaps in hitting a ball out with a man on third than in advancing a runner from first to second, or from second to third.

The pitcher's box can still be raised above the level of the diamond. This could have been changed to advantage, but the committee did well not to make the number of balls three instead of four which formerly entitled a batsman to a base. The schedule committee did its work well also in arranging the dates. The Highlanders have slightly the better of the Giants in home holidays, but not much, as the Giants will be at the Polo Grounds on July 4 and in Brooklyn on Memorial Day.

Mrs. Garret Eick, of East Third street, has recovered from a severe attack of the grip.

Plainfield, N. J., March 3, 1908.

The Newark Morning Star sums it all up when it declares today that there will be no local option measure enacted at the present session of the Legislature.

The Supreme Court having upheld the validity of the law which makes it a felony to steal chickens night or day, there should be no further discrimination in the price of light and dark meat.—New Brunswick Home News.

But what's the odds when the prisoner has a chance of being sentenced to the custody of a probation officer.

A bill that will meet with general approval on the part of a suffering public was introduced in the Legislature last night. It is Assemblyman Ginnelly's measure requiring every telegraph company to show conspicuously on each and every telegram the time it was filed for transmission, the time it was received at its destination. The penalty for failure to comply with the law is from $10 to $200 fine for each offence. The punishment is none too much.

Assemblyman John R. Moxon did another asinine act when at the local option hearing yesterday he publicly demanded from a reporter the authority upon which a statement was made in the paper he represented. Naturally the reporter stepped forward and bluntly answered "on the best of authority." Mr. Moxon has a lot to learn and among the things is that a reporter is answerable to his employer and is not called upon to furnish explanations to politicians whose intentions and actions he may report. The Union county member evidently has not digested the poetical skit on him which caused uproars of laughter in the House when delivered by Assemblyman Baker some days ago.

WON'T AID AMBOY SCHEME

voting with the majority may move to reconsider." He objected to this on the ground that those voting in the minority should be given this privilege. This, he said, was only one of several defects. His motion that the public affairs committee be authorized to make such changes as is deemed necessary and that the members of the Council make huch suggestions as may occur to them, was adopted. A report will be presented at a future meeting for action.

The attention of the street lighting committee was called by Mr. Mygatt to a light at West Seventh street and Spooner avenue, which he said was so completely covered by a red shade, indicating the location of a fire alarm box, that it failed to give the proper light. The matter will be attended to by Mr. Montgomery.

The ordinance which provides for the closing of Hill street, was called up by Mr. Gloak and passed on its third and final reading, Mr. Hibbard alone voting in the negative. Mr. Gloak moved that when Council adjourn it be to meet on Monday night, March 16.

DEATH SENTENCE SET ASIDE.

For the first time in many years a sentence of death was yesterday set aside at Trenton because of an alleged unfair charge to a jury. It will now be necessary to give the prisoner another trial.

Some time ago Pasquale Deliso was convicted in Middlesex county of wilful murder and was sentenced to be put to death in the electric chair.

On the ground that the charge of the trial judge to the jury was unfair, inasmuch as he pointed out to the jury that the circumstances pointed to wilful murder on the part of the defendant, the case was carried to the Court of Appeals, which gave its decision yesterday.

WATER CO. SMOKE NUISANCE.

Editor, The Daily Press:

The people who reside in Netherwood have time and again complained of the soft coal smoke nuisance maintained by the water company. Their houses are filled with soot and it is next to impossible to have clean clothes as the "wash" is coated with dust from the works.

Appeal has been made to the Board of Health but nothing seems to have been done. Someone has stated that the Board hasn't the power to abate the nuisance. If this be true, it should be given such authority. It seems strange that the Board doesn't have authority to abate this nuisance. Other boards in other cities seem to find no trouble in handling such cases.

Can it be that the water company has a "pull" and thus can do what private citizens are restrained from doing?

The smoke nuisance has become such a pest that the National Government has taken a hand in it and the Geological Survey has been conducting investigations in regard to it.

A preliminary report has been made by D. T. Randall, an expert, and it shows that the offenders are throwing away money by continuing to maintain this nuisance. He shows that it would be much more profitable to keep their chimneys smokeless. Firemen are paid small wages and they won't take the trouble to stoke their furnaces properly even when they are provided with proper appliances for consuing the smoke. They find it easier to fill up their fire boxes with coal and enjoy half an hour's rest before another load is needed than to give their work the constant attention that scientific firing requires.

Mr. Randall asserts "that it is a conceded fact that intelligent men trained in boiler-room practice could save fully ten per cent. of the fuel used."

That being the case perhaps if it were pointed out to the water company's officials they might think it worth their while to take measures to abate the nuisance and receive the heartfelt thanks of the Netherwood and many other citizens of Plainfield.

A SUFFERER.

THE MINISTERS' ASSOCIATION.

Editor, The Daily Press:

In response to some inquiries which you made of me yesterday, I gave you orally in outline what I understand to be the objects of the lately reorganized body known as the Plainfield Ministers' Association. I supposed that you wanted the information for an outside purpose, and spoke in more general terms than I should have used if I had known you wished a statement for publication in your own paper. As it is, I find no fault with your using the matter in The Daily Press—your intention, I am sure, was kindly and perfectly honest—only, you should not have put me in quotation marks, as if you were giving my words, which I must say you failed to do. The result, undesignedly on your part, is somewhat misleading. For instance, I have reason to believe that the published statement is understood as indicating that the Ministers' Association holds a brief, as it were, for the City Council, as against all comers—certainly a far-fetched inference from your language, while nothing could be further from my thought in our conversation, and nothing further from the truth.

You will remember that I mentioned the Plainfield Protective Association as one of the bodies with which we wished to co-operate, so far as we should take part at all in civic affairs. It was only incidentally that either the Council or the P. P. A. was referred to in my effort to tell you in a general way that we hoped to be of some service occasionally in municipal matters. The late differences between the Council and the P. P. A. have not been alluded to in the Ministers' Association. Personally, I am free to say that the P. P. A. is, in my judgment, an indispensable organization, which has already done splendid work for the city, and I have never heard a contrary opinion expressed by one of my brothers-pastors. Of the City Council also I believe it is true that the ministers individually have no thought but of respect and confidence—as an association they have had no occasion to speak on the subject.

Concerning membership in the Ministers' Association, if I had expected to be reported in The Daily Press I would have spoken more exactly, if at all. The constitution of the association simply says that any minister resident in Plainfield or North Plainfield, his name having been proposed by a member, may be elected to membership by a two-thirds vote of the members present, nine constituting a quorum. This I not officially, interpreted to you as meaning that no man would be ineligible because of his theological views or ecclesiastical connection, since we were not organized as churchmen, but only as representation, so far as we might be, of the religious and moral interests of the community. Yet upon any ground a man may fail to become a member if he fails to receive a two-thirds vote.

Further than this I meant to say that, while putting in a laboring oar wherever it might be thought possibly helpful, we hoped to perpetuate and strengthen the bonds of good fellowship and fraternity which have so noticeably united the ministers of all religious bodies in Plainfield. Respecting one another's convictions, and each man loyal to the truth as he sees it, we believe there are many lines along which we can work together for the common good.

"Finally, brethren," we don't expect to have "an annual dinner," but only a little something to eat after the arduous labors of the session every time we meet.

"In conclusion," don't think me captious—I'm an old newspaper man and know the difficulties.

"One word more": I have a grudge against the man who reported to you our election of officers, and thus set you after me as president—which I should not have been if my colleagues had not been so vain of their superior youthfulness.

J. A. CHAMBLISS.

UNITARIANS CHRISTIANS.

Editor, The Daily Press:

I must ask of your courtesy a little space today in which to correct a misunderstanding which even yet, alas, seems too common in Plainfield. In yesterday's edition of your paper a report concerning the ministers association here stated that hence forth "Christian and Unitarian" would be welcomed to its fellowship. That is really too bad, even for an ill-informed reporter! And, while I do not for a moment think that the ministers of this city would stand for any such phrasing I wish to call the attention of your readers to some definitions.

The Century dictionary defines a Christian as "A believer in and follower of Jesus Christ." "Specifically, one who possesses the spiritual character proper to a follower of Christ."

In the Saratoga platform of the National Conference of Unitarian churches it is declared that "these churches accept the religion of Jesus, holding, in accordance with His teaching, that practical religion is summed up in love to God and love to man."

Respectfully yours,
ALFRED CHASE NICKERSON.

DISAGREES WITH EVANGELIST.

Editor, The Daily Press:

It is with much pleasure and profit that I read that part of Dr. Munhall's sermon of yesterday, as printed in your valuable journal of today.

I think the Doctor has done much to clear the mist from the eyes of many honest seekers after truth, who have looked upon redemption and salvation as meaning the same thing, when he says that "Redemption is not Salvation."

Redemption is what Christ has done for man, because man could not do that for himself.

Salvation is what man must accept and appropriate to himself, in order to his own salvation.

If Dr. Munhall is rightly reported, I think he is wrong when he says the "Conditions of salvation are repentance, conversion, and faith." If that is correct then the New Testament is wrong, for it teaches "Go ye therefore and teach all nations," Matt. 28:19. Of course the sinner must hear. Paul teachers "How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher?"

"So then faith cometh by hearing," Romans 10:14-17.

From the foregoing we gather that the first thing for the sinner to do is to hear, then after they hear they must believe, or have faith in what they heard, and like the Pentecostians, Acts 2:38. Repent, because they heard and believed or got faith in what the preacher taught them. Repent in the R. V. is rendered "turn," which is more correct. After they turn then they must obey.

So as things appear to me God's word teaches: First—Preach Christ to the sinner, Matt. 28:15; second—The sinner must have faith in what has been preached to him, Matt. 16:16; third—Having heard and believed, he must turn or repent, Acts 2:38; fourth—He is now ready to obey, Acts 2:38. See also Acts 3:19; 8:12-13, 8:26-39, 9:1 to 19, 10:47, 16:15, 16:22-34, 18:8, 22:16.

WIDOW GOES TO GAS OFFICE TO END LIFE.

Mrs. Mary Daub, a widow, who lives in Second avenue, Long Branch, and who supports herself and her two small children by cleaning offices, attempted suicide yesterday morning by inhaling illuminating gas.

Mrs. Daub chose the office of the Consolidated Gas Company, in Broadway, as the most convenient place for the deed.

About half-past seven Mrs. Daub sent her little girl, Etta, who had accompanied her to the offices to assist in the cleaning, home. She then went to the basement, where the stockroom is located, and unfastened a length of feed hose from a lamp. The other end was fast to the pipe and she turned on the gas, placing the loose end in her mouth and inhaling the fumes.

When she slipped into unconsciousness the tube fell from her lips. As the room was ventilated, the fumes did little more damage. Employes of the concern found her and she was sent to the hospital and later to her home.

LOCAL OPTION DEBATED

Hearing on Crosby Bill Attended by Hosts of Friends and Enemies of Measure.

HUGH FOX SUBMITS A BRIEF.

Plainfielder Represents Brewing Interests—Others From This City In Attendance.

Hundreds of the friends and enemies of the Crosby local option excise bill now before the Assembly flocked to Trenton yesterday to attend the hearing on the measure given by the committee on municipal corporations of the House, from 2 o'clock until after 6, in the State House. Every available foot of floor space in the big Assembly chamber was crowded with a solid mass of humanity that cheered and jeered, swayed and strained its ears to catch every word from the lips of the aggregation of orators who spoke for and against.

Outside, in the corridors, hundreds swarmed against the doors and fought like madmen to get by the doorkeepers and police guards and enter the chamber. Thousands were denied admittance and, after standing in State street or trying the several entrances of the State House in vain, wandered about the city and waited impatiently for the hearing to adjourn.

The Plainfielders present included Clarence B. LaRue, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. C. Bodine and Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson and Sidney Smythe and D. Foster Updike.

The foes of the bill were on the right of the members of the committee, which sat at the clerk's desk. The men who handled the fight occupied the desks of members, while their backers sat or stood behind them in the gallery.

In Frequent Uproar.

On the other side were the forces of the Anti-Saloon League of the State. It reminded one somewhat of a political convention or a football game. All would be quiet and then some chord was touched, some sentiment stirred and up in the gallery on one side would start a ripple of applause. Downward and across the whole sea of humanity it would sweep until the chamber was in a wild uproar, cheers, hoots, groans, handclapping and statements shouted at the particular speaker would blend in one stirring outburst that defied the efforts of those who would have quelled it.

Time after time, Chairman John R. Moxon, of the committee, a Union county Assemblyman, demanded that order be kept and threatened first one and then the other that the room would be cleared, if there was a repetition of the demonstration.

It was war to the knife, and the knife to the hilt, one side striking at the other and the other coming back. Bitter words were said. Hot charges were flung down. The friends of the bill finally admitted that their ultimate aim was absolute prohibition of the sale and manufacture of intoxicants, but claimed that whatever their aim, it did not figure in the consideration of the Crosby bill. Statistics were offered and then others offered to contradict them. If the members of the committee can remember any of the figures that were offered they will do well.

Opposing Generals.

For the bill Superintendent J. Frank Burke, the State agent of the Anti-Saloon League, handled the case. For the opposition the plans were made and rested with former Prosecutor Chandler W. Riker, of Newark. There was a conference of both sides with the committee before the hearing, and they agreed that the friends of the measure should have an hour and thirty minutes, and then the local optionists thirty minutes for rebuttal. The opponents of the bill were to have had the last ten minutes for sur-hebuttal, but they didn't use much of it.

Speaking for the bill were the Rev. Dr. Charles L. Mead, of the Centenary Methodist church, of Newark, president of the Anti-Saloon League, and many other ministers, with a good sprinkling of laymen, while the summing up was left to Superintendent Burke.

For the opposition, Mr. Riker made a speech lasting almost an hour, and then there were introduced two ministers. The Rev. Dr. Edmund A. Wasson, rector of St. Stephen's church, Newark, made one of the longest addresses against the bill and was congratulated on his effort by his opponents. The Rev. George Andrea, of the German Lutheran church, of Jersey City, was another divine who spoke against the measure.

Mr. Riker said, in part:

Riker's Speech.

"In the State of New Jersey the percentage of total abstainers is not more than twenty and the percentage of persons drinking to excess but five." He made frequent reference to the report of the committee of fifty, headed by Seth Low, of New York, that a decade or so ago investigated the entire subject of use and abuse of alcoholic beverages. He was interrupted by the Rev. Dr. Van Sant, but Chairman Moxon claimed that the matter discussed was relevant and insisted that there no no more interruptions.

"It is shown by that report," said Mr. Riker, "that prohibition itself is a form of intemperance. It attempts to control an appetite by law."

There was more disorder and Mr. Moxon averred that if the onlookers did not keep quiet they wouldn't be allowed to remain.

"You have admitted that your ultimate aim is prohibition," the Newark lawyer resumed. "If a prohibition law is passed it will put 30,000 men out of employment and make vacant 12,000 stores in New Jersey."

Mr. Riker said that the local option law was unfair to the workingman. It would not affect the man with "a comfortable room and ice box and a bottle of vichy." "I say to you," he went on, "that not all of you good ministers are total abstainers. The report of the committee of fifty shows that 46 per cent. of the clergymen of the country drink habitually or occasionally."

Later the speaker declared that in prohibition the local option States there had been one arrest for every two inhabitants in the last year in cities and towns of 8,000 or over. In Newark there had been but one arrest in 139 for drunkenness; in Elizabeth, one in 118; in Jersey City, one in 63; in West Hoboken, one in 179.

Dr. Wasson's Argument.

Dr. Warron spoke at length. In beginning his address he denied that Dr. Mead had represented or spoken for the church of God. There must be excluded from the churches, for which he said he would speak, the "great Catholic church, the great Episcopal church, the great Lutheran church and the great Jewish church." He doubted if Dr. Mead, as president of the Anti-Saloon League, possessed credentials from those churches.

Hinchliffe Objects.

When J. Borton, of the Society of Friends, was speaking for the advocates of the bill in rebuttal, after Mr. Andrea and former Judge Frederick Kuhn had spoken against the bill, there was objection raised to his remarks by Senator John H. Hinchliffe, of Passaic county, who was present as a Paterson brewer. Finally the local optionists decided to rest their case in the hands of Mr. Burke, and he took all the time allotted for rebuttal.

Walter J. Knight, of Newark, counsel for the State Liquor Dealers' Association, spoke briefly in rebuttal. Hugh F. Fox, of Plainfield, secretary of the United States Brewers' Association, filed with the committee as a brief a copy of a speech he had intended to deliver against the bill.

Last night hundreds attended a mass-meeting in Taylor opera house, where Governor J. Frank Hanly, of Indiana, wearing the local option white ribbon, spoke for the Crosby bill and told of the effect of such legislation in Indiana.

There will probably be no further hearings on local option this session. It was arranged last week to report the bill at tonight's session of the House and kill it, but the plan was abandoned, it being deemed unwise. After the session of the committee yesterday, Chairman Moxon publicly questioned Superintendent Burke as to the ultimate object of the league's work, and it was admitted that there would be an effort to get State prohibition if the majority of the people seemed ultimately to want it. Mr. Burke objected to being questioned as to what might or might not be the sentiment behind the measure.

Bill Will Be Killed.

The House will do nothing with the Crosby local option bill for the present. It will be killed ultimately, it is believed. There are said to be twenty-seven votes against it in the House, although some of the Assemblymen are openly for it. Guy L. Fake, of Bergen, is one of its friends. There is criticism of the measure's provisions in that it provides that the ward shall be the unit. Some of the members of the House say they cannot vote for it because of that.

Governor Fort's excise bill was introduced in the Senate last night. There shall be a State excise board of three members and a clerk to supervise excise affairs in the entire State. It shall have power to revoke licenses and be the supreme authority in all matters of the character coming before it.

The members are to receive a salary of $4,000 per year and serve for five years. The clerk's salary is fixed at $2,500. The State Department of Excise is to be maintained by a tax of $5 on each license. There are said to be 12,000 licenses in New Jersey, so that the income to support the board would be about $60,000 per year. Newark's 1,400 licenses would furnish $7,000 of that sum, and Jersey City's 1,100 would produce $5,000.

There are other Fort excise bills due within a few days. One will aim to enforce existing laws and will require that all saloons must close at midnight and remain closed until 6 o'clock, with screens down.

PASTOR DECLINES CALL.

The Rev. William Richmond Will Not Return to Orange.

At a special meeting of the vestrymen of All Saints' Protestant Episcopal church, Orange, Friday evening next a letter from the Rev. William Richmond, formerly rector of the parish, who had another call to the church, will be read. The clergyman, it is understood, has declined the call. The church officials have declined to discuss the letter.

The Rev. John Wood Elliott, the present rector, resigned from the church because his sermons, having a tendency toward Christian Science, displeased some of the parishioners.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

William W. Giddes received his first orders to preach at the morning service of the Methodist church Sunday, from Rev. E. C. Dutcher, pastor of the church. He was duly recommended at the official meeting and took part in the evening service at the church. He will give an exhortation at the conclusion of the pastor's sermon next Sunday evening and will work and study under the supervision of Rev. Mr. Dutcher until fall, when he will go to New York University to complete his education. At the communion service in the church Sunday morning, four new members were received by certificate.

The storm last night kept many away from the minstrel show given at the New Market school for the benefit of the piano fund. The entertainers were the Franklin Council troupe, of Plainfield, and the program was wll received, including the usual run of songs and jokes. The large advance sale of tickets by the school children has assured the success of the affair, and a neat sum has been added to the piano fund as a result of the show.

Rev. T. L. Gardiner, of Plainfield, will lecture at Friendship Hall on a trip through Egypt and the Holy Land tonight. The lecture will be based on a tour taken by Rev. Dr. Gardiner, and will be illustrated by steriopticon views, reproducing photographs made on the trip. Next Tuesday night, Rev. Dr. Gardiner will lecture on another phase of his trip. The lectures are under the auspices of the Seventh-Day Baptist church.

The regular monthly meeting of the Dunellen Board of Education will be held at the borough building tonight. At this time routine business will be transacted, and arrangements will be completed for the annual meting of the school board, to be held in the borough building Tuesday evening, March 17.

The annual conference of the Presbyterian Brotherhood of New Jersey is being held today at Orange. Rev. W. W. Casselberry, pastor of the local Presbyterian church is in attendance with several of his parishioners.

YOUTH WALKS TO NORFOLK.

James Francis Donnelly, twenty-four years old, of No. 30 Boyd avenue, Jersey City, who was a page in the House of Assembly last year, returned to Jersey City yesterday after having walked to Norfolk, Va.

Having been in ill health, Donnelly decided that a long walk would prove a good tonic, and he made Norfolk his objective point. It took him thirteen days to cover the distance, and cost him $30 to make the trip on foot, he says. He returned by train, at a cost of only $8. He says he was greatly benefited by the long walk.

SERMONS FOR YOU AND FOR HIM

So long as there is any light in a man's soul he does not believe he can do any of his sins in the dark.

Corns on your hands will do more for the good of the world than crowns on your head.

You can as soon cross the ocean on a chart as save the world by a creed.

You always can measure a man by the things that provoke him to merriment.

There is no vital power in a religion you can pigeonhole into one day of the week.

Your religion is not to be measured by what you are giving up, but by what you are giving out.

The difference between what you are and what you would be is the prophecy of what you will be.

To turn from another's sorrow may be to miss your best joy.

There is no harmony in any song in which the heart does not sing.

The world will never be made clean by folks trying to scrub one another.

They who work as if the Master was ever near find Him always by them.

He has no real riches who does not put the treasures of friendship first of all.

The world may care little for theology, but it will recognize with joy the heavenly life and love.

The man who thinks he is weighty because he is wordy usually is short weight when it comes to works.

Many never write the check of success because they wait for the world's indorsement before they begin to draw it.

The people who are climbing into the ecclesiastical band wagon are not the ones who are making the heavenly music in this world.—Chicago Tribune.

BITS OF INFORMATION FOR ALL WOMEN.

Aluminum lace for trimming lace dresses.

Self-ruffling lace in different widths for all kinds of garments.

Street costume of chiffon poplin in the natural color.

New suit for spring with Directoire and Empire modes showing the Greek feature in trimming.

Balloon shaped bags of leather, silver mountings.

FASHION NOTES.

The plain sailor, simply banded, is again in style. A good hat of this description costs $6.

Many girdles are at least six inches deep. They give the short-waisted effect. Where an overblouse with mandarin sleeves is used the girdle gives a decided touch of beauty to the costume.

Odd little hatpins of fine China made in small umbrella shapes, are quite a fad just now. It is possible to get any color to match the hat. The pin and ribs are of gold, but the covering is of shell-like China.

A handy little device for attaching the dress shield to the waist or underwaist without sewing or pinning has appeared. This is a very small metal clasp which grips the edge of the shield and the edge of the waist seam together and is compressed into so flat an arrangement that it is not noticeable either to the feeling or the sight when adjusted.

To Make the Flowers Look Better.

At any of the florists one can purchase a little contrivance made of wire which, when fitted in a glass vase, is splendid for arranging the flowers. The wire loops are on long wires, bent in such a way that long stemmed flowers can be thrust through the small wire loops and will not droop. One could easily make them. The wire is strong and fine, the rings about two inches across and attached to wires of different length. They are all securely fastened on the end, which fits firmly in the glass vase.

AMUSEMENTS.

The New York Hippodrome is the only place in the world where one may see colossal spectacle, merry musical melange, novel circus and glittering ballet all in one evening's or matinee entertainment. In the new spectacle, "The Battle of Port Arthur," the New York Hippodrome not only has the largest production ever made in the big playhouse, but one that caught popular favor immediately and made it the talk of the town. Nothing so collossal, so realistic of the actualities of war has even been presented. A thousand people and one hundred horses appear in the two scenes, which occupy every inch of the immense stage and utilize every bit of the theatre's marvelous equipment for startling effects. In the great battle scene every branch of warfare is illustrated—infantry attacks and fort scaling under artillery fire, cavalry charges, machine gun operations, while from the great tank an auxiliary gunboat flashes its searchlight and throws bombs into the fort. The sensational finish is the capture of the fort and the retreat of the Russian cavalry, a score of horses plunging into the water.

COLLEGE MEN URGED TO HEAD WORLD'S PROGRESS.

Princeton, March 3—In a paper recently read before the Municipal Club of Princeton University, an organization for the study of civic interests Charles Sprague Smith, managing director of the People's Institute, New York city, discussed the "Call to College Men." He said:

"There has never been a time when the call to the college man was more imperitive than today. There is a new spirit abroad. The plain people, the masses, are awakening to a consciousnes of their power and a determination to make use of it. Sometimes this consciousness expresses itself in widespread unrest; at others in the forestalling by the government through remedial measures, of danger believed to be impending to the community from the rise of group power or the deepening of discontent.

"The manifestations differ according to countries. When we turn to our country and test its position by that attained by other leading nations we are bound to find it laggard. The reasons are obvious. It is a land of boundless and recently virgin resources. There has been a faith, deeprooted in the popular mind, that here all problems would solve themselves. The resources of the country have sustained the lavish waste because of their abundance, but now there is an end in sight and an abrupt awakening.

"We perceive that our forests, for example, instead of being exhaustless, are on the verge of utter distinction; that our coal, oil, mines, transportation, cereals, fruits, various industries are either wholly or almost entirely under limited private control.

"With the establishment of monopoly have come widespread political corruption, great and inefficiency. Simultaneously the masses have awakened and social unrest stalks around. We face a revolution; democratic in its demands for control of government in the interest of all; ethical in its insistance that righteousness and justice shall obtain.

"At such an epoch-making stage in national history, the multitude has not the power of self-direction, but needs leadership. Here, then, comes the call to the college man. I cannot recall any other moment in history when a strong, true man, who has enjoyed the privilege of culture and been permitted thus to discern the higher value of the spiritual, can serve God and his fellowman to better purpose than here and now."

FOR NEW JERSEY DINNER.

Tunnel Opening to Be Celebrated at Banquet on April 11.

The special committee of the New Jersey and New York Real Estate Exchange, in charge of the "New Jersey dinner," of which Joseph P. Day is chairman, has engaged the Manhattan Hotel, New York, for Saturday, April 11. This dinner is primarily in commemoration of the opening of the McAdoo tunnel, and the guests of honor are expected to be William G. McAdoo, president of the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad Company; Walter G. Oakman, president of the Hudson Companies, and Charles M. Jacobs, chief engineer.

President Otto Kempner has appointed the following chairmen for the standing committees for 1908: Appraisals, Joseph P. Day; transportation, Frank Stevens; law, degislation and taxation, William Jeffrey; public roads and improvements, William A. Lambert; floor and records, Stuart Hirschman; arbitration, James A. Romeyn; stock and bond listing, W. W. Slocum; publicity, F. L. Vrooman, and sociability, F. M. Welles.

The exchange will meet today at 141 Broadway, Manhattan.

Looking After Details.

It is in the mastery of some of the small details and accessories of dress that the home dressmaker may save her work from appearing to be, what it is, "home made."

If she learns to make belts and collars the way they are made on the high priced gowns and can evolve clever and artistic little trimming devices, she is sure to be able to give her work a smart finished apparance such as that seen on the high priced fashionable gowns.

ANGRY PARISIANS WRECK SLOW CARS

CLIMAX OF MANY COMPLAINTS

Crowd of 4,000 Routs Agents at Paris and Demolishes Station — Attempt Made to Burn Books and Papers.

Paris.—A riot occurred at the early morning rush hour at the St. Lazare terminus, in Paris, of the Western France railway, when some 4,000 angry passengers, infuriated by the late arrival of the suburban trains, attempted to wreck the station and wreak summary vengeance upon the station officials.

The railway company carries an immense suburban traffic. For some time past there has been a great deal of public complaint owing to the incessant delays of the trains. The climax was reached when all the suburban trains arriving in Paris were from one to two hours late.

When at last the first train from the suburbs began to crawl into the station a couple of hours late hundreds of passengers began to smash the windows of the carriages with their sticks and umbrellas. Leaping from the train, they heaped abuse upon the engineer and fireman and struck at them with their sticks. The employes retaliated by throwing lumps of coal at the passengers, finally deserting their engine and bolting across the tracks to the opposite platform.

By eight o'clock some 4,000 angry passengers were assembled, and with one accord made their way to the office of the station master, who promptly disappeared. Some 200 passengers effected an entrance into the station master's office, and found a man seated at a desk writing in a book. Taking him to be an official, they used violent language to him, struck him, and generally ill-treated him, until he managed to explain that he was a passenger himself, and was writing a complaint in the company's complaint book.

The crowd then smashed all the furniture in the office and in the adjoining offices on the platform. With pieces of chairs, table legs and some brooms used for sweeping out carriages they broke every pane of glass they could reach. Meanwhile trains kept arriving at the station, bringing other passengers, who joined whole-heartedly in the riot.

The ticket collectors, guards and porters made hurried escapes from the huge station with its 25 platforms. Twenty minutes later a strong body of police arrived and arrested a score of the rioters, just as a number of them were preparing to make a huge bonfire of railway books and papers. It took more than half an hour to clear the station and restore order, and when later passengers arrived they found strong bodies of police on the platforms.

The company has issued a notice explaining that the delay occurred owing to the intense cold having interfered with the signals, thus obliging the trains to proceed at a walking pace.

Dog Lives Month Without Food.

New York.—Twenty-six days without food or water was endured by Prince, a dog owned by Henry Burnick of Delanco, N. J., yet the animal is alive, and under good nursing is regaining its health. On December 24, while taking goods from a club house, Burwick unwittingly left the dog in the building when he locked the door. Hearing a dog barking in the building recently, several members entered and saw the animal lying in a corner. It was greatly emaciated and could not be recognized as her own by Mrs. Burnick until she had called its name and the pet made a futile attempt to jump in her lap. In its efforts to escape the dog had nearly eaten through the door.

By KATE AND VIRGIL D. BOYLES

(Copyright by A. C. McClurg & Co., 1907.)

"My note books!" cried Louise, in a flash of comprehension. She dressed hastily. Shirt waist was too intricate, so she threw on a gay Japanese kimono; her jacket and walking skirt

"What are you going to do?" asked Mary, also putting on clothes which were easy of adjustment. She had never gone to fires in the old days before she had come to South Dakota; but if Louise went—gentle, highbred Louise—why, she would go too, that was all there was about it. She had constituted herself Louise's guardian in this rough life that must be so alien to the eastern girl. Louise had been very good to her. Louise's startled cry about her note books carried little understanding to her. She was not used to court and its ways.

They hastened out into the hallway and down the stairs. They saw no one whom they knew, though men were still dodging out from unexpected places and hurrying down the street. It seemed impossible that the inconveniently built, diminutive prairie hotel could accommodate so many people. Louise found herself wondering where they had been packed away. The men, carelessly dressed as they were, their hair shaggy and unkempt, always with pistols in belt or hip-pocket or hand, made her shiver with dread. They looked so wild and weird and fierce in the dimly lighted hall. She clutched Mary's arm nervously, but no thought of returning entered her mind. Probably the judge was already on the court-house grounds. He would want to save some valuable books he had been reading in his official quarters. So they went out into the bleak and windy night. They were immediately enveloped in a wild gust that nearly swept them off their feet as it came tearing down the street. They clung together for a moment.

"It'll burn like hell in this wind!" some one cried, as a bunch of men hurried past them. The words were literally whipped out of his mouth. "Won't save a thing."

Flames were bursting out of the front windows upstairs. The sky was all alight. Sparks were tossed madly southward by the wind. There was grave danger for buildings other than the one already doomed. The roar of the wind and the flames was well-nigh deafening. The back windows and stairs seemed clear.

"Hurry, Mary, hurry!" cried Louise, above the roar, and pressed forward, stumbling and gasping for the breath that the wild wind coveted. It was not far they had to go. There was a jam of men in the yard. More were coming up. But there was nothing to do. Men shook their heads and shrugged their shoulders and watched the progress of the inevitable with the placidity engendered of the potent: "It can't be helped." But some things might have been saved that were not saved had the first on the grounds not rested so securely on that quieting inevitability. As the girls came within the crowded circle of light, they overheard something of a gallant attempt on the part of somebody to save the county records—they did not hear whether or no the attempt had been successful. They made their way to the rear. It was still dark.

"Louise! What are you going to do?" cried Mary, in consternation. There were few people on this side. Louise put her hand deliberately to the door-knob. It gave to her pressure—the door swung open. Some one stumbled out blindly and leaned against the wall for a moment, his hands over his eyes.

"I can't do it," he said, aloud, "I can't reach the vaults.

Louise slipped past him and was within the doorway, closely followed by the frantic Mary.

The man cried out sharply, and stretched out a detaining hand. "Are you crazy? Come back!"

"Mr. Gordon!" cried Louise, with a little sob of relief, "Is it really you? Let me go—quick—my note books!"

A thick cloud of smoke at that moment came rolling down the back stairs. It enveloped them. It went down their throats and made them cough. The man, throwing an arm over the shoulders of the slender girl who had started up after the first shock of the smoke had passed away, pushed her gently but firmly outside.

"Don't let her come, Mary," he called back, clearly. "I'll get the note books—if I can." Then he was gone—up the smoke-wreathed stairway.

Outside, the girls waited. It seemed hours. The wind, howling around the corners, whipped their skirts. There was a colder edge to it. Fire at last broke out of the back windows simultaneously with the sound of breaking glass, and huge billows of released black smoke surged out from the new outlet. Louise started forward. She never knew afterward just what she meant to do, but she sprang away from Mary's encircling arm and ran up the little flight of steps leading to the door from which she had been so unceremoniously thrust. Afterward, when they told her, she realized what her impulsive action meant, but now she did not think. She was only conscious of some wild, vague impulse to fly to the help of the man who would even now be safe in blessed outdoors had it not been for her and her foolish woman's whim. She had sent him to his death. What were those wretched note books—what was anything at all in comparison to his life! So she stumbled blindly up the steps. The wind had slammed the door shut. It was a cruel obstacle to keep her back. She wrenched it open. The clouds of smoke that met her, rolling out of their imprisonment like pent-up steam, choked her, blinded her, beat her back. She strove impotently against it. She tried to fight it off with her hands—those little intensely feminine hands whose fortune Gordon longed to take upon himself forever and forever. They were so small and weak to fend for themselves. But small as they were, it was a good thing they did that night. Now Mary had firm hold of her and would not let her go. She struggled desperately and tried to push her off, but vainly, for Mary had twice her strength.

"Mary, I shall never forgive you—"

She did not finish her sentence, for at that moment Gordon staggered out into the air. He sat down on the bottom step as if he were drunk, but little darts of flame colored the surging smoke here and there in weird splotch and, suddenly calm now that there was something to do, Mary and Louise led him away from the doomed building where the keen wind soon blew the choking smoke from his eyes and throat.

"I've swallowed a ton," he said, recovering himself quickly. "I couldn't get them, Louise." He did not know he called her so.

"Oh, what does it matter?" cried Louise, earnestly. "Only forgive me for sending you."

"As I remember it, I sent myself," said Gordon with a humorous smile, "and, I am afraid, tumbled one little girl rather unceremoniously down the stairs. Did I hurt you?" There was a caressing cadence in the question that he could not for the life of him keep out of his voice.

"I did not even know I tumbled. How did you get back?" said Louise, tremulously.

"Who opened the door?" counter-questioned Gordon, remembering. "The wind must have blown it shut. I was blinded—I couldn't find it—I couldn't breathe. I didn't have sense enough to know it was shut, but I couldn't have helped myself anyway. I groped for it as long as I could without breathing. Then I guess I must have gone off a little, for I was sprawling on the floor of the lower hall when I felt a breath of air playing over me. Somebody must have opened the door—because I am pretty sure I had fainted or done some foolish thing."

Louise was silent. She was thankful—thankful. God had been very good to her. It had been given to her to do this thing. She had not meant to do it—she had not konwn what she did; enough that was done.

"It was Louise," spoke up Mary, "and I—tried to hold her back!" So she accused herself.

"But I didn't do it on purpose," said Louise, with shining eyes. "I—I——"

"I guess I was trying to come after you," she confessed. "It was very—foolish."

The rear grounds were rapidly filling up. Like children following a band-wagon, the crowd surged toward the new excitement of the discovered extension of the fire. Gordon drew a long breath.

"I thank God for your—foolishness," he said, simply, smiling the smile his friends loved him for.

CHAPTER XVIII.

An Unconventional Tea Party.

As the flames broke through the roof, Langford came rushing up where the group stood a little apart from the press.

"Dick! I have been looking for you everywhere," he cried, hoarsely.

"I have something to tell you," said Langford, in a low voice. "Come quick—let's go back to your rooms. Why, girls——"

"We will go, too," said Mary, with quiet decision. She had caught a glimpse of Red Sanderson's face through the crowd, and she thought he had leered at her. She had been haunted by the vague feeling that she must have known the man who had attempted to carry her off—that dreadful night; but she had never been able to concentrate the abstract, fleeting impressions into comprehensive substance—never until she had seen that scar, and glancing away in terror saw that Langford, too, had seen; but she was not brave enough to lose herself and Louise in the crowd where that man was. She could not. He had leered at Louise, too, last night at supper. They could not ask the protection of Gordon and Langford back to the hotel then, when Langford's handsome, tanned face was white with the weight of what he had to tell.

"It will be best," he agreed, unexpectedly. "Come—we must hurry!"

It was Williston's "little girl" whom he took under his personal protection, diving up the street in the teeth of the gale which blew colder every moment, with a force and strength that kept Mary half the time off her feet. A gentler knight was Gordon—though as manly. All was lark around the premises. There was no one lurking near. Everybody was dancing attendance on the court-house holocaust. Gordon felt for his keys.

"How good it is to get out of the wind," whispered Louise. This proceeding smacked so much of the mysterious that whispering followed as a natural sequence.

They stepped within. It was inky black.

"Lock the door," said Langford, in a low voice.

Gordon complied, surprised, but asking no question. He knew his friend, and had faith in his judgment. Then he lighted a lamp that stood on his desk.

"Why did you do that?" asked Louise, gravely.

"What?"

"Lock the door."

"I don't know," he answered, honestly. "I didn't think you would notice the click. Ask Paul."

"I'll explain in a minute," said Langford. He stepped to the windows and drew the blinds closely.

"Now that I have you safe," he said, lightly, "I'll confess I had an old woman's scare. It came to me that as long as you are not, strictly speaking, on kind and loving terms with—every one west of the river—and this being such an all-round nasty night anyway, why, I'd just spirit you home and give the charged atmosphere a chance of clearing a little."

Gordon looked at him steadily a moment. His face did not pale. Yet he knew that Langford had heard—or suspected—more than he intended to tell—then. It was good to see him shrug his shoulders in unconcern for the sake of the two white-faced girls who sat there in his stiff office chairs.

"You are an old duffer, Paul," he said, in pretended annoyance. "You treat me like a child. I won't stand it always. You'll see. Some day I'll rebel—and—then——"

"Meanwhile, I'll just trot these ladies back to the hotel," said Langford. "But you must promise to keep your head inside. We're fixtures until we have that promise."

"What, lock me up and run off with—all the ladies! I guess not! Why didn't we round up that way, I'd like to know? This isn't Utah, Paul. You can't have both."

Paul meant for him to lie low, then. He was also in a hurry to get the girls away. Evidently the danger lay here. There was a tightening of the firm mouth and an ominous contraction of the pupils of the eyes. He stirred the fire, then jammed a huge, knotted stick into the sheet-iron stove. It seemed as if everybody had sheet-iron stoves in this country. The log caught with a pleasant roar as the draught sent flames leaping up the chimney. But Paul made no movement to go. Then he, Gordon, had not understood his friend. Maybe the menace was not here, but outside. If so, he must contrive to keep his guests interested here. He would leave the lead to Paul. Paul knew. He went back to his living-room and returned, bringing two heavy buggy robes.

"You will find my bachelor way of living very primitive," he said, with his engaging smile. He arranged the robes over two of the chairs and pushed them close up to the stove. "I haven't an easy chair in the house—prove it by Paul, here. Haven't time to rock, and can't afford to run the risk of cultivating slothful habits. Take these, do," he urged, "and remove your coats."

"Thank you—you are very kind," said Louise. "No, I won't take off my jacket," a spot of color staining her cheek when she thought of her gay kimono. Involuntarily, she felt of her throat to make sure the muffler had not blown awry. "We shall be going soon, shan't we, Mr. Langford? If Mr. Gordon is in any danger, you must stay with him and let us go alone. It is not far."

"Surely," said Mary, with a big sinking of the heart, but meaning what she said.

"Not at all," said Gordon, decidedly. "It's just his womanish way of bossing me. I'll rebel some day. Just wait! But before you go, I'll make tea. You must have gotten chilled through.

He would keep them here a while and then let them go—with Langford. The thought made him feel cheap and cowardly and sneaking. Far rather would he step out boldly and take his chances. But if there was to be any shooting, it must be where Louise—and Mary, too—was not. He believed Paul, in his zeal, had exaggerated evil omens, but there was Louise in his bachelor room—where he had never thought to see her; there with her cheeks flushed with the proximity to the stove—his stove—her fair hair wind-blown. No breath of evil thing must assail her that night—that night, when she had glorified his lonely habitation—even though he himself must slink into a corner like a cowardly cur. A strange elation took possession of him. She was here. He thought of last night and seemed to walk on air. If he won out maybe—but, fool that he was! what was there in this rough land for a girl like—Louise?

"Oh, no, that will be too much trouble," gasped Louise, in some alarm and thinking of Aunt Helen.

"Thanks, old man, we'll stay," spoke up Langford, cheerfully. "He makes excellent tea—really. I've tried it before. You will never regret staying."

Silently he watched his friend in the inner room bring out a battered tea-kettle, fill it with a steady hand and put it on the stove in the office, coming and going carelessly, seemingly conscious of nothing in the world but the comfort of his unexpected guests.

True to her sex, Louise was curiously interested in the house-keeping arrangements of a genuine bachelor establishment. Woman-like, she saw many things in the short time she was there—but nothing that diminished her respect for Richard Gordon. The bed in the inner chamber where both men slept was disarranged but clean. Wearing apparel was strewn over the chairs and tables. There was a litter of magazines on the floor. She laid them up against Langford; she did not think Gordon had the time or inclination to cultivate the magazine habit. She did not know to whose weakness to ascribe the tobacco pouch and brier-wood pipe placed invitingly by the side of a pair of gay, elaborately bead-embroidered moccasins, cozily stowed away under the head of the bed; but she was rather inclined to lay these, too, to Langford's charge. The howling tempest outside only served to enhance the coziness of the rumbling fire and the closely drawn blinds.

But tea was never served in those bachelor rooms that night—neither that night nor ever again. It was a little dream that went up in flame with the walls that harbored it. Who first became conscious that the tang of smoke was gradually filling their nostrils, it was hard to tell. They were not far behind each other in that consciousness. It was Langford who discovered that the trouble was at the rear, where the wind would soon have the whole building fanned into flames. Gordon unlocked the door quietly. He said nothing. But Paul, springing in front of him, himself threw it open. It was no new dodge, this burning a man out to shoot him as one would drown out a gopher for the killing. He need not have been afraid. The alarm had spread. The street in front was rapidly filling. One would hardly have dared to shoot—then—if one had meant to. And he did not know. He only knew that deviltry had been in the air for Gordon that night. He had suspected more than he had overheard, but it had been in the air.

Y.M.C.A. FIVE LOSES IN LAST HALF MINUTE

Keeping nip and tuck with their opponents, the Paterson Y. M. C. A. five, the local association team lost a close basketball game at the association gymnasium last night by a score of 40-38. The winning basket was scored in the last half minute of play, after the local five had tied the score on the previous play. The score at the end of the first half was 14-13 in favor of the Plainfielders.

The game was marked throughout by close guarding and sensational shooting. Loizeaux took the scoring honors by scoring eight baskets from the floor, and the local five added ten points from the foul line, through accurate shooting of Loizeaux and Collier. The lineups and summaries:

PATERSON.		PLAINFIELD.
Critchley	right forward	Loizeaux
Ash	centre	Collier
Miner	right guard	Babcock

Field goals: Loizeaux, 8; Ash, 6; Ramsey, 4; Walker, 4; Babcock, 3; Rumsey, 3; Collier, 2; Miner, Critchley. Goals from foud: Collier, 8; Ash, 3; Loizeaux, 2; Walker. C. B. Morse, referee. Twenty minute halves.

BUSINESS MEN CONTINUE 1000 PER CENT. PLAYING.

Maintaining their unbroken string of victories which keeps them at the head of the local basketball league, the Business Men's five defeated the First Baptists by a score of 22-18, at the Y. M. C. A. last night. Feature work was the playing of Listman for the Business Men. He scored five baskets from the floor and accepted four out of five chances to score from the foul line. For the Baptists, Jerry Manning lead in the scoring, finding the ring five times. At the end of the first half the Business Men had a lead of 15-6. The lineups and summaries follow:

Business Men: Doane and Listman, forwards; Stone, centre; Smith and Jarvis, guards. First Baptists: Lee and Jerry Manning, forwards; Mackey, centre; Fountain, Spear and Denton, guards.

Church Basketball Game.

The First Presbyterian church five won handily from the Seventh-Day Baptist team at the Y. M. C. A. last night, administering conclusive defeat to the tune of 37-16 in a game in the Sunday-school Athletic League. At the end of the first half, the score was 14-9 in favor of the Presbyterians. Caldwell, , C. Line and Murphy did the best work, each scoring five baskets.

Leal's Five Defeated.

The North Plainfield High School basketball five administered a sound drubbing to the Leal's School five at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium yesterday afternoon, winning by a score of 44-17.

Choir Enjoy Outing.

Members of the choir of St. Mary's church and their friends to the number of twenty-six went to New York last night and after enjoying a dinner at Shanley's, witnessed the performance of "A Night for a Day," at Wallack's. Every courtesy was extended the choir at Shanley's, where a private room was reserved and an orchestra provided. Following the dinner the choir sang several selections, accompanied by the orchestra, and had a general good time.

laws passed within a few years also adds somewhat to the attractiveness of work in our State.

"Another inducement used in Boston and some other cities is what is called the sabbatical year. A teacher who has been in the service 7 years may be given a year's absence to travel or study and receive half salary during the absence. In such a case the teacher is under contract to stay with the city for three years after her return or refund one-third of the money paid her for each year short of the three, that she does not serve. This plan has been found profitable to the city by reason of the increased health and the added brightness and power which comes to the teacher from the change. It is also of benefit by reason of the number of teachers who ars studying and getting ready in anticipation of their year of absence, for some years before they go.

"It has been found to cost the city comparatively little since the teacher who goes is one who is receiving a maximum salary and her place is taken by one who is paid the minimum. The difference between the two which is saved yearly equals the half salary paid the absent teacher.

"My pleasure in the meeting was shadowed by my great personal loss in the death of the President of the Board, and my attendance somewhat shortened as a result.

"Thanking the Board of the opportunity and the profit I received,

"Respectfully submitted,

"H. M. MAXSON."

Gave Progressive Euchre.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Caffery, of Netherwood avenue, entertained thirty friends with a progressive euchre at their home last night. The prizes were awarded as follows: Women's, first, Mrs. F. L. Burke; second, Mrs. Thomas Dorgan; consolation, Miss Jean Smith; men's, first, John Dorgan; second, Thomas Lynch; consolation, Morris Fitzgerold. Following the play, refreshments were served and dancing was enjoyed.

Anna Elizabeth Johnson.

Anna Elizabeth Johnson, daughter of William P. and Cecelia C. Jornson, colored, died at the parents' home this morning. She had been ill a long time. Miss Johnson was seventeen years old and leaves several brothers and sisters, one of the former being Eugene Johnson. The funeral will be held in St. Mary's church Thursday morning at 9 o'clock.

A Birthday Surprise.

Mrs. Louise Taylor, of Muhlenberg place, was given a birthday party surprise by thirty friends from Westfield, her former home, Saturday night. The affair was arranged by her sister, Mrs. John R.Peterson, of Westfield. Vocal and instrumental music and games were enjoyed and refreshments were served at 11:30.

Lectured Before School Teachers.

"COUNTESS" D'ANDERSON GETS A 3-YEAR TERM

With a piercing shriek, supplemented by a sudden flop into a convenient chair, Mrs. Mary De Anderson, also known as Mary McCarton, who operated here as "Mrs. Cololel Wheeling," and as "the Countess," received the sentence of three years in State prison, which Judge Ten Eyck in the Court of Quarter Sessions at Newark imposed upon that matured swindler late yesterday afternoon. It took two stout constables to hold the fat "countess" in the chair when she had fainted away so dramatically and they held on to her and the chair until the arrival of the van that conveyed her to the county jail prior to her transport to Trenton, due in a few days.

"The information of the court is," said Judge Ten Eyck before the faint, "that for many years you have been deceiving people throughout this State and in others by getting goods under false pretenses. For this reason I think that a sentence of some severity ought to be imposed."

Mrs. De Anderson had apparently wept long and much before the judge got on the bench, and appeared to be ready for the flop at the first opportunity. She wore, besides her mournful air, the same ancient brown veil that has covered her venerable head since she first appeared exposed to the criminal limelight. Plush and faded silks made up the rest of her outfit.

The cause of the wilt of the nerve of the fat "countess," for whose money hundreds of creditors are vainly crying, was founded on three charges, two of false pretenses and one of larceny. Storekeepers in Nutley, where she last flourished, made the former, while a Mrs. Elliott, in whose house she last lived a life of luxurious credit, made the complaint for stealing her kindling wood.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Martin, of East Front street, will remove to Dunellen April 1.

Mr. and Mrs. P. A. VanFleet, of Liberty street, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Moore, of Passaic.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank Clawson, of West Seventh street, are the parents of a young son who came to their home last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis K. Anderson, of Sandford avenue, expect to move to the Manning building on West Front street April 1.

MRS. FRANCIS G. MOORE GIVES CHARMING TEA.

Mrs. Francis G. Moore gave a charming reception and tea at her home on West Seventh street, yesterday afternoon, the affair being attended by about eighty friends. The decorations in the reception room were pink; those in the dining room yellow daffodils, while those in the parlor were white.

Those who assisted Mrs. Moore in receiving were Mrs. William Pelletier, Mrs. David G. Weems, Mrs. Anderson C. Wilson and Mrs. G. W. Chandler. Those in charge of the dining room were Mrs. Harry Terry, Mrs. William Robenson, Miss Imogene Bass and Mrs. Louis Squiers and they were ass,sted by the Misses Finch, Bass, Morgan, Dorothy Fleming, Edith Little, of this city, and Miss Jardine, of Rye, N. Y.

During the afternoon an attractive program of music was rendered by Charles Suhr's orchestra.

Louis C. VanNest Entertains.

Louis C. VanNest, of 118 Watchung avenue, entertained a party of friends at his home, last night, prior to an extended trip through the south. Musical numbers were rendered during the evening by Toney Brothers' Mandolin Club. A feature was dancing, after which refreshments were served.

TURN VEREIN HOLDS ANNUAL MASQUE BALL

The Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein, conducted its nineteenth annual masquerade ball at Saengerbund Hall, last night, the affair proving more successful in many ways than the eighteen preceding. The attendance numbered 500 or more and until well after midnight the dancing floor was crowded to its capacity.

According to the custom at the ball, a grand march was held at 10 o'clock and all those in costume took part. The long line of men and women in grotesque or fancy garb was led by Charles F. Meyer, Jr., and a dozen intricate figures were evolved. Paroubek's orchestra furnished the music and the program prepared by the leader proved highly satisfactory. The dancing continued until daybreak this morning.

The costumes were more numerous than in several years previous and comprised all the familiar burlesques and many new ones. Happy Hooligans, Hall Room boys, sailors, soldiers, dudes and clowns were prevalent with the men and dairymaids fairy queens, dancing girls and swee sixteens were favorites with the women.

The affair was in charge of a committee from the Turn Verein composed of John Wirth, chairman; G. O. Keller, secretary and treasurer; Charles F. Meyer, Jr., John Schroop, August Wolf, Lawrence Fahn, Anton Seidler and John Retzer.

JOHN BAMBACH CHIEF OF DUNELLEN POLICE

John Bambach was elected chief marshal of the Dunellen police force at the Council meeting last night. The appointment was suggested by Mayor Swackhamer and received the unanimous vote of the Council. Bambach is a brother to Harry Bambach, Democratic candidate for councilman at the last election. He and Councilman J. H. VanMiddlesworth each got 173 votes at the election, and the Mayor appointed VanMiddlesworth to decide the tie. Mohan resigned at the last Council meeting and Dunellen has been without a marshal since.

Recorder D. S. Campbell tendered his resignation at last night's meetin. He felt that he was not legally elected, because the Mayor voted in order to give him a two-thirds majority, when one of the councilmen was absent. He will doubtless be renamed for the office and legally elected at the next full meeting of the Council.

The borough budget amounting to $5,000 was passed last night. President Starker, of the Council, was absent.

Concerns Election of Trustees.

State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman introduced a bill in the Senate, last night, which amends the act of March 20, 1901, relative to the election of trustees of religious societies, so far as the Protestant Episcopal church is concerned.

PARK CLUB THEATRICALS

FOR SILVER CROSS CIRCLE.

"The Elopement of Ellen," a three act play given at the Park Club last night under the auspices of the Silver Cross Circle of The King's Daughters, was one of the best amateur productions presented at that popular social centre. The effort would have been creditable to those of more experience. There was an abundance of mirth-provoking incidents that kept the audience guessing and provided no end of fun for the large audience.

The time was 1907 and the place, Pleasant Hill, a suburb of New York city. The scene of act one was the morning room at Mrs. Ford's home at 8 a. m., that of act two, a corner of Mrs. Ford's garden at 5 a. m., the next day, and that of the third act the same corner in the evening of the same day. The cast of characters were as follows:

"Richard Ford," a devoted young husband, Herbert Rogers; "Molly," his wife, Miss Elizabeth McGee; "Bob Shepard," Molly's brother, Vaughn McGee; "Max TenEyck," a chum of Roberts', Willard Wadsworth; "Dorothy March," engaged to Max, Miss Verna McCutcheon; "June Haverhill," Wellesley '08, who is doing some special investigation of economic courses during the summer, Miss Katharine McCutcheon; "John Hume," rector of St. Agnes', Harry Quail.

Every one in the cast took his or her part in a faultless manner, the work of Mr. Quail being particularly clever. He has appeared in amateur performances before, and at the Park Club, and his impersonation of a clergyman, last night, left nothing to be desired in the true interpretation of the part. His actions, perhaps more than words, won the greatest applause.

Miss Katharine McCutcheon, who for a bit of a lark, took the position of housemaid at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ford, acted her part beyond criticism, while Miss Elizabeth McGee, as "Mrs. Ford," was perfectly at home and much of the success of the play was due to her efforts, as well as those of Miss Verna McCutcheon, who was supposed to be engaged to "Max TenEyck." By the terms of a will left by an aunt they were to each receive $25,000 upon their marriage, but there was a whole lot of misunderstanding before they agreed to the proposition, and it was only then effected when it was learned that "John Hume" was in love with Dorothy.

Vaughn McGee, as Molly's brother, impersonated his part in that happy, care-free manner which won lots of applause, while Willard Wadsworth, who was the spbject of perplexing questions and misunderstandings, was very good. Herbert Rogers, as the devoted husband, was seen at his best. He assumed the trying duties of the household in a perfectly natural manner. There were several curtain calls throughout the play, and the participants were generously remembered with flowers.

A feature that added greatly to the success of the entertainment was the playing by Barlow's Orchestra, comprising Arthur Wills, piano; William Barlow, Monroe Long and "Ted" Gavett, mandolins, and Charles Eoff, violin. The orchestra rendered a program of popular selections between the acts and afterward played for dancing.

Heptasophs' Installation.

A large gathering of the members of Protective Conclave, No. 505, Improved Order Heptasophs, went to Westfield, last night, to witness a joint installation of the officers of the local and Westfield canclaves. The installation ceremonies were performed by District Deputy Supreme Archon Joseph K. Beans and staff from Trenton, assisted by Supreme Committeeman J. V. E. Vanderhoef, of this city. At the close of the meeting a banquet was tendered the visiting members. Addresses were made by J. V. E. Vanderhoef, V. W. Nash, Sr., H. G. Uhler, and others from this city, and an enjoyable time was had by all.

Westfieldder in the Toils.

John O'Rourke, of Westfield, mistook the Watchung avenue pavement for his bed, last night, and was making preparations to retire when Patrolman Kelley gathered him in. He was arraigned in the city court this morning on a drunk and disorderly charge but got off on suspended sentence by promising to hike back to Westfield and remain there.

AIM FOR HIGHER LICENSE

Another One of Governor Fort's Excise Measures Introduced in State Senate.

ASSEMBLYMAN MOXON TALKS.

Union County Member Says Arguments by Local Optionists Will be Seriously Considered.

It fixes the minimum license fee at $200 in municipalities with less than 3,00 inhabitants, $250 in towns of between 3,000 and 10,000, $400 (except in first class cities) where the population exceeds 10,000, and not less than $600 in first class cities. It also fixes the closing hours of all licensed places at midnight every night except Sunday, when they shall be closed from midnight on Saturday until 6 o'clock Monday morning. It also limits the number of licensed places to one for every 300 inhabitants.

In spite of the fact of various rumors as to the rough treatment in store for the Local Option bill, it is said that the House committee of the Legislature will not turn in a hasty report in the measure which took thousands of people to the capital Monday, and regardless to the ultimate action on the bill, no room will be left for a contention that it was not properly considered by the committee.

The court stenographer, on duty during the hearing at Trenton, Monday, secured every address in its entirety and no point for or against the measure will escape the House committee when the testimony is taken up in detail during the coming week. It is admitted that much time was consumed Monday with speeches that led the committee far afield, but with a view to settling the agitation on a basis of absolute equality the committee is determined to take every statement made by the speakers into consideration in arriving at their final decision.

Assemblyman Moxon admits rumors to the effect that the bill was to be reported and killed unceremoniously Monday night or yesterday morning had come to his ears, but he classed them with other reports that have been circulated ever since the present agitation reached serious proportions and asserted that they had no foundation.

"Such a demonstration as was made in Trenton Monday deserves the most careful consideration," said Assemblyman Moxon, "and the local option bill is going to receive the attention due it."

"It is impossible to discuss the present standing of the local option bill with any degress of accuracy," said Mr. Moxon, "and it is certain that statements made so far as to the probable disposal of the measure are not in any sense official. The mass of testimony taken at the hearing in the Assembly chamber Monday is now in the hands of the stenographer and it will hardly be possible to have it in condition for the committee before tomorrow. In view of the vast field covered by the addresses delivered Monday, the committee cannot be expected to give the matter proper consideration inside of a week. There are no indications that a report can be returned before next Monday. Whatever decision is arrived at will be the outcome of careful and non-partisan consideration of the data presented Monday, and this bill will be erated as any other measure that goes to a committee."

A Surprise Party.

A surprise party was tendered to Miss Elva Lippincott, of Somerset street, last night, by a number of her friends in honor of her twelfth birthday. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. John Barry, Misses Nellie and Stella Vermeule and the Misses Florence Carver, Grace Williams, Carrie Williams, Edith Schenck, Iola Schenck, Ethel Van Camp, Mabel Van Camp, Alfretta Bird, Geraldine Bird, Edna Beeching, Marion Bird, Alma Carver, Nellie Barry, Myra Lippincott, Edith Lippincott. The evening was pleasantly spent by listening to selections on the phonograph and playing games. Refreshments were served at a late hour.

President Tolles Improving.

President R. I. Tolles, of the Common Council, who has been detained at home the result of an injury to his knee, is improving slowly. He is still unable to leave the house and during his detention Councilman Herbert Buxton has been acting president of the Council.

Miss DeMeza, Thank You.

Lawyer and Mrs. William G. DeMeza are the parents of a baby daughter who arrived at their home in the Jackson building, yesterday.

SENTENCE DAY IN COURT

Wagner Given Ten Days in Jail and Fined $50 for Assaulting Garretson.

TYNDALL GETS THE SAME.

Mild Punishments All Around Meted Out to Those Who Resort to the Plea of "Non Vult."

James H. Wagner, who pleaded non vult to a charge of assault and battery preferred by J. F. Garretson, baggagemaster at the North Avenue station, was sentenced in the Union County Court, this morning to pay a fine of $50 and serve ten days in the county jail. His counsel, W. G. DeMeza, made a strong plea in his behalf.

Vannie Tyndall, of Goodwin's Crossing, who was indicted on a charge of shooting a colored man, who was trespassing on his farm, was fined $50 and given ten days in the county jail.

Robert Decaro, convicted of snatching a pocketbook from a woman at Roselle Park, was sentenced to four months in the county jail. Judge Atwater afterwards said that he might decide to send Decaro to the Rahway Reformatory. While the lad was being led back to his cell he was heard to threaten the constable and remark that he would get even when he was released. Delaro is also accused of trying to incite a riot in the jail to secure the freedom of the prisoners.

Walter Dill, of Elizabeth, who entered a plea of non vult to a charge of selling liquor without a license in Linden township, was fined $100, and Joseph Vatalli, also of Elizabeth, convicted of a similar charge, was fined $50.

LIBRARY DIRECTORS ASK $7,500 APPROPRIATION

Councilman Herbert Buxton, chairman of the finance committee, met with the Board of Directors of the Public Library and Reading Room, last night, when the question of the coming year's appropriation was discussed. A resolution was finally adopted requesting the Common Council to appropriate $7,500 to cover the expenses of the library for 1908-1909. This is the same amount given last year.

The library committee reported that negotiations had been concluded granting the privileges of the library to the teachers and pupils of the North Plainfield Public Schools upon payment of $140 a year by the Borough Board of Education. On motion Miss Bowman, acting librarian, was authorized to attend the New Jersey Library Commission at its session to be held at Atlantic City, March 13-14.

PROMINENT BROKERS FOR PETIT JURY DUTY

Representative residents of Plainfield are still being called upon to perform jury duty in the Union County Court, it being the avowed intention of Sheriff Lawrence to select the best men possible for this work From a list of 120 names presented to the court this week, ten Plainfielders were drawn, all of them representing a higher type of citizenship.

Among those chosen from here were John B. Dumont and George A. Chapman, the former for many years a member of the Common Council, and both of them prominent brokers in New York. They have for a long time been actively identified with the best interests of the city. The other Plainfielders called include C. Wesley Holland, T. E. H. Curtis, George W. Van Boskerck, George S. Ring, Juan A. Babcock, Clifford A. Braider, Charles F. Drake and Harvey R. Linbarger. They will be required to serve for two weeks beginning the latter part of this week.

Arranging Ushers' Benefit.

Arrangements have been completed for the annual benefit performance for the ushers at the New Plainfield theatre. It will take place on Friday, April 3, with "Busy Izzy's Boodle" as the attraction, a musical comedy that has been meeting with great success all season. The ushers who will participate are William Hoffman, chief; Nelson Peterson, Elmer Hoffman, Hugh Gray and Arthur Robinson.

Will Save Lad's Eye Sight.

The condition of seven-year-old Walter Morris, of Regent street, who was shot by his brother, Russell Morris, in play Sunday afternoon, shows consistent improvement.

MANY HAD THE MEASLES

Sixty-six Cases are Reported During February to the Board of Health.

ONLY 4 MARRIAGES PERFORMED

Eight New Cases of Tuberculosis Reported and Four Deaths from That Disease—As to Milk Analysis.

Reports presented at the March meeting of the Board of Health yesterday, show the sanitary condition of the city to be excellent. There are a number of cases of measles. The following statistics were reported:

Scarlet fever, 4; diphtheria, 4; tuberculosis, 8; measles, 66; chickenpox, 4; a total of 86. There were four deaths from tuberculosis, one from diphtheria, and one from typhoid fever.

The usual work on milk analysis was followed during the past month, samples of all the milk sold in the city being tested. The following is the average: Fats, 3.94 per cent.; solids, 12.98; solids not fat, 9.04; lactometer, 112; bacteria per cubic centimeter, 44,874.

These permits were granted: To sell milk, Louis Dajohn; to carry on business of scavenger, New Jersey Central Land Improvement Company; to collect garbage, Peter Robinson, John Ryan, John Giles and Sylvester Cuff. The plumbing bid of Samuel Allock was ordered filed. The following returns were made to the office during February: Marriages, 4; births, 33; deaths, 32; a total of 69.

STATION AGENT HAYNES SUCCEEDED BY KEOLER

Peter Keoler, of Bound Brook, has been named as the successor to Joseph A. Haynes, who on April 1 will retire as the Plainfield agent for the New Jersey Central after a continuous service of nearly fifty-three years, nearly half of which has been spent here as agent. Mr. Keoler has been the company's agent at Bound Brook for seventeen years and is thoroughly experienced and considered competent to look after the company's interests in this city.

The appointment of Mr. Keoler as local agent will necessitate his removal to this city, and he will probably occupy the quarters at the North Avenue station, where Mr. Haynes has lived since the erection of the building. Mr. and Mrs. Haynes will continue to make Plainfield their home after April 1.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE M'ALL AUXILLIARY

Officers were elected and reports presented at the annual meeting of the Plainfield Branch of the McAll Auxiliary held this morning at the Public Library. The receipts for the past year amounted to $1,107.45. Another announcement was that a special gift of $500 had been received from Mrs. Lawrence Myers. The gift is in commemoration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the association by Dr. McAll.

Reports showing the condition and progress of the work at Limoges, France, where the Plainfield branch is supporting a station and mission, were received and were a source of pleasure to the members, who will strive to do even greater things in that field during the coming year.

These officers were chosen for the coming year:

President, Mrs. Frederick Goodhue Mead; honorary vice-president, Mrs. Lawrence Myers; acting vice-president, Mrs. Augustus V. Heely; secretary, Mrs. H. E. Maright; treasurer, Mrs. John Gray Foster. Vice-presidents from the different churches were chosen as follows: First Baptist, Miss Ida Yerkes; Grace Episcopal, Mrs. F. O. Herring; Park Avenue Baptist, Mrs. Walter H. Freeman; Seventh-day Baptist, Mrs. I. N. Van Syckel; Congregational, Mrs. W. B. Wadsworth; Trinity Reformed, Mrs. Cornelius Schenck; First Presbyterian, Miss Addie Dietrich; Crescent Avenue Presbyterian, Mrs. J. S. Zelie.

Funeral of Miss Wormser.

The funeral of Miss Barbara Wormser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floriette Wormser, of Watchung, was held in St. Joseph's church, this morning, Rev. Father Miller officiating. Burial was made in St. Mary's cemetery, four cousins of the deceased acting as pall bearers. Miss Wormser was twenty-three years old and died Sunday from epileptic convulsions from which she had been a sufferer for many years.

BURGLARS MAKE HAULS

Two Homes Entered in Netherwood Section and Considerable Booty Obtained.

MUCH SILVERWARE IS TAKEN.

Burglars invaded the quiet precincts of the Netherwood section at an early hour this morning, and entered two homes, those of William G. Cooke at 724 Berkeley avenue and Harry P. Henriques at 1117 East Seventh street. The visits in both places were hurried as no attempt was made to go beyond the first floor. According to the police, the articles taken were mostly silverware, overcoats and other clothing, the total value of which has not been estimated. It is said that considerable silver was taken at both places.

The burglaries were discovered at 7 o'clock this morning and Roundsman Higgins was detailed to both cases as soon as they were reported. He learned that entrance to each home was effected through a window that had been left open. The Cooke family retired at 11 o'clock and Mr. and Mrs. Henriques were up until midnight. The visitors were not heard at either place and the first indication of anything wrong came with the discovery that the silverware was missing.

Patrolman Florence McCarthy has been doing night duty in citizens clothes for some time in that section under Chief Kiely's orders. Patrolman McGinley is also on the beat as the regular patrolman.

NEWCORN GETS BIRTHDAY CUP FROM GET-TOGETHERS

In honor of his fortieth birthday anniversary, District Court Judge William Newcorn was given a surprise by his friends in the "Get-together Club," the association of local Republican organization workers, last night. Incidently he was presented with a handsome silver loving cup, which stands a foot in heighth above its ornate base.

Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., inveigled the Judge downtown, while the forty odd members of the club gathered at his home on West Front street. Mayor Fisk was invited also to be present and he made the presentation which was responded to by the judge. Vocal and instrumental music were features of the occasion.

JIGS AND REELS TO PREVAIL AT A.O.H. DANCE

In making arrangements for its thirty-fourth annual St. Patrick's dance, Division No. 4, A. O. H., has decided to conduct the affair this year on different lines than heretofore. It will be held in T. A. B. hall on Monday night, March 16, and will be an Irish dance in practically every respect. While the waltz and two-step will have an occasional place on the program, the majority of the numbers will be jigs, reels and madrigals of the style that prevail in the Emerald isle. It will be the first time an affair of this kind has been conducted in Plainfield and the division looks for an enjoyable occasion as well as complete success in other ways.

To further enhance the scheme, Professor F. X. Hennessey, the celebrated Irish bagpipe player and his Erin orchestra will provide the music. The pipes and flutes will predominate. The committee arranging the dance consists of John Leaby, John F. Casey, Thomas Flynn, Cornelius Thompson, John Disken, Patrick Connolly and J. J. Gallagher.

Funeral of Patrick McNamara.

The funeral of Patrick McNamara, whose death occurred Sunday at his home on Central avenue, was held in St. Mary's church this morning. It was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. A solemn requiem mass was said by Rev. Father Glennon, of Newark, with Father Delehanty as deacon and Father Schiola sub-deacon. There were numerous floral tributes. The pall bearers were Edward Connors, John Walsh, John Day, Philip Glennon, Patrick Mottley and Patrick Lynch, all old friends of the deceased.

Seventh-day Baptists Memorial to Congress Opposes Sunday Legislation.

REV. DR. A. H. LEWIS ACTIVE.

A memorial opposing Sunday legislation for the District of Columbia was presented in Congress yesterday through the efforts of Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, of this city, who as the chosen representative of the Seventh-day Baptist Church in this country went to Washington for that purpose. After the memorial had been read at the request of United States Senator John Kean, Senator Gallinger, of New Hampshire, chairman of the Senate committee on the District of Columbia affairs, assured Dr. Lewis that it would be given careful consideration. The New Hampshire member added that the matter was of such importance that a public hearing will be granted on the question by the Senate committee.

"The Seventh-day Baptists of the United States, for and in behalf of whom this Memorial is laid before you, beg leave to call attention to their record as advocates and defenders of constitutional, civil and religious liberty ever since their organization in Newport, R. I., in 1671 A. D. That record includes colonial governments, the Continental Congress, where they were represented by Honorable Samuel Ward, the services of German Seventh-day Baptists of Ephrata, Pa., and other points of interest. Having such an history and inheritance, we respectfully and confidently ask and petition that you will not enact any of the following bills, now in the hands of the Committees on the District of Columbia, namely:

"S. 1519. A bill to prevent Sunday banking in postoffices in the handling of money orders and registered letters.

"H. R. 4897. A bill to further protect the first day of the week as a day of rest in the District of Columbia.

"H. R. 4929. A bill prohibiting labor on buildings, etc., in the District of Columbia, on the Sabbath day.

"H. R. 13471. A bill prohibiting work in the District of Columbia on the first day of the week, commonly called 'Sunday.'

"S. 3940. A bill requiring certain places of business in the District of Columbia to be closed on Sunday.

"The Constitution of the United States declares that 'Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof.' That Sunday legislation is forbidden under this act is shown by the records of Congress from 1808 to 1830. The question came to the front under an act of April 30, 1810, establishing the Postal Department and requiring the opening of postoffices, and the transmission of mail, on every day in the week.

"Reports, discussions and petitions concerning Sunday mails crowd the annals of Congress from 1811 to 1830. Mr. Rhea, chairman of the committee on postoffices, reported adversely concerning efforts to secure a change in the law requiring Sunday opening, on January 3, 1812, June 15, 1812, and January 20, 1815. Postmaster-general Granger made adverse report January 16, 1815, saying:

"'The usage of transporting the mails on the Sabbath is coeval with the Constitution of the United States.'

"January 27, 1815, Mr. Daggett made an adverse report, that was considered by the House in committee of the whole, February 10, 1815, and after various efforts at amendment, was passed, as follows:

"'Resolved, That, at this time, it is inexpedient to interfere and pass any laws on the subject-matter of the several petitions praying the prohibition of the transportation and opening of the mail on the Sabbath.'

"Actions and transactions intrinsically right, which promote prosperity, good order and righteousness cannot be changed into crimes at a given moment,—by the clock,—and purged from criminality 'by act of Parliament' twenty-four hours later.

"If there be need of protecting employed persons from abuse, or overwork, that need will be met in full by some law like the following:

"'Be it enacted, That every employed person shall be entitled to one day of rest each week. The claiming of this right shall not prejudice, injure not interfere with any engagement, position, employment, or remuneration as between employed persons and those by whom they are employed.'

FOR A POSTOFFICE BLDG.

Senator Kean Introduces Bill in Congress for $100,000 Structure for Plainfield.

APPROPRITTION INADEQUATE.

Treasury Department Gets Figures on Prices of Properties—Sum Asked for Will Be Increased.

United States Senator John Kean has introduced in the Senate a bill providing for a Government building in Plainfield for the use of the postoffice, the measure as proposed being on similar lines to the one introduced by the Senator two years ago. At that time it "died" in committee. Yesterday, his bill was read twice and referred to the committee on public grounds and buildings.

As drafted the bill calls for an $100,000 appropriation, but it is said on reliable authority that the real purpose is to ask for an additional sum provided the original measure is sanctioned by the Treasury Department and passed by Congress. It is conceded that this sum will not be sufficient both for the purchase of the land and the erection of the building.

It was learned today that acting on orders from the Treasury Department at Washington, Postmaster Elias Bird has obtained estimates on desirable properties in the business section. The statement is made by a local real estate man that it would hardily be possible to obtain the tract which would answer the purposes for less than $40,000.

The bill introduced by Senator Kean yesterday follows:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to acquire, by purchase, condemnation, or otherwise, a site and cause to be erected thereon a suitable building, including fireproof vaults, heating and ventilating apparatus, and approaches, for the use and accommodation of the United States postoffice and other governmental offices in the city of Plainfield and State of New Jersey, the cost of said site and building, including said vaults, heating and ventilating apparatus, and approaches, not to exceed the sum of one thousand dollars.

"Proposals for the sale of land suitable for said site shall be invited by public advertisement in one or more of the newspapers of said city of largest circulation for at least twenty days to the date specified in said advertisement for the opening of said proposals.

"Proposals made in response to said advertisement shall be addressed and mailed to the Secretary of the Treasury, who shall then cause the said proposed sites, and such others as he may think proper to designate, to be examined in person by an agent of the Treasury Department, who shall make written report to said Secretary of the results of said examinations therefor, which shall be accompanied by the original proposals and all maps, plats, and statements which shall have come into his possession relating to the said proposed sites.

"If, upon consideration of said report and accompanying papers, the Secretary of the Treasury shall deem further investigation necessary, he may appoint a commission of not more than three persons, one of whim shall be an officer of the Treasury Department, which commission shall also examine the said proposed sites, and such others as the Secretary of the Treasury may designate, and grant such hearings in relation thereto as they shall deem necessary; and said commission shall within thirty days after such examination make to the Secretary of the Treasury written report of their conclusion in the premises, accompanied by all statements, maps, plats, or documents taken by or submitted to them, in like manner as hereinbefore provided in regard to the proceedings of said agent of the Treasury Department; and the Secretary of the Treasury shall thereupon finally determine the location of the building to be erected.

"The compensation of said commissioners shall be fixed by the Secretary of the Treasury, but the same shall not exceed six dollars per day and actual traveling expenses: Provided, however, That the member of said commission appointed from the Treasury Department shall be paid only his actual traveling expenses.

"The building shall be unexposed to danger from fire by an open space of at least forty feet on each side, including streets and alleys."

OVER TWO THOUSAND VISITORS A DAY

During L. T. Cooper's recent stay in Boston, it is estimated that sixty-five thousand people talked with him and purchased his medicine. This is an average of over two thousand a day.

His success was so phenomenal as to cause universal comment both by the public and the press. There must be a reason for this. Here is the reason given in his own words by Mr. Cooper when interviewed on the subject. He said:

"The immense numbers of people who are calling on me here in Boston is not unusual. I have had the same experience for the past two years wherever I have gone. The reason is a simple one. It is because my medicine puts the stomach in good condition. This does not sound unusual, but it is in fact the key to health. The stomach is the very foundation of life. I attribute 90 per cent. of all sickness directly to the stomach.

"Neither animals nor men can remain well with a poor digestive apparatus. Few can be sick with a digestion in perfect condition. As a matter of fact, most men and women today are half-sick. It is because too much food and too little exercise have gradually forced the stomach into a half-sick condition. My medicine gets the stomach back where it was, and that is all that is necessary."

Among Boston people who are staunch believers in Mr. Cooper's theory, is Mr. Frank D. Brown, of 57 Bloomingdale street, Chelsea, Mass. He says:

"For five years I have sought relief for indigestion, stomach trouble and dyspepsia, spending nearly all my wages with doctors and obtaining no results. I had dull pains across my back, radiating to the shoulders. I had splitting headaches, which nothing seemed to cure. There was a gnawing and rumbling in my stomach and bowels. I was troubled with vertigo and dizziness, and at times almost overcome by drowsiness.

"I felt tired and worn out all the time, my sleep was not refreshing, and I would get up in the morning feeling as weary as when I went to bed. My appetite was variable—ravenous at times, then again nauseated at the sight of food. Sometimes my face was pale, at other times flushed. I was constipated and bilious, and had catarrhal affection in nose and throat, which caused me to hawk and spit a great deal, especially in the morning. I heard so much of the Cooper remedies that I decided to try them. After taking one bottle, a tapeworm 50 feet long passed from my system. I felt better almost immediately. All my troubles disappeared as if by magic, and my improvement was rapid. I now feel entirely well, and can honestly recommend Mr. Cooper's medicine to anyone who suffers as I did."

An extraordinary play, "Our Friend Fritz," the Langdon McCormick musical comedy drama, which will be the offering at the New Plainfield theatre Friday, afternoon and night. It is a play of admirable purpose and construction and while commanding for the heroine, the sincere pity and respect of all at one time, rousing audiences to the extreme pitch of interest by its gallant and heroic rescues at another, it in the next instant evokes the heartiest of laughter by its bright comedy lines. A villain's persistent attempts to win the love of a woman, whom he has falsely accused of a crime which he knew to be the work of another, this woman's devotion to an honest German who loves her, are the predominant themes. Throughout all is intermingled, by a master hand, the most appealing love situations, sublime pathos, thrilling incidents and novel climaxes that stir the blood and speak to the heart. It is such superb material that "Our Friend Fritz" is composed. The title role is played by Joe Hortiz, who comes with recommendation of captious critics as one of America's sweetest singers. The play permits of the introduction of several new song hits, the composition of Mr. Hortiz who has also gained a splendid reputation in this line.

Fred A. Tolver, general agent for John W. Vogel's big city minstrels, is in town arranging for the appearance of the minstrels at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday, afternoon and night. Mr. Tolver was an admirer of the late Bill Nye and tells the following story of the great humorist: Nye once had a cow to sell, the story goes, and advertised her as follows: "Owing to my ill-health, I will sell at my residence, in township 19, range 18, according to the government survey, one plush raspberry cow, aged 8 years. She is of undoubted courage and gives milk frequently. To a man who does not fear death in any form she would be a great boon. She is very much attached to her present home with a stay chain, but she will be sold to anyone who will agree to treat her right. She is one-fourth shorthorn and three-fourths hyena. I will also throw in a double barrel shotgun, which goes with her. In May she usually goes away for a week or two and returns with a tall, red calf with wabbly legs. Her name is Rose. I would rather sell her to a non-resident." Vogel's minstrels will appear here under the auspices of Plainfield Aerie, No. 866, F. O. E.

Prominent in the list of dramatic offerings announced for the present month at the New Plainfield theatre, is a new comedy by Marguerite Merington, entitled "Until We Meet Again," (Aug Wiedersehen), which will be presented next Monday night. Miss Merington, who is one of the successful dramatic authors of the present day, won fame with "Captain Letterblair," which proved one of the most successful of E. H. Sothern's productions and "Love Finds the Way," used for a season by Mrs. Fiske. The cast for the comedy includes Eugene Ormonde and Josephine Victor, who are supported by Mabel Carruthers, Charlotte Lambert, Dickey De Laro, Mildred Hutchinson, Seymour Rose, Rogers Lytton, Wilbur Collier, Hudson and Russell Bassett. The play is in three acts, all laid in New York city. The central figure is that of Baron von Rummelsberg, a young German, who, ruined by the treachery of a friend, comes to America to regain his lost fortunes. "Until We Meet again" is now engaged in a short preliminary tour previous to its exploitation at a New York playhouse.

NEW LITERARY PILOTS.

Princeton, March 4.—The coming of the month of March marks the beginning of a new year in literary circles, for on the various college journals the senior boards assume command of the publication on March 1.

The Daily Princetonian came under the 1909 board with its first issue yesterday. Hugh Chaplin, 1909, of Ridgewood, is editor-in-chief for the ensuing year; Douglas Ober, Jr., 1909, of Baltimore, Md., is managing editor, and J. Holly Clark, of Flushing, N. Y., is assignment editor.

The Tiger, Princeton's humorous publication, has not announced its elections for next year, but The Nassau Literary Magazine, probably one of the oldest periodicals in the country, has announced the following as its controlling board until March, 1909: John C. Cooper, Jr., 1909, Jacksonville, Fla., managing editor; editors, Milton Matter, 1909, Marion, Ind.; J. G. Buchanan, 1909, Pittsburg, Pa.; C. T. Plunkett, 1909, Adams, Mass.; W. J. Funk, 1909, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Spencer W. Phraner, of Bloomsburg. The business managerships of the different papers will be announced tonight. In all the journals the positions are won by merit in strict competition.

—Geo. Johnston, of Scotch Plains, has been appointed manager for the Eastern Bottling Company in place of Ellsworth C. Westcott, who held the position for several years.

—Robert S. McAfee, of Oxford place, and Raymond Schenck, of West End avenue, have formed a partnership in the general contracting business.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tomorrow night.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Marshal Reilley was called upon yesterday to arrest Robert Winters on a charge of disorderly conduct, and the use of threatening language toward various residents in the village. For a long time past, Winters has proved himself to be a public nuisance through periods of intoxication but the hand of justice has been withheld in the hope that he would heed the warnings that have been given to him. Forbearance however came to an end yesterday, when he again broke out in a drunken frenzy and the marshal conveyed him to the county jail at New Brunswick.

The February honor roll of the public school in this village is as follows: Miss Soper's rooms, grades 2, 3, 4: Tessie Hannon, Nellie Harlow, Laura Roberts, May Duffy, Helen Richards, Veronica Reilley, Mary Neilson, Marjorie Roberts, Margaret Nelson, George Brower; Miss Corson's room, first primary class, Anna McDonough, William Shields, Harry Mundy, Howard Norman.

Mrs. Julia Thorne, who has been ailing for some time past, is now entirely confined to the house and is under the care of Dr. Adams, of Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Sisty have removed here from Netcong and are making their home with Mrs. Sisty's mother at Lake Side House.

Mr. and Mrs. Pace and family, who formerly lived on the Endress farm, have moved to this village for the summer.

AN ORDINANCE

WHEREAS, The portion of Hill Street (sometimes called Hill Avenue), between South Avenue and Woodland Avenue is shown on a map entitled "Section 2, City Map of Plainfield, Union County, N. J., 1870," filed in the office of the City Clerk of the City of Plainfield September 20, 1870, and

WHEREAS, The Central New Jersey Land Improvement Company, Union County Investment Company, Dorsey W. Hyde and Henry P. Talmadge are the sole owners of the fee and of all the property abutting anywhere on such portion of said street, and have applied to the Common Council of said City to vacate such portion of said street pursuant to Chapter CXXXIII, P. L. 1888, and other laws governing the matter, and it is to the interest of the city that such street should be vacated:

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the portion of Hill Street (sometimes called Hill Avenue), lying between South Avenue and Woodland Avenue, as shown on a map entitled "Section 2, City Map of Plainfield, Union County, N. J. 1870," be and the same is hereby vacated pursuant to the Acts of the Legislature in such case made and provided.

Corporation Notice.

Proposals for Furnishing Crushed Stone and Material for Culverts and Crosswalks.

Pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, at the regular meeting held March 2, 1908, notice is hereby given that the Committee on Streets and Sewers will meet at the office of the Committee, No. 151 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, on Thursday, March 26, at 8 o'clock p. m., at which time and place said Committee on Streets and Sewers will receive sealed proposals for furnishing crushed stone, and for furnishing material for culverts and crosswalks as follows:

For crushed stone for the remainder of the year 1908, the bids to state the price per ton of 2,000 pounds, for furnishing the following sizes, viz:

Fine screenings, ½ inch stone, 1½ inch stone and 2½ inch stone, in such quantities, and delivered at such places in the city as the Street Commissioner may direct.

The above must be of the best quality trap rock; free from soft stone, dirt or other foreign matter, equal in every respect to the samples in Street Commissioner's office and in every way acceptable to the said Street Commissioner.

Separate bids will be received for the four different sizes of stone in three different grades, A, B and C, as shown by the samples correspondingly marked in Street Commissioner's office, and the right is reserved to accept the lowest bid for each of the different grades of stone.

The stone must be weighed on such scales as the Street Commissioner may direct, and a voucher or weigh bill must be delivered with every load to the said Street Commissioner or his authorized representative.

Also for furnishing the following materials for culverts and crosswalks:

Cover stone for culverts, not larger than 4 feet by 3 feet by not less than 3½ inches in thickness, per square foot.

Curbing 16 inches by 4 inches, 3 to 6 feet long, per lineal foot.

Curbing 20 inches by 4 inches, 3 to 6 feet long, per lineal foot.

Crosswalk stone 24 inches by not less than 4 inches, 3 to 4½ feet long, Belgian edge, per lineal foot.

Crosswalk stone 30 inches by not less than 4 inches, 3 to 4½ feet long, Belgian edge, per lineal foot.

No Erie, Pennsylvania or similar stone will be accepted.

Upon receipt of the bids or proposals the Committee on Streets and Sewers will immediately proceed to unseal the same and publicly announce the contents in the presence of the parties bidding or their agents, provided said parties or their agents choose to be then and there present, and also make proper record of the prices and terms.

The right to reject any or all bids is expressly reserved.

By order of the Common Council and the Committee on Streets and Sewers.

J. T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.

Merchandise of the "Wanted" Kind.

Bargains in New Spring Goods that are clean and crisp, from the looms of some of this country's best mills---all at a distinct saving. They stand out as further evidence of our 1908 policy. No trading stamps, but more for your money.

These items are underpriced as quoted below, the saving is real as we claim, in every instance. When we say for any article, regular value (for instance) $1.00, we mean that this very article sells for that price regularly, and is worth it. In this way, the difference of actual value and our sale price is easily seen, and we believe is obliged to impress the public with a method that is fair and upright, from which we shall not deviate.

Owing to his home being in Plainfield, Wiltse prefers to play ball in the East, and unless he hooks up with the Brooklyn Nationals this week he will try to land a job either in New York city or Jersey City. Wiltse expects to have a conference with Manager Patsy Donovan, of the Brooklyns, in the latter city, this week.

At Waco, Texas, yesterday two teams picked from the New York Giants' squad played an exhibition game before more than one thousand spectators. The McGraws, with Manager John J. in the box, defeated Roger Bresnahan's team by the score of 3 to 2.

Bound Brook will be represented on the diamond with a strong semi-professional team next season. Charley Newhouse, the veteran minor league catcher, will manage the aggregation.

Harry Lumley has been appointed captain of the Brooklyn team for next season. The Brooklyns will leave for Jacksonville on March 10.

Ed Barry, the big southpaw pitcher, will twirl for Providence again next season, the player having been turned over to Hughey Duffy by the Boston American League club.

Jack Thoney is likely to patch up his differences on the salary question with the Boston Americans at Hot Springs, Ark. At any rate, Thoney has notified Manager Jim McGuire, of the Red Sox, that he will go South with the other players.

Manager Gene McCann, of the Paterson Union League club, has signed Curry, an infielder. The youngster is from Camden and is said to be a comer. McCann expects to open an office in Paterson by March 10.

Pete Noonan, the former Holy Cross catcher, has received his release from the St. Louis Nationals and will play with St. Paul next season.

Umpire Tom Connolly, of the American League, recently said that Addie Joss, of Cleveland, and Cy Young, of Boston, are the easiest pitchers in that league to work with.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

It has for some time been admitted that the rules of golf in their present wording are beyond the comprehension of the average devotee of the game, but this fact was never made so clearly evident until the Quein Sabe competition, which began recently in the West. Question 14 reads as follows:

"A ball is lying under a fence bounding the course, the ball being partly within the bounds and partly out of bounds. How shall the ball be played?"

It is surprising, almost amusing, to see the various interpretations that this one question has brought to light. In fact, no two persons seem to agree when it comes to putting down their answers in black and white, as may be seen by the following answers:

"Out of bounds (Rule 1, g) is defined as being 'outside the boundaries of the course,' and a ball to be considered 'outside' must be wholly beyond the boundary line. As only the outer circumference of the ball, in this case, was over the boundary line of the course it should be considered as being in bounds and therefore played from its line, in accordance with Rule 7."

"The ball must be considered as out of bounds and played accordingly. Rule 32 is very clear on this question. It states: 'If it is doubtful whether a ball has been played out of bounds another may be dropped,' etc. A ball lying under a fence, being partly within bounds and partly out of bounds, certainly is in a doubtful position, and therefore Rule 32 applies."

"Rule 1 (g) is not specific in defining 'out of bounds,' and the player should therefore be governed by the position of the larger portion of the ball. See Rule 32 regarding a split ball."

Rule 36 states: "If the point in dispute be not covered by the rules of golf, the arbiters must decide it by equity.' As there is nothing in the rules which specifically covers the point, it should be decided by equity, which would be to permit the player to play the ball from where it lies, under Rule 7, or to consider it as out of bounds, as he might elect."

"If the great part of the ball is within bounds it must be played from where it lies; if, however, the greater part is out of bounds, the ball must be considered as out of bounds and played accordingly."

"The ball not being wholly outside the boundaries of the course is in bounds and should be played from where it lies. (Rule 1 (g) and Rule 7.)

"I first made up my mind that the ball was in bounds (Rule 1, g) and should be played from its lie. I then ran up against Rule 32, and decided that the proper answer was to consider the ball as out of bounds. Rule 34 made me think that the position of the ball should be decided by whether the greater part of the ball was inside or outside the boundary line. I next came to Rule 36, the last in the book, and decided that equity should govern, and the player be allowed to take his choice and play the ball as in bounds and from its lie, or as out of bounds, as he chose. After having been obliged to change my opinion regarding the answer to your simple question several times, I came to the final conclusion that the ball was neither in bounds nor out of bounds, but should be considered a lost ball. A lost ball is a ball that you cannot find out where it is in five minutes, and I deny any one to find out, under the rules, where the ball in question is in five times five minutes. My answer is that the ball should be played according to the rules governing a lost ball."

The following question was also asked: "In match play a player picks up his ball when playing through the green to identify it, and then replaces it. What, if any, is the penalty?" To this the following answer has been received: "No penalty, if opponent's consent is obtained, Rule 8; one stroke, consent or no consent, Rule 26; loss of the hole, Rule 7. Take your choice."

BASEBALL.

The Fairview Avenue Baseball Club has organized for the coming season by electing Ballentine Goldsmith captain and Francis McDonough manager. The team will line-up as follows: Pitcher, C. Smith; catcher, A. Giddis; first base, W. Birch; second base, A. Burns; third base, F. McDonough; short-stop, B. Goldsmith; center-field, R. Conroy; left-field, M. McDonough; right-field, R. Hoagland. The club is anxious to schedule games with teams whose members average twelve years. Address all communications to 33 Fairview avenue.

Pitcher Lew Wiltse, who figured prominently in the blacklist controversy, expects to sign with some club this week. Wiltse has received numerous offers, including one from Manager Billy Clymer, of Columbus.

SUNDAY'S RESTRICTIONS

"In view of the foregoing and of many similar reasons, your memorialists respectfully urge Congress not to enact any of the Sunday-law bills now before your honorable body.

"In behalf of the Seventh-day Baptists of the United States, by the American Sabbath Tract Society, Plainfield, New Jersey.

"STEPHEN BABCOCK, A. M.,
"President,
"48 Livingston Ave.,
"Yonkers, New York.
"ABRAM HERBERT LEWIS,
"D. D., LL. D.,
"Corresponding Secretary,
"633 West Seventh St.,
"Plainfield, New Jersey.

"Some of the facts referred to in opening of the foregoing memorial are these: Through the Hon. Samuel Ward and others, Seventh-day Baptists took a prominent part in the struggle by which the nation was brought into existence. Being then governor of the colony of Rhode Island, Mr. Ward was the first of the colonial governors who refused to enforce the Stamp Act of 1765. His published letters—Westerly, R. I., December 31, 1773, and Newport, R. I., May 17, 1774,—had much influence in the formation of the Continental Congress, that met at Philadelphia, September 5, 1774. Mr. Ward and Stephen Hopkins were the first two delegates to that Congress, elected by any colony. They were chosen June 15, 1774. Mr. Ward was a member of subsequent Congresses until his untimely death, March 26, 1776, because of which his name did not appear among the signers of the Declaration of Independence. He was one of the most prominent and efficient men in the Congress. John Hancock called him to be presiding officer of Congress, sitting in 'Committee of the whole' May 26, 1775, in which committee all the important work of Congress was formulated. Mr. Ward occupied that place almost continually during the sessions of 1775 and 1776. In his official capacity, June 15, 1775, he reported the appointment of Col. George Washington, of Virginia, to be commander-in-chief of the Continental forces. His published correspondence with Washington and others are important documents touching the work of the Continental Congress. Mr. Ward's son, Samuel, was a captain in the 12th R. I. Regiment. George Washington wrote to Governor Ward, from Cambridge, Mass., in August, 1775, speaking highly of his son as a competent officer.

"The Assembly of Rhode Island led in the movement for a colonial navy. On the third of October, 1775, Mr. Ward presented the recommendations of the Rhode Island Assembly, and on December 11th of that year Congress acted upon those recommendations, and the first thirteen ships were ordered; these being the nucleus of the navy of the United States. Mr. Ward's last letter was dated at Philadelphia, March 6, 1776. It was a high type of Christian patriotism, and his relations with Benjamin Franklin are shown in the closing sentence: 'Dr. Franklin does me the favor to take charge of this letter.' March 15, he was compelled to leave his place while Congress was in session. Virulent small-pox developed, from which he died, March 26, 1776. The Continental Congress, the General Assembly of Pennsylvania, the Mayor and Councilmen of the City of Philadelphia, attended the funeral, officially, and the members of Congress wore mourning crape for a month in memory of Mr. Ward. The published correspondence of John Adams describes Mr. Ward's funeral, and speaks in high terms of his ability and influence.

In Pennsylvania.

"The German Seventh-day Baptists of Pennsylvania were also prominent supporters of the colonial government, through their representative at Ephrata, Pa. After the battle of Brandywine, Sept. 11, 1777, the public building of the Seventh-day Baptists and their private homes were thrown open as hospitals, in which not less than five hundred sick and wounded soldiers became the guests of the Seventh-day Baptists during the dreary winter of 1777-1778. 'Typhus' became epidemic and many soldiers died, together with a number of Seventh-day Baptist women who acted as nurses. These soldiers were buried in the Seventh-day Baptist cemetery, where a fitting monument stands above their dust.

"When the Declaration of Independence was to be sent out, through which the infant Republic asked place among the nations of the world, Peter Miller, a Seventh-day Baptist scholar of Ephrata, translated that Declaration into various foreign languages, and copies of these were prepared in the printing office of the Seventh-day Baptists at Ephrata."

Planning Outdoor Sports.

The Young Men's Club of Hope chapel at its meeting last night discussed plans for an outdoor basketball and tennis court and a meeting will be held next Tuesday night to perfect details. David Bowden is chairman of the Men's Club committee and Allen Snyder is chairman of the Young Men's Club committee.

GRIGGS OFF THE SLATE

FORT'S ABSENCE SIGNIFICANT.

The slate for the four delegates-at-large from New Jersey to the Republican national convention was perfected by the State powers-that-be yesterday.

The program bears the names of former Governor Franklin Murphy, of Newark, chairman of the Republican State Committee; David Baird, of Camden, State assessor and very much boss of South Jersey, and United States Senators Frank O. Briggs, of Trenton, and John Kean, of Elizabeth.

The slate does not bear the name of Governor John Franklin Fort, a departure from custom that means only one thing, that Governor Fort is to be put forward for the Vice-Presidency.

It was decided in conferences yesterday and today that the Governor should not go as a delegate to Chicago in June because of the Vice-Presidential boom that has been started for him.

The fact that the program doesn't include former Governor M. John W. Griggs for delegate-at-large spells war and there's a chance that plans may go awry. Mr. Griggs has announced himself a candidate to go to the convention as one of the "big four," and has been looked upon as the logical man to make the Fort nominating speech.

Governor Fort's decision not to be a delegate clarified a complicated situation in part. His withdrawal reduced the number of men who insisted that they had a claim to the four places to five.

"Davy" Baird refused absolutely to get out of the race when approached by the other party bosses. He declared that he expected to win and was willing to take a chance with any other candidate on the floor of the State convention.

Some time ago Colonel William Barber, of Passaic county, urged former Governor Griggs to become a candidate for a delegate's place from the Sixth Congressional District. Griggs said he didn't want the place, as he proposed to be a candidate for delegate-at-large and Colonel Barber, accordingly announced him as Passaic county's candidate for a district delegateship.

In the Sixth District Passaic county ranks first in population, and Bergen county second. Senator Edmund W. Wakelee is the choice of the leaders for delegate from Bergen to go with Colonel Barber, so it would seem that Mr. Griggs is being counted out entirely and booked to stay at home and cool his heels.

Governor Edward C. Stokes announced himself a candidate for Congressional district delegate to the national convention early in the fight, stating that he believed there were others whose claims to places in the big quartet were stronger than his by right of seniority in the State and party service.

It is understood that his withdrawal from the scramble for the main chance was intended to strengthen "Davy" Baird's chances.

Mr. Griggs has declared himself in favor of the nomination of Secretary of War William H. Taft for the Presidency.

It will be interesting to watch the outcome of the fight for preference to the State convention, which is to choose the four delegates-at-large.

Former Governor Murphy is said to have the Fairbanks boom in his pocket. Baird has announced himself as favoring Senator Philander C. Knox for President. Briggs is absolutely non-committal. Kean is said to favor Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou. That puts Taft out of the running so far as New Jersey's lineup at the moment goes.

As a matter of fact, the plan is to have an absolutely uninstructed delegation that will be prepared to annex itself to the most promising boom when it reaches Chicago. Possibly the tactics of 1896 will be repeated, when New Jersey was prepared to be for McKinley provided Ohio was for Hobart for Vice-President.

Of course, you know, the people decide who are to be the delegates. The State and Congressional district conventions that are to be held some time before the middle of May will be made up of men elected to them at primaries to be held in April. It may be that the conventions will mix up the political pot and change the program so carefully arranged.

THE FORUM.

Is There a Milk Trust?

Editor, The Daily Press:

You will kindly note that on Dec. 1, 1907, the price of milk in Brooklyn, N. Y., was advanced to nine cents a quart from the former price of eight cents. This price of nine cents was found to ve very unpopular with the community who were in consequence called upon to materially intrench their buying of milk prior to and during the Teddy bear period. The loss of business has brought the milk trust down to earth and an eight cent quart as in the past.

I have been correctly informed that Plainfield buyers (in the heart of a milk producing section) were forced to pay from October 1, 1907, nine cents a quart, whereas seven cents would be more than enough to compensate the Plainfield Milk Trust. You have a duty to perform in this matter provided your hands may not be bound hard and fast, and that is to take up this matter of milk prices in Plainfield through the columns of your valued paper.

Yours truly,
A. G. GILBERT.

Invite Pastor to Remain.

Rev. E. E. Roberson, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, has received an invitation from the congregation to continue his pastoral relations for another year, and subject to the approval of the Bishop of the Newark Conference, he has signified his acceptance. Mr. Roberson is now completing his second year as pastor and his work has met with marked success. The attendance at the services has increased rapidly, especially Sunday nights, and a number have joined the church as a result of the earnest efforts on the part of the pastor.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Faroat, of 94 Grove street, sailed today on the steamer "Creole" for New Orleans.

PERSONALITY OF TEACHER

This Has Much to do With the Success of Class Work, Says N.Y.U. Professor.

THOS. M. BALLIET AT N. P. H. S.

In Lecture Before Public School Teachers, He Urges Teachers to Rouse Interest of the Pupils.

Taking for his topic "Activity," Thomas M. Balliet, of New York University, dwelt especially upon the ideal methods of maintaining interest among the pupils in the public schools in his lecture before school teachers of city and borough at the North Plainfield High School yesterday afternoon. He said that the personality of the teacher had a good deal to do with the maintaining of interest in the classroom, and in keeping the children at their work. The lecture was largely attended by the school teachers. Mr. Balliet said in part:

"There are only three possible forms of activity. The first gives pleasure without having any end except the mere matter of winning This is called play. The second form of self-activity is that which is directed toward a particular end to be gained. It may be pleasurable or painful, but the end is conceived to be good and desirable. This is called work. The third form consists of doing something disagreeable without having any end that is to be attained. This is drudgery.

"Interest attaches to all the forms of self-activity except drudgery. Hence the latter should be banished from the school room, because there can be no education without interest. Attention is the sign of interest. The opposite of interest is indifference. The colored minister who prayed, 'O, Lord, we pray Thee to make the indifferent different,' expressed the need exactly.

"Play is one of the great racial instincts, and for young children who cannot be interested because of the end to be gained, play is the great educator. Later pupils must be led to good ends through paths that are pleasurable. Afterwards there comes a time when pupils will be willing to go through experiences that are unpleasant for the sake of an end that is conceived to be good.

"Education of today is sometimes condemned by people who confuse interest with play. But many persons are profoundly interested in certain accomplishments which involve the hardest kind of work, and but for that interest they might not do the work. There is no play about the second form of self-activity. The greatest blessing a person may have is that form of self-activity where the end sought is good and the activity pleasurable. This sometimes produces that absorption of interest that leads to overwork.

"Personality is a word hard to define, but its meaning is well understood. The power of the personality of the teached is such that she is able thereby to interest pupils in subjects that would otherwise be disagreeable. In other words she can change the pursuit of an end through unpleasant paths to a pursuit attended with joy. This leads to permancy of interest.

"A goose once hatched out a brood, among which it happened that there was an eaglet. When they went to swim the eaglet could not follow its companions, and they discovered that its feet were different from this. It could not eat as the other geese did, because its bill was found to be strangely bent. It never learned to fly—how could it, with a goose for a mother and nothing but geese for companions? But one day an eagle swooped down and touched the eaglet with its wings, and at once it rose up never to return, but to take its place with the eagles among whom it naturally belonged. So a strong personality touches the innate powers of a child, and wakens them to a higher life."

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

It was a big surprise to the "Doubtful Dunellen" councilmen when Recorder David S. Campbell tendered his resignation at Monday night's Council meeting. But the schoolmaster-recorder apparently knows on which side his bread is buttered, and stated that he would not occupy an office which any political faction might feel was illegally secured. Mayor Swackhamer, it is reported, will not name another man for the office, but will name Campbell for re-endorsement at the next full meeting of the Council. And "Dave" says he'll accept the office, if legally appointed.

"A Trip to Egypt and the Holy Land" was the topic of an illustrated lecture given at Friendship Hall last night by Rev. Dr. T. L. Gardiner, of Plainfield. The lecturer showed views taken on his recent trip abroad, and explained the historical and Biblical significance of many of the places.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Field, of New Market, gave an informal masquerade dance at their home last night. There were about thirty guests present, many of whom wore novel costumes. Dancing was continued until midnight, when refreshments were served.

A. N. Pierson and M. B. Dutcher, of Westfield, will give an account of the man's missionary convention recently held at Atlantic City in connection with the prayer meeting at the Presbyterian church tonight.

Misc Nellie Ballentine is confined to her home with a severe cold.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

A full house greeted the members of the "Oak Farm" cast at the entertainment held last night in Excelsior Hall for the benefit of the baseball team. The friends of the team turned out in force to help swell the treasury, so as to put the nine in shape for the opening of the season, which is not far off now. dance followed the entertainment.

Edward L. and Ernest T. Hand have formed a partnership and will engage in the cement block and brick business, the plant being located at Hand's brickyard on Mountain avenue.

The members of Bucket and Engine Company were out for a drill last night. The truck of the chemical engine was tested and found to be working in good shape.

Harry Gere, who has been visiting his mother, Mrs. Thomas Gere, of Westfield avenue, has returned to his home in Hackensack.

Miss Anna Littell, who has been visiting Mrs. Harriett M. Squier, has returned to her home at Willow Grove.

Alvah Ryno, of East Front street, has been detained at home for several days on account of illness.

—Pleading guilty in the city court yesterday morning to a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct, George Traynor was given his preference of $5 or ten days and took the days. He was arrested in Fairchild's alley by Patrolman Messler.

DOG SAVES SLEEPING MASTER FROM FLAMES

At an early morning fire at 205 Grand street, Hoboken, yesterday, forty men, women and children were driven, thinly clad, into the snow covered street.

The fire was discovered by Policeman Gardella and a pedestrian, who entered the hallway of the eight family double flat and alarmed the inmates.

When Gardella, attracted by the barking of a dog, reached the third floor and burst open a door he saw a man in bed, with a dog tugging at the sleeve of his nightshirt and endeavoring to awaken him. The dog barked joyously when it saw the policeman and wagged its tail when the man was aroused.

By the time the people were all out of the building the engines arrived and turned on the water. At that time some one said there were two children on the top floor in the building. John Caffery, twenty-three years old, of No. 209 Willow avenue, heard the cry and ran up the fire escape until he reached the window opening on the apartments. With his foot he smashed the glass and made his way into the room. There were no children there, but Caffery was nearly overcome by the smoke. After he was aided to the street it was discovered that his right foot had been severely cut with the broken window glass. He was sent to St. Mary's Hospital.

The fire was confined to the cellar, where it originated, and was extinguished in half an hour. Twenty minutes aftr the engine had departed for their houses Michael Plunkett and Dominick Layden found Mary and Helen Fitzmaurice, aged, respectively, nine and seven years, about two blocks from the scene of the fire. They were only partially clothed, and too frightened as a result of the fire to say where they lived or who they were. They were taken to the First precinct station, from where their father took them back to their apartments.

GOVERNOR FORT SENDS MESSAGES TO LEGISLATURE.

Governor Fort sent two messages to the Legislature last night. One accompanies the report of the commissioners appointed to revise the corporation act. The Governor commends this report, which divides corporations into three classes. The first, railway and other utility corporations; second, banks and kindred institutions; third, manufacturing, mining, trading, publishing, navigation and other companies. The chief features of the measure relate to the last named class.

The second message relates to the report of the primary commission. A bill covering its recommendations was introduced. The Governor urged the passage of this bill before March 18, that it might be operative this year.

LENTEN LECTURES TOPICS ON TENNYSON'S "IN MEMORIAM."

The series of lectures on Tennyson's "In Memoriam," to be given at Grace church by Rev. Dr. Herbert Symonds, rector of Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal, Canada, will begin Sunday afternoon, March 8, and the other lectures will be given each evening during that week. The topics follow:

Sunday afternoon, "Tennyson as spokesman of the religious thought of the age; his friendship for Arthur Henry Hallam." Monday evening, "'In Memoriam' in relation to the age." Tuesday evening, "The introductory stages of the poem." Wednesday evening, "The first cycle—the cycle of the past." Thursday evening, "The second cycle—the cycle of the present." Friday evening, "The third cycle—the cycle of the future."

GHT TRAINED HEALTH OFFICER.

Following the suggestion of the State Board of Health that cities of the State obtain the services of graduates from colleges and men especially trained in scientific sanitary work, the Orange Board of Health has engaged S. M. Guinn, a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who yesterday began his duties as health officer of the city and secretary of the Board, succeeding Eugene H. Sullivan, who will study law.

Mr. Guinn was with the Iowa State Board of Health two years, and was a lecturer before the State University of Iowa. He had a four years' course in the department of sanitary science. He will be acting inspector until he takes the State examination required by law.

BODY IN RIVER; MAN HELD.

Following the finding of the body of John Bodinsky, of Old Bridge, in South River, at South River Bridge, Middlesex county, Policeman Reed, of Old Bridge, has arrested Victor Paul.

Coroner Beekman and County Physician Suydam announced yesterday that they believed that Bodinsky was slain and his body thrown into the river. The autopsy showed that Bodinsky had been struck behind the ear with some kind of a blunt instrument, which caused a blood clot on the brain.

ERIE SOON TO ELECTRIFY GREENWOOD LAKE BRANCH

It is asserted that the Erie Railroad will shortly commence the work of installing electrically propelled cars on the Greenwood Lake division. Mr. Underwood, president of the road, announced last week that the Erie would electrify the Greenwood Lake branch as soon as financial conditions warranted the expense. This statement has been supplemented by a declaration from another high official of the company that electrification of the branch would be accomplished within twelve, or at the latest, eighteen months.

The fact that the Lackawanna Railroad Company, which is the Erie's strongest competitor for the commuting patronage, has announced that it will electrify the Morris and Essex division and other branches as soon as possible has, it is said, stirred the Erie officials to a realization of the prestige that might be gained by primacy in the matter of operating its suburban lines by electricity.

Competition for the passenger traffic in Northern New Jersey has been made stronger than ever by the opening of the McAdoo tunnels, and all the lines that lead to the metropolis are exerting unusual efforts to attract commuters. The Erie has been making great strides in improving its service in Northern New Jersey. The Erie's commuter traffic is said to be heavier than any of the other roads, and its latest announcement leads to the belief that it intends to make a bold bid to hold its supremacy.

BOTH BRIGGS AND KEAN FAVOR FORT.

That New Jersey is in earnest in its support of Governor Fort for Vice-President is declared by United States Senator Frank O. Briggs, of this State. "The New Jersey delegation will go to Chicago for the purpose of nominating Governor Fort, if it can ben done," said Senator Briggs. "I do not know that Governor Fort is seeking the nomination, but his friends are in earnest."

Senator Briggs emphasized the importance of selecting for Vice-President a man in every way qualified to be President.

It is learned that Senator Kean, as well as Senator Briggs, is thoroughly in favor of Governor Fort's nomination for Vice-President, and so assured the Governor when he was in Washington lately.

Raise Convicts' Allowance.

Much enthusism developed in the State Senate Monday night, during the re-consideration of a bill which was lost last week. The measure permits an allowance of from $5 to $25 to State prison convicts, according to behavior on discharge. Senator Frelinghuysen opposed it on the ground that such an amount was a needless expenditure of the State's money. The bill was finally passed by a vote of 11 to 6, Senator Ackerman being among those who voted in the affirmative.

OUT OF THE GLOOM.

A bad back makes you gloomy.

Can't be happy with continual backache.

The aches and pains of a bad back

Are mostly due to sick kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys.

They have made many a happy home in Plainfield.

Read what a grateful citizen says:

Mrs. W. W. Mills, of 86 Summit avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I am willing to reiterate my former statement given in behalf of Doan's Kidney Pills, feeling that some other person may be benefited thereby. I had suffered from a sever pain in the small of my back and across the hips, and if I did any lifting or stooping my back became lame and sore. I used plasters but they only helped me for the time being. I was feeling unusually bad when my attention was called to Doan's Kidney Pills and they were so highly recommended for troubles like mine that I procured a box at L. W. Randolph's drug store. In a few days I felt their good effect, and when I had finished taking them I was relieved in every way. I am glad to recommend this reliable remedy."

For sale by all dealers. Prince 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

TWO BODIES IN BURNED HOUSE; MURDER HINTED

An untenanted farm house, known as the Plant Farm, near Roeblings, was burned at a late hour Sunday night, and when casual investigation was made yesterday there were discovered in the ruins the charred bodies of two persons.

By the side of one was a key ring bearing the name of William Sleck. Sleck was a railroad engineer employed on the shifting engine used at the Roebling plant. Around the neck of the other body was a metal necklace marked Lydia Carter. Both Sleck and the Carter girl are missing from their homes, at Roeblings, and the authorities have no doubt that the bodies are theirs.

There is much mystery connected with the case. It has been suggested that the couple were attacked while out walking together last night in the vicinity of the Plant Farm and were slain or rendered unconscious by their assailants and then carried to the house, which was burned in an attempt to cover up the crime.

The fire was discovered shortly after midnight and the Roebling volunteer fire department was called out. There was a lack of water in the vicinity and nothing could be done to check the conflagration. The fire was allowed to burn itself out and nothing was known of the loss of life until yesterday morning, when the bodies were found in the ruins. Coroner Bisbing, of Florence, is conducting an investigation.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

You will probably want your house painted and papered this spring and Charles Conover & Co., of Elmwood place, want you to know they can do the work to suit you in every particular. Take a look at the new wallpapers.

Time to think about garden and farming implements and the place to get them is at the Gayle Hardware Company store. The implements are the best made and the prices low; also a full supply of housefurnishing goods and builders' materials.

What is the use of eating tough and stringy meat, when Roth & Co., of East Front street, sell the tender, juicy kind, and you pay no more for this quality. The firm also sells the best sausage, its own manufacture, and fresh fish is offered every Friday.

CHECK SPREAD OF TYPHOID.

W. H. Shipps, health officer of Bordentown, yesterday gave out a statement which said:

"In Bordentown, since the introduction of the new water supply obtained for Asays Springs, about three miles from town, typhoid is practically extinct, except for a few isolated cases which are directly traceable to contaminated well water. The Common Council is planning for the construction of a modern sewer system."

"Another Evil Genius.

William B. Gourley, whose brilliant management of the Democratic Assembly delegation from Passaic county last year resulted in the defeat of all the candidates last fall, and a plurality of 600 in the county against Katzenbach, rushes to the support of his old political chief, Editor James Smith, Jr.

Gourley is against Bryan, and predicts that the state delegation will vote against the Nebraskan in Denver.

He also flings at Robert Davis some picturesque persiflage, describing him as an anachronism and a despot, and asserting that the Hudson Democrat ought to consider himself lucky if he succeeds in getting into the convention himself.

Then he concludes by finding fault with Hudson for giving only a little over 6,000 majority for the Democratic county for Governor last fall.

All of which, it is needless to say, strengthens the growing belief that Bryan ought to be nominated. One of the surest ways of judging the fitness of a candidate for public office is by passing his enemies in review.

It cannot be denied that the Nebraskan is rolling up in opposition to himself a fine assortment of "evil geniuses," whom the people would like to permanently keep out of public life.—Hudson Observer.

Three Bills of Assemblyman Smalley.

Three bills were introduced in the Lower House of the Legislature, Monday night, by Assemblyman W. W. Smalley. One, No. 225, amends the lien law relative to the bill of particulars when two or more buildings are constructed together. The second one, No. 226, amends the lien law permitting the owner to give a bond to the State of New Jersey for the use of all persons in whose favor liens might accrue, and when such bond is approved and filed no lien shall attach to the building. The third one, No. 227, makes it illegal to take eels and suckers with a speaw from February 20 to June 30.

In Honor of 15th N. J. Vols.

In the State Senate Monday night, Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen introduced bill No. 174, which appropriates $6,500 for the erection of a battle monument to commemorate the services of the Fifteenth New Jersey Volunteers at Salem Church and Spotsylvania, Va.

By KATE AND VIRGIL D. BOYLES

(Copyright by A. C. McClurg & Co., 1907.)

Gordon saw the action and understood it. He never forgot it. He said nothing, but gave his friend an illuminating smile that Langford understood. Neither ever spoke of it, neither ever forgot it. How tightly can quick impulses bind—forever.

Outside, they encountered the judge in search of his delinquent charges.

"I'm sorry, Dick," he said. "Dead loss my boy. This beastly wind is your undoing."

"I'm not worrying, Judge," responded Gordon, grimly. "I intend for some one else to do that."

"Hellity damn, Dick, hellity damn!" exploded Jim Munson in his ear. The words came whistling through his lips, caught and whirled backward by the play of the storm. The cold was getting bitter, and a fine, cutting snow was at last driving before the wind.

Gordon, with a set face, plunged back into the room—already fire-licked. Langford and Munson followed. There sat the little tea-service staring at them with dumb pathos. The three succeeded in rolling the safe with all its precious documents arranged within, out into the street. Nothing else mattered much—to Gordon. But other things were saved, and Jim gallantly tossed out everything he could lay his hands on before Gordon ordered everybody out for good and all. It was no longer safe to be within. Gordon was the last one out. He carried a battered little tea-kettle in his hand. He looked at it in a whimsical surprise as if he had not known until then that he had it in his hand. Obeying a sudden impulse, he held it out to Louise.

"Please take care of—my poor little dream," he whispered with a strange, intent look.

Before she could comprehend the significance or give answer, the judge had faced about. He bore the girls back to the hotel, scolding helplessly all the way as they scudded with the wind. But Louise held the little tin kettle firmly.

Men knew of Richard Gordon that night that he was a marked man. The secret workings of a secret clan had him on their proscription list. Some one had at last found this unwearied and doggedly persistent young fellow in the way. In the way, he was a menace, a danger. He must be removed from out the way. He could not be bought from it—he should be warned from it. So now his home—his work room and his rest room, the first by many hours daily the more in use, with all its furnishings of bachelor plainness and utility, that yet had held a curious charm for some men, friends and cronies like Langford—was burning that he might be warned. Could any one say, "Jesse Black has done this thing?" Would he not bring down proof of guilt by a retaliation struck too soon? It would seem as if he were anticipating an unfavorable verdict. So men reasoned. And even then they did not arise to stamp out the evil that had endured and hugged itself and spit out corruption in the cattle country. That was reserved for—another.

They talked of a match thrown down at the court-house by a tramp, likely—when it was past midnight, when the fire broke out with the wind a piercing gale, and when no vagrant but had long since left such cold comfort and had slept these many weeks in sunnier climes. Some argued that the windows of the court-room might have been left open and the stove blown down by the wind tearing through, or the stove door might have blown open and remains of the fire been blown out, or the pipe might have fallen down. But it was a little odd that the same people said Dick Gordon's office likely caught fire from flying sparks. Dick's office was two blocks to westward of the court-house and it would have been a brave spark and a lively one that could have made headway against that northwester.

CHAPTER XIX.

The Escape.

The little county seat awoke in the morning to a strange sight. The storm had not abated. The wind was still blowing at blizzard rate off the northwest hills, and fine, icy snow was swirling so thickly through the cold air that vision was obstructed. Building were distinguishable only as shadows showing faintly through a heavy white veil. The thermometer had gone many degrees below the zero mark. It was steadily growing colder. The older inhabitants said it would surely break the record the coming night.

An immense fire had been built in the sitting-room. Thither Mary and Louise repaired. Here they were joined by Dale, Langford and Gordon.

"You should be out at the ranch looking after your poor cattle, Mr. Langford," said Mary, smilingly. She could be light-hearted now—since a little secret had been whispered to her last night at a tea party where no tea had been drunk. Langford had gravitated toward her as naturally as steel to a magnet. He shrugged his big shoulders and laughed a little.

"The Scribe will do everything that can be done. Honest, now, did you think this trial could be pulled off without me?"

"But there can be no trial to-day."

"Why not?"

"Did I dream the court-house burned last night?"

"If you did, we are all dreamers alike."

"Then how can you hold court?"

"We have gone back to the time when church and state were one and inseparable, and court convenes at 10 o'clock sharp in the meeting-house," he said.

Louise was looking white and miserable.

"You are not contemplating running away, are you?" asked Gordon. "This is unusual weather—really."

"I should like to be strong and brave and enduring and capable—like Mary. You don't believe it, do you? It's true, though. But I can't. I'm weak and homesick and cold. I ought not to have come. I am not the kind. You said it, you know. I am going home just as soon as this court is over. I mean it."

There was no mistaking that. Gordon bowed his head. His face was white. It had come sooner than he had thought.

All the records of the work yesterday had been burned. There was nothing to do but begin at the beginning again. It was discouraging, uninteresting. But it had to be done. Dale refused positively to adjourn. The jurymen were all here. So the little frame church was bargained for. If the fire-bugs had thought to postpone events—to gain time—by last night's work, they would find themselves very greatly mistaken. The church was long and narrow like a country schoolhouse, and rather roomy considering the size of the town. It had precise windows—also like a country schoolhouse—four on the west side, through which the fine snow was drifting, four opposite. The storm kept few at home with the exception of the people from across the river, enough staying in the town to fill the room to its utmost limits. Standing room was at a premium. The entry was crowded. Men not able to get in ploughed back through the cutting wind and snow only to return presently to see if the situation had changed any during their brief absence. So all the work of yesterday was gone over again.

So close was the pack of people that the fire roaring in the big stove in the middle of the room was allowed to sink in smouldering quiet. The heavy air had been unbearable else. The snow that had been brought in on tramping feet lay in little melted pools on the rough flooring. Men forgot to eat peanuts and women forgot to chew their gum—except one or two extremely nervous ones whose jaws moved the faster under the stimulus of hysteria. Jesse Black was telling his story.

"Along toward the 1st of last July, I took a hike out into the Indian country to buy a few head o' cattle. I trade considerable with the half-breeds around Crow creek and Lower Brule. They're always for sellin' and if it comes to a show-down never haggle much about the lucre—it all goes for snake-juice anyway. Well, I landed at John Yellow Wolf's shanty along about noon and found there was others ahead of me. Yellow Wolf always was a popular cuss. There was Charlie Nightbird, Pete Monroe, Jesse Big Cloud and two or three others whose mugs I did not happen to be onto. After our feed, we all strolled out to the corral. Yellow Wolf said he had bought a likely little bunch from some English feller who was skipping the country—starved out and homesick—and hadn't put 'em on the range yet. He said J R was the English feller's brand. I didn't suspicion no underhand dealin's. Yellow Wolf's always treated me white before, so I bargained for this here chap and three or four others and then pulled out for home driving the bunch. They fed at home for a spell and then I decided to put 'em on the range. On the way I fell in with Billy Brown here. He was dead set on havin' the lot to fill in the chinks of the two car loads he was shippin', so I up and lets him have 'em. I showed him this here bill-o'-sale from Yellow Wolf and made him out one from me, and that was all there was to it. He rode to Velpen and I turned on my trail."

It was a straight story, and apparently damaging for the prosecution. It corroborated the attestations of other witnesses—many others. It had a plausible ring to it. Two bills of sale radiated atmospheric legality. If there had been dirty work it must have originted with that renegade half-breed, Yellow Wolf. And Yellow Wolf was dead. He had died while serving a term in the penitentiary for cattle rustling. Uncle Sam himself had set the seal upon him—and now he was dead. This insinuated charge he could not answer. The finality of it seemed to set its stamp upon the people gathered there—upon the 12 good men and true, as well as upon others. Yellow Wolf was dead. George Williston was dead. Their secrets had died with them. An inscrutable fate had lowered the veil. Who could pierce it? One might believe, but who could know? And the law required knowledge.

"We will call Charlie Nightbird," said Small, complacently.

There was a little waiting silence—a breathless, palpitating silence.

"Is Charlie Nightbird present?" asked Small, casting rather anxious eyes over the packed, intent faces. Charlie Nightbird was not present. At least he made no sign of coming for-

for the state was immobile during the brief time they waited for Charlie Nightbird—whose dark, frozen face at that moment turned toward the cold, sparkling sky, and who would never come, not if they waited for him till the last dread trump of the last dread day.

There was some mistake. Counsel had been misinformed. Nightbird was an important witness. He had been reported present. Never mind. He was probably unavoidably detained by the storm. They would call Jesse Big Cloud and others to corroborate the defendant's statements—which they did, and the story was sustained in all its parts, major and minor. Then the defense rested.

Richard Gordon arose from his chair. His face was white. His lean jaws were set. His eyes were steel. He was anything but a lover now, this man Gordon. Yet the slim little court reporter with dark circles of homesickness under her eyes had never loved him half so well as at this moment. His voice was clear and deliberate.

"Your honor, I ask permission of the court to call a witness in direct testimony. I assure your honor that the state had used all efforts in its power to obtain the presence of this witness before resting its case, but had failed and believed at the time that he could not be produced. The witness is now here and I consider his testimony of the utmost importance in this case."

Counsel for the defendant objected strenuously, but the court granted the petition. He wanted to hear everything that might throw some light on the dark places in the evidence.

"I call Mr. George Williston," said Gordon.

Had the strain crazed him? Louise covered her eyes with her hands. Men sat is if dazed. And thus, the cynosure of all eyes—stupefied eyes—Williston of the ravaged Lazy S, thin and worn but calm, natural and scholarly-looking as of old—walked from the little ante-room at the side into the light and knowledge of men once more and raised his hand for the oath. [illegible] was taken and he had sat quietly down in the witness chair did the tension snap. Even then men found it difficult to focus their attention on the enormous difference this new witness must make in the case that a few moments before seemed settled.

Mary sat with shining eyes in the front row of wooden chairs. It was no wonder she had laughed and been so gay all the dreary yesterday and all the worse to-day. Louise shot her a look of pure gladness.

Small's face was ludicrous in its drop-jawed astonishment. The little lawyer's face was a study. A look of defiance had crept into the defendant's countenance.

The preliminary questions were asked and answered.

"Mr. Williston, you may state where you were and what you saw on the 14th day of July last."

Williston, the unfortunate gentleman and scholar, the vanquished cowman, for a brief while the most important man in the county, perhaps, was about to uncover to men's understanding the dark secret hitherto obscured by a cloud of supposition and hearsay. He told the story of his visit to the island, and he told it well.

Williston of the Ravaged Lazy S.

It was enough. Gordon asked no further questions regarding that event.

"And now, Mr. Williston, you may tell what happened to you on the night of the 30th of last August?"

Williston began to tell the story of the night attack upon the Lazy S, when the galvanic Small jumped to his feet. The little lawyer touched him with a light hand.

"Your honor," he said, smoothly, "I object to that as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, and not binding on the defendant."

"Your honor," interrupted Gordon, with great calmness, "we intend to show you before we get through that this testimony is competent, and that it is binding upon the defendant."

"Was the defendant there?"

"The defendant was there."

The objection was overruled.

So Williston told briefly but to the point the story of the night attack upon his his home, of the defence by himself and daughter, and of the burning of his house and sheds. Then he proceeded:

"Suddenly, some one caught me from behind, my arms were pinioned to my sides, something was clapped over my mouth. I was flung over a horse and strapped to the saddle all in less time that it takes to tell it, and was borne away in company with the man who had overpowered me."

He paused a moment in his recital. Faces strained with expectancy devoured him—his every look and word and action. Mary was very pale, carried thus back to the dread realities of that night in August, and shuddered, remembering that ghastly galloping. Langford could scarce restrain himself. He wanted to rip out a blood-curdling Sioux war-whoop on the spot.

"Who was this man, Mr. Williston?" asked Gordon.

"Jesse Black."

"I object! This is all a fabrication, put in here to prejudice the minds of the jury against this defendant. It is a pack of lies, and I move that it be stricken from the record."

The little lawyer bowed his head to the storm and shrugged up his shoulders. Perhaps he wished that he, or his associates—one of the unholy alliance at least—was where the wicked cease from troubling, on the far-away islands of the deep seas, possibly, or home on the farm. But his expression told nothing.

"Gentlemen! gentlemen!" expostulated Judge Dale. "Gentlemen! I insist. This is all out of order." Only one gentleman was out of order, but that was the judge's way. Gordon had remained provokingly cool under the tirade.

Again the soft touch. Small fell into his chair. He poured himself a glass of water from the pitcher standing on the attorneys' table and drank a little of it nervously.

"I move," said the little lawyer, "that all this touching upon the personal matter of this witness and having to do with his private quarrels be stricken out of the evidence as not bearing on the case in question."

All in vain. The judge ruled that it did bear on the case, and Williston picked up the thread of his story.

"We rode and rode hard—it must have been hours; daylight was coming before we stopped. Our horses were spent. I had no idea where we were. From the formation of the land, I judged we were not far from the river. We were surrounded by bluffs. I can hardly make you see how clearly this little retreat had been planned. It was in a valley—one of a hundred similar in all essential respects. The gulch at the bottom of the valley was heavily wooded with scrub-oak, cottonwood, woodbine and plum trees, and this tangle of foliage extended for some distance up the sides of the hills. In the midst of this underbrush—a most excellent screen—was a tiny cabin. In this tiny cabin I have lived, a closely watched prisoner, from that day until I escaped."

The defendant stirred a little uneasily. Was he thinking of Nightbird with the dark, frozen face—who had not answered to his call?

"Black left me soon after. He did not unbind me, rather bound me the tighter. There was no one then to watch me. He deigned to inform me that he had found it rather inconvenient to kill me after the relief party rode up, as then there was no absolute surety of his making a clean getaway, and being caught in the act would be bound to be unpleasant, very unpleasant just then, so he had altered his plans a little—for the present. He gave me no hint either that time, nor either of the two times I saw him subsequently, as to what was to be his ultimate disposal of me. I could only suppose that after this trial was well over in his favor, and fear of indictment for arson and murder had blown over—if blow over it did—he would then quietly put an end to me. Dead men tell no tales. The shanty in the gulch did not seem to be much of a rendezvous for secret meetings. I led a lonely existence. My jailers were mostly half-breeds—usually Charlie Nightbird. Two or three times Jake Sanderson was my guard."

Then from the doorway came a loud, clear, resonant voice, a joyful voice, a voice whose tones fairly oozed rapture.

"Hellity damn! The Three Bars 's gettin' busy, Mouse-hair!"

Judge Dale started. He glared angrily in that direction.

"Remove that man!" he ordered, curtly. He liked Jim, but he could not brook this crying contempt of court. Jim was removed. He went quietly, but shaking his head reproachfully.

"I never would 'a' thought it o' the jedge," he murmured, disconsolately. "I never would 'a' thought it."

There was a movement in the back of the room. A man was making his way out, slipping along, cat-like, trying to evade attention. Quietly Gordon motioned to the sheriff and slipped a paper into his hand.

"Look sharp," he whispered, his steady eyes on the shifty ones of the sheriff. "If you let him get away, just remember the handwriting on the wall. It's our turn now."

Presently there was a slight scuffle by the door and two men quietly left the improvised court-room.

"Day before yesterday, in the afternoon," continued Williston, "I managed to knock Nightbird down at the threshold as he was about to enter. I had secretly worked a cross-beam from the low, unfinished ceiling. There was nothing else in the room I might use for a weapon. They were very careful. I think I killed him, your honor and gentlemen of the jury. I am not sorry. There was no other way. But I would rather it had been the maker, not the tool. By the time I had made my way back to the Lazy S I was too exhausted to go further; so I crawled over to my neighbors, the Whites, and Mother White made me a shake-down. I lay there, nearly dead, until this morning."

BALL LEAGUE'S SCHEDULE

Inter-City Amateur Association Arranges List of Games for Season.

FOUR CLUBS IN COMBINATION.

Clinton Avenue, Jr. O. U. A. M., Scotch Plains and Local Y. M. C. A. to Play the Series.

The officials of the Inter-City Amateur Baseball League have completed the schedule of games for the coming season and it was announced today. The leagues will be composed of four teams, Y. M. C. A., Clinton Avenue and a club put in the field by the local Councils of the Jr. O. U. A. M., to be known as the Junors, the Scotch Plains. The Juniors will use the diamond at Scotch Plains, when the home team is away. This will give the Plains a game every Saturday, while the two teams here will assure the fans a contest every Saturday.

In making out the schedule several dates were left open for postponed games and contests with out-of-town teams. The Clinton Avenues and Y. M. C. A. aggregations will use Crescent Oval as last season and they are sure to furnish a good article of ball during the summer. The Clinton Avenue Club will be the same as last season, while the Y. M. C. A. promise to get together a strong combination. The schedule follows:

Saturday, May 16—Clinton Avenue vs. Y. M. C. A. at Crescent Oval; Juniors vs. Scotch Plains, at Scotch Plains.

Saturday, May 23—Y. M. C. A. vs. Scotch Plains, at Scotch Plains; Juniors vs. Clinton Avenues, at Crescent Oval.

FORMER LOCAL MAN IN LONG DISTANCE AUTO RACE

Paul Gillette, formerly of this city but now in the automobile business at Newark, recently accepted a challenge of the Studebaker Auto Company for a race from Philadelphia to Savannah. He started for the Quaker City yesterday and stopped in Plainfield for a short time on the way over in the Pullman car that he will use in the contest. The race began at 8:30 this morning.

Gillette was accompanied by Robert Morton, who will drive the Pullman car, and an observer, while an observer will also accompany the Studebaker car.

From Philadelphia the autoists will proceed direct to Reading, thence over the following route: To Harrisburg, Gettysburg, Washington, to Richmond, to Portsmouth, Va., returning to Richmond, thence to Danville, Va.; to Charlotte, to Columbia, S. C., and on to Savannah.

Business Men Champions.

Winning their eigth consecutive game in the Y. M. C. A. local basketball league by defeating the Rangers 32-8 at the association gymnasium last night, the Business Men's five won the league title with an average of 1,000 per cent.

F. J. Wharton Chosen President.

Fred J. Wharton, of this city, who is a member of the Bound Brook Cricket Club, was chosen president of the New Jersey Cricket League at the annual meeting held in the Continental Hotel, Newark, Monday night.

P. H. S. Girls Win.

The girls' basketball five of the Plainfield High School won from the North Plainfield High School girls by a score of 26-8 in a practise game played at the Y. W. C. A. gymnasium yesterday afternoon.

BAPTIST WOMEN'S SOCIETY HOLDS ANNUAL ELECTION.

At the annual meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church held yesterday afternoon in the lecture room, the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. J. A. Chambliss; vice-presidents, Mrs. D. J. Yerkes, Mrs. Robert Lowry; secretary, Mrs. B. J. Shreve, treasurer, Miss Ida Yerkes; executive board, Mrs. J. D. Runyon, Mrs. James L. Manning, Mrs. F. H. Biglow, Mrs. S. T. Wilson, Mrs. William White, Mrs. J. A. Powlison, Mrs. Oliver B. Leonard, Mrs. George H. Robbins.

The devotional service preceding the election was led by Mrs. Charles H. Smith and interesting Current Events were given by Mrs. Frank Jones.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will be held on Friday at 3:30 o'clock in the church parlors.

MISSIONARY WORKERS ELECT THEIR OFFICERS

Both the women's foreign and home missionary societies of the First M. E. church held their annual meeting in Vincent chapel yesterday, combined with sewing and at noon a luncheon was provided. The foreign missionary society met in the morning and elected these officers for the coming year:

Following the luncheon hour the home missionary society held a business meeting and elected these officers for the year:

President, Mrs. N. W. Pike; first vice-president, Mrs. George H. Whitney; second vice-president, Mrs. J. M. McNaughton; third vice-president, Mrs. George M. Rittenhouse; recording secretary, Mrs. A. C. McCrea; treasurer, Mrs. J. W. Jackson; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. Hervey Doane; mite box secretary, Mrs. Samuel Bingaman; sewing circle secretary, Mrs. I. L. McVoy; secretary Mothers' Jewels, Mrs. D. S. Dunavan.

The reports for the past year were encouraging, showing that there has been an increase in membership in both societies and the receipts have been a little more than those of a year ago. There was some discussion regarding programs for the year, but these will be considered later.

WHIST CLUB MEMBERS ENJOY SOCIAL AND DANCE.

In return for the leap-year dance recently conducted by the women members of the organization, the men of the Tuesday Night Whist Club gave a dance at Truell Hall last night. It was attended by thirty members and their friends. The affair was arranged by Harry Weatherwax and Ralph Titsworth. Mrs. Violet Truell-Johnson and Miss Mygrant furnished the music and refreshments were served during an intermission.

Those in attendance were the Misses Weed, Beard, Whitten, Martin, Brightman, Sanderson, Messersmith, Fuller, Wills, Cook, Glenn, Miner, Parker and Mrs. Ray Martin; Messrs. C. B. Morse, Ray Martin, Dr. Montford, Fred Lounsbury, Harry Weatherwax, Arthur Spicer, Ralph Titsworth, Charles Titsworth, Arthur B. Titsworth, J. C. Abbott, Ernest Fainbert, Albert Utzinger, Harry Sanderson and George Hegeman.

The Soft Coal Nuisance.

With a view to putting a stop to the use of soft coal in the various factories throughout the city, concerning which many complaints have been made, the Board of Health has instructed the secretary to obtain a written opinion from Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh as to the powers of the board in this respect. The question has been agitated from time to time, but no action has ever been taken.

Milk Prices Hold.

Milk dealers in Elizabeth declare that the reported reduction in the price of milk in New York does not affect this section. No reduction is being contemplated, it was said. In New York ordinary milk was reduced from 9 to 8 cents a quart.

Men's Club Favors Local Option.

The Men's Club of Hope chapel last night passed resolutions favoring local option. State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman will make an address before the club early in May. Its anniversary exercises occur March 27.

PENETENTIAL SEASON ON

Ash Wednesday Services Mark Beginning of Forty Days of Self-denial.

THE RELIGIOUS CALENDER.

Order of Services Announced Today By Rectors of All Local Roman Catholic and Episcopal Churches.

Today is Ash Wednesday, the first day of Lent, and solemn services are being held in various local church edifices, particularly those of the Roman Catholic and Episcopal denominations, at the beginning of the forty days of abstenance, ending Easter Day, April 19.

Particularly solemn are the observances by the Catholics during the sacred forty days of fast, and the services began at St. Mary's with a mass at 6:30 this morning. At the second mass at 8 o'clock, Father Delehanty officiated, and at this service the custom of the blessing and distribution of the ashes was carried out. Nearly nine hundred Catholics were present at this service. A similar distribution was observed at St. Joseph's church at 7:30 o'clock, Father Miller officiating. The ashes are the remains of the palms left over from last Palm Sunday, and are placed on the foreheads of the people by the priest. They were blessed before the mass and distributed after that mass and again at the service this evening. This is done so that the people may carry home the ashes to put on the foreheads of the sick and the young children. At services tonight at St. Mary's and St. Joseph's there will be the rosary recitation sermon, benediction and distribution of ashes again.

Special services and masses will be held with unusual frequency during Lent at St. Mary's. Friday evening, the "Way of the Cross" will be observed, and devotions in honor of the Sacred Heart of Jesus, as is customary in this church on the first Friday of each month. Vespers will be held at the church each Sunday night during Lent, with special sermons. Tuesday and Friday nights, there will also be special services, when out-of-town priests will speak at the church.

Next Sunday will begin the forty hours of service, when the Blessed Sacrament will be exposed at the church for forty consecutive hours. There will be high mass at the service at 10:30, with a sermon and procession of the Blessed Sacrament. In the afternoon and evening, there will be special confessions. Monday morning will be celebrated the Mass for Peace, and Tuesday will be the service of the Reposition, with the final solemn procession of the Blessed Sacrament.

Lenten customs have made the forty-day period practically free from entertainments and dances, and many will refrain from attending places of amusement. Men will obstain from the use of intoxicants, and even the school children will make sacrifices. In the Roman Catholic church, no marriages are performed during Lent. In Protestant churches it is a season of denial, when money saved by not indulging in amusements is set aside for the use of the church.

Services of the Holy Communion marked the beginning of the Lenten season in the local Episcopal churches. The first Episcopal service of the day was held at Holy Cross church, where there was a celebration of the Holy Communion at 6:30. At Grace church and St. Stephen's, there were early morning celebrations at 7 o'clock. There was morning prayer, with sermon, at all three churches, and there will be evening prayer with sermon at each church tonight.

Special services will be the order of Lenten observation in all three Episcopal churches, both Sundays and week-days. Especially in Holy Week, following Palm Sunday, April 12, there will be special services. The three hours' passion service will be observed at Holy Cross church and Grace church from 12 o'clock noon April 17, until 3 o'clock. At St. Stephen's church, there will be a special noon service.

Special preaching services will be in order Wednesday evenings at the three Episcopal churches. The schedule of visiting preachers at Grace church for these services follows: March 4, Rev. A. B. Howard, of St. John's church, New York city; March 11, Rev. Herbert Symonds, D. D., Montreal, Canada; March 18, Rev. E. Atherton Lyon, Christ church, Yonkers, N. Y.; March 25, Rev. Carl S. Smith, Christ chapel, Brooklyn; April 1, Rev. Gustav A. Carstensen, Riversdale, N. Y.; April 8, Rev. St. Clair Hester, Church of the Messiah, Brooklyn. At St. Stephen's church, the visiting preachers will be as follows: March 13, Rev. E. M. Rodman, rector-emeritus Grace church; March 20, Rev. Harris C. Rush, Grace church, Linden, N. J.; March 27, Rev. C. S. Wood, St. Luke's church, Roselle, N. J.; April 3, Rev. S. P. Simpson, St. Clement's church, New York city; April 10, Rev. Dr. Fenton, St. Luke's church, Metuchen, N. J. At Holy Cross church, the rector, Rev. George A. Warner will preach Wednesday and Friday evenings, and there will be special evening prayer services Mondays, Tuesdays and Saturdays, at 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

To administer the rite of confirmation, for which candidates are now in course of preparation at the several churches, the Right Rev. John Scarborough, D. D., bishop of the diocese, will be at the evening service at Holy Cross church Sunday evening, March 29, and at St. Stephen's church on the evening of St. Peter's Day, April 29. The bishop will be at Grace church for confirmation this fall.

S. S. Pupils Entertained.

Sunday-school Class No. 24, of Trinty Reformed church, known as "The Loyal Band," of which Henry Seader is the teacher, was entertained last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey F. Colthar on Duer street. A short business meeting was held, when the members of the class decided to hold a dime social in the Sunday-school room of the church on Tuesday night, March 17. The rest of the evening was spent in a social way during which refreshments were served. There were sixteen members and friends of the class present.

Exhibition of Fine Rugs.

There is now on exhibition at Shirley & Johnston's store on West Front street an exceptional display of animal skin rugs. They were shown at the Jamestown Exposition and attracted a great deal of attention. Experts declare them to be as fine a specimen as they have ever seen. The rugs will be exhibited at the above store for several days and persons interested are invited to call and see them.

BROADSIDES FROM FORT

Governor's Bombardment of of Self-Chosen Delegates-at Large Startles the State.

TRULY ROOSEVELTIAN IN STYLE

His Warning That Time Has Gone By When "Machine" Can Dictate Candidates Wakes Up the Leaders.

Following a declaration by Governor John Franklin Fort that he would not be pushed aside and that he was a candidate to go to the Republican Presidential convention as a delegate-at-large from New Jersey, despite the slate framed up by party leaders, it was arranged yesterday afternoon to hold a conference in the State House in the course of a few days and endeavor to straighten out the tangle.

As told in yesterday's issue, the party bosses this week got together and decided on State Assessor David Baird, of Camden; former Governor Franklin Murphy, of Newark, and United States Senators John Kean, Jr., and Frank O. Briggs for delegates-at-large. That counted out Governor Fort and former Governor John W. Griggs, who had been considered as in the running. In explanation of the absence of the Governor's name from the list it was stated that, as he was in line for the Vice-Presidential nomination, he had been advised not to stand as a candidate for delegate, and, so it was said, had listened to the advice.

Broadside from Fort.

The Governor issued a broadside that is a challenge to the whole State organization as soon as he read of the slate. He declared that to his mind no person or persons could get together in this State and say who should or who should not go as delegates to the Republican national convention.

The gauge of war is down and now the leaders are going to meet with a hope of making peace. The wires were hot yesterday, making arrangements for a conference with the Governor. United States Senators Kean and Briggs, former Governor Murphy, "Davy" Baird, possibly former Governor Griggs and a few other State figures down on the list to attend.

Precedent calls for the selection of the Governor, the State chairman and the United States Senators as the "Big Four." The only change that the slate given out Tuesday night made was the substitution of another name for Mr. Fort's. That roused the Gubernatorial ire. He wasn't at all agreeable and he didn't leave anyone in doubt about his views in the issuance of the first statement that has come from his office on other than affairs of the State since he became Governor. Its Rooseveltian language stirred up the whole State House and has kept things at fever heat all day.

It is generally believed that the conference on the slate for delegates will result in at least temporary peace. Mr. Murphy is State committee chairman and the New Jersey member of the national committee.

Murphy May Withdraw.

It is believed that he will withdraw from the race ultimately if there is no other way of straightening matters out and sending the Governor to Chicago without a fight.

"Davy" Baird says: "I am a candidate for delegate-at-large. I am not for any one else." Mr. Baird looks with favor on Senator Knox, of Pennsylvania, for President.

Mr. Baird is at the helm in South Jersey Republican affairs, and in view of the vote in his bailiwick for Governor last fall, there is none who considers saying him nay on his proposition to go to Chicago.

Senators Briggs and Kean have declared themselves as desirous of being in the big four, and they are likely to be insistent.

So State Chairman Murphy is the man looked to as the one to make peace by stepping aside. He is from North Jersey, and as Senator Kean is likewise from the upper part of the State, it is held by Middle and South Jersey that they will have to make a place for the Governor, Senator Briggs, as a resident of Mercer, is the Middle Jersey man, and Baird is South Jersey's candidate.

As told yesterday Mr. Griggs has been completely counted out by those who consider themselves State bosses, but he hasn't counted himself out, and Governor Fort's defi is looked upon as forecasting a union between the two.

Mr. Griggs said, when asked for a statement:

"I am a candidate for delegate-at-large to Chicago. Say that I favor the nomination of Secretary of War William H. Taft."

If Governor Fort takes up Mr. Griggs' cause he would make him an ally, and so forestall possible opposition to himself later on

SHRINERS' PILGRIMAGE TO THE QUAKER CITY

The Arab Patrol of Salaam Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles Mystic Shrine, was the guest of Lu Lu Temple, of Philadelphia, last night, being invited there to give an exhibition drill and join in some festivities. Among the Plainfield members of Salaam Temple in the party were Potentate H. W. Marshall, E. A. Lowe, Hiram A. Woodruff, B. Frank Coriell, Henry Leifke, Christian Gloeckler, L. B. Woolston, James F. Buckle, Charles W. Krausse, C. B. Levy and A. W. Pangborn.

The members made the trip to and from Philadelphia in a special train over the Pennsylvania Railroad, reaching the Quaker City about 6:30. They were met by a delegation from Lu Lu Temple and escorted to its headquarters on Suring Garden street, where dinner was served. Afterward the Arab Patrol gave an exhibition drill under the direction of Chief H. L. Jenkins. Zembo Temple, of Harrisburg, also the guest of Lu Lu Temple, gave an exhibition drill, and both companies received much praise for the way in which they went through the evolutions.

Following the drills Lu Lu Temple initiated thirty-seven candidates and then a fine vaudeville show was given by talent from Keith's theatre. The occasion was marked by the attendance of Past Imperial Potentate Alvah P. Clayton, of Missouri.

MEN'S MEETING PLANS OF Y.M.C.A. ANNOUNCED

Secretary Herbert E. Parker, of the Y. M. C. A., has announced the schedule of speakers at the Sunday afternoon men's meetings for the next few weeks and the list includes Bishop Randolph Dubs, with other preachers and State Secretary L. E. Hawkins, of the association. There will be no men's meeting at the association Sunday afternoon, for Secretary Parker has arranged for the men to attend the sermon-lecture on Tennyson's "In Memoriam," to be given by Rev. Herbert Symonds, D. D., of Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal.

Bishop Randolph Dubs, D. D., LL. D., of Harrisburg, Pa., will address the men's meeting at the association Sunday afternoon, March 29. The following Sunday, the meeting will be addressed by Dr. Charles L. Meade, pastor of the First Methodist church at Newark, April 12, Rev. Madison C. Peters, of New York city, will address the meeting. Dr. Peters conducts a series of mass meetings weekly at the Majestic theatre, New York, and is a powerful speaker. Sunday, April 19, L. E. Hawkins, State Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., will be in this city to address the meeting. Special music, both vocal and instrumental will be a feature of all the services.

HOPE ENDEAVORERS ENDORSE THE LOCAL OPTION SCHEME.

Reports were presented from the chairman of the prayer-meeting, lookout, missionary and social committees at the February business meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of Hope chapel, last night, and the members put themselves on record as favoring the local option measure known as the Crosby bill. President Frank Rimmer appointed a nominating committee, composed of Miss Eunice Eckert, chairman; Donald C. Mortimer and Miss Nellie Gage. They will report at the March meeting of the society. Arthur and Clarence Hoffman and Bertram Smith were elected to membership.

After the business meeting a lunch-box social was held. The boxes were lettered and the young women were given hearts, also lettered, while the young men drew arrows which were made to correspond to the hearts. In this way the young people found their partners. The social committee in charge was composed of Miss Eunice Eckert, Miss Elsie Rimmer and Peter Sweeney.

A Pleasant Surprise.

Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, of New Brunswick, who has been supplying Dr. Schenck's pulpit in Trinity Reformed church for the past fifteen months, paid an unexpected visit to the prayer meeting of the church last evening, taking a seat in the rear of the room. Just before the close he made his presence known and heartily congratulated the large number in attendance for their presence and for the way they took part in prayer and testimony.

Falling Off in Freight Traffic.

Because of a falling off in the freight traffic on the New Jersey Central, the "pushers" which have been used to help these heavy trains over the Fanwood hill, have been taken off for the present. They will be returned to the service when the business increases.

SOLON BEFORE MOTORISTS

Senator Jos. Frelinghuysen to Address Automobilists at Newark Tomorrow Night.

PLAINFIELDERS TO BE PRESENT

Dr. F. C. Ard, Dr. P. J. Zeglio, George J. Tobin and W. H. P. Veysey Represent Local Club.

Senator Frelinghuysen will explain the why and wherefores of the proposed changes in the State automobile law before the Associated Automobile Clubs of New Jersey, assembled in mass-meeting at the New Jersey Automobile Club, tomorrow night at Newark. Delegations from all of the automobile organizations in the State, a committee from the New Jersey Automobile Trade Association, a committee from the Newark Board of Trade, and several prominent political leaders from this part of the State will be present to discuss matters with the Senator. The meeting is called for 8 o'clock and it is prophesied that it will be one of the liveliest and largest sessions ever held in the local clubhouse.

Among the delegations from the associated clubs the following will be present: Union County Auto Association, Dr. F. C. Ard, Dr. P. J. Zeglio, J. P. Stevens, G. J. Tobin, W. H. P. Veysey; Hudson County Automobile Club, President J. H. Edward, Vice-President J. V. Z. Anthony, Secretary and Treasurer Harry T. Pond; Paterson Automobile Club, G. A. Post, Dr. Faulkins, Benjamin Eastwood, Robert Beattie, F. R. Reynolds, F. E. Low, C. Horandt, C. E. Frost; Mercer County Auto Club, W. M. Muschert, A. C. Reeves, W. A. Buckman; Atlantic City Auto Club, Walter Edge, A. H. Darnell, R. H. Delany, H. H. Johnson, T. B. Nutall; Monmouth Auto Club, W. N. G. Clark, G. H. Pittinger; Hackensack Auto Club, Cortlandt Linkroum; Wildwood Automobile Association, two representatives.

In addition to these many members of each club will attend. The Paterson club has chartered a special car to go to Trenton, and the Hudson county club will do likewise. More than 200 members of the local club will be present.

DENNIS CARNEY, JR., DEAD.

Passed Away at Parents' Home Yesterday After Several Months' Illness.

Dennis E. Carney, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis E. Carney, of Cottage place, died yesterday afternoon at the home of his parents. He had been ill for several months with a pulmonary trouble. Mr. Carney was twenty-nine years old and had lived in Plainfield all his life. He was a plumber by trade but in recent years had been engaged with the late Patrick Kane and others in the sewer contracting business. He leaves one brother, John Carney, of East Fourth street.

The funeral will be held at his late home Saturday morning at 8 o'clock and at St. Mary's church at 9. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

No Decision On Future Plans.

Rev. T. Moore-Smith, whose resignation as pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church was accepted on Sunday, has not definitely decided upon his plans for the future. He informed a reporter for The Daily Press last night that he has received two or three calls, but has not given his answer. He intimated that each one of the calls were to larger churches than the one he has been serving, with a substantial increase in salary, and he added, there are no provisions in the calls that I shall give up my dogs.

Called Home By Father's Illness.

James Slorah, a former resident of this city who has been engaged for the past two years in copper mining at Jacksonville, Oregon, reached Plainfield today in response to a telegram announcing the serious illness of his father, Robert Slorah, of McDowell street. Since the ending of the message the sick man has had a decided turn for the better. Mrs. Morris Turnbull, of Dundas, Ont., who was Miss Belle Slorah, also came to Plainfield yesterday because of a similar summons.

Jacob L. Rodman to Wed.

The wedding of Jacob Lorillard Rodman and Miss Marion Nichols, both of New York, will be celebrated on Thursday, March 12, at high noon at the residence of the bride on West End avenue. Mr. Rodman is a brother of Mrs. James E. Martine, of Kensington avenue.

Another Sign of Spring.

Another sign of approaching spring is reported by W. J. Nelson, of Watchung avenue, who says that he counted a flock of fourteen robins on the meadow near Terrill road, yesterday.

LENTEN SERVICES BRING CAPACITY CONGREGATIONS

With the beginning of the Lenten season for forty days fasting, congregations thronged the local Catholic churches for the evening service of preaching and for the distribution of ashes in accordance with the Roman Catholic custom. At both St. Mary's and St. Joseph's churches, the edifices were crowded to their extreme capacity, and at St. Mary's church, where there were about 900 present, some could not gain admittance. Several stood on the porches of the church, and at St. Joseph's church found seats with the Sisters and children in the side room, while others stood in the rear.

Father Delehanty preached the sermon at St. Mary's, while Father Miller was in the pulpit at St. Joseph's. The sermons were exhortations for the observance of Lent and an exposition of the rules of the church for the forty days fast.

The respective rectors preached Lenten sermons at morning and evening services at Grace, Holy Cross and St. Stephen's churches, and the services were largely attended. In each case, the full vested choir was in attendance, and music was made a feature of the service.

Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church, occupied the pulpit at the 10 o'clock morning service and officiated at the penetential office observed in the church at noon. There was the customary celebration of the Holy Communion at the morning service. Rev. Arthur B. Howard, rector of St. John's church, New York city, was the preacher at the evening service.

At Holy Cross church, Rev. George A. Warner, the rector, was in charge of the morning and evening services, preaching on both occasions. The full vested choir was in attendance, and will be at the service of evensong Wednesday and Friday evenings during Lent.

Rev. Arthur Searing Peck preached morning and evening at St. Stephen's church. At the 10 o'clock service, the rector preached on Christ's temptations in the wilderness. He urged his hearers to retire, as it were, into a subjective wilderness during Lent and work to overcome their individual temptations. At the evening service, he spoke on the spiritual exercises of prayer, fasting and almsgiving, and their observance in the parish and by individuals. The vested choir rendered appropriate hymns.

DEBELE HALL FOR ICE CREAM BUSINESS.

Contractors started work today remodelling Debele Hall, the old Warren chapel building. The owner, William G. Debele, plans to transfer the ice cream and candy-making business of Debele & Stahl to the hall, the rear part of which is to be fitted up for this purpose. The front part of the building is to be transformed into a single large hall which may be used for dances and entertainments.

The front part of the old Warren chapel building will be remodeled and re-decorated and will be finished as an auditorium. This hall, which will be known as Debele Hall, will measure about 50 by 75 feet when finished off. It is probable that a stage will be erected at the rear end, although Mr. Debele's plans are not yet completed.

During the winter, the North Plainfield High School athletic association was given the privilege of using the main hall as a gymnasium and basketball floor. Mr. Debele bought the building about a year ago, and has since had several offers for it by manufacturing firms. He has, however, decided to use part of the building for his own business, and the rear of the old chapel will be ready for the confectionary business in about a month. The cost of remodeling and improvement is estimated at about $2,000. Conover Bros. have the contract for carpenter work.

Plainfielders in Prominent Parts.

At the wedding Tuesday afternoon in the Central Presbyterian church, Orange, of Miss Mildred Elizabeth Smith, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles S. Smith, of East Orange, and William Gilbert Broadway, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Broadway, of Brooklyn, Mrs. Elliot Cutter, of West Seventh street, attended the bride as matron of honor and Elliot Cutter was one of the ushers.

Minstrels for Athletic Benefit.

The North Plainfield High School Athletic Association has secured the Gold Medal minstrels to give on of their black-face entertainments for the benefit of the athletic fund. The performance will take place at the school assembly room next Tuesday night.

E. H. FURMAN A BENEDICT

Former Plainfielder Takes Miss Ruth Talbot, of Brookline, as His Bride.

WEDDING A SOCIETY EVENT.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Monroe Furman, Who Formerly Resided in Hillside Avenue, is the Groom.

Miss Ruth Talbot, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Newell Talbot, of Brookline, Mass., and Erwin Hanford Furman, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Monroe Furman, of Newton Centre, Mass., formerly of Hillside avenue, this city, were married Wednesday afternoon, February 26, at 4 o'clock at the Church of Our Savior, Brookline. The church was elaborately decorated with ascension lilies, white roses and palms being used in the chancel and large bunches of enchantress pinks were fastened to each pew with bows of pink gauze.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was richly gowned in a princes gown of white satin, the bodice of which was trimmed with rose point and she wore a tulle veil fastened with orange blossoms. She wore a diamond necklace, the gift of the groom, and carried a shower bouquet of orchids an dlilies-of-the-valley. The matron of honor, Mrs. Norman Boyd, of Philadelphia, wore white chiffon, trimmed with white satin and a pink hat.

The bridesmaids were Miss Boyd and Miss Cobb, of Brookline; Miss Glazier, of Hartford, Conn.; Miss Bill and Miss Harris, of Springfield, Mass.; Miss Stark, of Saginaw, Mich.; Miss Lowe, of Fitchburg, Mass., and Miss Gray, of Boston. They were all gowned alike in white chiffon, handpainted in pink roses and trimmed with folds of rose satin. Their hats were of pink chiffon. The matron of honor and bridesmands all carried baskets of Killarney roses.

The best man was Russell Bowie, of Richmond, Va., and the ushers were William Bird, of East Walpole, Mass.; Russell Coolidge and Byram Whitney, of Brookline; Walter Sachs and William Wadsworth, of New York; Roy Smith Wallace, of Freeport, N. Y.; Kingman Robins, of Rochester, N. Y.; Dr. Fritz Talbot, Max Talbot and Stanley Talbot, brothers of the bride.

Mrs. Talbot, mother of the bride, wore a gown of cream white satin chiffon with gold encrested lace, and a black plumed hat. Her jewels were a collar of pearls and diamonds. Mrs. Furman, mother of the groom, wore a costume of pearl gray satin, embroidered in gray and gold. She wore a black tulle hat trimmed with a cluster of black feathers. Her ornaments were diamonds.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 131 Sewall avenue, Brookline. The house was beautifully decorated. The reception hall, stairway and library were massed with pink La France roses, and the drawing-room where the bridal party received was a perfect bower of bride roses and palms. The coach house was converted into a large banquet hall. The walls were hung in white, which made a background for the mass of green and garlands of pink roses entwined with electric lights. It was connected with the house by an enclosed passage, forming an avenue of bay trees and palms.

The bride's gifts to her attendants were sprays of mistletoe, composed of diamonds and pearls. The groom's gifts to the ushers were saphire stick pins. The wedding gifts were many and handsome, being displayed in the billiard room. During the evening the couple left amid a shower of confetti and flowers for a Southern wedding trip.

Purchase 1,000 Feet of Hose.

The Councilmanic Fire Committee met last night and in accordance with a resolution adopted at the meeting of the Common Council, purchased 1,000 feet of hose from the Woodhouse Company, of New York. Other business was of a routine nature. The ordinance granting the paid members of the department an increase in pay will be passed on third and final reading at the regular April meeting of the Common Council.

DEATH FOLLOWS ATTEMPT TO STOP A TOOTHACHE

Miss Catherine Henehan, a servant girl in the employ of William Sandford, of East Front street and Sandford avenue, was found dead in bed at the residence this morning, her demise to all appearances having been brought about by an overdose of a narcotic taken to relieve toothache. She failed to appear at the customary time to begin the day's duties and when another domestic went to her room the discovery was made. Dr. Norman Probasco was called and declared that death had occurred several hours before, possibly at midnight.

Miss Henehan had suffered from her teeth for several days and yesterday afternoon was treated by a Park avenue dentist. She was still in pain last night and at the instigation of fellow servants tried several remedies. It is thought that just before going to bed she took an extra dose of some preparation that produced stupor and eventually death. The face was badly discolored when the body was found. County Physician Westcott was summoned and gave permission for its removal to the home of Charles McCarthy, of Prescott place.

Miss Henehan was thirty years old and came to Plainfield from Ireland. She had been in the employ of the Sandfords for the past two years. With the exception of two cousins, Miss Delia Henehan and Miss Annie Henehan, who work for families on Franklin place and Carlton avenue, she had no local relatives.

DECISION RENDERED IN NOTED SKILLMAN CASE

The Court of Errors and Appeals at Trenton yesterday, after hearing arguments of counsel, announced its opinion that the will of William Lanehart, offered for probate by William H. Skillman, was a forgery. This brings to an end one of the most interesting cases ever before the Orphans' Court of Somerset county.

William Lanehart lived near Blawenburg, and William H. Skillman, who is a prominent fruit grower, was his neighbor. When Lanehart died there were two wills, one presented by Skillman making him a joint executor with Lanehart's niece, and leaving a large amount of the property to him. The other was known as the Race will.

The Skillman will was written on two sheets of paper not fastened together. The signature seemed to have been traced with a lead pencil and afterward written over with ink. Some of the leading handwriting experts of the country were called to pass upon the signature and declared it a forgery after comparing it with numerous signature made by Lanehart.

Judge Louis H. Schenck rendered a decision declaring the Skillman will a forgery. This decision was appealed and was yesterday affirmed. The "Race" will will now probably be offered for probate and be admitted.

On the strength of Judge Schenck's decision Skillman was indicted for forgery. He was twice tried, one time the jury disagreeing and the second trial resulting in a conviction. He was sentenced to a term in State prison by Judge Booraem, of New Brunswick, who sat in the case. This sentence was carried to the Supreme Court and is still pending. Skillman, who is quite feeble in health, is out on bail awaiting the result.

Unitarians As Christians.

In reporting an interview with Rev. Dr. Chambliss concerning the aims of the Ministers' Association, of which he is president, the pastor was quoted as using the phrase "Christians and Unitarians." The doctor does not wish the impression to obtain that he does not class Unitarians as Christians, and it is due him to say that the quotation was a reportorial mistake.

Broken Nut-Pin Delays Train.

The breaking of a nut-pin on the second smoker of the 8:30 train just before leaving Dunellen this morning, caused a delay of nearly twenty minutes. The 8:36 train from Mauch Chunk preceded the 8:30, picking up a great many commuters at the North Avenue station. In consequence the latter train did not carry its full quota of passengers to New York.

Louis Mulford Leaves the Hospital.

Louis Mulford, of Grant avenue, was discharged from Muhlenberg Hospital this afternoon, and he returned home. The bullet which entered his right side when he was shot by Clarence Drake, agent at the Grant Avenue station, has not been removed, but the physicians do not apprehend that it will cause any trouble.

DEMAND HIS RESIGNATION

Scotch Plains School Board Requests Principal Henrickson to Withdraw.

BORROWS TOO MUCH MONEY?

Village's Latest Sensation Caused by Pedagogue's Eagerness to Contract Numerous Loans.

Daniel T. Hendrickson, supervising principal of the Scotch Plains public school, has been asked to resign by the 'Plains Board of Education. A formal request for his resignation was framed in a letter at the meeting of the Board, last night, and Miss H. M. Squires, of the school faculty, was chosen as acting principal to begin her duties at once.

Hendrickson, who has been principal of the school for nearly two years, is alleged to be deeply involved in financial trouble, and it is stated has been borrowing monei right and left ever since he assumed his duties. The to- been learned by the Board, for he has borrowed money from several residents of Scotch Plains and is known to have secured loans from residents at Somerville, Long Branch, New York city, and various towns in New York State. The financial troubles of the principal have been brought to the notice of members of the Board of Education by various applications to attach Mr. Hendrickson's salary.

The principal's financial troubles first came to the notice of the Board in October, when members of the committee on teachers urged him to begin to pay up the loans then outstanding and adopt a more conservative policy on loans in future. He did settle up some of his loans at that time, but secured other large loans. The action of the Board last night was due to the efforts Mr. Hendrickson has made to borrow money from various members of the school faculty.

Mr. Hendrickson came to the school as principal two years ago from Port Monmouth. His salary is $1,100 a year. Since he has been acting as principal of the school, he has done much to raise the curriculum standing of the institution and has secured several needed educational changes. Miss Squire, who has been appointed his successor for the remainder of the school term, has been a teacher at the school for the past twenty-three years.

BURGLARY HAUL $700.

Loss of Netherwood Families Yesterday Morning Larger Than at First Supposed.

As a result of the burglary invasion of two Netherwood homes early yesterday morning, it has been learned that the haul of silverware will reach a total of $700 in value. Of this amount the greater loss falls upon Mr. and Mrs. Henriques, of East Seventh street, where fully 100 pieces of silverware worth $500 were taken. At this home a much more valuable lot of tableware was left on a sideboard, the burglars having been frightened off before they could pack it up. The loss to Mr. and Mrs. Henriques is covered by insurance although a report stated that their policy was allowed to lapse two weeks ago.

The value of the articles taken at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cook on Berkeley avenue is placed at $200. Nothing beside the silver was touched. The police are busy on the case but so far have obtained no positive clue.

Employment Offices Petition.

Proprietors of intelligence offices in this city, who have recently been levied with a license fee of $25 a year for the conduct of their business, have petitioned Mayor Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield, to cause a similar license ordinance to be enacted in the borough. The claim is that the competition is unfair as the intelligence office business is now conducted. The directory shows but two such employment offices in North Plainfield, but the proprietors of those in this city petition protection.

A Grandfather at Sixteen.

The unusual experience of being a grandfather on one's sixteenth birthday seldom comes to any person, but Alburtis Swalm, of Duer street, enjoys that distinction. He was born on February 29 and in consequence he celebrated the sixteenth anniversary of his birthday last Saturday. His son, Walter Swalm, of Elmwood place, was presented with a son by his wife, last evening, and Grandfather Swalm as well as the son is wearing a broad smile.

BERGEN IS BITTER.

Says Utilities Bills Are Products of "Junior Lawyers."

Frank Bergen, of Elizabeth, general counsel of the P. S. C., was in Trenton yesterday in connection with the public utilities bills. Mr. Bergen says the bills are the product of junior lawyers dabbling in politics. He and John W. Griggs spoke against the measure at a hearing yesterday afternoon. A new administration utility bill is to be introduced instead of the Robbins measure. It will have no age limit clause for members of the commission.

Joe Hortiz makes his bow to the patrons of the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night. His play, "Our Friend Fritz," is a musical comedy drama. It is designed of the type which has carried Wilson, Mack, Olcott and the late J. K. Emmett to popular favor. Hortiz is a slight boyish looking fellow, who makes a decidedly good impression and uses a sweet high tenor voice very effectively. His play has to do with the robbery of the United States mail and also developes a story of a search for hidden wealth. Scenically the production is a wonder. The exteriors of the St. Mary's church and the Blackwell's mill are excellent. The company is better than usual, Aline Bennett, Ernie Veronee, Milton Gardner, Ada Boshell, Conrad Cantzen and others affording the star usually capable company. The real feature of the production, however, is Hortiz's singing, and there is plenty of that.

Minstrelsy has been, and promises to continue to be, the favorite form of amusement for four-fifths of the theatre-going public—and well it should be—for no manner of a performance can include such a variety of material necessary for the edification of the multitudes, besides it is the cleanest and best of all amusements. Then, there are no waits, as is evidenced by John Vogel's greater city minstrels, which will be at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday, afternoon and night. Promptly at the appointed hour the curtain rises, and from that moment until the final you have fun without a blush. Songs of sentiment by the world's greatest vocalists, comic ditties by the best comedians on earth, who also furnish humor without a taint. The songs have been sung; jokes have been told; the Adonis-like person in the middle has his friendly repartee with the various comedians with the bones and "Tambos." Personal grace has been shown and beauty added because of the handsome paraphernalia used in the first part settings. The sentiment of the balladist may have caused you to be possessed of a feeling of intoxication; the fective wit of the comedians has amused you; the charming acts of the first part in its entirety has possibly astonished you, yet the glamor, frolic and fun rolls on without a hindrance. There's no tiresome overture, but on the contrary the various novel feats gathered from all quarters of the globe commence, and ere the finis has been reached, you have, with your brother auditors, proclaimed minstrelsy the king of amusements.

In the new original comedy, "Until We Meet Again" (Aug Weidersehen), Eugene Ormonde, in the New Comedy, "Until We Meet Again," at New Plainfield Theatre Next Monday Night.

by Marguerite Merington, which comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night, the principal character is that of von Rummelsberg, a German nobleman, who, having been ruined by the treachery of a friend, has come to mend his fortunes in the new world. An idealist, of a romantic chivalry, the young Baron is nicknamed the Fantast, as he himself explains because he "lives in another spere as ze daily life around him. But nobody of ordinary beings understands! Zey call ze Fantast fool, on account of his feelings vich, like zat litdle flower Mimosa, expand in ze beautiful Gottes sunshine, but close by ze least touch of somet'ing harsh!" Eugene Ormonde, one of the most popular dramatic leading men in the country has this role. The opposite part, that of Amy Prentiss, a New York heiress, is taken by Josephine Victor, who won a notable triumph in the recent production of "The Secret Orchard." In support of Mr. Ormonde and Miss Victor are Mabel Carruthers, Charlotte Lambert, Dickey De Laro, Mildred Hutchinson, Seymour Rose, Rogers Lytton, Wilbur Collier Hudson and Russell Bassett.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The prize choristers for February at St. Stephen's church are Harry Christiansen, August Komosko, John Hall and Louis Clarke.

The Young Ladies' Guild of the Church of the Heavenly Rest has resumed its meetings under the leadership of Mrs. Dudley Fergurson.

A business meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Christian church will be held tonight, when officers will be elected for the coming year.

The reception of the boys' Bible classes of the Y. M. C. A. will be held Saturday of this week instead of tomorrow, the customary reception night.

Nelson VanWinkle will lead the consecration service at the Park Avenue Baptist church, tomorrow night, under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society.

Preparatory services will be held at Bethel chapel tomorrow night and the Lord's Supper will be observed Sunday night, in charge of the pastor, Rev. F. D. Tildon.

Mrs. Crawford, a returned missionary, will speak at the First Baptist church, Wednesday afternoon, March 18, and in the evening at the regular prayer meeting.

The young people of the Seventh-day Baptist church have formed a mission study class to meet once a week. Miss Ethel Titsworth is the leader of the movement.

The Women's Society for Christian Work of the Seventh-day Baptist church held a business and sewing meeting yesterday afternoon in the parlors of the church.

The Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will hold its annual meeting tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank Jones, 16 Mountain avenue.

The annual institute of the Plainfield Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union will be held in May at the First Baptist church. There will be afternoon and evening sessions.

Plans are now being considered by the rector's cabinet at St. Stephen's church for "The Festival of the Rainbow," to be held Tuesday, May 5. The cabinet will meet Monday night, March 8, to take up several other matters.

The Friday evening services will be continued at the Church of the Heavenly Rest during the Lenten season and the rector will meet the confirmation class immediately afterward. The Bishop will confirm this class on Sunday, March 29.

THE DEPENDABLE "DUCHESS"

Sewing Machine for $12.

There is no use owning a sewing machine at all if it won't do the work you expect of it. Such a machine is simply a nuisance—an aggravation.

Not all low-priced machines are like the "Duchess."

The "Duchess" is built in the "Demorest" factories and is a truly good machine—the best ever produced to sell at its price.

The "Duchess" has ball-bearing stand, high arm, drop head, five drawers, full set of attachments—and it is fully guaranteed for 5 years. Few $25 sewing machines surpass it, yet we sell it at $15.

This week we offer the No. 74 "Duchess" Sewing Machine, on the easy payment Club Plan, for only $12

No. 16 "Demorest" on the Club Plan at only $25.

BASEBALL.

The arrival of the last squad of regulars at Marlin Springs, Tuesday, and a nine inning practice game between the youngsters and some of the regulars marked the opening of the real training season of the New York Nationals. From now on there will be no days of idleness, unless caused by weather conditions, and within a few days Manager McGraw will be sizing up his new batting combination in exhibition games.

In charge of Arthur Bell of the Polo Grounds staff, the five players who left New York on the steamer Momus last week got in just after the close of afternoon practice and just in time to walk up to the plate and make a hit at the supper table. The able seamen of the party fared well, but Mathewson was on the retired list for two days, and Jack Hannifan often wished for a sight of terra firma. Wiltse and Bell were the only ones to report at every meal.

Luther Taylor was another arrival, so now all of the regulars are in camp and only Outfielder Earley and Catcher Curtis remain outside the fold. Taylor got in at noon and is in such good condition that he pitched five innings of the practice game yesterday afternoon.

The baseball squad at the University of Virginia has had the exceptional good fortune to be able to practise outdoors every day during the last week in February, and with only twenty-three days before their first game the men feel that they have been specially favored by the weather man. The practice consisted mainly of batting and base sliding, as Coach Lannigan puts much stress on this latter feature. The pitchers are being kept down a little, as the coach does not wish them to wear their arms out by too hasty work, but the squad is making rapid progress and at present looks to have the making of a strong nine. The backstop department includes two good men. Pearson, who caught for the Lawrenceville School and who handles himself like a veteran, and Cabaniss, two years a catcher on the Newberry College team. The latter had a flattering offer from the South Atlantic League, but did not care to enter professional ball.

But four weeks remain for the Cornell varsity baseball team to practice in before starting on their trip to meet the Southern college team and the men have now settled down to businesslike work in the cage. The cuts have already been made in the squad and the thirty men who have survived are working hard to secure places on the regular team. As the armory is crowded with basketball and track men every afternoon, the baseball candidates are released early from the classrooms and get in about two hours, pretice each day. The bases have been brought into the cage and for the past week the men have gone through regular games, as far as the limited space allows. Coach Coogan considers the batting and fielding work very good for this time of the year, but he will wait until the squad had has some outdoor practice before committing himself in regard to the chances of the team. The last cut in the squad before the final selection of the team will probably be made this week.

The Yale insignia committee has decided to award a "Y" for the individual intercollegiate championships in golf, tennis and gymnastics. On account of this action a "Y" has been awarded to W. E. Clow, '06, R. Abbott, '08, and E. Knowles, '08, for winning the intercollegiate golf championship in 1905, 1906 and 1907 respectively. It was also determined not to give a "Y" to the individual college champion in gymnastics but only to the intercollegiate champion. To the Yale soccer team has been awarded the right to wear its insignia on its shirts, thus officially acknowledging the soccer team as a representative athletic organization.

The central board of officials of the American Intercollegiate football rules committee will call a meeting of managers of college football elevens in the East and South, to be held in Philadelphia the latter part of the month. It is the wish of the central board to go over the rules in detail with the managers. The board announces that it has taken every means to procure the best officials for the coming season by retaining those of the old list who proved satisfactory and inviting head coaches to send in the names and addresses of the men who recently have been graduated and who are familiar with the new rules.

Word has reached Johnstown, Pa., of the death in Joliet, Ill., of Matthew McClung, Jr., a graduate of Lehigh University and later a football referee. His death was due to blood poisoning coming from an infected tooth. At the time of his death McClung was superintendent of the Joliet furnaces of the Illinois Steel Company. He was about thirty-two years old. Up to the last two or three years he refereed the Harvard-Yale and Yale-Princeton football games.

The Springfield Training School football management has arranged a game for next fall with Harvard, to be played on October 17. The S. T. S. also has a game with Princeton, and in view of these two hard battles there is some conjecture as to whether the Springfield men will meet Yale again next fall. The Washington and Jefferson schedule, just out, shows a game with Yale on October 17 and with Michigan on November 7.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The State tuberculosis exhibit is now being displayed in the courthouse at Mt. Holly.

A movement has been begun in Gloucester City for the erection of a statue of Washington in the yard of the Monmouth High School.

As the result of being struck in the face by falling timber Edward Kroft, thirty-six years old, of 206 Arch street, Camden, has a fractured nose.

Rev. Jesse Stiles, one of the best known ministers in the New Jersey M. E. Conference, is lying at the point of death at his home in Pitman.

There was a large attendance at a whist given last night at the Newark Bay Club, Bayonne, by the women who will conduct the Japanese booth at the club fair.

Convicted on a charge of embezzling $388 from a laundry, Floyd J. Miller, employed as a driver, was sentenced to fifteen months in State prison by Judge Joline in Camden.

George Osborne, four years old, of 190 Jackson street, Paterson, fell against the kitchen stove in his home yesterday afternoon and lacerated his forehead and face. He had the injuries dressed at St. Joseph's Hospital.

The jury at Woodbury in the case of Mrs. Margaret Barrett against the West Jersey and Seashore Railroad, for injuries received by being thrown from a train as she was about to step from a car at Wenonah, awarded her $3,000 damages. Mrs. Barrett was wheeled into court in a rolling chair.

Robert Crawford, of 139 North Fifth street, was taken to the General Hospital, Paterson, yesterday afternoon suffering from severe injuries to his left forearm, which he received while at work in the Coke shops of the American locomotive works, where he is employed as a machinist.

The martial woes of John H. Chew, the merchant of Camden, came to the front again yesterday, when he was arrested on a writ obtained from the Court of Chancery and held under $800 bond. Mrs. Chew alleges that she intends applying for alimony from her husband and feared he would leave the State.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

The change of menu every day at Timbo's restaurant, together with the excellent food served, makes this an ideal place to dine. Cigars, cigarettes and tobacco always in stock.

Patronize Putnam & DeGraw, the West Front street dry goods merchants, and you will always receive full value. The men's furnishing goods department is one of the best in the city.

ANARCHISTS AFTER ARCHBISHOP FARLEY.

New York, March 5.—That the activities of the anarchists have not been confined to Chicago alone became known here yesterday when Police Commissioner Bingham admitted that Archbishop Farley, head of the Catholic Archdiocese of New York, had received a letter containing threats against his life. But the letter had been suppressed at the request of the police. Bingham also admitted one of his deputies has also received a communication declaring he would be "put out of the way" if he continued his present attitude against certain elements of society.

Bingham admitted these facts only in reply to specific questions. He stated that the letter received by the archbishop was being investigated.

Asked if it was not a fact that the force of plainclothesmen assigned to the financial district has recently been augmented, he stated this was so. This action was taken because of the receipt of inflammatory circulars by well-known financiers and followed the "closing for repairs" of the visitors' gallery of the Stock Exchange.

Trip Proves Successful.

William B. Grannatt, Jr., who left for Seattle, Wash., two weeks ago to effect an important real estate deal for a Plainfield client, wired home yesterday that his mission had been successfully accomplished and that he would start on the return trip at once. He will proceed by way of Los Angeles, Cal., where he will spend a short time at the home of his brother. According to his plans, Mr. Grannatt will return to Plainfield to resume business on March 14.

MR. FORT TOO HASTY.

Truly Rooseveltian in style Governor Fort has issued a pronunciamento after reading a report that some self-chosen leaders, as it were, have decided upon themselves as delegates-at-large to the Chicago convention. Assuming that the rumor is true that the representative men of his party have plotted together to ignore him, Mr. Fort rushes into print with a declaration that the day has passed when a few individuals can arrogate to themselves such rights. The admiration in which he is held by the whole people of the State, makes the Governor's hasty action all the more regrettable. To say the least, it was an ill-advised action on his part, particularly when he looms up as he does today in Vice-President proportions. But can it be true that he hearkened unto a certain Essex county 'reformer' and then leaped into publicity on the subject without sober second thought? That does not sound like him.

We venture the assertion that it never has been the desire of our United States Senators, who by time honored custom have been allowed to share in this honor, to deny Governor Fort the right which is acknowledged generally to be his, that is, to be one of the distinguished quartet to be selected as delegates-at-large. The Chief Magistrate of New Jersey may have been misled, in truth, blinded, by some who see no good in anyone except he who cries out against those who do not accept their own so-called "reform" ideas. Surely the able governor is too well informed on politics and political methods to be guilty of such hasty action, and certainly the Essex adviser is not a safe specimen of infallibility.

THE PROPOSED POSTOFFICE.

United States Senator John Kean will certainly be doing his constituents here valuable service if he succeeds in obtaining the passage of the postoffice building bill which he presented in Congress on Tuesday. Such a structure is sorely needed in Plainfield and in fact much more so that in a multitude of other cities of equal population. While it is conceded that it would not be possible to both purchase the land and erect the building for the appropriation requested, $100,000, the work of the senior Senator will be warmly appreciated if he gets that sum, for it is believed that it will not be so difficult to secure an additional appropriation once the original amount is granted. The Board of Trade as well as the Mayor and the Common Council should use their good offices by supporting Mr. Kean's project.

Baldwin says that while in the Congressional Library he picked up a copy of the Newark Evening News, and his mind, which had been a blank from the time he left New York, was suddenly restored.—Washington dispatch in Newark Evening News.

Was it the editorials?

The State Republican leaders have joined in the refrain "Hold the Fort" but do they give a very different interpretation to the words?

FOR PRIMARY RECOUNT.

New Ideaites Score Another Victory in Assembly.

Assemblyman William P. Martin's primary election recount bill, one of the bills which the New Ideaites have been trying to get through for years, was passed by the House yesterday afternoon. The measure extends the provisions of the election law to cover primary elections and allows a recount the same as at regular elections.

The same bill was introduced in 1906 by Assemblyman William Fellowes Morgan and killed in committee.

If Griggs were to be a delegate Senator Kean would have to be defeated. That would eliminate the Union Senator from the race to succeed himself as United States Senator in 1911. The election of Griggs and Fort as delegates-at-large would break the Murphy-Briggs slate and make Governor Fort the logical Republican candidate for United States Senator to succeed Senator Kean, if he is not nominated for and elected Vice-President.

The State convention to select the delegates-at-large will be held in the first week in May. The primaries for the selection of delegates to this convention will take place on April 28, the fourth Tuesday in April, if the bill introduced by Senator Robbins should become a law. This bill provides for open primaries for the election of these delegates, and also reduces the basis of representation from one for every two hundred Republican votes to one for every three hundred. It is known as an administration measure and was introduced at the request of Governor Port.

A table prepared by the revision commission shows the representation the different counties will have in the State convention and the possibility of combinations being made. It is not impossible that a combination of the delegates from Hudson, Essex, Passaic, Bergen and Mercer or Morris counties will be formed which would control a majority of the votes in the convention. If this were done the delegates-at-large would be Fort, Murphy, Griggs and Briggs. The table follows:

"CHARGES?" SAYS ACCUSED PASTOR, 'IT IS TO LAUGH'

The Rev. Gottlieb Andreae, pastor of St. John's German church, in Jersey City, who, by opposing the local option bill at Trenton on Monday, aroused the enmity of the Jersey City clergymen in favor of the measure, received yesterday the round robin letter which these clergymen sent him and which was printed in the Herald yesterday. When he learned that the Rev. J. P. Stofflet proposed to bring charges against him in the Reformed Church Classis, Mr. Andreae said:

"How can the Rev. Stofflet consistently bring charges against me in the Classes, when, five or six years ago, he faced accusations of the most radical nature himself? How can he question my standing just because I disagree with him over the propriety or non-propriety of a local option law in the State of New Jersey? As my compatriot Louis Mann would say, 'It is to laugh!'

"This disagreement between me and the 'allied pastors' is all a joke. The people of my church are with me, and that is sufficient for me to know. How can a little boy like Stofflet make charges against me? He is a mere child, while I am a man. In June I will celebrate the quarter century that I have been in the ministry. I don't think that charges will ever be made against me in the Classis. At any rate, I feel, with the Scriptures, that 'Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof.'

"With regard to the restrictions that have been imposed by the Bishops' law, my church is satisfied with the present condition of the saloon. I minister to 750 families—not all members of the church—which embrace no less than three thousand persons, and there is not a drunkard among them. They are all Germans. The church is merely an adjunct to my work. I am a minister, not a clergyman. I do not fear any charges that may be brought against me. Should a man stand in awe of boys?"

Yesterday many of Mr. Andreae's flock and others not connected with his church visited him and complimented him upon the stand he had taken against the local option bill. When the Rev. Mr. Stofflet was shown what Mr. Andreae had said he announced that he would not bring charges against Mr. Andreae. He declined to discuss the matter.

Smoke Nuisance.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Referring to the anti-smoke movement in Netherwood referred to in your last night's edition, about three years ago Atlantic City passed an effective anti-smoke measure, the validity of which was confirmed by the highest courts of the State. This measure has been adopted by Summit and other Jersey towns to their lasting advantage. Nearly two years since a similar ordinance was introduced into the City Council of Plainfield and seems to have been lost in the shuffle. Enquiry fails to reveal why this ordinance has not been passed, and in the meantime Plainfield is fast becoming a second Pittsburg on account of the smoke. Can nothing prevent the smoke nuisance now handed out by the Jersey Central road and other corporations?

NETHERWOOD.

Another Frank Conger.

Editor, The Daily Press:

My attention having been called to last evening's issue of another paper, giving account of Frank Conger being arrested and brought before Mayor Fisk yesterday, I would thank you very much to publish the fact that this Frank Conger is not myself, and more so, is in no way connected with our family. Having resided with my family for many years in Plainfield, the similarity of the names makes it very embarrassing to me and my family to see such accounts printed, and am confident my wide circulation of friends do not credit me as the one who has thus been made to appear before your honorable mayor.

FRANK WHITTEMORE CONGER.

Westfield, March 5, 1908.

GETS 22 YOUTHS IN RAID.

When Sheriff Sommer was told yesterday afternoon that a young man had been beaten out of $9 while gambling on a pool game in an establishment at No. 140 Market street, Newark, conducted by Adolph Schnickel, of No. 217 Broome street, he ordered a raid on the place, and a party in charge of Under Sheriff Mason arrested twenty-two prisoners, who, including the alleged proprietor, were taken to the county jail.

All of the prisoners are under nineteen years of age. They were held in bail to appear as witnesses.

Louise Dresser Gets Divorce.

Justice Truax in New York has signed an interlocutory decree granting Louise Dresser, the actress and singer, a divorce from her husband, Jack Norworth, who is a monologist in vaudeville. Miss Dresser is regarded as one of the best-looking women on the stage.

WANTS COMMISSION TO PROBE CRIME.

A measure which may be of far reaching effect and importance has been introduced at Trenton by Assemblyman John D. Prince, of Passaic, professor of languages in Columbia College, New York. It provides for the appointment of a commission of nine members, some of whom may be women, to investigate the whole question of crime, debauchery and pauperism and to report to the next Legislature, with recommendations for enactment of remedial measures.

The commission is to inquire into the drink habit, the drug habit, overcrowding of tenements, hereditary insanity and other conditions surrounding the defective and dependent population of the State. Professor Prince regards this as a most important subject and will urge that much attention be given it. Two years ago he served on a similar committee to inquire into the conditions of the foreign born population of the State, and as a result night schools for foreigners have been established in many cities.

SPIED ON BOYS FROM COAL BIN.

In pleading the case of his son, who was suspended from the Montclair High School for caricaturing the principal, Herbert W. Dutch, J. Harper Bonnell, of 10 Jefferson street, Montclair, denounced the system of espionage that is practised on the pupils. Mr. Bonnell declared that one of the teachers hid in a coal bin in the school in order that he might spy on the pupils.

The Board of Education, after listening to the representations of Mr. Bonnell, who is the father of Geoffrey Bonnell, one of the four boys who were suspended two weeks ago, decided to conduct a court of inquiry in order to get at the bottom of the case. The suspension of the four pupils has aroused the indignation of the parents, who say the trouble is due largely to Mr. Dutch's interference in the athletic affairs of the students, which the latter have resented. The other three boys suspended are Earl G. Williams, Joseph B. Renwick, Jr., and Elmore Bostwick.

Detective in Lockup.

George Hartung, a Perth Amboy detective, is in the New Brunswick lockup charged with non-support by his wife. Mrs. Hartung says that her husband recently left her and her four little children and came to New Brunswick to work for a detective agency there.

There will be initiation at the meeting of Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., tomorrow night.

MAY PICK STATE OFFICERS BY ELECTION HEREAFTER.

In the House at Trenton yesterday Assemblyman Kenny, of Hudson, threw a bolt at his Republican colleagues by introducing a concurrent resolution providing for the election hereafter of all constitution officers. It was in the shape of an amendment to the State Constitution and strikes out Articles 1, 2, 3 and 4 of Section 2. If the Constitution is amended the State treasurer, State comptroller, clerk in Chancery, clerk of the Supreme Court, attorney-general and secretary of State will have to be elected instead of being appointed by the Governor.

The terms of office for these are fixed by the resolution at three years each. County prosecutors should also be elected, according to Mr. Kenny's views, and he fixed their terms also at three years.

When Assembly bill 112, raising the salary of the State house custodian from $2,500 to $3,500, came up in the House yesterday morning Mr. Sullivan offered an amendment fixing the salary at $3,000. He said he felt that the custodian was not quite as busy as outsiders believe, and that his responsibility was not as great, either. John W. Weseman, of Newark, the custodian, was present during the discussion. Mr. Martin, Mr. Morgan, Mr. Colgate and Mr. Thompson, who introduced the bill, spoke in Mr. Weseman's behalf.

Mr. Martin said the bill does not fix the salary at $3,500, but says the State House Commission shall fix it not to exceed $3,500. The vote on the amendment was a strictly party one. The bill will now go to third reading.

SOUTH JERSEY ON TOP.

Would Have Controlling Votes in State Convention.

The primary election bill which has been introduced in the Legislature provides one delegate for each 300 votes cast to State convention. In the Republican State convention there would be 645 delegates on the 300-vote basis.

Essex, Passaic, Hudson and Bergen, if they combined, would fall short of a majority, so that there promises to be a merry war for control, with South Jersey, Union county and Morris county holding the trump cards.

In the last gubernatorial election the North Jersey Republican vote fell away off, and South Jersey held its own, so David Baird, of Camden, seems to be on top.

James Atwood, formerly of this city, but now of Massachusetts, has been visiting Captain and Mrs. W. C. Smith, of Grandview avenue.

In Chancery of New Jersey

To Margaret A. Gardner, Adelia C. Nelson, Ida A. Nelson and William J. Nelson, defendants

By virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey made on the day of the date hereof, in a cause wherein George W. Hall is complainant, and you and others are defendants, you are required to appear, plead, answer or demur to the bill of said complainant, on or before the fifth day of May, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Eight, or the said bill will be taken as confessed against you.

The said bill is filed to foreclose a mortgage given by Edward Nelson, Sarah V. Nelson, Joseph Nelson and you the said Margaret A. Gardner, Adelia C. Nelson, Ida A. Nelson and William J. Nelson to the said complainant, dated March twenty-eighth, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Seven, on lands in the City of Plainfield, in the County of Union and State of New Jersey, and that the names of all the defendants are as follows: Edward Nelson, Sarah V. Nelson, Joseph Nelson and you the said Margaret A. Gardner, Adelia C. Nelson, Ida A. Nelson and William J. Nelson are made party defendants, because you are some of the owners of the mortgaged premises.

Respectfully yours,
CHARLES J. McNABB,
Solicitor for Complainant.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

A leap year dance will be given at Jr. O. U. A. M. hall tonight under the auspices of the Dunellen A. C. The committee in charge of the affair includes Robert J. Maltbie, Abner S. Coriell, Percy R. Abbott, William Giles, George Rinehart and George Dinneen. About 50 invitations have been issued.

The forty days of Lent began yesterday, which was Ash Wednesday. The service of the ashes was held at St. John's Roman Catholic church, at the morning mass, which was largely attended. There was a special preaching service at the church in the evening, when Father Dunphy was in the pulpit.

"Co-operation between the school and the home" will be the topic of an address by Dr. Henry M. Maxson, president of the Plainfield Board of Education, at the Presbyterian church next Thursday. The lecture is to be under the auspices of the local Board of Education.

George W. Day's horse, which broke through the barn floor one day last week, injuring its leg, has been off duty since the accident and will probably be able to get to work with the delivery wagon next week. The grocer has been using another horse in his delivery service.

The Ladies' Orchestra met for rehearsal at the home of Mrs. Charles S. Day, of New Market, last night.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

A number of improvements have been made about the MacIntyre property on Park avenue. It is reported that the new owner intends to erect a three-story brick building on the property in the near future.

The interment of the body of Mrs. Phoebe Foster, who died at Roselle Monday, was made in the family plot in the Baptist cemetery here yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stopel, who have been spending several days with Mrs. W. R. Buckley, have returned to their home in Brooklyn.

David R. Clark, who has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Clark, has returned to his home in Newark.

Yesterday marked the beginning of Lent. Special service was held in All Saint's Episcopal church in the morning.

A meeting of the Township Committee will be held tomorrow night in the town rooms.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., meet tonight in the Library rooms.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Alfred Mundy will shortly move from his farm on Maple avenue, which he has sold to W. Winters, of New York, and will reside at the Campbell Club House, which he has leased.

At the prayer meeting last evening, Mrs. W. H. Manning was the leader. She spoke from the one hundred and thirty-third Psalm. The singing by Bethune Dunham was greatly enjoyed.

A special meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Baptist church is called for Wednesday, March 11, at the home of Mrs. R. B. Manning to transact important business.

The Young People's Social Club, of South Plainfield, will hold their usual monthly meeting at the home of Leroy Clawson, Clinton avenue, tonight.

Miss Emma Manning has returned from Asbury Park where she has been staying the last week with her sister, Mrs. Voorhees.

Supper for the benefit of Marconnier chauel will be held on March 27 at the residence of Rev. T. Landsdale.

NOT A GODLESS NATION, SAYS JUDGE LANNING.

Judge William M. Lanning, of the United States District Court, Trenton, president of the Presbyterian Brotherhood of New Jersey, the annual convention of which body was held at East Orange yesterday in the Munn Avenue Presbyterian church, declared in his speech to the convention that America was not a godless nation, and had never yet surrendered her faith in the Christian Church. He said that the fabric of the American nation was based on religion, and the obligation of men and nations to a Christian God was recognized.

"America has never yet surrendered her faith in the fundamental principles of the Christian Church," he said. "We have printed on millions of our coins, and we shall, I doubt not, under the authority of a new law, print in the future on millions more of them, the words 'In God We Trust.'"

Senator Proctor Dead.

Redfield Proctor, United States Senator from Vermont, died at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the Champlain apartment house, which he owned, at Washington. His death was due to pneumonia and plurisy.

RIVAL GROCERS IN DUEL; BOTH MAY DIE

Passaic, Mar. 5.—Samuel Zuritsky and Louis Alper, rival grocers, engaged in a terrific fight Tuesday, as a result of which both men may die. When warrants were issued for them by Judge Darlymple, at Passaic, both men were found at their homes under care of physicians.

Alper had a store in Garfield which he sold to Zuritsky, and it is said that Alper entered into an agreement not to open a new store within ten blocks of the store he sold to Zuritsky. A few days ago Alper's wife opened a grocery store within a block of the old one and installed her husband as chief clerk and manager. Zuritsky looked upon this as a violation of the agreement under which the sale was made and there was bad blood between the two men.

They met Tuesday afternoon in a lonely section of Garfield by previous agreement, it is believed, to fight out their differences without witnesses.

From what has been learned of the affair, Alper early in the fight sustained an internal injury, which now threatens to cause his death. Despite it, he fought on and finally knocked Zuritsky down, and either in falling or from the blow Zuritsky's skull was fractured. Half an hour later a friend of Alper's, driving through a street in the neighborhood, came upon him staggering along and supporting himself by fences. Alper was helped into the friend's carriage and taken home, and on the way told of the fight and of leaving Zuritsky helpless. After Alper had been taken home search was made for Zuritsky, and he was removed to his home, where he still lies unconscious.

Alper's wife yesterday afternoon went before Justice Dalyrmple and swore to a complaint against Zuritsky, charging him with assault and battery upon her husband. A little later Zuritsky's brother, David, made the complaint against Alper.

REVERSE UNION COURT; NON-SUIT CALLED MISTAKE.

The Court of Errors filed a memorandum yesterday at Trenton reversing the Union County Circuit Court, which granted a non-suit in the action for damages instituted by Charles Mayer against Louis Kloepfer, an Elizabeth saloon-keeper.

Mayer was adjusting a phonograph in the saloon one Saturday night, when a fight occurred. During the excitement a brindle bulldog belonging to Kloepfer ran out from under a pool table and bit Mayor twice on the leg. He was laid up for some time and sued for damages. The evidence showed that five years ago this dog had bitten two other persons, and it was contended that the owner was aware of its vicious propensities, but let it run loose.

The lower court held that because the dog had been known to be vicious five years before, did not justify the conclusion that the owner knew it was a dangerous animal at the time Mayer was bitten.

The Court of Errors think that was an error, and that Mayer was entitled to have the question of the saloon-keeper's liability submitted to the jury.

LODGES WILL OPPOSE CUT OF SCHOOL TAX.

John M. Thompson, of New Egypt, State Councillor of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics of New Jersey, yesterday officially announced that he would request all the lodges of the State to unite in opposing the Senate bill recently introduced by State Senator Boyd Avis, of Gloucester county, providing for a reduction in the State tax from 2¾ mills to 1 mill on the dollar.

This bill, the head officials of the Mechanics and of the State Teachers' Association say, would cripple the State's educational system more in one year than could be repaired in ten.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Frequently the real estate transfers in New York remind us that the wife of Bishop Henry C. Potter is a woman of vast wealth. The latest report shows that she has taken title to the entire block on Washington Heights, bounded by Broadway and St. Nichols avenue, 171st and 172d streets. The block contains about fifteen lots.

After seventy-two years of continuous work in the ministry of the Southern Presbyterfian church, the Rev. Augus Johnson has just died at Avalon, Texas, in the one-hundredth year of his age. He was probably the oldest minister in the country in active service.

Miss Anne Lynam, private secretary of Representative John Wesley Gaines, of Tennessee, will get $50,000 under the will of her uncle, Michael O'Hara, who died about a month ago in County Meath, Ireland. Her home is at Knoxville, Tenn.

Prof. W. B. Elkin, of the University of Missouri, believes that America will be a veritable heaven on earth within 100 years, and he goes on to tell why in an article which he has written for the American Journal of Sociology.

One of the greatest bequests to a public institution made recently is the gift of $1,000,000 by the late Morris K. Jesup to the American Museum of Natural History, in New York. As the city provides the building, the money is to be used for purchasing specimens.

W. J. Bryan is credited with saying that on searching history he finds that very few men who have run three times for President have been defeated. The moral is obvious.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge is said to have more degrees than any man in Congress.

The National House of Representatives is composed of lawyers, doctors, merchants and representatives of the common people, but there is only one real live actor in that body and his name is Julius Kahn, of California.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Men who drink hard find it easy.

Try to get rich quick, then hunt a job tomorrow.

How a man fools himself when he thinks he is fooling his wife!

Ignorance might be bliss if somebody did not think it his duty to put us wise.

You will be surprised to find how much good there is in the world if you'll sit up and take notice.

Of course men are not vain, but just tell a man of 50 that he doesn't look a day over 30 and watch the effect.

The Pet Squirrel.

The old soldier, propped on his crutch in Independence Square, called: "Here, Buster! Here, Buster!"

Half a dozen squirrels rattled down the bare trees and ran to him, but he drove them away.

"Git!" he said. "I want Buster."

And finally Buster must have appeared, for the veteran allowed the seventh squirrel to run up his crutch and to take nuts from his coat pocket.

"Say, how can you tell one squirrel from another?" a bystander asked. "How do you know that's Buster?"

"By his face, of course, same as you know your friends," said the old soldier. "If you like 'em, you can tell squirrels by their faces, and sheep, and robbins, and even Chinamen."

He Got It.

A New York business house once hung out a card reading:

BOY WANTED.

Many applicants came, none of whom seemed to be just the kind of boy the firm was looking for.

At last a brisk-looking lad entered with the card under his arm. "What are you doing with that card?" asked the man in charge. "Why, I'm the boy," was the reply, "so I just brought the card in." And it is recorded that that boy got the place.

Now, if he had been one of the doubtful kind, or lacking in self-confidence, he would in all probability have failed to get the place, just as the others had. But he had faith and he acted upon it, and he won.—William E. Towne in Nautilus.

Fooled.

A regiment of soldiers was drawn up for church parade in the barrack square, but the church was being repaired and could only hold half of them.

"Sergeant-major," shouted the colonel, "tell all the men who don't want to go to church to fall out on the reverse flank."

Of course a large number quickly and gladly availed themselves of the privilege.

"Now, sergeant-major," said the colonel, "dismiss all the men who did not fall out and march the others to church; they need it most."—London Standard.

An All-Around Man.

William V. McManus, the new president of the Letter Carriers' Association of New York, had been discussing the ideal letter carrier.

With a laugh he ended:

"Yes, the ideal letter carrier needs to be as all-around, as many-sided, as divinely-gifted, as the man a Cincinnati suburbanite advertised for last month.

"The advertisement ran:

"'Wanted—A man able to teach Spanish, water-color painting and the violin, and to look after a bull.'"—Los Angeles Times.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning March 8, 1903.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—The wise use of time.—Eph. v. 15-21.

The expression "redeeming the time" used by the apostle in the paragraph before us is a peculiar one, and the authorized version scarcely expresses its true meaning. In the original it means "buying up for yourselves the opportunity." The idea intended to be conveyed is "that of a merchant who, knowing the value of an article and the good use to which he can put it, buys it up." But the element of time is, however, involved in the buying up or taking advantage of good opportunities. Success or failure depends upon our timeliness in seizing the opportunity to do good or to achieve a great purpose that God has offered to us. "There is a tide in the affairs of men," but we must take it at the flood if we are to win the victory it affords. Otherwise defeat and failure are the result. In a general way the wise use of time is the use of it in such a way as to make the best use of every opportunity that is afforded to us. Time is but another name for opportunity.

The wise use of time is only possible when we realize the importance of time. Throughout the ages the teachers of men have emphasized the vital importance of using time well. It is one of the most valuable assets that God has given to man; but, like every other gift of God, its value will depend upon the use we make of it. We have all the time that any one else in the world has, all the time that there is, but he is indeed a wise man who uses it all to the best advantage. But all should strive to be wise in this respect. "No one should allow a mortgage to be placed upon his opportunities." Time waits for no man. In the strict sense, it can never be redeemed. The man who procrastinates, the man who wastes time, loses that which can never be recalled. The second just passed has already gone into the eternal past and can never return. A monarch may cry, "Millions for an inch of time!" but the only answer is the passing of more time while he vainly cries for it. What we do we must do quickly and promptly, else it never can be done at the moment allotted to it.

The wise use of time is imperative, because it so swiftly and silently passes from us. The Romans had an adage, "Tempus fugit" ("Time flies"), and to the man who uses his time properly it does fly. If time hangs heavy on our hands, if to us it seems to have no wings, we may rest assured that we are not using it well. How silently also does time fly! No bugle call announces its arrival and departure. Well hath the poet said—

With what a gentle foot doth silent Time
Steal on his everlasting journey!

How important, then, the proper and best use of every moment of our time. The use of what we call the "odd moments" may become a mighty factor in our lives. Some men have accomplished more in their odd moments than others in the time they devote to the regular pursuits of life. William Carey, the consecrated cobbler, spent his spare time in drawing on the wall of his shop a map of the world showing in blackness the unsaved parts of the world. How well he cobbled shoes the world little remembered and little cared, but so long as time shall last the product of his odd moments and its subsequent tremendous results will be held in grateful remembrance.

The example of Christ should inspire us to the wise use of time.

With zeal, with energy sublime,
Mark how the Saviour valued time.
The work of centuries appears
Crowded within His three short years.

Richard Baxter's words concerning the way to spend time are worthy of our most serious attention: "Spend your time in nothing which you know must be repented of. Spend it in nothing on which you might not ask the blessing of God. Spend it in nothing which you could not review with a quiet conscience on your dying bed. Spend it in nothing which you might not safely and properly be doing if death should surprise you in the act."

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. lxxxix, 47; xc, 12; Prov. vi, 6-11; Eccl. iii, 1-8; ix, 10; xii, 1; John ix, 4; Rom. xiii, 11-14; II Pet. iii, 7-12; Rev. x, 5, 6.

In the Heart of London.

That well known Endeavorer, Stanley P. Edwards, describes in the Christian Endeavor Times a monthly Christian Endeavor prayer meeting held right in the heart of London at 56 Old Bailey by Christian Endeavorers who are in business in the city. "They meet," he says, "for prayer and fellowship, and many striking testimonies have been given of the helpfulness of these opportunities for meeting, not only at the meetings, but in the business world just beyond."

He tells us that the Endeavorers forming this interesting group were brought together by the wearing of the badge and that without that little advertisement of their membership in Christian Endeavor societies the gathering would never have been formed.

A Double Acrostic.

We find in the Irish Endeavorer the following interesting unfolding of the meaning of the Christian Endeavor badge written by a Dublin Endeavorer:

THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR BADGE should be

Backed up with Calvary Experience. (Gal. vi, 15.)
Animated by a Crisp Enthusiasm. (Col. iii, 23.)
Dominated by Christlike Endurance. (Heb. xii, 3.)
Everywhere Combating Evil. (Eph. iv, 27.)

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

March 8: "Mercy for the merciful." "Forgive us our sins, for we also forgive every one that is indebted to us."

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Passages for reference—Luke xi, 4; xvii, 1-10; Ps. xxvi.

Forgive us our sins, for we also forgive every one that is indebted to us.—Luke xi, 4.

This is the rather startling way in which the American revised version renders this passage. Whatever manner of translation is employed, this sentence in the Lord's Prayer is a crucial one. It is a decisive test of our intention. It is a determining factor in our destiny.

Though justice be thy plea, consider this—
That in the course of justice none of us
Should see salvation; we do pray for mercy;
And that same prayer doth teach us all to render
The deeds of mercy.

In the Old Testament Jehovah is ever represented as God of justice, righteousness, and also God of mercy. No one feature is more prominent in the law as given in Deuteronomy than the insistence on the deeds of mercy. One of the most glaring evils in ancient Israel which brought forth the denunciations of all the great ethical prophets was this lack of mercy in the dealings of the rich with their poor neighbors.

Perhaps no other characteristic of ancient nations was more prominent than their cruelty. In war no mercy was shown the conquered. In worship the offering of human sacrifice stained every land.

The distinguishing feature of the religion of Jehovah was this ethical quality of mercy. It was a difficult task to get men to understand the meaning of justice. It was a longer and harder lesson to train them to deeds of mercy. It seemed to contradict all ideas of strength and to savor of weakness only.

To many at the present time it seems impossible to hold society together if the milder virtues are allowed to control. How often in business are we told that each must look out for himself! The revelations of recent months have shown that in the highest business circles in this the most advanced of nations the men who have been honored and trusted have in many instances been utterly devoid of any consideration for the rights of others. Justice has had no place in their schemes for personal profit, and mercy seems not to have been known to them.

The loss of confidence which led to the recent financial disturbance is directly due to disregard of the most fundamental principles of moral life. If we will not learn in one way we shall be obliged to learn in another that business and society in all their interests are founded on justice, righteousness, and, above all, on mercy.

There is no safety, no stability, to human institutions unless we are observant of this bedrock requirement of consideration for others. The measure you use for others shall be used when you are to receive your pay.

This is not outward, but related to what one is inwardly. The amount of a man's wealth has absolutely nothing to do with the question of a man's deserts. Nor has the ability he possesses to accumulate wealth or direct enterprises any bearing on this matter. One may be highly talented and have immense wealth and still be villainously and mercilessly indifferent to the needs of his fellow men. God will not and men should not allow his wealth and talents to blind them to his real character and deserts.

In your own care keep ever in mind to cultivate sentiments of mercy, and in all your dealings with men let kindness rule. So shall you become like God in character, and the eternal blessedness of rightness and cleanness of soul, of peace and love, shall abide in and rule you. Then shall we assist God to realize our constant prayer, "Thy kingdom come."

Rainy Days.

Does it rain today? Is it dark and gloomy? That is all right. There must be some stormy days. Tomorrow the clouds will have a silvery lining or disappear entirely. Does the sunshine? Enjoy the sunshine. Tomorrow may be bright also. Are you well? Enjoy your health and use it to the best advantage. Are you ill? Then it is a day in which to be patient and endure cheerfully. Are you free from trouble? Then it is a thanksgiving day. Are you carrying heavy burdens for yourself or others? Then it is a day for rolling off your burdens at the foot of the cross.—Louise Heywood.

Words.

Words, merely words, yet how much they mean!
Spoken in jest and spoken in spleen,
Spoken in haste and spoken in woe,
Yet often more crushing than a blow.
Often unkind and often untrue,
Oh, what great mischief mere words can do!
Mischief that nothing can mend or still.
Once said, they must stand, be they good or ill.
So many have wished in deepest pain
That a hasty word were back again!
So many have lost a dear good friend
Saying mean words they did not intend.
Many a heart that's bereft and alone,
Behind the briers that around have grown,
Longs for the words of a bygone day,
When the heart was warm and love held sway—
Longs for the words that it would not hear,
But now in the fight of time grown dear!
Many a grave were long unbroken
But for some words unkindly spoken.
While many a loving word has saved
Vicious souls from the ill they craved,
And desperate ones from suicide—
Oh, the range of words is great and wide!
Words may be cheap, but kind ones are dear
To the heart devoid of other cheer;
Kind words will make a kindly heart.
If the latter at first do not impart
The words of cheer of its own accord.
Surely mere kindness we can afford!
—New York Observer.

By KATE AND VIRGIL D. BOYLES

(Copyright by A. C. McClurg & Co., 1907.)

He leaned back wearily.

Black stood up. He was not lank nor lazy now, nor shuffling. His body was drawn to its full height. In the instant before the spring, Mary, who was sitting close to the attorneys' table, met his glance squarely. She read there what he was about to do. Only a moment their eyes held each other's but it was time enough for a swift message of understanding, of utter dislike, and of a determined will to defeat the man's purpose, to pass from the accusing brown eyes to the cruel ones of the defendant.

Quick as a flash Black seized the chair upon which he had been sitting, sprang clear of the table and his lawyers, and landed close to Mary's side. With his chair as a weapon, he meant to force his way to the nearest window. Mary's dilated. Unhesitatingly she seized the half-emptied glass on the table and dashed the contents full into the prisoner's face. Blinded, he halted a moment in his mad rush. Mary's quick maneuver made Langford's opportunity. He grappled with Black. The crowd went mad with excitement.

The prisoner still retained his chair. When Langford grappled with him, he attempted to bring it down upon the fair head of his antagonist. Mary gasped with dread, but Langford grasped the chair with one muscular hand, wrested it from the desperado's hold and threw it to the floor. The two men locked in a close embrace. Langford's great strength was more than sufficient to hold the outlaw until the dazed officers could do their duty—had he been let alone; but two men, who had been standing near the door when the prisoner made his unexpected leap for liberty, had succeeded in worming their way through the excited crowd, and now suddenly threw themselves upon the ranchman, dragging him back.

"Stand aside or I'll shoot!"

It was a girl's voice, clear and firm. Mary had been the first to realize that Black's friends, not Langford's had joined in the struggle. She snatched her revolver from her cowboy belt—she had not been without either since the Lazy S was burned—and cried out her challenge. Glancing quickly from the gleaming barrel to the determined face of the young girl, the men let go their hold of Langford and fell back precipitately.

Instantly Langford sprang forward, but Black had made good use of his moment of grace. Swinging his arms to the right and left, he had beaten his way to the window, when Langford again seized him, but he hed the advantage this time and he tore himself loose, throwing Langford violently against the window-casing. With his bare, clinched fist he shivered the glass and leaped out—into the arms of Jim Munson.

The officers made gallant plunges through the samped crowd in their efforts to get clear of the room to follow the fugitive. But certain men managed to keep themselves clumsily, but with marvelous adroitness, nevertheless, between the deputies and the doors and windows, so that several moments elapsed before the outside was finally gained.

Meanwhile Jim struggled heroically with the outlaw. Black was far superior to him in weight and strength of limb, but Jim was quick and tough and daring. Expelled from the courtroom, he had been watching through the window. He had seen Mary's quick action and his boss's splendid attack. He had also seen the little "gun play," and his eyes glowed in admiration of "Williston's little girl," though his generous heart ached for love of the woman who was not for him. He saw Black coming. He was ready for him. He grappled with him at once. If the boss or the officers would only come now!

When they did come they found Jim stretched at length on the frozen ground. He sat up slowly.

"You're too late, boys," he said; "the hoss thief was too much for me. He's gone."

It was true. The little street stretched before them still—deserted. Early twilight was coming on. The biting cold struck them broadside. The deputies scattered in vain pursuit.

CHAPTER XX.

The Moving Shadow.

"I'd rather not talk about it to-night. I'm not equal to it. It's too—too—it's devilish, Paul. I don't seem to be able to grasp it. I can't think about it with any coherence. I was sure—so sure."

Gordon was staring moodily out of the window, one arm hanging idly over the back of his chair. He had taken up office room in an empty shop building across the street from the hotel.

"It's so devilish, it's weird," agreed the ranchman. "But your part was great. You vanquished Jesse Black. That is more than we hoped for a week ago. Is it your fault or mine that those fool deputies acted like flies in tangle-foot and went spraddle-fingered when something was expected of them? We have nothing to do with a little thing like a broken window-pane."

There was an ugly cut on his forehead caused by his violent contact with the sharp edge of the window-casing. He was pale, but he had lost none of the old faith in himself or in his power to dominate affairs in the cattle country. Defeat was intolerable to him. He refused to bow his head to it. To-day's check only made him the more determined, if that were possible, to free the land of its shame.

"I'll pull myself together again, never fear," said Gordon. "Just give me to-night. You see that's not all. I've something else to think about, too, now that I have time. It takes a fellow's nerve away to have everything that is worth while drop out at once. But I've rallied before. I know I'm beastly selfish not to talk to you to-night, but——"

"Dick," interrupted Langford, bluntly, "did she turn you down?"

"I never asked her. She is going back—home—next week."

"If you let her."

"You don't quite unerstand, Paul," said Gordon, a little wearily. "She said she could never live in this country—never. She would die here. Could I ask her after that? Could I ask anyway, and be a man? I know. She would just pine away."

"Girls don't pine—only in imagination. They are tougher than you give them credit for."

"But somehow, Mary seems different," said Gordon, thoughtfully. He surprised a flush in his friend's cheek. "You deserve her, old man, you'll be very happy. She is the right kind. I congratulate you with all my heart."

An odd lump came into Langford's throat. Despite Gordon's vigorous and healthful manhood, there seemed always a certain pathos of life surrounding him.

"I haven't asked her, either," confessed Paul. "But you have made it possible for me to do so—to-night—to-morrow—whenever I can find a chance. Take my advice, old man, don't let your girl go. You'll find she is the kind after all. You don't know her yet."

Paul left the room, and Gordon paced the narrow confines of his shabby office—back and forth—many times. Then he threw himself once more into his chair. The hours were long. He had all night to think about things. When morning came, all his weakness would be over. No one should ever again see him so unmanned as Paul had seen him tonight. And when Louise should go—his arms fell nervelessly to the table. He remained thus a moment, his eyes fixed and unseeing, and then his head dropped heavily upon his arms.

Alone in the night Louise awoke. She found it impossible to fall asleep again. She was nervous. It must be something in the atmosphere. She tossed and tossed and flounced and flounced. She counted up to thousands. She made her mind a blank so often that she flew to thinking to escape the emptiness of it. Still her eyes were wide and her mind fairly a-quiver with activity. She slipped out of bed. She would tire herself into sleep. She even dressed. She would show herself. If she must be a midnight prowler, she would wear the garments people affect when they have their thoughts and energies on matters mundane. Drawing the oil stove close to the window fronting the street, she sank into a chair, drew a heavy shawl over her shoulders, put her feet on the tiny fender and prepared to fatigue herself into oblivion.

A light shone from the window across the way. He was still at work, then. He ought not to sit up so late. No wonder he was looking so worn out lately. He ought to have some one to look after him. He never thought of himself. He never had time. She would talk to him about keeping such late hours—if she were not going back to God's country next week. Only next week! It was too good to be true—and yet she sighed. But there was no other way. She ought never to have come. She was not big enough. He, too, had told her she was not the kind. Doubtless, he knew. And she didn't belong to anybody here. She was glad she was going back to where she belonged to somebody. She would never go away again.

Was that Gordon passing back and forth in front of the window? Something must be troubling him. Was it because Jesse Black had escaped? But what a glorious vindication of his belief in the man's guilt had that afternoon been given! Nothing lacked there. Why should he be sorry? Sometimes, she thought he might care—that day crossing the river for instance; but he was reserved—he never said—and it was much, much better that he did not care, now that she was going away and would never come back. There was nothing in all the world that could make her come back to this big, bleak, lonesome land where she belonged to nobody. But she was sorry for him. He looked sad and lonely. He didn't belong to anybody here, either, yet he wasn't going to run away as she was. Well, but he was a man, and men were different.

And now she noticed that his head had sunk down onto his arms. How still he sat! The minutes passed away. Still he sat motionless, his face buried.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

What Stopped Him.

"No," said Diogenes, "it wasn't because I dispaired of finding an honest man that I gave up; but the trust kept raising the price of oil on me."

PHILLIPSBURG STIRRED.

Council to Investigate Charges Made Against Mayor and Chief of Police.

Phillipsburg, March 5.—Probably no greater interest was ever manifested in councilmanic matters in the town than was evident at the regular session of Town Council Monday evening. About one hundred and fifty residents occupied the available space in council chambers and crowded about the cloakroom and main entrance during the proceedings.

Mayor Joseph H. Firth was not present, and Vice-President Snyder presided over the meeting. The charge recently made against Chief of Police Edward Gorges that he unwarrantly freed two prisoners, and the general protest which followed the action of Mayor Firth in disposing of the charge was the important question before the governing body of the town. The whole matter now stands in line for investigation at the hands of Council as a committee of the whole, at an adjourned meeting, to be held Friday evening. An attempt was made to unload the police troubles on the police committee of the Council but, after a lively debate, the move was defeated.

The Girl He Tired Of.

She was distressingly punctual at every appointment.

She agreed meekly to everything he said.

She pouted sulkily if he looked at other girls.

She was insanely jealous of every women who figured in his past, and grudged him all other friends.

She told him all she did, thought, said, hoped and experienced, and expected equal and continuous outpourings of the soul from him.

If he stayed away she called him to account.

She wrote to him too copiously and too frequently.

She reproached him because his ardor didn't equal hers.

She never gave him the fun of wondering if she really did care for him.

She made her adoration a sure thing, thus robbing it of all the ginger.

She assumed a proprietary air, subtly announcing to all parties: "Behold! He is mine!"

She rattled the chains so obviously that his one thought was to escape while there was yet time.—Exchange.

Proper Use of Cold Cream.

To say that the use of cold cream as a face cleaner makes the hair grow is an exploded fallacy, says a noted skin specialist. "There is no reason to leave the cream on the face overnight. Five minutes is plenty of time. Then rub it off with a soft cloth and wash in warm water, using a dash of cold before drying. This method keeps the skin cmooth and clean without enlarging the pores and cultivating blackheads, nor does it make the face delicate for winter winds. If grease made the hair grow so easily as some people believe, would there be any baldheaded men or would women use so much false hair? Think about that and all your fears will be set at rest."

"Kitchen Minded."

This epithet is applied to women who are too much engrossed with domestic affairs. The world is evidently meant as a reproach. No doubt there are women who give too much time to the kitchen, as there are others who give too little. Who will undertake to decide just how much time is enough? That a woman should grow like the place in which she spends most of her time is not strange. She might become parlor minded, but many of us, like George Eliot, enjoy a clean kitchen best of all. What we all need is broad contact with life along with our specialty, so that we may always be human minded.—Circle.

Keep Bills.

It is weel to keep every bill, paid or not, for an indefinite period. One never knows when dishonesty may be attempted. The steel bill files are all very well, although they are not remarkable for their neatness or order, but a better way is to use a large scrap book and paste the bills in alphabetical order, according to the names of those by whom they are preferred, therein. If possible, it would be well to prepare the leaves like those of an address book, so that it would be easy to find any bill at any time. Of coure this is only a cheaper homemade substitute for a regular letter file, which is the very best thing for the purpose.

Have You Ever—

Seen anybody turn green with envy?

Notice a sailor sweeping the horizon

Seen a blushing maiden drop her eyes?

Heard a villian hiss?

Seen a man drop in his tracks?

Watched anybody embracing an opportunity?

Seen any one's eyes flash?

Discovered any one who was frozen with terror

Honestly, have you ever?

Sleeping in Silk.

Silk bedclothes are the latest fad. Sheets and pillow cases are made of the purest silk, and the pillowslips are gorgeously embroidered. Of course, only very rich people can afford to indulge in the luvury, for the shets cost anywhere from $75 to $250 a pair, according to the amount of embroidery on them. The silk used, which has, of course, to be especially woven to the required width, is generally surah or China, the former being the most expensive.

BAYONNE RECORDER HAS NEW COURT PROCEDURE.

Hyman Lazarus Excludes Policemen and Keeps No Record in Juvenile Cases.

Bayonne, March 5.—Recorder Hyman Lazarus, in a speech before the Men's Club of the First Reformed church Monday night, said he was in favor of dealing with juvenile delinquents as they do in Indianapolis courts, where every one is excluded from the courtroom except the defendant, the complainant and the parents or guardian of the boy.

He said he would even exclude the policemen, since he had decided children fear the officer.

"I have carried my beliefs to a practical conclusion," said Mr. Lazarus, "for yesterday I excluded the policemen in several juvenile cases. I propose to keep no record of any kind in juvenile cases, a proceeding that I believe in after life will prove of great benefit to the defendant, since his childhood's errors cannot be brought against him if he seeks some position of trust in mature years."

Mr. Lazarus said he violated no statute by the departure from customary methods, since no law exists establishing a juvenile court in this city. Police court judges who conduct juvenile courts do so by assuming jurisdiction, he said. Mr. Lazarus further declared he proposes to introduce a bill in the Legislature this term to increase the power of police court magistrates, by providing that in cases of petit larceny and assault and battery the magistrate may decide such cases, thus lightening the labors of the grand juries.

When the right to decide such cases was opposed by prosecutors of this State, he held, it was because the prosecutors were then on a fee system, but that reason no longer exists, and there is need of less pressure on the upper courts.

Mr. Lazarus will address the Bayonne Liquor Dealers' Association Wednesday afternoon, asking their co-operation in having habitual drunkards refused liquor. He favored fineing all such offenders who sell, he said, half the fine to be given to the drunkard's family and half to the poormaster. He says an old blue law never repealed will enable him to do this.

PRIMARY ELECTION BILL'S DEFEAT IS PREDICTED.

There is a lineup against the primary election bill that was introduced Monday night in the House and Senate, at Trenton, as prepared by the commission named by Governor Fort. The death of the bill seems pretty certain.

The measure would make all primaries open and under official supervision and at county expense. It is intended to affect the primaries for delegates to the convention that in turn are to select the delegates of New Jersey to the Republican and Democratic national conventions.

The plan of the opponents is to place their opposition on the ground that the smaller counties are without the necessary money to pay for the primaries, and that there should be some other provision as to expenses. There will be long arguments. Hearings will be demanded. It will be necessary for the call for the primaries to go forth not later than March 18, and when that date arrives, it seems pretty certain that the bill will still be in teh air. The cost of a primary election to the twenty-one counties would be about $125,000. The parties must bear all evnense if the bill doesn't pass.

Revokes Woman's License.

At the annual meeting of the Summit Board of Excise yesterday renewals of hotel licenses were granted to Robert J. Murphy, Halcyon House; William Woestendeik, Summit Hotel, and August C. Haar, Spring Lake Hotel. In revoking the license of Catherine Morrissey, President De Coster delivered a seathing denunciation of the manner in which her hotel, in Chestnut avenue, which had been licensed for forty years, had been conducted.

Postoffice Haven for Loving Couples.

New Brunswick, March 5.—Spooning of loving couples in the lobby of the postoffice has become such a nuisance that signs have been placed on the walls forbidding lounging or loafing, and the janitor has been given strict instructions to "keep 'em moving." If this does not break up the practise complaints will be made against a number of young people who have given the postoffice attaches the most trouble.

Of Course.

An individual applied to the cab company for a situation.

"Do you know how to drive?"

"Yes, sir."

"You know that you must be polite with all your passengers?"

"Ah!"

"And honest. For example, what would you do if you should find in your cab a pocketbook containing £5,000?"

"Nothing at all; I should live on my income."—Tid-Bits.

SCHOOLBOY ATHLETES TRAIN FOR TRACK MEET

Local schoolboys have begun a rigorous course of track training for the interscholastic meet to be held Thursday afternoon, March 19, at the Y. M. C. A. Four schools will be represented, the Westfield High School, Plainfield High School, North Plainfield High School and Leal's School.

The events of the meet will be the fifteen yard dash, standing broad jump, running high jump, three standing broad jumps, high jump, 12-pound shot put, and one mile potato race. Of these events, perhaps the most interest is being taken in getting relay teams for the mile potato race. Each of the competing schools is to enter this event and each of the four team members will run 440 yards. Each member of the winning relay team will receive a silver medal, and members of the team winning second honors will receive bronze medals. A handsome silver cup is to be awarded to the school winning the most points in the meet. Winners of events will receive silver medals and bronze medals will be awarded to those winning second and third places. The entries are being received by R. J. Lawrence, and close Friday, March 12.

At the Plainfield High School, a call for track candidates was issued several weeks ago, and a big squad of likely material is holding regular practise in the school gymnasium and in the city park. The boroughites, too, have a string of candidates out for practise regularly, and though there is less material to draw from, "across the brook," are are doing consistent work. At Leal's School, nearly all the members have responded to the call for candidates, and the practises are being held at the Y. M. C. A. The Westfield school has always maintained a track team, and has a custom of an annual inter-class track meet. The Westfielders are reported to be strong in the jumps.

SHORT SPORTS.

The Plainfield High School basketball five will meet the team from the New York School of Commerce at the High School gymnasium tomorrow afternoon at 3:30. The team ranks among the strongest of the metropolitan schools, and the local boys had a special practise game with the senior five at the school yesterday afternoon to prepare for tomorrow's contest.

"Yale" leads the basketball league of the Y. M. C. A. boys' department, with a record of four games won and one lost. "Princeton" ranks second, having lost two out of five games played. "Cornell" and "Harvard" are tied for third, with three defeats out of five, and "Columbia" is in last place with but a single victory in four games.

The boys' department gym class of the Y. M. C. A. will hold an indoor track meet at the Association morning with the Hope chapel boys. The events will begin at 10 o'clock.

Roll-Off Tomorrow Night.

The roll-off of the tie between the Bismarck and Brian Boru bowling teams, in the five-man tourney, will take place at Johnny Campbell's alleys tomorrow night. The contest was put over because of the injury to Captain Edward Britton, of the Bismarcks. The teams will line up as follows: Bismarcks: Britton, Muir, F. McInerney, Runyon and Stout; Brian Borus, Radin, Ackor, Herbert, Kuehn and McMahon.

Manhattan Bowlers Win.

The Turn Verein team of Sterling bowlers lost three straight games on the alleys of the Manhattan Hotel last night, when Alfred DeNise's team won the second match of a series of three. The Sterling five won the first game, and the "rubber" will be bowled in two weeks on the Sterling alleys. Alexander Bullamy, John Joyce, George Baldwin, Patrick McDonough and Alfred DeNise comprised the local team.

SEEK CAUSE OF BLAZE WHERE CHILDREN PERISH.

Cleveland, Ohio, arch 5.—Local, county and State officials today are rigidly investigating the assertion of L. B. Gardner, a member of the school board, that yesterday's terrible fire which destroyed the North Collinwood village school, and in which 178 pupils and two teachers lost their lives, was of incendiary origin.

Mr. Gardiner is positive the fire was an incendiary one. In that portion of the building where it was discovered there are no electric light wires, there was no waste or rags; there was no direct means of creating heat. It is therefore believed by Mr. Gardiner anw by others that three little girls who were seen running from the basement, if they are alive and can be found, may throw some light on the cause of the awful tragedy.

It was at first supposed that the fire originated from an overheated furnace or an exploded boiler in the basement of the schoolhouse. It has been established that there was no explosion, and the janitor of the school, Fred Herter, three of whose children died within arm's length of their father, declares that it could not have come from the furnace.

Yesterday in Collinwood was comparatively warm, as were the days immediately preceding it, and Herter declares that he maintained the fires at a lower rate than usual throughout the early part of the morning. Fearing he had not sufficiently warmed the building, he was, according to his story, on his way to open the furnace drafts and increase the heat when he was met by the three little girls running from the basement, who told him there was a fire below.

Britton Out of Hospital.

Edward Britton, of Orange place, who was struck by a freight train and hurled to the platform of the North Avenue station last Wednesday night, has been dsicharged from Muhlenberg Hospital. He is rapidly recovering and is not in danger of losing the sight of an eye as was stated in another local paper last night. Britton asserts also that he was not attempting to jump on the freight when he was thrown but that he was struck by it as he was about to board a passenger train.

SENATE ADJOURNS.

Only Three Bills Introduced at Yesterday's Session.

The State Senate adjourned yesterday afternoon until next Monday. But three bills were introduced. They are:

No. 195, by Mr. Wakelee—Amends the general swamp and meadow land drainage act by requiring notice of improvement to be served on affected municipalities.

No. 196, by Mr. Leavitt—Appropriates $125,000 for the construction of a new wing on the State Prison grounds, to be used for women prisoners only.

No. 197, by Mr. Ackerman—Amend section 169 of the Orphans' Court act of June 14, 1898, relative to the distribution of surplusage estate of intestates.

FIGHTS CROSBY BILL.

Good Templar Says Ward Feature Is Unconstitutional.

Edward S. Black, representing the International Order of Good Templars, has filed a letter with Chairman Moxon objecting to the Crosby local option bill, on the ground that the provision for taking the vote by wards is unconstitutional. In his letter he says:

"I desire to enter my solemn protest against the passage of a local option bill that will simply be playing into the hands of the brewers and saloonkeepers, for I feel assured that the ward feature of the Crosby bill will not stand the test of the courts, and will in the end do the temperance cause more harm than good."

NON-GRADUATES PLAN DINNER.

Prominent citizens of Montclair who are not college graduates are planning a dinner which will be unique in the social annals of the town. The dinner will be conducted by a number of the town's prominent business men who have never known any alma mater except the cold, cruel world, but they will have as their guests a score of more of prominent college graduates, and nearly every one of the big seats of learning in the United States will be represented at the unique social function, according to the plans already formulated.

Oratory will not be confined to the hosts, for the college men will be given an opportunity to demonstrate just how much the higher education has done in the way of developing eloquence. Some interesting speeches are expected.

The dinner is inspired by the epidemic of college men's dinners that have been given in this section of New Jersey lately.

BOY HELD AS HIGHWAY THIEF.

On the charge of having held up, at the point of a revolver, and robbed John Golden, a former member of the Newark police force, William Schnell, sixteen years old, was arraigned in police court at Elizabeth yesterday morning and released on bail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

The alleged hold-up occurred at Fourth and Trumbull streets, Elizabeth. According to the story told by Golden, he was passing along the street on his way home, when a young man, believed to be Schell, sprang out from behind a large bill board and, putting the revolver against Golden's head, demanded his money. At the same instant three other boys appeared from behind the billboard and went through Golden's pockets, relieving him of his watch and money. Schell denied having had anything to do with the hold-up and robbery, but admitted that he was in the vicinity at the time.

TAFT'S PLATFORM IS OUTLINED BY OHIO

The Ohio Republican convention adjourned yesterday adopting Secretary Taft's platform, declaring for him for the Presidency and nominating a State ticket. Here are the principal points in the platform:

Commercial and industrial liberty.
Individualism as against socialism.
Competition as against monopoly.
Government control as against government ownership.
Protection of both labor and capita..
Compensation for injured employes of the government.
Re-enactment of the employers' liability act.
Limitation in the exercise of the use of the injunction.
A greater merchant marine and an adequate navy.
Generous pensions.
Inland waterways.
Health agencies under national head.
Revision of the tariff, insuring protection.
A sound financial policy.
Civil and political rights of the negro in every State.
Speedy completion of the Panama Canal.
Popular government in the Philippines.
Expansion of American influence.
Reduction of representation in Congress and the Electoral College in all States where white and colored citizens are disfranchised.
Commendation of the Roosevelt administration.

This is the ticket nominated:

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Fred Canfield, of Somerville, has been visiting friends in town for several days.

Miss Adele Stewart, of Brooklyn, has returned home after a visit with Plainfield friends.

Mr. and Mrs. John Emmons, of Jersey City, spent yesterday with relatives in Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Schuyler, of Belvidere avenue, are in New Orleans to attend the Mardi Gras.

The Misses Minnie and Marie Siedentop have removed from West Second street to 119 Lafayette place.

Mrs. Hannah Flanders, of Grove street, has returned from Atlantic City, where she has been stopping a few weeks for her health.

The Misses LaBoyteaux, formerly of North Plainfield, have been the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Moore, of West Front street.

Dr. W. H. Anthony, house physician at Muhlenberg Hospital, has been off duty several days suffering from an abscess behind the ear.

President R. I. Tolles, of Westervelt avenue, who has been kept at home by an injury to his knee, was able to go out yesterday for the first time since the accident.

Mrs. Percy W. Vail and daughter, Thora, of Pearl street, sailed this morning on the steamship United States, of the Scandinavian-American line, for Copenhagen, Denmark, to visit her parents.

Miss Florence House, of this city, was a guest at the wedding on Tuesday afternoon in the South Street Presbyterian church, Morristown, of Miss Lucy Wolf Marsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Marsh, and Dr. Noel Bleecker Leggett, of New York.

GOVERNOR WILL END FIGHT IN ATLANTIC.

Governor Fort is expected to end the Atlantic county fight for Prosecutor by sending a nomination to the Senate next Monday night or Tuesday morning. It is probable he will nominate a man not yet mentioned in connection with the place and that the appointment will be a good one.

Senator Wilson, of Atlantic county, was chagrined that the appointment was not made this week. He said yesterday: "I have fired my last gun. I will stand for no one excepting Wootton. I don't know how the latter stands."

Mr. Wootton, who now is city solicitor of Atlantic City, is opposed by the anti-organization forces of the county. Up to this, the warring factions have refused to compromise on any one and it is now believed the Governor will pick an entirely new man for the place.

Freight Train Riders Arrested.

A crowd of boys out on a freight train expedition, stopped off at South Plainfield yesterday and attracted attention to themselves by setting fire to a pile of railroad ties and annoying trainmen. They were pounced upon by Detective Jenkins, of the Lehigh Valley force, and Marshal Reilly, of South Plainfield, who captured the following: George Washington, aged 15; Russell Brown, 16; John Harrington, 16; Albert Margen, 17; all of Newark. The prisoners were taken to New Brunswick to await a hearing.

FORMER SENATOR SMITH CAN'T BE AT DAVIS FEAST

City Clerk Michael I. Fagen, of Jersey City, will preside at the banquet to be given to that enthusiastic Mryanite, Robert Davis, in the Columbian Club, Jersey avenue, and Bright City, at Jersey City, tonight. Mr. Fagen is chairman of the executive committee of the Hudson County Democratic committee, which is tendering the dinner to Mr. Davis in honor of his sixtieth birthday, which is next Friday.

Mr. Davis has requested the committee to make the event a love feast by inviting to it several persons between whom and Mr. Davis there has been friction.

Among these persons thus invited is former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., of Newark. An invitation to Mr. Smith was dispatched by special messenger to Newark. City Counsel James Nugent, of Newark, Mr. Smith's right hand man, was also invited. Yesterday City Clerk Fagen received a short note from Senator Smith, regretting that an engagement he had made some time ago to attend a dinner in the Krueger Auditorium would keep him in Newark that night. He wished Mr. Davis many happy returns of the day.

William B. Gourley, of Paterson, former chairman of the State Democratic committee, does not appear to have been invited.

"JOKE" PROSTRATES WOMAN.

Mrs. Benjamin F. Lee, of Earle place, Nutley, and a number of her friends are endeavoring to find a cruel joker who called Mrs. Lee on the telephone last night and told her that her husband had been killed in Jersey City. Mrs. Lee, who has been ill for several days, was much affected by the message, and with a friend began preparations to have the body brought home.

In the meantime another friend of the family got into communication with the firm with which Mr. Lee is connected and learned that the report was a hoax.

Mrs. Lee has been prostrated since the occurrence.

District Court Jurisdiction.

A bill has been introduced in the Legislature providing that the jurisdiction of the district court shall be raised to $500. At present the limit is $300.

The roll-off of the tie between Cranford and Roselle Casino for second place in the Central Journal Bowling League tournament, will take place on the Park Club alleys tomorrow night.

—Because of repairs being made to the clock at headquarters, the fire gong failed to give the customary toot at noon today. It may not blow at 5 o'clock this afternoon for the same reason.

Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, will speak at the meeting of the Rescue Mission in the W. C. T. U. rooms, Madison avenue, tonight.

Miss Kittie Southwick, of Somerville, is the guest of Mrs. Lewis E. Weaver, of Orchard place.

ADVERTISING PLAINFIELD

The Board of Trade to Obtain More Publicity, Using Metropolitan Papers.

TO ENTERTAIN THE MINISTERS.

"Seeing Plainfield" Tour for M. E. Conference Members—Talk About Tunnel Facilities.

The Board of Trade at its meeting last night decided to spend $250 in advertising Plainfield and its advantages in the New York Sunday Herald and World and Brooklyn Eagle. A report on the matter was presented by E. F. Feickert, of the publicity committee. He said that the advertisement now appearing in The Suburbanite had been printed in pamphlet form and was ready for distribution. The committee had 10,000 copies printed and believed that a wide circulation of them would be of great benefit to the city.

The question of advertising in the New York subway was referred to but Mr. Feicket said that this sort of publicity would cost $200 a month and he did not believe that the board cared to spend that amount of money.

There was an animated discussion regarding the probability of Plainfielders being able to reach New York through a subway under the North river, and it was decided that Mr. Herr should confer with Mayor C. J. Fisk, whose firm financed the McAdoo tunnel, with a view to ascertaining whether the New Jersey Central is to have the advantage of the underground route. Mr. Herr spoke at some length on the subject and said that as far as he was concerned personally he would not want to remain in Plainfield if the quicker method of transportation was not to be given to residents of the city.

In speaking of the matter, Dr. A. F. VanHorn said that he had talked with persons high in authority and was given assurances that the New Jersey Central would have the use of an underground route to New York.

Announcement was made by President H. W. Marshall that the Newark Conference of the Methodist church is to meet here April 1-7, and Rev. A. C. McCrea, pastor of the First M. E. church, who is preparing a souvenir book of Plainfield for the occasion, desired that the board take a page advertisement in this book to set forth the advantages of the city. The scheme was thought to be a good one and $10 was appropriated for the purpose.

It was also suggested by Mr. Marshall that a committee of five be appointed for the purpose of assisting in entertaining the ministers while in the city. "Seeing Plainfield" by automobiles wae mentioned as an excellent plan and Mr. Marshall said that no doubt a number of autoists would be glad to make such trips several afternoons during the week A. E. Force was appointed chairman of the committee, and other members asked to serve are J. V. E. Vanderhoef and E. C. Deal. The other two members will be appointed later.

The disgraceful condition of sidewalks in the business part of the city was again referred to, this time by A. E. Force and he believed that active steps should be taken to have walks and curbing put to grade. The attention of City Engineer Gavett will be called to the matter. In this connection Gustave Meissner, of Watchung avenue, spoke of the narrow sidewalks throughout the city and suggested that the board might do a good work by advocating improvements along this line.

Sunday-School Officers Elected.

At the annual teachers meeting of the Sunday-school of the First Baptist church held last evening in the lecture room, the following officers were re-elected for the ensuing year: Superintendent, George H. Batchelor; secretary, Raymond D. Carver; treasurer, Samuel P. Case; librarian, Benjamin J. Shreve. Routine business and an expression of appreciation of the past services of the officers preceded the election.

Somerville Hotel Sold.

The County Hotel, Somerville's oldest hostelry, was sold yesterday to Jacob Bailey, of Netcong, Morris county, who will take possession on Monday, March 16. George Schenck and wife, who have conducted the business for many years, have purchased the residence of former Judge Williamson in Somerville and will move there. Mr. Schenck will continue in charge of the livery connected with the hotel.

DEMOCRATS PRAISE DAVIS

Jas. E. Martine Among Those Who Celebrate Sixtieth Anniversary of Leader.

PLAINFIELDER LAUDS BRYAN.

Grover Cleveland and James Smith, Jr., Send Telegrams of Regret—Some Big Politicians Are Present.

Congressman James A. Hamill was the speaker of the evening at the banquet tendered to Robert Davis, of Jersey City, last night at the Columbia Club in that city by the Hudson County Democratic Committee. Today Mr. Davis is sixty years old, and the banquet was in celebration of this event. Tickets were limited to the members of the committee and a few local and out-of-town Democrats. Covers were laid for 350 guests.

Mr. Davis, with Toastmaster Michael J. Fagen and the speakers, occupied seats on the stage. The speakers included State Committee Chairman Robert S. Hudspeth, Congressman Hamill, Assemblyman Joseph Tumulty, James E. Martine and Joseph M. Norman.

Congressman Hamill told of Mr. Davis' career in politics and his success as Democratic leader of Hudson county. Mr. Davis responded in an appropriate address.

Mayor Whitpen, who was not scheduled for a speech, occupied a seat in the stage close to Mr. Davis. At the conclusion of his remarks Mr. Davis turned to Mayor Whitpen and presented him with a handsome basket of flowers that had been among the the floral offerings of the guest of honor. The incident elicited applause.

Assemblyman Tumulty told of some interesting events in Mr. Davis' career, and touched briefly on the present political situation.

Mr. Martine discussed politics, State and national, and incidentally put in a good word for his friend, Colonel William J. Bryan. He also lauded Davis.

State Committee Chairman Hudspeth, who had attended the Krueger dinner at Newark, was warmly greeted when he arose to speak. He told of his friendship for Mr. Davis, whom he had known nearly all his life, and described him as an ideal political leader. Mr. Hudspeth said the Democratic party was in splendid condition, and that the utmost harmony prevailed in the ranks.

William J. Bryan, Grover Cleveland and former Senator James Smith, Jr., who were among the invited guests, sent letters or telegrams regretting inability to be present. Among the out-of-town guests were Senators Silzer and Gebhardt, John Dullard, General Dennis Collins, and Sheriff Foley, of New York. In the course of his remarks Mr. Davis defended Hudson county Democrats and refuted the charge that Hudson was not loyal to Frank S. Katzenbach in the last campaign.

QUIT 'PLAINS WITHOUT PRESENTING RESIGNATION

Daniel T. Hendrickson, whose resignation as supervising principal of the Scotch Plains schools was demanded at a meeting of the Board of Education Wednesday night, has left Scotch Plains, as told in The Daily Press yesterday. He did not wait to hand in his letter of resignation, but left town that day. His belongings are to be sent to his home at Port Monmouth.

Hendrickson's resignation was demanded when the board found out that he was negotiating for several hundred dollars worth of loans, and owed many Scotch Plains people. The attention of the board was called to the matter by one of the teachers at School No. 1, from whom he attempted to borrow money. The pedagogue came to Scotch Plains two years ago, and has been boarding with Mrs. Frank Hossinger, opposite the Baptist church. He told several 'Plains people that his home is in Port Monmouth, where his wife lives, and where he says he owns property. No steps were taken by the authorities to prevent his departure.

Funeral of Miss Henehan.

The funeral services of Miss Catherine Henehan, a servant employed at the home of William Sandford on East Front street, who was found dead there yesterday morning, will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock from the home of Charles McCarthy, 219 Manson place, and from St. Mary's church at 10 o'clock. The burial will be in Calvary Cemetery, Brooklyn.

A One Session Day.

On account of the storm, there was but one session at the public schools of city and borough.

COLLEGE SMOKER PLANS

PROMISE BIG TIME AT CASINO.

Vaudeville and Musical Team Engaged—Luncheon to Be Served—Merry-making to the Limit a Certainty.

Henry L. Hall, who has always been a leading spirit in social functions and in fact anything that pertains to the advancement of the interst of Plainfield, has been chosen as toastmaster for the college smoker to be held at the Casino, Friday night, March 13. Good music, good fellows and a good time is guaranteed every college man who attends. The committee has arranged many novel features which will have to be seen to be appreciated. As an inkling of what may be expected, it is said that the program will call for a laugh every other minute.

There will be no set speeches, everything to be spontaneous and extemporaneous. Anyone who introduces the subject of hard times or attempts to be serious will promptly "get the hook."

The Casino, as before, will be profusely decorated with national and college colors. The committee has discovered representatives in Plainfield of fifty-eight colleges and there will be slighted. Last year's arrangement will be followed, that is the men will sit around small tables. This will afford an opportunity for the graduates of different colleges to gather in groups to their liking.

A quartet of vaudeville singers and musicians have been engaged for the occasion and at 10 o'clock supper will be served. The committee has worked hard to make the smoker bigger and better than ever and to do so it is absolutely necessary that it have the co-operation of every college man in Plainfield and North Plainfield. Four hundred and fifty invitations have been sent out and within a few days one hundred and fifty replies have been received. Owing to the limited amount of time left and in order to provide for everyone, it is imperative that all who have not replied do so at once, either to Owen H. Fleming, 1012 Park avenue, or Lewis A. Williams, 104 East Ninth street.

The second postals sent out today read as follows: "Remember: The Time—9 by the evening clock. The Place—The Casino, Arlington avenue and Seventh street. The Date—Friday, the 13th."

Robert Murray Surprised!

In honor of the fifty-first anniversary of his birthday, a company of friends gave Robert Murray a surprise party at his home 726 West Front street, last night. During the evening Mr. Murray was presented with a handsome silver headed silk umbrella and a number of other gifts. The evening was spent in song and story and refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Murray. Before the festivities were concluded everybody joined in singing "Auld Lang Syne," and "He's a Jolly Good Fellow," and as the guests departed all wished Mr. Murray many [illegible] returns of the day.

Aged Man Beaten to Death.

Jeremiah Peterson, eighty years old, died at his home at Millville yesterday from wounds in his head and neck received on Sunday morning. He regained consciousness last night for a few moments, and murmured, "They took my money." He was not able to give details of the assault. Police Chief Biggs says a former convict left Millville on Sunday, and he has asked officials in surrounding cities and towns to watch for him.

Y. M. C. A. Anniversary.

The twenty-seventh anniversary of the Newark Y. M. C. A. will be celebrated in Wallace Hall Sunday afternoon, when Governor Fort will preside. Rev. Dr. J. M. Meeker, presiding elder of the Methodist Episcopal church, will be the speaker. There will be music by the Wallace Hall Orchestra, assisted by Edwin Wickenhoefer, violinist. Both men and women are cordially invited.

D. A. R. Elect Officers.

At the annual meeting of the New Jersey Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, at Trenton, Ellen Mecum, of Salem, was reelected State regent. Other officers elected were: Vice-regent, Mrs. Charles B. Yardley, of East Orange; vice-president-general, Mrs. G. Gaylord Putnam, of Elizabeth.

New Members for Orchestra.

Several members of the Y. M. C. A. boys' department have been added to the State orchestra, composed of members of the boys' departments of various associations in New Jersey. Philip Van Arsdale is leader of the orchestra.

FLAMES DAMAGE HOUSE

Lighted Candle Supposed to be Responsible for Fire at A. B. Steven's Residence.

LOSS IS ESTIMATED AT $3,000.

Thought That Candle In Hands of Mrs. Steven Came in Contact With Clothing In the Garret.

Damage to the extent of $3,000 was occasioned through fire at the home of A. R. Steven, of West Eighth street, near Grant avenue, yesterday afternoon. The flames originated in the upper part of the house and were confined to three rooms, the large loss resulting from water pouring down on elaborated walls and hard wood floors. The department worked an hour before the blaze was finally put out.

The fire was discovered by neighbors who saw flames bursting through the roof. A still alarm was turned in and while the apparatus was on the way box 79, at Grant avenue and Eighth street, was pulled. At the first investigation the cause of the blaze seemed to be a mystery but Mrs. Steven afterward recalled that early in the afternoon she had gone to the attic to get something and used a lighted candle in her search. It is thought an article of clothing hanging on a nail became ignited from it as she brushed by.

The house was only recently built by Manning & McIntyre and Mr. Stephen purchased it from them two months ago. The furniture in the rooms to which the flames were confined was removed before it suffered any damage. The water poured in caused the walls and floors to bulge and it will prove costly to have repairs made. The loss is covered by insurance.

CONFESSION BEARS OUT JUDGE RUNYON'S SIZE-UP

Following a scrap in a Watchung avenue tailoring shop, yesterday afternoon, Stanley Paulock, proprietor of the place, and John H. M. Loving, colored, were arrested by Patrolman Kelley. Paulock accused Loving of the theft of a watch from his place three months ago while the colored man charged the tailor with assault.

When Judge Runyon took hold of the mix-up this morning, Paulock claimed that Loving had entered his place yesterday and that he noticed the watch. He demanded to know where Loving had secured it and the argument followed. The timepiece was produced in court and Paulock and his brother positively identified it. Loving maintained that he had bought it from a man in New Brunswick but he couldn't recall his name. His manner of testifying didn't impress the magistrate and he was held in $200 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury while the charge against Paulock was dismissed.

As Loving was being locked up in a cell he exclaimed to Patrolman Kelley:

"Say boss, I lied to the judge; I did steal that watch."

The confession was immediately made known to Judge Runyon and it gave him the satisfaction of knowing that he had sized up Loving correctly.

THINK OF IT, SOMERVILLE FIRES TWO SLEEPY COPS

At a hearing before the Police Committee of the Somerville Board of Commissioners last night at the West End Hose House, in that place, Patrolmen Thomas J. Martin and Robert Henderson were both discharged from the force and were informed to turn over all their equipment to the Chief of Police by Saturday night.

This action is the result of the watch of Commissioners Barras and Bellis, Thursday morning, February 27, when at 5 o'clock they saw the two officers come out of the Association building rubbing their eyes, after a five hours' nap. Both policemen pleaded guilty. The hearing caused much interest. The West End Hose House was crowded to its doors and many people fought for admission.

Patrolman Koch, who was charged with not patrolling his beat the same morning, claimed he was engaged a good part of the time watching a couple of men around the Centre street bridge. Further action in his case was postponed until some future date.

AIM TO ROB THE SCHOOLS

Superintendent Krebs Voices Opinion of Educators in Denouncing the Scheme.

IS UP TO THE LEGISLATURE.

Bills Now In Law-mill. If Passed, Will Work Serious Hardship—Mr. Ackerman's Stand.

Plans afoot in the Legislature to rob the public school system of its means of support meet with the severest condemnation on the part of educators throughout the State. The sentiments are voiced by Dr. H. C. Krebs, supervising principal of the North Plainfield public schools and superintendent of schools for Somerset county.

"When the last Legislature passed the Perkins act taxing the railroads to the extent of several millions of dollars," said Dr. Krebs, "it was openly stated and constantly kept before the people that the moneys thus received by the State were to be devoted to the public schools of the State of New Jersey.

"Among a people so devoted to the welfare of their children as are the people of this State this proposed action met with great popular approval. The moral backing that the last Legislature received was of material influence in securing the payment of these moneys from the railroads. Plans were at once laid by the educational authorities of the State to make great improvements in school work by securing better teachers and better equipment, and by raising the salaries of teachers so that they might be based on a living wage.

"Now, however, a bill has been introduced into the Legislature provided for the reduction of the State school tax from 2¾ to 1 mill, which would mean that the schools of New Jersey will receive about one million dollars less State school money than before. Another bill has been introduced to lower the State school tax to 2 mills but to deduct three from the entire railroad tax. This would still further reduce the State school moneys.

"It seems inconceivable that after the Legislature taxed the railroads for the avowed purpose of benefiting the public schools, and after plans have been made all over the State to devote this money to the best welfare of the children, that the present Legislature should take this money away from the schools, leaving them with a million dollars less than they had before the railroad tax was levied; and yet this is exactly what the effect will be if the bills now before the Legislature become laws.

"All the boards of education in the State have planned to reduce the local tax. The people of the State have expected such reduction. When they find that through new laws the State school tax will be so reduced that the local tax must be raised much higher than ever before, there will be tremendous objection. Indeed it is likely that some districts that have been raising say, ten thousand dollars locally, and have been expecting this year to raise only about six thousand dollars, will absolutely refuse to vote fourteen thousand dollars and the consequence will be that the schools will suffer fearful loss.

"It would seem to be the duty of all persons interested in the public schools to appeal to their representatives in the Legislature to keep the railroad tax intact for the benefit of the children of the State and that there should be no reduction in the State tax whatever. Surely it is at least reasonable that a period of several years should elapse before any steps are taken to change the Perkins law from its original purpose."

Shriners to Give Vaudeville.

The Plainfield members of Salaam Temple, Ancient Order Nobles Mystic Shrine, are planning to give an amateur vaudeville entertainment at the New Plainfield theatre in the near future. The performance was given by the Shriners recently at a "ladies' night" affair and was so successful that efforts will be made to repeat it in this city.

HAVE MORE FIRE DRILLS

This is the Suggestion of Former City School Board President Jacob Kirkner.

THIS WOULD PREVENT PANIC.

Fire Drills Should Be Unannounced and Held At Least Weekly in All Schools, He Declares.

Urging more frequent and more thorough fire drills in the local schools, Jacob Kirkner, former president of the Plainfield Board of Education, says that the local school authorities should not neglect the lesson to be derived from the public school horror at North Collinwood, Ohio. In an interview with a Daily Press reported at his home on West Eighth street last night, Mr. Kirkner said:

"I am well satisfied that such a loss of life could not possibly be the result of a fire in any of the Plainfield schools. The buildings are not totally fire-proof, but I believe that there is no such thing as an absolutely fire-proof building, and with a perfect system of fire drills at the various schools, there should be little danger.

"But the schools do not have enough of these drills, and they are not thorough. When I was at the head of the Board of Education in this city, fire drills were held at least once a week, and the discipline and training of the pupils made it possible for us to empty the buildings in from a minute to a minute and a half after the alarm sounded.

"A fire drill, to be efficient, must be unexpected. I do not believe that any announcement or hint of a fire drill should be given. The drills should be held regularly, and every pupil should be made to co-operate with the teachers by leaving the building as quickly as possible. The alarm bells should be sounded at different times of the day, so that the pupils will get used to leaving their work in any part of a building and quickly passing to the street.

"I have carefully studied the plans submitted for the new Darrow avenue school, and I think that there can be a better arrangement of the class rooms. The plans show three class-rooms on the side corridors, and the stairs are located so that the pupils from the class-room nearest the rear of the building have to go about half the length of the corridor to reach the stairway. The building is, however, very nearly fire-proof, and if special attention is given to the drills, should be perfectly safe.

"The danger from fire in the Plainfield schools is not from the flames, it is from panic. For this reason, special attention should be paid to drills, and every possible precaution should be taken to prevent congestion at the doors or in the hallways."

GETS JAILED THROUGH SEEKING ALLEGED DEFAMER

On complaint preferred by Abram Kunzman, the grocer, that he had called at his home on West Third street at 9:30 last night and acted in a disorderly manner, Samuel Isaacson, of the West End, was arraigned in the city court, this morning. Kunzman was represented by Lawyer Harry C. Runyon while the defendant's interests were looked after by a friend who showed a fair knowledge of legal procedure. The lack of a material witness caused the matter to be adjourned until next Monday morning.

According to the testimony, Kunzman is accused of spreading derogatory tales about Isaacson's father and at the latter's request the young man went to Kunzman's place to learn why he had done so. He was accompanied by an employe of the elder Isaacson, who, it was said, had been told one of the stories. When they rapped at Kunzman's door and demanded admittance, an argument followed that roused the neighborhood and brought Patrolman Vanderweg down from Liberty street. Kunzman demanded that Isaacson be locked up, claiming that he had been the aggressor in the disturbance and had kicked him in the abdomen. The other caller was not arrested and it was because of his absence in court that the case was put over.

MAYOR'S PAY $2,500, COUNCILMEN $500 PER

Such Will Be the Salaries for Plainfield's Fathers if Legislature Passes Pending Bills.

APPLY TO SECOND CLASS CITIES.

Councilmanic Pay Bill Gets Through House After Colgate Takes a Fall Out of Moxon.

Assemblyman W. E. Ramsay, of Perth Amboy, has introduced a bill in the Legislature which authorizes governing bodies of second class cities to fix by ordinance the salary of the Mayor, not to exceed $2,500.

The bill, it is understood, is designed with an eye to Perth Amboy and East Orange. Plainfield and New Brunswick would also be affected.

One of the House bills to pass on this week was No. 62, introduced by Austin Colgate, of Essex, allowing councilmen in cities of the second class, which includes Plainfield, to get as high as $500 a year salary. There was some little opposition to the measure, Messrs. Morris, of Sussex, and Kenny, of Hudson, coming out openly as opposed to it, the latter on the ground that councilmen should be too patriotic to serve for pay. Mr. Colgate, however, defended his measure facetiously enough to secure its passage 41 to 13.

In voicing his opposition Mr. Morris declared that the bill was wrong from his viewpoint in that it took away one of the powers of the people of the municipality affected. He argued that if any such salaries were to be fixed as mentioned in the bill it should be the duty, as well as the pleasure, of the town's people to fix them, and not the Legislature.

Mr. Colgate retorted that the town's people, as Mr. Morris put it, could assert that right without any trouble.

Mr. Kenny argued that any man who sought the office of alderman for $10 a week would prove to be a second-class alderman, and that better men would be secured for no pay. He declared he was never sorry for the work he had put in his town without pay, and referred to Assemblyman Martin, Republican leader of the House, as "a bright example of the type of man who would never have served as alderman for $10 a week, but gladly gave his services for nothing."

Mr. Martin arose, bowed pleasantly, and said the argument was unanswerable.

Mr. Colgate in reply said he had listened to Mr. Kenny's talk and was pleased to say it had quite converted him and made him more in favor of the bill than ever. In his town, he said, the "gentlemen in question" get $2 for every night they serve. It would be a perfectly simple proposition, he said, for them to sit six nights a week and thus draw $12 instead of $10. Perhaps, he reasoned, it was as much in fear that this might result as anything else, he said with a laugh, that Orange was so interested in the bill. However, he declared there is nothing iniquitous about the bill. Orange, he said, would have been satisfied to have made the rate $390, but found East Orange's councilmen were getting $500, so made a strike for the same amount.

Mr. Kenny interrupted to say he hoped the "gallant colonel from Essex will withdraw the bill and stop the graft in Orange," and Mr. Moxon, of Union, took a hand to say that as there had been much talk of patriotic zeal and an eagerness to work for nothing, he would suggest that Mr. Kenny donate his $50 salary as Assemblyman back to the State.

Mr. Kenny retorted that any time Mr. Moxon came to him and told him he (Moxon) needed the $500, he would gladly turn it over to him. This prompted Mr. Moxon to declare "I need it now," which brought about a laugh and incidentally stopped the discussion on the bill.

HUMAN RACE AFFLICTED WITH QUEER DISEASE

Cooper Says Internal Parasites Cause Much Suffering Everywhere.

The following remarkable statement was recently made by L. T. Cooper. It concerns the preparation which has been so widely discussed throughout the country during the past year, and has sold in such enormous quantities in leading cities:

"It is now a well-known fact that wherever I have introduced my New Discovery medicine, hundreds of people have brought internal parasites, or tapeworms, to me. In many cases these people did not know the nature of the parasite, and were consequently extremely nervous until I explained the matter to them. In some cities so many have had this experience that the public generally became alarmed.

"I take this opportunity of explaining what these creatures are, and what I have learned about them in the past.

"Tapeworms are much more common than would be supposed. I venture to say that ten per cent. of all chronic stomach trouble, or what is known as a 'rundown' condition, is caused by them. An individual may suffer for years with one of these great parasites and not be aware of it.

"Contrary to general belief, the appetite is not greatly increased—it only becomes irregular. There is a general feeling of faintness, however, and a gnawing sensation in the pit of the stomach.

"People afflicted with one of these parasites are nervous and depressed. Their chief sensation is one of languor, and they tire very easily. Lack of energy and ambition affect the body, and the mind becomes dull and sluggish. The memory becomes not so good, and the eyesight is generally poorer.

"The New Discovery, in freeing stomach and bowels of all impurities, seems to be fatal to these great worms, and almost immediately expels them from the system. I wish to assure anyone who has the experience just related with my preparation, that there is no cause for alarm in the matter, and that it will as a rule mean a speedy restoration to good health."

The Cooper medicines are a boon to stomach sufferers. We sell them. —T. S. Armstrong.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

According to the budget of the Board of Education, made up at the meeting Tuesday night, $6,665 is needed for the schools during the coming year. The total estimated expenses of the year total to $9,865, of which the State tax will cut down $3,200, leaving the remainder to be raised by the borough tax payers. Of this budget, $5,155 is for teachers' salaries, and $2,400 for the high school department. A deficit of $200 is included in the budget.

Father Delehanty and Father Sciola, of St. Mary's church, Plainfield, were the assisting priests at the requiem mass for Mrs. Josephine Stiliger, conducted at St. John's church this morning by Father Dunphy. The full choir from St. Mary's church were present at the service, which was held at 8:30 this morning. The interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The first meeting of the Ladies' Lenten Class, which will meet Thursday afternoons during Lent, was held at Holy Innocents' church yesterday afternoon. Mrs. A. S. Phelps was in charge of the meeting.

Father Dunphy will preach at the evening service at St. John's church tonight. There will be preaching services at the church Wednesday and Friday evenings during Lent.

The Women's Missionary Society of the New Market Baptist church held a regular monthly meeting in the church lecture rooms this afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Mattis have been called to Philadelphia by the serious illness of Mr. Mattis' mother.

The Embroidery Club was entertained last night at the home of Miss Jessie Haynes.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Intermediate and Junior Endeavor Society meeting will be held at the Park Avenue Baptist church this afternoon.

"Is It Necessary to Be Baptized to be a Christian?" will be the theme of the special sermon by Rev. A. E. Finn at the Park Avenue Baptist church, Sunday night.

The Lenten musicals will not be given at the Church of the Holy Cross this year, H. Raymond Loder, organist, being unable to complete arrangements for them.

Rev. A. C. McCrea, of the First M. E. church and Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, will exchange Sunday morning. In the evening each pastor will occupy his own pulpit.

The Young People's Association of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will meet tonight at 8 o'clock for Bible study in Ephesians, under Dr. Zelie; in Isaiah, under Howard Williams, and in the life of Christ under Miss Elsie Goddard.

The fourth quarterly conference will be held at the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church tonight. Rev. J. T. Hammond, the presiding elder, will be in charge. The annual conference of this church will be held next month at Cape May. It is understood that Rev. J. T. Diggs, the pastor of the local church, will be invited to return another year.

There will be a love feast at the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church Sunday morning in charge of the pastor, Rev. J. T. Diggs. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon there will be preaching by Rev. M. A. Alexander, of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, and in the evening there will be preaching and communion. Presiding Elder Hammond will be in charge.

RECORDER TURNS PURSUER.

Bayonne Magistrate Arrests, Men After Chasing Them in Trolley Car.

Bayonne, March 6.—William and John Baxter, of Staten Island, were pursued by Recorder Lazarus over half a mile in a trolley car Wednesday night, and when overtaken in their wagon were placed under arrest, charged with running over ten-year-old James O'Neill, of Twenty-second street and Avenue C, last night. The boy sustained a fractured rib and a blackened eye.

It was claimed that the Baxters drove on without stopping and Mr. Lazarus, who claimed to be in a nearby store at the time, rushed out and went after the men.

In court yesterday morning both the accused were discharged. It was proven the boy and two companions had run before the horse's head, and as young O'Neill arose immediately and walked away, the Baxters said they supposed he was unhurt.

Miss Mary Runkle, of this city, is the guest of Miss Louise E. Polhemus at the home of the latter in Newark.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

The Plainfield Country Club will open its active season the latter part of April and plans are now underway for the event. It is expected that the schedule will be announced within a short time. The Park Golf Club will open the season at about the same time.

A four ball foursome between Walter J. Travis and Allan E. Lard, of the Columbia Golf Club, and Henry C. Fownes, of Pittsburg, and Professional Gilbert Nicholls attracted a gallery of several hundred people at Pinehurst, Tuesday. Fownes and Nicholls winning, 6 up and 5 to play, largely through the brilliant work of Nicholls. Travis was badly off, negotiating a 79 to a 78 for his partner. Fownes made 81 and Nicholls 71, going out in 34 and coming home in 37.

Some seventy-five members attended the annual dinner of the New York Golf Club Tuesday night at the Hotel Astor, New York. The following were elected as managers for the coming year: G. P. Lawson, C. A. Timewell, T. Heatley, John Clingen and P. H. Gilmartin.

BASEBALL.

The American League schedule shows that the pennant season opens on April 14 and ends on October 8. The Western teams come East first this time, and it will behoove the Easterners to get a move on in the early part of the season to offset the advantage the Westerners will have of winding up in their own half of the circuit. As usual there are 154 games. The New Yorks open at home with the Philadelphias and play their first game away from home with the Philadelphias on April 22. The Washingtons open in Boston, the Detroits in Chicago and the St. Louis team in Cleveland. The first trip East of the Western teams begins on May 12.

On Memorial Day the Philadelphias will be in New York, the Washingtons in Boston, the Chicagos in Detroit and the Browns in Cleveland. On the Fourth of July the New Yorks will be in Washington, the Bostons in Philadelphia, the Detroits in Cleveland and the Browns in Chicago. For Labor Day the apportionment of plums is as follows: Washington in New York, Philadelphia in Boston, St. Louis in Detroit and Chicago in Cleveland. St. Louis plays all of its holidays away from home.

The Clevelands will be the first Western team to visit New York, and following them Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis will come in the order named. The New Yorks wind up their season with a stretch of home and home games, closing in Washington on October 8. The first Western town they will visit will be Cleveland on June 4, thence going to Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis. In addition to two holidays the New Yorks have twelve Saturdays at home. There are no conflicting dates at all between the National and American leagues in New York this season.

If Manager Ganzel gives his consent the Cincinnati club will put through a deal by which Johnny Kane, Bunny Pearce and $5,000 in cash will be handed over to the Chicago Cubs for Del Howard and Heine Zimmerman. Garry Herrmann says he will spend big money to give Porkville a winner. This has been Herrmann's policy ever since he broke into baseball, but so far the results have been discouraging. It is estimated that he has dropped more than $100,000 in various ways since he decided to become a magnate.

Barney Dreyfuss has ordered his manager, Fred Clarke, to round up Hans Wagner, Leach, Gibson and other members of the Pittsburg team who are accused of demanding unreasonable salaries. Dreyfuss, it is predicted, will have to give in to these men or start the season without them, for they have an understanding and will stick it out at any cost.

Clark Griffith sent word to the New York American League club officials this week that the regulars who are with him at Hot Springs will arrive in Atlanta on Sunday. Notices have been sent to all the recruits to leave their homes for the Georgia training quarters in time to be able to report to Griffith for practice next Monday. Secretary Nahon said last night that the New York manager would probably have at least thirty men in the lineup at Atlanta and that regular games would be played there next week. It is believed that Griffith will begin the weeding out process about March 20 and will come North with about twenty-two players.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Brown concluded its basketball season Tuesday, losing to Williams by 22 to 14. Williams proved the strongest proposition that Brown has tackled during the season and the visitors are now tied with Wesleyan for the championship of the New England Intercollegiate Basketball League. The tie will be played off at Williamstown tomorrow night.

Pennsylvania has been substituted for Princeton in the triangular fencing meet to be held in the Columbia gymnasium tonight. The meet was first arranged between Yale, Columbia and Princeton, but Wednesday the Columbia manager was informed that Princeton could not compete because the team has not yet been selected. Columbia defeated Pennsylvania two weeks ago. Yale also defeated Pennsylvania in the Manrique cup tournament and lost to the Cornell team at the same time.

PERSONAL.

Fred Hillman, of Brooklyn, has returned home after a few days' stay with friends in this city.

Fred Banks, of New York, has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Schaffus, of Fairview avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fowler, of Fairview avenue, have returned from a two weeks' sojourn at Atlantic City.

Mrs. Otto Mueck, formerly of this city, has returned to her home in Elizabeth after a visit with friends here.

Jack Peacock, of West Fifth street, has returned from Princeton University, and will spend a few days with his parents here.

Mrs. M. Kapp, formerly of the borough, but now of New York, has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. VanZandt, of Fairview avenue for several days.

"We are sorry to report that our former merchant, A. J. Pierson, who with Mrs. Pierson has been with us, has left us again, having accepted a position in Plainfield with a large firm." — Cherryville correspondence Clinton Twice-a-Week.

The New York Tribune has discovered a deep and terrible plot to assassinate the civil service bill. Its long range opinion is about as reliable as most of 'em.

A woman who has spent the past forty years in insane asylums is now free. She probably won't see much difference in the people she meets.—New Brunswick Times.

Fresh evidence that New Brunswick's population has been increased by one.

State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman has announced himself as a foe to all legislation that aims to rob the public schools of the taxes derived by virtue of existing statutes. The aggressive representative from Union can render his constituents in Union no better service than to fight to the bitter end any scheme to reduce or divert public school moneys.

OBITUARY.

T. Carter Hageman.

T. Carter Hageman, thirty-seven years old, passed away yesterday at noon at his home in Somerville, after a long illness, from tuberculosis. He was a native of Lamington and for the past ten years had been largely interested in the woolen mill business. He was a member of the Second Reformed church of Somerville, and during the existence of the Y. M. C. A. there was one of its vice-presidents. He leaves a widow, who is a daughter of the late Peter Lane, of New Germantown, and two children. The funeral will be held Saturday. Rev. Dr. E. G. Read will officiate. Burial will be in the cemetery at Pluckemin.

Rev. Daniel Hill Drake.

Rev. Daniel Hill Drake, a native of Union Village and well known to many of the older residents of Plainfield, died on Sunday at his home in Dennison, Ill., of paralysis. He was sixty-five years of age and spent his boyhood days at Union Village. He afterward went to college and the theological seminary and held several pastorates in the Baptist denomination. He was also a missionary to India, where his wife died. She was a Miss Waldron, being a native of Martinsville. Mr. Drake was a cousin to Edward K. Drake, who has been connected with the Elizabeth Journal for many years.

Miss Dorcas Burtchaell.

Miss Dorcas Burtchaell, aged seventy-seven years, died this morning at the home of her sister, Mrs. Susan Wadams, of Grove street. She had been ailing for the past year and for nine weeks had been confined to her bed. Miss Burtchaell was a native of New York and came to Plainfield five years ago. She is survived by one other sister, Mrs. George Jekyll, of Aalanta, Ga. The funeral will be held at Mrs. Wadams' home Monday noon at 12:15 and burial will be at Newark.

Killed by Fall After Joking.

Captain D. Barnes, a prominent oyster planter of Keyport, fell from an apple tree late yesterday afternoon and broke his neck. Death was almost instantaneous. Mrs. Barnes cautioned her husband about the danger of falling and he replied jokingly that if he fell some one would have to pick him up. His wife had hardly got into the house when he fell. The Captain, although nearly eighty years old, was quite active.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Ten Eyck, of North Branch, have been visiting friends in this city.

TRADE BOARD APPROVES POSTOFFICE PROJECT

John H. Kelman, of Yonkers, N. Y., a manufacturer of enameled copper and electrical appliances, communicated with the Board of Trade, last night, for the purpose of obtaining information regarding a site for a factory in this city. He wants a building two stories in height, 30x50. The factory recently vacated by W. H. Rogers on North avenue was mentioned as a suitable place, but President Marshall said that he understood the owner wants to sell and not lease the building and the secretary was instructed to acquaint Mr. Kelman of that fact.

United States Senator John Kean's bill providing for a postoffice building in Plainfield, as published in The Daily Press, was read, and at the suggestion of President Marshall, the secretary will write Senator Kean informing him that the Board approves of his action and is behind him in his efforts to give Plainfield a government building.

The Trades' League, of Philadelphia, asked the co-operation of the Board in obtaining the best currency legislation, and as patentee of a ticket machine, in a communication, said that he was looking for a capitalist who will help him to place his invention on the market. The communication was filed.

A request for the daily and weekly newspapers was received from Park & Tilford, the New York wholesale grocers. A report on the session of the International Arbitration Convention was also read. This advocated peace and not war in trade conditions. Copies of "The Suburbanite," containing the advertisement inserted by the Board of Trade, and another magazine were received. A magazine bearing a picture of Governor Hughes was received with hearty applause.

Harry Feinberg and Gustave Meissner were elected to membership, and several bills presented were ordered paid. Upon a motion offered by Herman Schwed, and adopted, Secretary A. S. Herr was authorized to collect dues from delinquents, his compensation to be fifty cents per capita. Mr. Herr was also instructed to get necessary stationery and a rubber stamp to be used in sending out notices for the meetings.

The question of arc lights for the business section of the city was introduced by J. V. E. Vanderhoef, and upon his motion the secretary was instructed to notify Councilman Montgomery, chairman of the street lighting committee, that it is the wish of the Board that these lights be installed.

There was a discussion regarding the failure of the street cleaning department to promptly remove rubbish in these cans and City Engineer Gavett's attention will be called to the matter. E. F. Feickert's previous suggestion prevailed and each can will bear the name of the Board of Trade. There are twenty-four cans and the expense of lettering them will be fifty cents each.

THE FORUM.

The Unitarian Belief.

Editor, The Daily Press:

In your valuable newspaper I read that "the doctor (Chambliss) does not wish the impression to obtain that he does not class Unitarians as Christians." I will not take upon myself to say that Unitarians are not Christians, because I have no more authority to say they are not, than the doctor has to say they are. Neither will I go to the dictionary for a true meaning of the word Christian, that is not an inspired book. Neither will I go to the "Saratoga platform of the National Conference of Unitarian Churches" which declares that "these churches accept the religion (a very vague expression) of Jesus, holding in accordance with his teaching, that practical religion is summed up in love to God and love to man." You will notice that the Divinity of Christ is very carefully left out of their platform.

But I will call your attention to Matthew 16: 15, 16, "He said unto them, but whom say ye that I am; Simon Peter answered and said, thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." John 21: 28-31, "Thomas answered and said unto Him, My God, and my treasure thou hast seen me, thou hast believed, blessed are they that have not seen and yet have believed." 30, "And many other signs truly did Jesus in the presence of His disciples which are not written in this book." 31, "But there are written that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ the Son of God, and that believing ye might have life through His name."

If the Unitarians will add this thirty-first verse of John to their Saratoga platform it will save them the trouble of explaining that their platform teaches what it does not teach.

Water Company a Trespasser.

The Board of Freeholders yesterday at New Brunswick adopted a resolution ordering the Middlesex Water Company to remove its water pipes from the county bridge at Colonia within thirty days. It is alleged the water company is a trespasser on the bridge, having received no authority to place the mains there.

ANNOUNCEMENT!

C. M. SANFORD

(Formerly with Messrs. J. Wiss & Sons.)

After Fifty years of active business life, the firm of Wm. T. Rae & Co. has retired.

With its passing into history goes a reputation for sterling integrity, reliability and honesty such as few concerns can boast of, and which it will be my earnest endeavor to maintain.

In announcing my advent into this business and continuing that of Messrs. Rae & Co., there are several facts which I wish to make public, namely:

(1) That it will ever be my purpose to live up to and not "on" the reputation which the house of Rae & Co. has established.

(2) That my stock of Diamonds and other Precious Stones, Gold Jewelry and Clocks will not only be as varied and comprehensive as that of any other Newark store of this character, but absolutely dependable and moderately priced as well.

(3) That I shall offer an Optical Service second to none in the city. This department, while under my personal supervision and direction, will be in charge of a skilled Eye Sight Specialist —W. E. Small, Ref. D.

(4) That Watch and Jewelry Repairing shall constitute an important part of my business, and that all such work entrusted to me will be executed satisfactorily and promptly by experts whose qualifications are the best.

To serve you faithfully and well and merit your good-will and patronage is my desire.

W. S. DECKER DEAD AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Winfield Scott Decker, aged forty-five years, died about 6 o'clock last night, at his home, 944 West Fourth street, after an illness of eight months with a complication of diseases. He was a great sufferer and in October last was obliged to give up business. He was a native of Mariners Harbor, Staten Island, where he lived until five years ago. For many years he was prominent in the wholesale paper trade in New York, but the loss of his hearing compelled him to seek other business.

Mr. Decker came to Plainfield about five years ago and associated himself with F. C. Lounsbury at the Crescent Embossing Works, taking charge of the menu department of the hotel work. He was very successful, his cards going to all parts of this and other countries. He had a strong Christian character and for many years was actively identified with the Methodist church, being a member of the one at Mariners Harbor. A wife and two children, Miss Ada Decker and Chester Decker, survive him.

The funeral service will be held from the late home, Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, and Rev. E. E. Roberson, of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, will officiate. Another service will be held from the church of which Mr. Decker was a member on Staten Island, Monday afternoon and the burial will be there.

LEGISLATORS AT STATE HOME FOR CONSUMPTIVES.

Pay Visit to Glen Gardner Sanitarium to Consider Need for Road.

Glen Gardner, March 6.—Some of the members of the Joint Legislative Committee on the State Sanitarium for Tuberculosis Diseases and of the Committee on Appropriations visited the sanitarium yesterday, and made an investigation of the institution.

The party was invited here to consider the necessity for a roadway for which about $50,000 would be required. At present there is a road leading about two miles up in the hills, but its rough character renders it of little use. The directors are anxious to have the Legislature authorize the expenditure of the money necessary to properly lay out a road.

The party yesterday were Senators William J. Bradley, of Camden; Johnston Cornish, of Warren; Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union, and Assemblymen George W. Housel, Edwin H. Ginnelly, James H. Lowrey, John B. Frick and Oliver C. Holcombe. The party was further augmented by Dr. George B. Wight, State Commissioner of Charities and Corrections, and the full board of directors of the institution, comprising the president, Dr. William S. Jones, of Camden; Dr. Rudolph F. Rabe, of Hoboken; Dr. Elmer Barwis, of Trenton; Dr. Theodore Senseman, of Atlantic City; Abram L. Beavers, of High Bridge, and J. W. Ingham, of Phillipsburg.

CONVICT A PUBLISHER.

Mail Order Magazine Man Guilty of Misusing Privileges.

George Frey Terry, of Waterville, the millionaire publisher of Sawyer's Magazine, and Walter W. Rosham, clerk in the postoffice at Waterville, were convicted by a jury in the United States District Court at Portland, Me., yesterday, on an indictment alleging a conspiracy to defraud the government through the misuse of the second-class mail privilege.

The allegation of the government is that the publication was designed promarily for advertising purposes and for circulation at a nominal rate, and for this reason was not entitled to second-class rates. The fraud alleged is sending out sample copies in excess of the number permitted by the regulations, marked as subscription copies.

TO TRY FOR ANNAPOLIS.

Senator Kean Names Two New Jersey Boys Who Will Take Examinations for Entrance.

Two New Jersey boys were yesterday named by Senator Kean to take the examinations for appointment as midshipmen at the Naval Academy at Annapolis. They are James F. Hodgson, of Camden, and Harry Hambleton, of Manasquan. Alternates were also named, the first in each case being Harry D. McLochlan, of South Orange, and Paul N. Crispin, of Phillipsburg.

Roy Gorghler, of Paterson, a young National Guardsman, passed a preliminary examination last year, but on reporting at Annapolis recently it was found that he was just over age and could not be allowed to enter the academy.

Think Rogers Backs Trolley Plan.

Henry H. Rogers, the Standard Oil magnate, it is believed by some people in Elizabeth, is the principal backer of two new trolley projects for Elizabeth announced during the past week. Both roads will start from Broad street. One will extend directly to Rahway through Rahway avenue. The other will start at Washington avenue, pass through East Rahway and touch Tremley, Carteret and Perth Amboy, making connection at the latter point with the line from South Amboy to Red Bank and other seaside resorts south of that point.

PATERSON MAN IS SWINDLED.

Smooth Stranger Takes Four Watches to "Show to His Girl," While Jeweller Waits in Parlor.

Police of Paterson have sent out a general alarm for the arrest of a well dressed man who swindled a jeweller out of four watches to the value of about $150.

Harry Chapman, proprietor of a small jewelery store at No. 25 North Main street, was the victim. He was alone in the store when a man who introduced himself as "Mr. Kaufmann" entered and asked to see some ladies' watches. "Mr. Kaufmann" was so well dressed and so nicely mannered that Chapman had no suspicions of him.

The display did not seem to satisfy him, and the man asked if they were all he had. Not wishing to lose a customer Chapman went to a store close by and soon returned with four watches. The stranger could not make a selection and suggested that the jeweller go along with him and let his "girl" see the watches, and whichever she selected he would purchase. Together they went to No. 108 Water street, where Chapman was ushered into the parlor and the stranger took his watches to show to his girl, who was "up stairs."

Chapman remained in the parlor for some time before he realized that he had been duped. An investigation was made, but "Mr. Kaufmann" was nowhere to be found.

The police learned that the man appeared at the house in Water street yesterday and engaged the front parlor and bedroom in the rear, saying his trunks would follow in a few days. He intended starting in business there.

EPISCOPAL CLERGYMAN JOINS ROMAN CATHOLICS.

Declaring that he liked the positive side of the Roman Catholic Church and believed it to be the real Church of God, Rev. J. B. Haslam, for four years connected with St. Elizabeth's church, Philadelphia, resigned from the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal church yesterday, took off his clerical dress and left that city for New York to enter the Catholic Church. He plans to be ordained to the priesthood and labor as a Paulist father.

Mr. Haslam has been studying the Catholic faith for some time and recently consulted frequently on the subject with a Paulist priest who was doing missionary work in Philadelphia. When asked if the adoption of Canon 19 on the open pulpit influenced him into leaving the Episcopal Church, he said:

"No, but the adoption of that canon accentuated the dissatisfaction which exists among the high church party, by throwing open the pulpits and handing over the Episcopal Church to Protestant revivalists during Lent. In connection with the open pulpit, too, the increasing domination of the laity is a growing and alarming feature."

ELIZABETH NIGHT SCHOOL PROVES SUCCESSFUL.

Tonight will mark for Elizabeth the closing of the first "night school" season in many years; and the experimental term of eight weeks has proved a grand success. The zest with which the pupils enter upon their work, the eagerness with which they have endeavored to grasp the matter at hand, the punctual attendance which they gave, the ready obedience and the willingness with which they yielded to command, all clearly demonstrate the long-felt need of the "evening school" in Elizabeth and the appreciation of its institution.

The following is the program of closing exercises of Public School No. 2: Scriptures and prayer; song, "America," school; address, J. A. O'Brien, principal; steropticon exhibition, consisting of views from life in New Mexico, Southern California and the Indian country, Dr. William F. Robinson; violin and piano duet; vocal solo, "Dreaming," Charles F. Flanagan; chorus, "Star Spangled Banner," finale.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The Salem County Historical Society will meet at the Alexander Grant House, in Salem, next Tuesday.

On a charge of dealing in policy, John Spiegle, a former clerk in the Camden county register of deeds office, was held in $1,000 bail yesterday for a further hearing next Saturday before Recorder Stackhouse, of Camden.

Point Pleasant Borough had almost $10,000 insurance on the schoolhouse that burned last week, just enough to clean up the outstanding bonds on the building and allow the borough to start on a new schoolhouse with no old debts.

The condition of Mr. and Mrs. I. Seibert and two children, of South Beverly, who were taken violently ill after partaking of their supper Tuesday evening, is much improved. Mrs. Seibert had mistaken a box of salomel for baking powder with which she had made noodles for the soup.

As a result of a beating alleged to have been received at the hands of Max and Issie Kollman, Mrs. Ida Licker, wife of Benjamin Licker, of 251 River street, Paterson, is at her home in a serious condition. Warrants were served last night and bail was furnished for the appearance of the Kollman brothers before the grand jury.

Lemuel Harvey, a young man of Salem, who went through the American-Spanish War without a mishap, met with a serious accident yesterday while examining a shell. Harvey was seated behind a stove in a small cabin in the lower end of the city with the shell in his hand, when it accidentally exploded, blowing off two of Harvey's fingers and splintering the third.

Robert White, a negro from Swedesboro, is dying from consumption in the Gloucester county jail, where he is confined in default of a $200 fine on a charge of stealing. At the last meeting of the Board of Freeholders his case was brought up, and the fine was reduced to $150, which White's relatives and friends said they would raise. They procured the amount a day or so ago and went to Woodbury to obtain White's release, but when they saw his condition they refused to put up the money.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The attraction at the New Plainfield theatre tonight will be a musical comedy drama, "Our Friend Fritz," with Joe Hortiz, the popular actor and singer of German dialect roles in the star part. Mr. Hortiz's success as an exponent of German characterization has been emphatic and his legion of admirers will be glad to welcome him in a new play, which by the way is said to be a marked improvement upon anything in the way of a German dialect play ever produced.

John W. Vogel's big city minstrels of more than fifty people will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon and night, under the auspices of Plainfield Aerie, No. 866, F. O. E. A glance at the roster of this organization, together with Vogel's reputation for handling nothing but the best, precludes any possibility of an inferior performance.

On Monday evening at the New Plainfield theatre, Marguerite Merington's new, original comedy, "Until We Meet Again," will be introduced to the theatregoers of this city. Miss Merington, whose dramatic authorship includes "Captain Letterblair," written for E. H. Sothern and "Love Finds The Way," played for a season by Mrs. Fiske, has constructed a powerful play, which for its central character has a young German nobleman, Baron von Remmelsberg, who having fallen in estate, journeys to America to battle for fortune. The story of his struggles in the new country is an absorbing one and throughout the three acts picturesque dialogues and splendidly conceived situations will hold the close interest of the audience. A poetic love tale is skillfully unfolded and the plot has been pronounced one of exceptional dramatic worth. The cast is one of great strength and is headed by Eugene Ormonde and Josephine Victor, who are supported by such well known players as Seymour Rose, Rogers Lytton, Wilbut Collier Hudson, Russell Bassett, Mabel Carruthers, Charlotte Lambert, Dickey De Laro, and Mildred Hutchinson. Following a short preliminary tour outside of New York, the comedy will have its metropolitan hearing at a well known Broadway theatre.

Will Tell of Mission Work.

Mrs. Charles Newbold Thorpe, president of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church, will speak at the annual meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, Monday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock. She will speak on the impressions made upon her by her recent visit to mission stations in Japan, Korea, China and India. The public is invited.

By KATE AND VIRGIL D. BOYLES

(Copyright by A. C. McClurg & Co., 1907.)

It was dark. The yellow gleam streaming out of the window only served to make the surrounding darkness denser. The lamp on the table cast a pale circle immediately in front of the office. There was no other flicker of light on the street. Into this circle there moved a shadow. It retreated — advanced again — glided back in to obscurity. Was it something alive, or did the moving of the lamp cause the shadows to thus skip about? But the lamp had not been moved. It burned steadily in the same position. The relaxed form of the unconscious man was still bent over the table. Nothing had changed within. Probably some dog locked out for the night had trotted within the radius of light. Maybe a cotton-tail had hopped into the light for a second. Louise did not know whether rabbits ever came into the town, but it was likely they did. It might have been one of the strayed cattle wandering about in search of food. That was the most probable supposition of all. Of coure it might have been only her imagination. The little pinch of fright engendered of the moving shadow and the eerie hour passed away. Her eyes grew pensive again. How still it was! Had Gordon fallen asleep? He lay so quietly. Had he grieved himself into slumber as a girl would do? No—men were not like that.

Ah! There was the moving shadow again! She caught her breath quickly. Then her eyes grew wide and fixed with terror. This time the shadow did not slink away again. It came near the window, crouching. Suddenly, it stood up straight. Merciful Father! Why is it that a human being, a creature of reason and judgment, prowling about at unnatural hours, inspires ten-fold more terror to his kind than does a brute in like circumstances of time and place? Louise tried to scream aloud. Her throat was parched. A sudden paralysis held her speechless. It was like a nightmare. She writhed and fought desperately to shake herself free of this dumb horror. The cold damp came out on her forehead. Afterward she remembered that she knew the man and that it was this knowledge that had caused her nightmare of horror to be so unspeakably dreadful. Now she was conscious only of the awfulness of not being able to cry out. If she could only awaken Mary! The man lifted his arm. He had something in his hand. Its terrible import broke the spell of her speechlessness.

"Mary! Mary!"

She thought she shrieked. In reality she gasped out a broken whisper; but it thrilled so with terror and pleading that Mary was awakened on the instant. She sprang out of bed. As her bare feet touched the floor a pistol shot rang out close by. She had been trained to quick action, and superb health left no room for cobwebs to linger in the brain when she was suddenly aroused. She had no need for explanations. The shot was enough. If more was needed there was the lighted window across the way and here was Louise crouched before their own. Swiftly and silently she seized her revolver from the bureau, glided to the window and fired three times in rapid succession, the reports mingling with the sound of shattered glass.

"I think I hit him the second time, Louise," she said, with a dull calm. "I can't be sure."

She lighted a lamp and began to dress mechanically. Louise stayed not to answer. In the hall she encountered Paul Langford, just as another shot rang out.

"Go back, Miss Dale," he cried, hurriedly but peremptorily. "You mustn't come. I am afraid there has been foul play."

She looked at him. It hurt, that look.

"He is dead," she whispered, "I am going to him," and glided away from his detaining hand.

He hurried after her. Others had been aroused by the nearness of the pistol shots. Doors were thrown open. Voices demanded the meaning of the disturbance. Putting his arm around the trembling girl Langford hastened across the street with her. At the door of Gordon's office he paused.

"I will go in first, Louise. You stay here."

He spoke authoritatively; but she slipped in ahead of him. Her arms fell softly over the bowed shoulders. Her cheek dropped to the dark, gray-streaked hair. There was little change, seemingly. The form was only a little more relaxed, the attitude only a little more helpless. It seemed as if he might have been sleeping. There was a sound, a faint drip, drip, drip, in the room. It was steady, monotonous, like drops falling from rain pipes after the storm is over. Langford opened the door.

"Doc! Doc Lockhart! Some one send Doc over here quick? Gordon's office. Be quick about it!" he cried, in a loud, firm voice. Then he closed the door and locked it. In response to his call footsteps were heard running. The door was tried. Then came loud knocking and voice demanding admittance.

"No one can come in but Doc," cried Langford through the keyhole. "Send him quick, somebody, for God's sake! Where's Jim Munson? He'll get him here. Quick, I tell you!"

He hastened back to the side of his friend and passed his hand gently over the right side to find the place whence came that heartbreaking drip. Disappointed in their desire to get in men crowded before the window. Louise stepped softly forward and drew the blind between him and the mass of curious faces without. She was very pale, but quiet and self-possessed. She had rallied when Langford had whispered to her that Gordon's heart was still beating. The doctor rapped loudly, calling to Langford to open. Paul admitted him and then stepped out in full sight of all, his hand still on the knob. The late moon was just rising. A faint light spread out before him.

"Boys," he cried, a great grief in his stern voice, "it's murder. Dick Gordon's murdered. Now get—you know what for—and be quick about it!"

They laid him gently on the floor, took off his coat and cut away the blood-soaked shirts. Louise assisted with deft, tender hands. Presently the heavy lids lifted, the gray eyes stared vacantly for a moment—then smiled. Paul bent over him.

"What happened, old man?" the wounded man whispered gropingly. It required much effort to say this little, and a shadow of pain fell over his face.

HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL SCHEDULE IS ANNOUNCED

Manager William Rafferty, of the Plainfield High School baseball team, has completed the nine's schedule for the season and announced the season's games today. The school nine will use Crescent Oval for their home games. Of the twenty games scheduled, but three are to be played on out-of-town diamonds, and these are return games with teams which will play on the local diamond.

The school boys will open their season Saturday, March 28, when the nine will meet the Camp Bowser team at Crescent Oval. A game of especial interest in the schedule will be the so-called "Faculty Game," when the school senior nine will play a team composed of the high school instructors and members of the Board of Education. This will be played Friday afternoon, May 22. The complete schedule follows:

Saturday, March 28, Camp Bowser, at Crescent Oval; Saturday, April 4, DeWitt Clinton High School, of New York, at Crescent Oval; Friday, April 10, Newark Academy, at Crescent Oval; Saturday, April 11, Morris High School, of Morristown, at Crescent Oval; Saturday, April 18, Brooklyn Poly Prep, at Crescent Oval; Wednesday, April 22, Westfield High School, at Crescent Oval; Tuesday, April 28, Newark High School, at Newark.

Saturday, May 2, Adelphi Academy, at Brooklyn; Wednesday, May 6, Leal's School, at Crescent Oval; Saturday, May 9, Rutgers Prep School, at Crescent Oval; Wednesday, May 13, North Plainfield High School, at Crescent Oval; Friday, May 15, St. Benedict's Academy, of Newark, at Crescent Oval; Saturday, May 16, Hudson River Military Academy, at Crescent Oval; Wednesday, May 20, Leal's School, at Crescent Oval; Friday, May 22, Seniors vs. Faculty, at Crescent Oval; Saturday, May 23, Rutgers Prep School, at New Brunswick; Wednesday, May 27, North Plainfield High School, at Crescent Oval; Decoration Day, open.

Wednesday, June 3, Hudson River Military Academy, at Finderne; Saturday, June 6, Westfield High School, at Crescent Oval; Monday, June 8, Pingry School, of Elizabeth, at Crescent Oval.

A squad of about a score of players, including most of last year's team, is holding daily practise at the school gymnasium. The players are anxious to get to work out-of-doors, for their work now is confined to gym work with chest-weights. Chauncey Murphey, 1908, has been elected temporary captain of the nine.

Burgess Wins More Points.

C. D. Burgess won points in the Y. M. C. A. athletic championship contest, when he took first place in the high jump and standing broad jump at the association gymnasium last night. No new records were made. Burgess, who won the championship title last year, is ineligible to hold it again this year. Banks is in the lead in the contest, and Burgess is about a hundred points behind him, in second place. Rumsey and Ackor are having a hard fight for third honors.

Tied Teams to Roll.

The Brian Boru and Bismarck teams will meet tonight on Campbell's alleys to roll off their tie for fourth place in the city championship. Distribution of prizes to the various winners will take place on Monday night when a meeting will be held to organize the new tourney.

Harry De Meza Engaged.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Bailey, of Jackson avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter Agnes to Harry De Meza, of West Second street. Mr. De Meza is well and popularly known throughout the city. The date for the wedding has not been set.

—Rockdale print or creamery butter has no superior. It is recognized everywhere as strictly the best. Neuman Brothers are the local selling agents, also of Elgin creamery.

COURT REBUKES JURY BECAUSE IT DISAGREED

Floyd T. Woodhull, of West Front street, was a member of the jury which sat in the case of Louis Zacher, of Elizabeth, yesterday, on a charge of selling liquor on Sunday. The trial was concluded late in the afternoon and the jury, after being out eighteen hours, came into court this morning with the announcement that it could not agree.

The disagreement called forth a stern rebuke from Judge Atwater, who reminded the jury that Zacher had admitted that he sold liquor on Sunday, but that he did so upon the advice of his lawyer who informed him that he served sandwiches with the drinks he was within the provisions of the law. It is not known exactly how the jury stood, but it is reported that it was six to six. Mr. Woodhull voted for conviction, acocrding to report. The case will probably be tried again. Several other Plainfielders were called on this jury, but were challenged by the counsel for the defendant.

JERSEY INQUEST NEXT TUESDAY ON BAKER DEATH.

Coroner A. D. Lees, of Hackensack, and the authorities of Bergen county, will hold an inquest into the death of Walter Farnsworth Baker next Tuesday at Hackensack, and it is likely the case will be brought to the attention of the Grand Jury next month.

According to Ernest Koester, of Hackensack, the Bergen county prosecutor, physicians in Boston and Dr. William Boos, of the Massachusetts General Hospital, who made an examination of Baker's body after it had been sent to Boston, following his death at the home of Frank H. Hurd, at Bogota, N. J., on October 27 last, have declared that death was not due to natural causes. They are expected to be present and testify at the inquest.

Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis will occupy the pulpit at the Seventh-Day Baptist church tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock. The communion service will follow the sermon. The regular covenant meeting will be held at the church this evening.

Speaking of the work of the Salvation Army among the poor in the large cities, especially New York, Lieutenant-Colonel E. J. Parker, secretary of the industrial department of the eastern division of the army, gave an illustrated lecture at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium last night. The hall was filled to its utmost capacity and the pictures shown were excellent, colored reproductions of photographs taken in the slums.

Especially interesting were the moving pictures, depicting scenes in the East Side tenement districts, the arrival of immigrants and scenes at the push-cart markets of Mulberry Bend. The lecturer emphasized the part the Salvation Army is taking in bringing relief to the poor, securing employment for them, and looking after the health of those in the congested East Side districts.

Music was a feature of the service, and a quartet composed of New York officers rendered several appropriate gospel hymns and songs while the pictures were being shown. Bandsman Perrin played a cornet solo, which was well received. Captain Greenaway, of the local corps, offered prayer at the start of the meeting, and the speaker was introduced by Captain Hopkins. The offering taken amounted to about $25.

SAFE COMPANY DENIES SOME CURRENT RUMORS

The rumor in circulation that the Manganese Steel Safe Company expects to close its plant in this city, was denied today at the offices of the company on West Front street. During the past few days the company has laid off a number of men, because of al lack of work, and the plant is operaed on an eight-hour schedule five days a week. It was said today that the outlook for business is brighter and that it will probably be only a question of a short time when a full force of men will be employed.

The company also took occasion to correct an impression that the plant here is owned and controlled by the Mosler Safe Company, of Hamilton, Ohio, and that it is the intention to transfer the business from this city to Hamilton. It is stated that the Manganese Steel Safe Company is entirely distinct from the Mosler Safe Company, the latter acting in the capacity of selling agents for the former. One of the officials stated today, it is true that Messrs. Mosler are directors in the Manganese Steel Safe Company, but they do not own a controlling interest.

MR. AND MRS. ZIMMERMAN TENDERED HOUSEWARMING.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred A. Zimmerman, who removed two days ago from Central avenue to 942 Park avenue, were given a housewarming by twenty of their friends last night. The affair was in the nature of a surprise and was arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey F. Stout. Music and dancing occupied the greater part of the time during the evening and an especial feature was a series of amateur theatricals arranged by Joseph Lane, manager for Forestor's "Little Organ Grinder" company, who is spending a short time in the city.

Mr. Zimmerman is circulation manager of the New York World and has been a resident of Plainfield for the past year, coming here from Newark.

Charged With Theft.

John Marchne, a Polak, was arraigned in the city court, this morning, charged by Detectives Dougherty and Gaffney, of the New Jersey Central force, with stealing a crate of eggs from a freight car on the East Fourth street siding. At the request of his counsel the case was put over until tomorrow morning. Marchne was released in $100 bail, Joe manhattan furnishing the amount.

Won In Cake Walk.

Clarence Thornton and Cora Vail won the prize of the cake walk at Truell Hall last night. Twelve dusky couples participated in the affair and it was difficult to choose which did the best stunts, but the chef thought that "Mister Thornton and his lady was right smart" and the huge cake went to that couple.

New Dover School Superintendent.

Wildey W. Singer, of West Orange, has been appointed superintendent of public schools at Dover, to succeed County Superintendent J. Howard Hulsart. Mr. Singer was one of forty-five candidates for the post. He will probably not go to Dover until next fall.

—Eugene Wood, the Hotel Kensington porter, won first prize at the amateur night contest at the theatre last night.

—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Haynes have leased the last vacant flat in L. L. Manning's new building on West Front street, corner Central avenue, and will move there April 1, at which time Mr. Haynes will retire as the local agent for the New Jersey Central.

Martha Washington Council, Daughters of America, will meet tomorrow night and have initiation.

—Sydney S. Schuyler, of Belvidere avenue, has recently purchased a 20-horse power Buick runabout, Model 10, through the local agents.

—Mrs. Herman Weber, of Liberty street, has sold her South Plainfield farm to Albert Norway, of West Seventh street. The sale price was $4,000. Norway was one of forty who investigated the real estate proposition as advertised in the "want ad" column of The Daily Press.

Mrs. A. D. Edgar, of East Front street, is detained at home by illness.

AGAINST TAX RATE LAW

The North Plainfield Council Frames Resolution for Its Repeal.

KILLS BOROUGH IMPROVEMENTS

New Law, If Enforced, Necessitates Great Increase of Property Valuations and State and County Tax Money.

Resolutions were passed at the meeting of the North Plainfield Common Council last night requesting State Senator J. S. Frelinghuysen and Assemblyman W. W. Smalley to urge the repeal of the law limiting the tax rate to $2, or else to secure modifications that will permit the people of North Plainfield to raise and spend such money for local purposes as may seem necessary. This law, but recently passed, bears heavily on the borough, compelling either a lowering of the tax rate, or an increase in the assessed valuations. Mayor Townsend spoke at length on the detrimental effect of the statute, and after a general discussion, the resolutions were unanimously adopted by the Council.

The resolutions, as endorsed by the Mayor and Council, follow:

"Whereas, A movement has been started looking to the repeal of a law passed in 1906 entitled 'An Act for the reduction and limitation of the rate of taxation into several taxing districts of the State,' which law when carried into effect will work a great injustice to the borough of North Plainfield by so curtailing the amount to be raised for strictly local purposes that the ordinary running expenses of the borough cannot be met, or needed improvements in the way of sewers, etc., undertaken, the alternative being to make a heavy increase in assessed valuations, the effect of which would be not only to increase borough taxes, but to largely add to our burden of county and State school taxes; therefore be it

"Resolved, by the Mayor and Council of the borough of North Plainfield that the Senator and member of Assembly from this county be requested to urge the repeal of this law, or else such modifications that will permit the people of the borough to raise and spend such amounts for strictly local purposes as to them seem necessary."

Councilman C. L. Nichols, of the law, ordinance and taxation committee, introduced the resolutions with an appeal for the Council to urge the Senator and Assemblyman to work against the measure. In speaking of the matter in the discussion which followed, Mayor Townsend said:

"About a week ago, I was at a meeting of mayors held at Trenton, where the matter was thoroughly discussed. It is decidedly an injustice to the boroughs and townships. At that meeting, it was decided to take the matter up and secure the repeal of the law, or at least its modification so that it will not effect the amount of money raised in a county.

"The law as it now stands bears heavily on North Plainfield. It compels us to lower our tax rate or increase our property valuation in order to secure borough improvements, to raise money for roads, or for the installation of a sewer system. To increase our property valuations would mean to increase the amount of the tax we pay to the county, also to increase the State school tax, for these two vary directly with the valuation.

"The law was passed with the idea of equalizing the ratables all over the State. In some parts of Somerset county the rates are considerably below 1.75, and in one instance as low as 1.10. Such boroughs will not be effected by the change, they are already below the limit. What we want here in North Plainfield is the right to pay out money for our own roads and sewers without being compelled to increase the amount we send to the State. Anything our legislators can do in this matter, will mean relief from a very erroneous law.

"The matter is already being taken up by the committee selected at the Trenton meeting, and I am to hear what they do. I believe the law will effect North Plainfield more strictly than any borough in the State. It will mean that our valuation of $85,000 must be increased to about $250,000 if we plan borough improvements. This would mean a big increase in the money we turn over for special school tax, borough tax and taxes for all county purposes, and would make our sewer scheme even a more remote possibility."

County Court Takes a Recess.

For reasons known only to the court, Sheriff Lawrence today issued notices, which were served by Deputy Sheriff P. V. Weaver, informing the members of the petit jury, which was drawn this week, not to appear at court until notified. The jury includes ten well-known Plainfielders.

FOR ROAD IMPROVEMENTS

Borough Fathers Approve Petition to Freeholders Made by Taxpayers.

ASK RETURN FOR TAXES.

Former Mayor Smalley Explains How Borough Pays More to County and Gets Little or Nothing in Return.

Aiming to secure a practical benefit from all the money paid by North Plainfield to the county tax, the North Plainfield Council last night endorsed petitions to the Somerset County Board of Freeholders, urging the extension of Watchung avenue and the macadamizing of a mile stretch of Greenbrook road at the county's expense. Former Mayor N. B. Smalley presented the petition for the macadamizing of Greenbrook road, and urged the borough fathers to sanction the petition, "so that we may get some benefit from the money we pay over to the county for road improvements, instead of providing good roads in other townships and boroughs."

"It is only fair that such a request from the borough government be granted," said Mr. Smalley, "for we send money to the county seat for county road improvements for others, as it now stands, and have as yet derived no benefits ourselves."

At the December meeting of the Council, it was decided to open up Watchung avenue, but the borough has no funds for doing the work at present. On motion of Councilman McGee, the resolution to petition the County Board of Freeholders to make the extension a county road, to be built at the expense of the county, was unanimously passed. The benefits of the borough were discussed and the measure was supported because it will furnish another means of entering North Plainfield, relieving the traffic on Somerset street.

Mr. Smalley's petition to the Council requested a resolution endorsing the petition from Greenbrook road property owners, requesting the Freeholders to build a macadam road, seventy feet wide, from Rockview avenue to the borough limits,—a distance of about a mile. The petition was unanimously approved. In the course of his remarks on the matter, Mr. Smalley said:

"With the possible exception of Warren Township, the borough of North Plainfield has asked for the least money for road improvements. The local government spends a good deal of money on roads, and gives money to the county for other people's roads. By endorsing this petition, we are only asking for what is due us. Such petitions ought to come up every year, if we expect to have anything to show for the tax money we send to the county seat."

Young Women's Society Elects.

The annual meeting of the Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank Jones, of Mountain avenue. These officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. John B. Probasco; vice presidents, Miss May S. Shreve, Miss Ada Fountain; secretary, Miss Pauline Denton; treasurer, Miss Bessie Flanders. Discussion of plans for the year's work was followed by refreshments. The society decided to apportion its money as follows: Foreign missions, $85; home missions, $40; Old Folks' Home, Newark, $10; building mission school in the Philippines, $10; Chicago Training School, $10; a total of $155.

"New Jersey in the Revolution."

Rev. Dr. Everett T. Tomlinson, of Elizabeth, will lecture on "New Jersey in the Revolution" at the meeting of the Men's Club of the First Baptist church, Monday night, at 8:15 o'clock. Dr. Tomlinson is famous as an author and he has written a number of books for young people.

HOME MISSIONS' EFFORT

Crescent Ave. Church Women Raise $1,400 for Purpose During Year.

MRS. I. C. PIERSON PRESIDENT.

Miss M. O. White, of Summit, Tells Interesting Story About Her Immigrant Station Work.

Election of officers, reports and an address by Miss Mary Orne White, of Summit, who is interested as a missionary among the immigrants, combined to make the annual meeting of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, unusually intresting, yesterday afternoon. There was a large attendance of members and friends.

The reports of the treasurer and secretary showed that the receipts for the past year were $1,400 and the membership of the society is about 200. During the past twelve months contributions of money as well as clothing and other useful articles have been sent to numerous home mission stations.

President, Mrs. I. C. Pierson; first vice-president, Mrs. W. E. Honeyman; second vice-president, Mrs. Townsend Rushmore; treasurer, Mrs. William M. Myers; secretary, Miss Mary W. Ketcham; secretary of literature, Mrs. H. R. Holloway; young people's secretary, Miss Harriet Holloway.

After the business session Miss White addressed the society, telling an interesting story of her work among the immigrants. She spoke especially of the changes in this class of people during the past twenty-five years, and adding that a great many of those coming from other countries make good and desirable citizens. In her opinion the class of undesirable immigrants is growing less. Following the talk a social half-hour was enjoyed and tea was served. Those in charge of the tea were Mrs. W. H. Murray, Mrs. Frank D. Warren and Mrs. L. N. Lovell, and they were assisted by Mrs. Elliot T. Barrows and Mrs. J. P. Stevens, who poured. During the social period many were given the opportunity of meeting Miss White and learning more in detail of her excellent work.

SCHOOL BOARDS MEET AT SOMERVILLE SATURDAY

A meeting of the Somerset County School Board Association will be held in the court room at Somerville, Saturday, March 14, at 11 a. m. At the morning session County Superintendent H. Brewster Willis, of Middlesex, will make the address. Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen and Assemblyman William W. Smalley are expected to be present at the afternoon session.

On account of the importance of various school bills now in the Legislature all members are urged to attend to discuss these matters with the legislators. Prosecutor John F. Reger, of Somerville, is president of the association, and J. Bradford Opie, of Neshanic Station, secretary.

Sunday-School Teachers' Institute.

The Plainfield Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union has received an invitation to attend an institute to be held in the First Reformed church, New Brunswick, by the Union of that place, on Monday afternoon. Miss Rose Scott, of Newark, and Miss C. L. Ewalt, of New York, will conduct primary and junior sessions. In the evening Rev. Milton S. Littlefield, of Brooklyn, will deliver an address on "The Little Foxes that Spoil the Vines."

Mr. and Mrs. James C. Ammon, of Rutherford, have been visiting friends in this city.

"EXTRA WITNESSES" APPEAR FOR MARCHNE

At the request of the railroad detectives, hearing in the charge against John Marchne that he had stolen a crate of eggs from a freight car on the East Fourth street siding, was adjourned until Tuesdayy when called in the city court this morning. The complainants presented circumstantial evidence to show that Marchne had been the thief but Judge Runyon did not deem this satisfactory. It was then declared that a witness who had seen him take the eggs was not in court but could be procured by Tuesday and this led to the continuance of the case.

Joe Manhattan, organizer and president of the J. W. Manhattan Association, is a friend of Marchne and has been working overtime since his arrest to get him clear of the charge. He went bail for the prisoner yesterday and this morning appeared in the court room with some ten or fifteen Polaks and one Swede he hal rounded up to get into the proceedings. One of the Polaks stated that they had been brought along as "extra witnesses" but none of them knew a thing about the case except that Marchne was accused of theft and they were positive he couldn't be guilty.

Some of the "extra witnesses" made an attempt to fasten the charge on Peter Valusha and proceedings were interrupted while the matter was argued out in two or three tongues. Valusha was steered up to the desk and through an interpreter said Marchne's friends were hounding him and that yesterday the acsused man attacked him on Elm place because he wouldn't admit that he took the eggs. Detective-Sergeant Flynn stood by Valusha and he was cleared of any suspicion. The Manhattan delegates to the convention were warned from the bench to stop tempering with him as he was so badly scared he was afraid to venture around without a bodyguard.

PEDDIE GRADUATES BANQUET AND REUNION

The annual reunion and banquet of Peddie Institute Alumni Association was held last night at the Park Avenue Hotel, New York, and was attended by more than sixty members. These officers were elected for the coming year: President, Stephen B. Gilhuly, '82, Rutherford; first vice-president, Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, '89, Plainfield; second vice-president, Mrs. J. G. Schenck, '84, Newark; secretary-treasurer, T. Elliott Tolson, '02, New York.

The Plainfielders attending were Dr. and Mrs. J. Hervey Buchanan and Miss Margaret Cramer, their guest. Dr. G. W. Endicott, a member, was expected to make an address, but was detained. An orchestra rendered music throughout the banquet and afterward a quartet from Peddie Institute sang popular selections in which the guests joined. Dr. Buchanan was one of the speakers.

Plans were discussed for reaching more of the graduates so that a larger attendance may be secured in the future. Mr. Gilhuly announced that after this year Peddie Institute is to be a school for young men only and while it was a source of regret that the young women will hereafter be denied the privileges of the institution, he impressed upon those present that the graduates would always be welcomed at the annual banquet.

February Weather Changeable.

Weather Prophet John Neagle has compiled the statistics of the weather in February, which are as follows: Maximum temperature, 58, 15th; minimum temperature, 2 below zero, 5th; mean temperature, 26.9; normal temperature, 28.5; mean maximum, 35.7; mean minimum, 18.2; mean daily range, 17.5; greatest daily range, 36; total precipitation, 5.75 inches; greatest amount in twenty-four hours, 1.64, 19th; normal precipitation, 4.04 inches; total snowfall, 17.0 inches; normal snowfall, 11.4 inches; number of rainy days, 9; number of days clear, 10; partly cloudy, 10; cloudy, 9. The mean temperature was 1.6 below the normal. The precipitation for the month was 1.71 inches above the normal.

Raymond Wyckoff Surprised.

Raymond Wyckoff was pleasantly surprised at his home on Somerset street last night when about a score of his friends and schoolmates called on him unexpectedly. The evening was spent in playing games, and later refreshments were served.

Street Light for Jefferson Avenue.

The North Plainfield Council granted the petition of Jefferson avenue property owners for a street light between Walnut street and Greenbrook road at the meeting last night. The light will be installed at once.

SCHOOL BOARD PROTESTS

North Plainfield Educational Directors Fear Diversion of Public School Moneys.

ALSO PLAN MORE FIRE DRILLS.

Arrangements Made For Better Protection to Pupils In Case of a Blaze—Praise Ackerman.

At a special meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Education last night on advice from State Superintendent C. J. Baxter, the Board reconsidered its recent action fixing the budget figures for next year, which were to have been submitted to the voters at the annual meeting on March 17. This action was considered necessary by the attack which has been made in the Legislature on the State school tax laws. Bills are pending which would deprive the schools of the benefits derived from the operation of the Per-lins act and would make it impossible to reduce local taxation for the support of the schools.

The borough school budget as fixed last month would have resulted in a reduction of over $12,000 in the tax levy over the amount raised last year. The uncertainty as to the amount to be received from the State if the pending Avis or Prince bills were to become the law now makes it impossible to determine how much money should be raised by local tax.

The Board decided to submit no budget to the voters at present. It also appealed to Senator Frelinghuysen and Assemblyman Smalley to do their utmost to defeat the obnoxious bills. Hearty satisfaction was expressed over the statement of Senator Ackerman that he would oppose this legislation.

The borough Board, last night, made a thorough inquiry into the matter of fire-protection in the Somerset and Watchung buildings. It was reported that the hose connections had been tested, and steps had been taken to render it impossible to lock the outside doors in school hours. Suggestions were made to improve the efficiency of the fire-drill, and the superintendent was instructed to have the drill practised in both schools at least twice a month and to report the same to the Board. The buildings and grounds committee was authorized to have both schools electrically connected with fire headquarters.

DR. DAVISON TALKS TO COUNTY TEACHERS

Teachers from all over Somerset county gathered in Somerville today to attend the regular meeting of the Somerville High School. The session began at 10 o'clock this morning.

The chief address was made by Dr. Alvin Davison, professor of biology at Lafayette College, who had for his subject "The Keystone of An Education." County Superintendent H. C. Krebs, of North Plainfield, opened a discussion on "Tenure of Office" and related subjects.

The address of Prof. Davison was particularly interesting to teachers in elementary schools, as he is an ardent nature lover and a true scientist.

Luncheon was served the shoolma'ams at noon and the special collection was not forgotten.

Park Avenue Baptist Annual.

The annual business meeting of the Park Avenue Baptist church will be held on Wednesday night, March 25, for the purpose of electing three deacons, each for the term of two years to succeed Theodore I. Runyon, David M. Runyon and a vacancy, and for the election of a church clerk for the term of one year to succeed Harry C. Runyon and for the election of a treasure of benevolent funds for the term of one year, to succeed E. Frank Vail, all of whose terms of office will expire at that time. Reports for the past year will also be presented.

S. S. Teachers' Meeting.

The Plainfield Sunday-school Teachers' Union will meet at the Y. M. C. A. Monday evening at 8 o'clock. George H. Batchelor will conduct the devotional exercises. The lesson will be taught by George A. Chapman. The topic will be "Easter." The exercises will be led by Miss Force. All Sunday-school workers are extended a cordial welcome to attend.

Horse Thieves at Fanwood.

Police headquarters was notified today that horse thieves had visited Fanwood last night and made off with a rig belonging to William Steirers. The horse is described as a brown animal with white hind feet. The wagon is a business vehicle with yellow running gear and black top.

FARM HAND GETS WAGES

Hired Man Successful in Suit Brought Against Somerville Society Woman.

MUCH BITTER LITIGATION.

Mrs. Evelyn W. Murray Must Pay John Millett $80—Cases In Somerset County Court.

Mrs. Evelyn Wentworth Murray, who owns a country estate near Raritan and has long been prominent in S. P. C. A. work and society circles in Somerville, was one of the leading figures in the Somerset county courts at Somerville yesterday, appearing as the defendant in a suit brought against her by John Millett for wages alleged to be due. She brought him out from New York to work on her place in December, 1906, and agreed to pay him $30 a month, with $10 extra from April 1, if he made the garden. Mrs. Murray asserted that Millet was not entitled to the extra pay because he did not do the work. He brought suit for $160. She had offered to settle for $85, but he would not take it. When the case was tried in Justice Kiechen's court a verdict for the full amount was awarded the plaintiff. The case was appealed. Yesterday Judge Schenck gave the plaintiff judgment for $80. Miss Mary M. Steele represented Mrs. Murray and Beekman & Vosseller were counsel for Millett.

In the Orphans' Court yesterday the exceptions to the accounts in the estates of Andrew Fricke, of Somerville, and Henry Herlick, of Warren Township, were heard. In the Herlick case decision was reserved and the Fricke case was laid over until Tuesday, March 17.

Judge Schenck announced that he would not hold court on Friday, the 13th, but would on Tuesday, the 17th, instead. New petit jurors for the April term of courts will be drawn.

WILLIAM GAUB SUCCEEDS FIRE LIEUT. SMALLEY.

William Gaub was appointed lieutenant and driver of the North Plainfield fire department at the Council meeting last night, and his nomination by Mayor Townsend was unanimously endorsed by the borough fathers. Gaub was sworn in at the Mayor's office this morning.

He has been a member of the borough fire department for the past eight months, on regular duty as tillerman and driver. At the death of Lieutenant Elden G. Smalley in December, Frank Hull was chosen as regular fireman on duty at headquarters, and by last night's appointment Gaub is made Smalley's successor.

Council Report Published.

Copies of the twenty-third annual report of the Borough of North Plainfield were distributed at the Council meeting last night. The pamphlet includes a list of the standing committees of the 1908 Council and financial reports of all departments of the borough government for the year 1907. In the back is the list of delinquent tax payers. The amount of the complete list as printed is more than $14,000, but Borough Clerk F. A. Martin said today that most of this tax money had now been paid up. Copies of the report may be secured at the borough clerk's office.

Borough Council to Pay Interest.

In accordance with a motion made by Councilman Nichols at the Borough Council meeting last night, the North Plainfield fathers will pay three per cent. interest on the balance due the Board of Education. The interest will be computed from January 1, 1908. In his endorsement of the motion, Mayor Townsend said that this interest should be paid, speaking of the courtesy of the Board in regard to the money, which was due them December 22, 1907.

Building Cannot Be Moved.

The petition of A. L. Carney, asking for permission to move the portable building from Somerset street at Somerset place to the lot adjoining Aaron Bender's building, was turned down by the Borough Council at the meeting last night. The principal objection was from Aaron Bender. Councilman Smith, who investigated the matter, stated that it would effect insurance rates, being a flimsy, portable structure.

The Net Proceeds $140.

The net proceeds of the amateur theatricals given at the Park Club, Tuesday night, under the auspices of the Silver Cross Circle of The King's Daughters, will be about $140. The money will be in support of the city nurse and other work of charity undertaken by the circle.

Howell Division, No. 97, Sons of Temperance, will hold an entertainment and social in their room in Pittis Hall, 131 East Front street, Monday night.

FIGHT FOR CHAIRMANSHIP

Collins and Lane Rival Candidates for Head of Union County Dem. Committee.

SCRAP NOW A LIVELY ONE.

Summit Man's Friends Say Elizabethan Promised Him His Support for the Position

As is its habit, the Union County Democracy is engaged in a lively row, the casus belli being General Dennis F. Collins' alleged determination to have himself made county chairman despite protests from Summit, Plainfield and other centres. Nearly every leader in the county has been drawn into the scrap which it is believed will cause a serious rupture unless some of the cooler ones brings about speedy peace.

Only one other candidate has so far announced himself in addition to General Collins, a Summit man, John J. Lane, being in the fight he says to the finish. According to Mr. Lane, Collins urged him to get in the race last summer when it was known that Peter Egenolf, of Elizabeth, was booked for a side-track. Egenolf subsequently resigned after an ineffectual attempt was made at the party convention last fall to shove him off when he help defeat the nomination of Martine for Governor. Lane's friends declare that during the Sea Girt encampment, Collins discussed the subject with Lane and promised his support if the Summit man would come out as a candidate to succeed Egenolf. At that time it is alleged, Collins declared that he was not a candidate for the place.

Among the objections made to Collins by those outside the county seat is his prominent connection with brewing interests. It is also declared that inasmuch as he is identified with the National Guard and is a possible candidate for Mayor of Elizabeth, that some one else should be named.

NORTH PLAINFIELD COUNCIL WILL PUBLISH ORDINANCES.

A revised set of borough ordinances, together with the rules of order and conducting of Council metings, adopted at the North Plainfield Council meeting last night, will shortly be published in pamphlet form. This is in accordance with a motion by Councilman Woolston made at last night's meeting. In speaking of the advisability of the matter, Mayor Townsend strongly endorsed the idea, stating that there had been no revised set of the borough ordinances published since 1897, while many chages have been made within that time.

The rules for conducting Council meetings were adopted with corrections at the meeting last night. They were drawn up by Councilman Nichols.

Former Mayor at Council's Session.

Former Mayor N. B. Smalley was guest of honor at the meeting of the North Plainfield Council las night. Mayor Townsend persuaded him to take a seat near the mayor's desk, and Mr. Smalley entered into some of the discussion. His subject in attending the meeting was to secure the Council's endorsement of a petition to the County Board of Freeholders requesting this Board to macadamize Greenbrook road to the borough limits. The Council's endorsement of the petition was unanimous.

Funeral of Miss Henehan.

The funeral of Miss Catherine Henehan, who was found dead in bed at her employer's home on East Front street, was held this morning at the residence of Charles J. McCarthy, of Manson place, and later in St. Mary's church. Mass was said by Rev. Father Delehanty in the presence of a gathering of relatives and friends. Burial will be made this afternoon in Calvary cemetery, Long Island. The pall bearers were Thomas Monsell, Charles J. McCarthy, Frank McElhone and John Divver.

"Checkers" Ross Coming Again.

Thomas W. Ross, the former star of "Checkers," will appear at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday night in his new play, "The Travelling Salesman." It was written by James Forbes, author of "The Chorus Lady," and is being produced by Henry B. Harris. The performances will be in the nature of a benefit for John A. Lawrence, advertising manager at the playhouse.

Planning County Improvements.

The Union County Board of Freeholders as a committee of the whole will meet at Roselle on Thursday, March 12, to consider the advisability of setting apart a thoroughfare as a county and State aid road. Plans are also being formed to improve a road in Elizabeth, the trolley company agreeing to stand its proportionate share of the expense.

DR. LONG'S "NATURE FAKES" NOT IN SAME CLASS WITH THIS!

A hen's egg three and a half inches long by two and a half inches wide, within which was found a perfectly formed yolk and white surrounding another egg of ordinary dimensions, enclosed in a regulation egg-shell, is not "nature fake," according to William L. Smalley, Jr. It was found yesterday morning, he says, in the nest of a Plymouth Rock hen on his farm on Greenbrook road, and near it was a soft shelled egg, laid by the same fowl. The find was made by Mr. Smalley's son, Ralph Smalley.

The big egg and the soft shell one were laid within half an hour, giving the hen a laying record of three eggs in thirty minutes. Measurements of the big egg, which was encased in a shell of slightly more than ordinary thickness, showed its circumference to be nine inches from end to end and seven and a half inches around its greatest lateral part.

Mr. Smalley himself broke open the egg, which was formally inspected by a committee of neighbors, and found in it a second egg, of ordinary size, with the customary hard shell. Between the outer and inner shells of this double egg, were the completely developed parts, white and yolk. The albumenous, or white part of the outer egg was especially copious. Both outer and inner egg were found to be fresh.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The singing contingent, which is so essential to perfect minstrelsy, forms an alluring portion of the program with John W. Vogel's big city minstrels, which will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight. An orchestra of twelve soloists, under the direction of Joseph Norton, is used in connection with the dozen or more vocalists to produce the great choral symphonies in the novelty in song, The Invisible Voice.

The central character in Marguerite Merington's new comedy, "Until We Meet Again," which will be at the New Plainfield theatre Monday night, is that of an impoverished young German Baron, and is assumed by Eugene Ormonde, whose success as a leading man in dramatic productions has been most pronounced. As a guarantee from Augustin Daly Company, he joined Daniel Frohman's Stock Company at the Lyceum theatre. Since then he has played in London, Paris and Berlin and has been leading man for Ada Rehan, Blanche Bates, Mrs. Fiske, Henrietta Crosman, Lillian Russell and Florence Roberts.

The authors of "Strongheart" and "The Genius" and "The Warrens of Virginia," Cecil and William de Mille, are the authors of Cyril Scott's new play that Samuel Claggett will present at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night. There has been lots of controversy over the title, but it has been finally decided to call it "The Royal Mounted." When it is understood that the play deals with the Canadian mounted police and that its scenes are laid in the Province of Alberta, where troops of dashing cavalry are quartered as guardians of the Kink's law, the title will appear apt and striking. There is said to be a stirring detective element in the play and a love story that leads to constant peril and excitement. Equally as melodramatic as "The Great Divide," its locale and coloring differs. It is the class of play that should appeal to the lovers of the best in dramatics and undoubtedly will lend itself to picturesque settings and to effective acting.

BASKING RIDGE IN REVOLT.

May Ask for Separate Borough if Bernardsville Boundary Lines Are Upheld.

Basking Ridge, Mar. 7.—A mass meeting was held Thursday night in Liberty Hall for the purpose of discussing the borough question. The meeting was presided over by F. P. Sutro, who on behalf of a committee of nine presented a report containing four propositions, only one of which seemed to meet with approval.

The proposition favored provides that Basking Ridge shall apply to the Legislature for a borough of its own. After the other propositions relative to valuations and taxes had been discussed it was unanimously voted a committee of nine shall confer with a committee representing Millington, Liberty Corner and Far Hills, to consider making protest to the Legislature against the present boundary lines of the proposed borough for Bernardsville.

These lines encroach upon the rest of the township, it is claimed, and in the event of the Legislature refusing to listen to the protest of the committee the formal application for the borough of Basking Ridge is to be presented.

TO CURB INTOXICATION.

List of Victims of Liquor Habit Will Be Given to Bayonne Saloon Keepers By Recorder.

Recorder Hyman Lazarus, of Bayonne, has begun a movement to do away with habitual intoxication, and he yesterday asked the members of the Liquor Dealers' Association to help him by refusing to serve drunkards. He said that if this is done much suffering and want among women and children will be obviated. The saloon keepers promised to do as he asked.

The recorder declares he is going to enforce an old blue law which provides that saloon keepers who serve drunkards may be fined $10. A list of habitual drunkards will be sent the saloon keepers.

SEEKING WORK, LOSES LEGS.

Newark Boy, Desiring to Save Time, Attempts to Jump on Freight and Falls Under Wheels.

Charles Aichle, seventeen years old, left his home at No. 21 Napoleon street, Newark, yesterday to look for work. He inquired in several shops and then, in a desire to save time in his travels to another part of the city, attempted to board a moving train on the Manufacturers' branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Van Buren street.

He lost his grip and fell under the wheels. Besides having a portion of each of his feet ground off he suffered a severe scalp wound and concussion of the brain. He was taken to St. James' Hospital and his recovery is not expected.

The Spanish Stiletto.

The classic "navaja," without which no romance of Spanish life is conceivable and which, according to tradition, all the fair sisters of Carmen carry as well as their brethren, is doomed to disappear. The Spanish minister of the interior, Senor Lacierva, has just issued a decree forbidding the sale or the use of any pointed knife, dagger or stiletto having a blade longer than six inches.

Gavett, City Surveyor, and filed in the office of the City Clerk on the twenty-fourth day of February, Nineteen Hundred and Eight, be and the same are hereby adopted and established as the official grades to which all curbs shall be maintained, and in connection with which all macadamizing shall be constructed, and all grades of sidewalks shall be maintained, as provided by law and the ordinances of the City of Plainfield; and that all ordinances and parts of ordinances establishing other or different grades than those shown by said maps or profiles and hereby established, be and the same are hereby repealed.

Corporation Notice

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

J. T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., Feb. 25, 1908.

AN ORDINANCE

To Further Amend An Ordinance Entitled "An Ordinance to Establish, Regulate and Control a Fire Department in the City of Plainfield," approved May 6, 1899, as amended.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That Section 8 of the ordinance to which this is an amendment, be further amended so as to read as follows:

"Sec. 8. The pay of the force is hereby fixed as follows, the said rates to take effect from the first day of January, 1908:

Chief Engineer	$1,100 per annum
First Assistant Engineer	$1080 per annum
Captains	$1020 per annum
Veterinary Surgeon	$ 165 per annum
Engineer of Steamer	$82.50 per annum

Drivers, Tillermen and Hosemen shall be diveded into five classes according to their respective terms of service as follows:

Class A—Fifth year of service and over.
Class B—Fourth year of service.
Class C—Third year of service.
Class D—Second year of service.
Class E—First year of service.

Provided, that the Common Council upon recommendation of the Mayor may advance any regular Firemen, Drivers, Tillermen or Hosemen from a lower to a higher class for especially good work or meritorious service, whether he shall have served his full time, specified above or not.

That from the first day of January, 1908, the salaries of the Drivers, Tillermen and Hosemen or other regularly appointed Firemen shall be as follows, according to their class:

Class A	$960 per annum
Class B	$900 per annum
Class C	$840 per annum
Class D	$780 per annum
Class E	$720 per annum

The members of the Fire Department known and designated as "Call Men" shall perform at least ninety per cent. of duty at all fires or alarms of fires in each year; and such members shall receive as compensation, the sum of Fifty-five Dollars per annum, payable in two semi-annual payments of Twenty-seven Dollars and Fifty Cents for each of the six months ending June 30th and December 31st in each year, except that when a Call Man shall act as Captain of Hook and Ladder Company No. 1, he shall receive one hundred dollars per annum, payable semi-annually, and when any Call Man shall act as Engineer of Steamer, he shall receive eighty-two dollars and fifty cents per annum, payable semi-annually, but no salary shall be paid to a Call Man until he shall have signed a stipulation that he will render service as contemplated in this section."

Sec. 2. That section 13 of said ordinance be amended by striking out the words "seventy-five per cent. of duty per annum" and substituting the words "ninety per cent of duty per annum."

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to Lay Out and Open Compton Avenue, DeKalb Avenue, Prescott Place, Pond Place, Darrow Avenue, Essex Street and Portions of Madison Avenue, Union Street, South Second Street, West Third Street, West Eighth Street, Monroe Avenue and Ravine Road," a copy of which is subjoined to this notice, has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time, and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Common Council to adopt such ordinance at a special meeting of the Common Council to be held in the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. Gavett, City Surveyor, and filed in the office of the City Clerk on the twenty-fourth day of February, Nineteen Hundred and Eight, be and the same are hereby adopted and established as the official grades to which all curbs shall be maintained, and in connection with which all macadamizing shall be constructed, and all grades of sidewalks shall be maintained, as provided by law and the ordinances of the City of Plainfield; and that all ordinances and parts of ordinances establishing other or different grades than those shown by said maps or profiles and hereby established, be and the same are hereby repealed.

AMUSEMENTS.

The dramatic sensation of the current season is unquestionably Eugene Walter's new four act play of American life, which Wagenhals and Kemper present at the Astor theatre. No attraction in the past five years has received such universally commendable notices. Acton Davies, writing in the Evening Sun, declared it to be one of the big dramatic hits of the age and he lays particular stress upon the exceedingly capable organization which Wagenhals and Kemper have secured for this play. Louie DeFoe, in the World, used the splendid line: "No one who sees 'Paid in Full' can escape its grip." Waler Eaton, writing in the Sun, confesses that American theatregoers as well as managers have a playwright of unquestioned power to reckon with in the personality of Mr. Walters and prophesy for his play one of the most lasting successes of a decade.

Charlotte Walker's exquisite work as Agatha Warren, and Frank Keenan's vigorous and many-sided interpretations of Gen. Buck Warren, in "The Warrens of Virginia," at the Belasco theatre, are jointly exercising a strong spell upon the public which delights in a powerful domestic play against a background of fierce conflict, in a setting such as only Belasco can give it. This play of the Old Dominion has been one of the distinct successes of the season, and after more than 100 performances is still filling the Belasco theatre to the doors at every performance. The special Thursday matinees are proving very popular with the out-of-town patrons of the Forty-second street playhouse.

NEARLY A HERO SCORES AT THE CASINO THEATRE.

New York, March 7.—The oldtime atmosphere of the Casino is back again, and this time to stay, with Sam Bernard in "Nearly A Hero." Without a single exception, the New York critics acknowledged the wonderful power of Bernard's comedy interpretation of an exceptionally clever series of humorous complications, and the result is that the historic playhouse is being crowded nightly, while both Thursday and Saturday matinees are playing to capacity. Mr. Bernard's greatest success up to this time was "The Rich Mr. Hoggenheimer" with which, under Frohman management, he became so inseparably identified. But at least the critic declared that "Nearly A Hero" is greater than "The Rich Mr. Hoggenheimer," and predicted a climax of triumph for this keenly acute lineator of comedy roles. Aside from the comedy lines and situations, and the numerous song hits, the piece is remakable for its artistic stage pictures and the gorgeous costuming. Nothing like the variety of costly gowns has been seen on Broadway in many a day. Among the principal members of the company supporting Mr. Bernard, are Misses Ethel Levey, Ada Lewis, Neva Aymar, Elizabeth Brice, Daisy Greene and Messrs. Edgar Norton, Robert Paton Gibbs, Sam Edwards and Burrell Barbaretti.

CRITICS ARE UNANIMOUS FOR THE WALTZ DREAM.

New York, March 7.—An extraordinary success has been recorded at the Broadway theatre. It is the first production in this country of a Viennese operatta called "A Waltz Dream." The newspaper critics, without a dissenting voice, extol the work in all of its details, and so their judgment had been tumultously voiced by the vast and cheering audience long before the curtain fell upon the final act, it is a safe forecast that the Broadway will need no change of attraction for the remainder of the season. And it was an extremely difficult result to achieve at this particular time. For a very obvious reason, "A Waltz Dream" could not possibly escape comparison with the reigning light opera success of the season, "The Merry Widow." The most talked of hit in the latter is the waltz song. When "The Merry Widow" is mentioned the mind instantly adverts to the waltz which is being hummed and whistled all over New York, and the very title of the new work suggests a challenge. Emphasizing this condition is the circumstance that both operas are Viennese. But "The Waltz Dream," however, has passed the ordeal with flying colors and the interesting race for supremacy has been won by it.

SLIGHT TO BOROUGH'S MAYOR BY TROLLEY OFFICIAL?

Mayor Townsend, of North Plainfield, is at a loss to explain the delay of Superintendent Luhrs, of the Public Service Corporation, in the matter of installing a catch basin between the trolley rails on Somerset street near the bridge. The matter was brought to the attention of the P. S. C. official last week in a letter by Borough Clerk Fred Martin.

The Mayor has requested the Superintendent to meet with him to suggest a means of getting rid of the standing water on the roadway, between Pearl street and the bridge. At a point about mid-way between these points, the roadway is low, and catch basins has been installed by the borough at the curbs. There is a certain amout of water, however, which gathers between the rails, and Mayor Townsend will urge the installation of a catch-basin at this point, if the two officials can get together to talk the matter over.

FAVOR "SUICIDE" ORDINANCE.

Newark Aldermanic Committee Approves Plan to Restrict Sale of Carbolic Acid.

After hearing the views of a number of druggists on the subject, Newark's Aldermanic Committee on Public Health last night approved the proposed ordinance restricting the sale of carbolic acid.

This is popularly known as the "suicide" ordinance. It provides that the sale of the poison shall be restricted to a solution containing not more than five per cent., to be sold only upon the written prescription of a physician or veterinarian. Prescriptions shall not be renewed, the use to which the acid is to be put is to be shown on the prescription and the quantity of crude acid to be sold at one time shall be not less than five pounds or a gallon. Penalty for a violation of the ordinance is $50 fine.

One of the druggists who addressed the committee last night wanted the strength of the solution increased to ten per cent. and another wanted stricken out the section prohibiting renewals and making a new prescription necessary. One druggist said that the more restrictions the better it would be for the druggists.

ASTRONOMERS DISCOVERED SOME HEAVENLY PHENOMENA.

Announcement has been made by Harvard College Observatory of the discovery by Melotte, of the Greenwich Observatory, England, of a hitherto unknown object in the sky.

It has been noted on eight different nights, and from its motion and its nearness to the plane of the ecliptic, it is surmised to be a small planet or a satellite.

The only previous discovery of planetary nature at Greenwica Observatory was in 1906, when on an examination of plates taken in 1903, an asteroid was found. A number of these small bodies have been discovered, all in the region between Mars and Jupiter, and there seems to be no reason why they may not extend throughout the interval. They run in size from about 500 miles in diameter to not more than ten.

Bayonne School Girl Missing.

Grace Bloodgood, thirteen years old, left her home Monday to attend Public School No. 3, a block from her home, No. 49 West Forty-ninth street, Bayonne. She has not been seen or heard from since, and yesterday her parents asked the police to aid in the search for her. She wore a plaid skirt and coat and a brown hat.

CONSISTORY UPHOLDS PASTOR.

Jersey City Deacon, in Sustaining the Rev. Dr. Andreae, Calls Reformers "Hypocrites."

The Rev. Gottlieb Andreae, pastor of the St. John's German Evangelical Reformed church, of Jersey City, has received the unanimous vote of confidence of his consistory as a reply to the clergymen who have expressed disapproval of Pastor Andreae's opposition to the local option bill, now before the Legislature.

Deacon Conrad, in a fervid speech supporting the vote, said:

"The measure advocated by the local option preachers is distinctly non-American. This country is being swamped with hypocrites—with people who do not do as they say, but find fault with anything their fellow man does. And whenever the time comes—as come it will—when these hypocrites are repressed we shall have a better city, a better State and a better country.

"You gentlemen, as well as myself, consider yourselves as good Christians as any of those ministers in favor of local option and I hardly believe that the Almighty on the Judgment Day will make very much distinction between those who relished their glass of beer and those who did not.'

HELD IN MURDER CASE.

Police Get Alleged Witness in Connection with South River Mystery.

Joseph Petrowsky has been placed in the county jail at New Brunswick as an important witness for the State in the case of John Bridenski, whose body was found in South River a few days ago. Victor Paul, of Old Bridge, is under arrest.

Petrowsky, it is believed, has some information as to how the dead man received the fatal blow behind the ear which caused death. He and Paul had been together before the man's body was found. He also was a witness to what occurred on the Sunday previous to Bridenski's death, when Paul and the dead man had an altercation.

After Paul's arrest Petrowsky left Old Bridge. Detective Hoffman traced him to Sayreville and then to South River, where he was arrested late last night.

Ancient Taximeters.

Taximeters, it seems, were better known to the Rome of Julius Caesar than they yet are to the London of Edward VII. Suetonius and Vitruvius both describe them as attached to the Roman cabs of that epoch. The latter even goes into details of their mechanism. Taximeters were also known to the Chinese of the eleventh century.

It is worth considerable to any citizen of Plainfield to know how to be cured of painful, annoying and itching piles. Know then that Doan's Ointment is a positive remedy for all itchiness of the skinfi for piles, eczema, etc. One application relieves and soothes. Read this testimony of its merit:

Thomas Haskard, of 941 West Third street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I was a member of Co. A., First Regt., N. J. Vols., under Col. Montgomery. During the Rebellion I contracted itching piles and they have bothered me off and on ever since. No one who has not suffered from this trouble knows what the irritation is. I tried about every salve, wash and ointment known in the hope of finding a cure but nothing helped me until I got Doan's Ointment. It took just three boxes to put me in shape so I could rest nights. A continued use cured me so that I have been free ever since from any trouble arising from piles."

A COLLEGE HEAD'S RAVINGS.

It is a serious mistake for any dignified church organization to take notice of a self-advertising rattle-brained individual no matter what station in life he may occupy and this applies no more to a stump speaker who has an axe to grind than to a college president who may feel himself called upon to earn the donations which a John D. Rockefeller or an H. H. Rogers may bestow upon his institution. It is unfortunate, therefore, that charges, have been brought before a church conference against Rev. Dr. James R. Day, whose claim to fame is that he is chancellor of Syracuse University. The complaint grows out of the doctor's wild flights of oratory against the President of the United States, but as these insults have been merely viewed as ludicrous ravings, no good can come from bringing such a man to account.

Of the many, many flagrant and inexcusable ravings of this man, here is an example:

"Of the President's message, if I am entirely honest and frank, I am compelled to say that much of it reads like the ravings of a disordered mind, and that other portions, in which appeal is made to class prejudice and excitement, is large with the suggestion of the adroit and cunning, the shrewd but reckless demagogue."

This probably is a still worse specimen of his harangues:

"There are two general forms of anarchism. The late practices of our President are of the more dangerous of these forms."

Surely when the head of an university places himself on the same level as an Emma Goldman, no dignified body of churchmen should waste time with him.

SHAME ON HIM!

John L. Scudder, who occupies a sacred calling and has had one of those empty titles—"Dr."—prefixed to his name, should hold his head in shame after addressing the chief magistrate of New Jersey in such language as this:

"If you vote with the rummies you are dead to us forever. You and others had better read the handwriting on the wall. Refuse us our right of home rule on the liquor question and we shall be sour and down on you forever.

"I have no ill feeling to you personally, but I hate the traffic. It is only right that you should know how our multitudes of church people feel in advance. Sincerely yours,

"JOHN L. SCUDDER.

"P. S.—Remember, I can reach hosts of young voters for you in our People's Palace."

Has not the Jersey City dominie furnished an answer to that favorite pulpit topic of notoriety-loving men of the cloth: "Why don't men go to church?"

Surely Mr. Bryan will have to put that wealth, which he is fast accumulating, to some use if he does not wish to become a member of that despised plutocratic class. Why not use it to endow a chair in political economy in some seat of learning for Mr. Roosevelt?

Official statistics show that during last year, Charlotte, N. C., physicians, wrote 39,645 prescriptions for whiskey. As North Carolina is a "strictly temperance" State, the friends of local option in New Jersey will kindly explain this fact away.

Local optionists, please note.

According to the Newark News, the wealth of this country is controlled by 155 men. Must have missed us.

CATCHES WIFE'S CAPTIVATOR.

Peace Justice Germanus, of Newark, Fights Chauffeur in Street, Then Causes His Arrest.

Anton Raschek was held in the First Criminal Court, Newark, yesterday on a charge of non-support and desertion made by his wife, Lena. Raschek is a chauffeur and, it is charged, went West last January, where he was joined by the wife of Peace Justice Emil Germanus, who married the Rascheks two years ago. Germanus learned of their whereabouts and brought his wife back. He did not find Raschek until yesterday, when he saw him in an automobile that was standing in Springfield avenue.

Germanus pounced on the chauffeur and a fight ensued which resulted in Raschek being arrested. Germanus then notified Mrs. Raschek and she hastened to the police station to prefer the charge. Mrs. Raschek declares that when Raschek deserted her last July for another woman Mrs. Germanus told her she would never take him back if she were in her place. When he deserted her a second time she was dumfounded to learn that Mrs. Germanus had joined him.

ESCAPES DEATH, LOSES THUMB.

Paterson Youth Accidentally Discharges Shotgun While Ramming In Charge.

Edward Verduin, twenty-one years old, of No. 136 North Third street, Paterson, narrowly missed blowing his head off last night when he attempted to load a shotgun. As it is, he is minus his left thumb.

Verduin was ramming in part of the charge when he knocked against the hammer with his knee. The discharge tore his hat to pieces and punctured a hole in the ceiling of his room. Throwing up his arm to protect himself Verduin got his left hand up so that his thumb was shot away.

Spit in Trolley Car, Goes to Court.

For spitting on the floor of an Elizabeth-Newark trolley car, Benjamin Draper, of Newark, was fined $10 in Police Court at Elizabeth yesterday on complaint of Louis J. Richards, health officer. Draper told Judge Owen P. Mahon that he had a large family and was in straitened circumstances. After hearing Draper's story, Judge Mahon remitted the fine and discharged him under a suspension of sentence.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Over-heated pipes in the Whittier School building yesterday afternoon threatened the building with fire, and the alarm was sounded and the pupils had a realistic fire drill, emptying the building in less than two minutes. It was feared that the hot pipes would ignite the woodwork, so the janitor was instructed to dump the fire and cool the pipes as rapidly as possible. The fire drill showed that the pupils were trained for an emergency, for there was no disorder as the various classes passed out to the street. After the fire was dumped and there was no danger, regular classes were resumed.

Several persons will be baptized at the close of the morning service at the First Baptist church, New Market, tomorrow morning. Rev. George H. Gardiner will administer the rite. The Seventh-Day Baptists will hold a joint union service with the Baptists, and music will be a feature.

A successful reception and dance was held at Jr. O. U. A. M. Hall last night under the auspices of the Dunellen A. C. There were about fifty couples present, and dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

The entertainment committee of the New Market Field Club has planned for an informal "feed" for the members in the club rooms tonight. A program of entertainment has been arranged.

Several new members will be received at the meeting of the Holy Name Society at St. John's church tomorrow afternoon.

Miss Madeline Fenner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Fenner, is able to be out again after a severe cold.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Someone shot a valuable bird dog belonging to Lynus Walpole yesterday. The animal was found dead on the ball grounds a few minutes after it was let loose for its daily run.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Backer are spending several weeks in Indiana, where Mr. Backer is superintending the erection of a large press for the Scott Company of Plainfield.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be held at the usual hours, morning preaching 10:45, B. Y. P. U. 7:15, evening sermon 8 o'clock.

Real estate dealer Thomas M. Paff, Sr., reports a steady demand for houses for rental this spring. There will be but few to rent as usual.

Made Fatal Jump for Moving Train.

Attempting to get on a moving Erie train at Boardville yesterday, William S. McDonald, of New York, slipped and fell under the wheels. Both legs were severed, and he died in a few minutes. He had been on a visit to his sister at Boardville, and he was anxious to reach his place of employment.

Another Freak Bill.

Assemblyman Firth's bill for a cent a mile trolley fare has aroused a good deal of interest here, because it would reduce the fares on all the suburban lines centering in this city, though not in town, for the bill provides that no fare shall be less than five cents. The fare is to be a cent a mile up to twenty miles.

THE FORUM.

Smoke Not a Necessity.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Replying to the article in your forum of March 3d, which was in fact a complaint by one of the residents of the Netherwood district, of the coal smoke nuisance, if such it may be called, as resulting from the plant of the Union Water Company.

Until within a recent time, it has been considered an impossibility to burn soft coal for power purposes without the production of considerable amounts of smoke and soot. I do not wish to contradict in any particular, the views as expressed by the writer, in your published article, but rather to correct the seemingly accepted theory that practically all the fault was due to lack of care or experience on the part of firemen operating plants of this character.

While the difference between skilled and unskilled methods of handling fires will produce an appreciable amount of saving in fuel, which means a lowering of the smoke produced, still the preliminary and actual fault lies in the design and construction of the furnace itself. These are causes for which the fireman is not to blame, and which he cannot be expected to correct.

It may be interesting at least to those who are residents of the western end of our city to know that the chimney of the Potter Printing Press Company scarcely ever produces any smoke that can be troublesome to residents of that district. This is not a matter of circumstance, but is rather the result of the peculiar construction of their boiler furnaces, by means of which they are enabled to burn wood, soft coal, and even the finest grades of anthracite, and in all cases attaining economical results, without the production of any smoke. This apparatus has not so far been offered for the consideration of the Water Company, but was offered to the Public Service Corporation some time ago when they were installing an extra boiler in their power plant, the offer being to equip the boiler without expense to them as a demonstration, but the offer was refused, the reason given being that the Plainfield station was only operated as an auxiliary to the Metuchen plant, and that only temporary improvements were being made until such time as the Metuchen plant could be equipped to supply the entire demands.

I do not wish to make this article appear as a local advertisement for any company, and it is therefore difficult, and probably unnecessary to go into any details of the peculiariites used in this construction. I merely wish to bring it to the attention of the public in our city, that the nuisance of coal smoke as seen by them is not an absolute necessity.

These equipments are being installed by the Empire Steel and Equipment Company, of 141 Broadway, New York, and are now being installed by them in different places, Newark being a nearby location, in which several plants are in successful operation. The writer is making a specialty of furnace design and construction, and is willing to guarantee that work done under his plans and specifications will result in furnaces which will produce efficiencies of from 10 to 25 per cent. in excess of the usual construction, and with the practical elimination of all smoke.

This is not accomplished by any tricks of sleight of hand or other questionable methods, but rather the practical application of well known principles involved in chemical combustion, resulting in nearly a perfect burning of all the gases as they are volatilized from the fuel; which process if properly completed will not produce what is commonly seen as smoke.

The time will surely come, and that at no distant date, when the owner of power producing plants will awaken to the fact that it is poor policy to save a few dollars in the expense of furnace construction, and continue the waste of money up the chimney for all time, this being a constant expense evident not alone to himself, but also to those living in the vicinity of his operation.

Again I wish to say, do not blame the firemen for all of the nuisance of this nature complained of. It is not his fault, but rather the fault of the conditions under which he is obliged to labor.

Respectfully yours,
A. L. CASE,
Consulting Engineer.

TO AID 1,500 UNEMPLOYED.

Committee of Jersey City Citizens Will Ask Officials to Furnish Work.

To plan for obtaining work for the city's unemployed a public meeting was held yesterday afternoon in the Free Library, Jersey City. It was attended by representatives of various charitable organizations, who reported that they were receiving more requests for aid than they could comply with. The Rev. Elmer S. Forbes, rector of St. John's Protestant Episcopal church, presided, and in a discussion it was stated that there are in the city fully 1,500 men who are sincere in seeking employment, but who are unable to find it.

It was suggested that the city and county officials could find a way of providing work for these men and it was decided to try this plan. A committee of fifteen union men and five clergymen, was appointed to visit the county and city officials. This committee will hold a meeting today to prepare a plan of action.

"DUTCH" IDES' CAREER

Story of the Young Desperado Recently Killed by a Policeman's Bullet.

A VICTIM OF TRASHY NOVELS.

Escaped from Reformatory Four Times and Frequently Eluded Police After He Had Been Surrounded.

If it were intended merely to record a career of crime it would be far better to let the memory of Frank Ides rest in peace. But without any intention of exalting such a character, it must be admitted that the young desperado who was shot dead two weeks ago in Newark while fleeing from Policeman J. F. Weber, was one of the most remarkable men the police of New Jersey ever had to deal with. In the matter of criminal achievements, he rather compared to Jack Sheppard, the hero of song, novel and drama, but who in reality was never anything more than an ordinary pickpocket and whose only claim to fame was his remarkable escape from the Newgate jail. "Dutch" Ides, as he was generally known, was not a big man mentally, for if he had been he would have done some burglaries and highway robberies that would have astonished the country. Ides had both the daring and the ingenuity, but he was ignorant and narrow-guaged. Yet at times he did petty crimes in a big way, and his methods would probably have been just as successful if they had been detected in an effort to steal thousands of dollars instead of a hundred, or even less.

Ides' life and, one might add, his death, is an example of what dime novels and other trashy reading of a criminal character will do. His desire to lead an evil life can be directly traced to the effect of such reading. After he had become a man, with a criminal record of ten years' standing, he was still an enthusiastic admirer of the heroes of the yellow journals and read with the greatest interest the experiences of "Deadwood Dick, the Boy Bandit," the escapdes of the Dalton brothers and the hair-raising adventures of Jesse James. It is small wonder then that his criminal record reads like some of the "literature" from which he first derived a taste for crime.

Was Born in Hungary.

"Dutch" Ides was born about twenty-five years ago in Hungary and was brought to this country by his parents when a small child. The family settled in Elizabeth and, with the exception of Frank, every member of it has been honest and industrious. He was connected with several questionable matters when a small boy, but with the luck that struck him most of the time in later life, he always managed to escape capture or punishment, even when his companions were caught. He was sent to jail for the first time in 1899, when only 16 years old, on a minor charge. Some time later he robbed Morris Sternberg, a farmer, between Elizabeth and Linden, of a wagonload of cabbages and apples. When the farmer expostulated with him he drew a revolver and threatened to blow his head off. For this crime he was indicted and convicted for grand larceny, but sentence was suspended.

Ides broke into the station of the Central Railroad at Cranford on February 28, 1900, and stole some battery cells from the telegraph office. He was arrested and placed in the lockup in Scotch Plains, from which he made his first escape. A short time afterward he was arrested and committed to jail in Union county for gambling and disorderly conduct. Ides was well started on his criminal career by this time. He was frequently captured and sent to jail for stealing wire, brass journals and other material from the Central Railroad. He was finally committed to the State Reformatory at Rahway for the first time on March 6, 1903.

Ides did little to attract attention during the first year of his stay. He was often surly, but his conduct was fairly good. He was employed in the kitchen detail in September, 1904. One day he noticed that he was not being watched by any of the guards and he made up his mind to escape. Going to two other prisoners he told them of the opportunity and directed them to follow him. Ides was a born leader and the other men did as they were told. At that time they were able to make their way out of the kitchen and through some outbuildings in the rear of the reformatory to the open fields. They reached the woods in the vicinity before their escape became known and by nightfall were many miles from the scene.

Escaped from Jail Four Times.

After that "Dutch" Ides was recaptured three times, and he escaped soon afterward each time. His success in that respect was almost entirely due to his ability to take the guards unawares and because he laid his plans well and did not take his confederates into his confidence. Ides would look about him and decide upon an avenue for escape, and after fixing in his own mind the time and method he would wait until an opportunity presented itself. Sometimes half an hour and sometimes a few minutes before making his dash for liberty he would inform the men whom he had selected in his own mind as companions. In choosing his comrades Ides was always guided by two things. Whenever possible he sought men upon whom he could rely and over whom he had a certain amount of influence as leader. Sometimes, however, he was compelled to take with him one or several prisoners who were in his immediate vicinity, either to prevent them from giving the alarm or using them to divert attention from himself. In the latter respect, however, it may be said that Ides was always fair to his followers and never took a mean advantage of them.

Ides' last three escapes were much more sensational than his first one. Although only five feet five inches in height and weighing 150 pounds, he was extraordinarily muscular and agile. The stockade that surrounds the reformatory is about twelve feet high and barbed wire is strung at the top, with the idea of making it impossible for anybody to mount the fence from the inside. Dutch Ides had led companions over this stockade twice. The first time he was accompanied by several men who were with him on the kitchen detail, as at the time of his first escape. After dashing across the yard they mounted one another's shoulders, and, diregarding the lacerations caused by the sharp barbs, gained the top of the wall, those first up pulling their companions on the ground after them. Guards are so stationed at the reformatory grounds that several of them cover each point of the stockade with their rifles at the same time. But the dash for liberty was made so quickly and the wall scaling was executed so nimbly that none of the prisoners was hit by the bullets which was sent after them.

This was the first time that so successful an escape over the wall had been made. Ides' feat stimulated many of the more daring of the other prisoners to follow his example. It was about that time that there were more attempts at running away than there ever had been at a similar period at the reformatory.

As an Organizer of Thugs.

It was about this time in his career that Ides became known along the Central Railroad from Bayonne to Easton. He occasionally branched out in other directions, but not often. For a short time he worked in the coal mines in Pennsylvania. Ides could organize a band of thugs more quickly than any other man of his class within the knowledge of the police of this State. Yeggmen and hoboes generally, young and old, seemed always ready to do his bidding. They would commit highway robbery, break into stores or hold up the proprietors and also steal large quantities of merchandise from freight cars.

Ides had a number of haunts, including "fences" in several towns along the Central Railroad, a rendezvous in the Watchung Mountains and another in the mountains up near Phillipsburg. It is thought that if these places could be discovered much stolen property might be recovered. Ides had several narrow escapes from being captured before the police finally did get their clutches on him.

Thrilling Escape Under Fire.

When taken to the reformatory for the third time "Dutch" Ides declared he would not stay there long. The guards were very watchful at first, but Ides' behavior was excellent, and soon their vigilance was slightly relaxed. On November 14, 1905, while in a line of 100 men who were on their way to work at 7 o'clock in the morning, under the supervision of three guards, Ides quickly told the man in front of him, James Giblin, that there was a good chance to escape. The two dashed from the line to the stockade. With the bulets whistling about their heads, Ides mounted Giblin's shoulders and in another moment was on top of the fence. While they shot the guards shouted warnings to the escaping prisoners to turn back. Giblin lost nerve, for he hesitated as he stood at the foot of the stockade. Ides, swearing at him in disgust, leaned over the top, and extending his hands downward, called upon Giblin to grasp them, so that he could be pulled up. Giblin had just made a jump and had clutched Ides' hands when a bullet struck the former in the shoulder, and he fell back. Shaking his first at the guards and shouting "Go to ——," Ides jumped down on the outside of the stockade and made for the woods, which he gained, with the guards in close pursuit. Ides was a very fast runner, but how he got out of that four-acre patch of woods without being seen is something the guards are unable to explain to this day. While his pursuers were trying to burn him out of the woods Ides was running down the road. Superintendent Martin was coming toward him on a bicycle and Ides jumped into a ditch at the roadside until he passed. He went across fields until he found a shirt and pair of trousers hanging on a clothesline back of a farm house. After appropriating these garments and leaving behind his uniform Ides ran several miles further, to Staten Island sound, where he stole a boat and rowed across. He was in Bayonne soon afterward and under cover of night went West on a freight.

Ides' depredations up to that time were as nothing compared with what followed. He worked with intelligence and daring, being aided by several bands and with a headquarters for each. Ides jumped from one place to another with great rapidity and sometimes would mysteriously come back again the same day to his starting point. As a result he had all the police along the Central Railroad worried. Ides would frequently be reported in half a dozen places at once, and while several of his bands were rounded up by the police, the leader always managed to escape capture.

Eluded Police at a Ball.

The Elizabeth police occasionaly heard that Ides was in town. At the first information they would rush to his home, only to find him gone. Whenever Ides came to town during the last few years he usually had a roll of bills and as he was a liberal spender he had a large following of friends. As a result there were as many persons ready to inform him as to the movements of the police as there were those who would tip the police off about him. One evening Ides went to Elizabeth to attend a masquerade ball in a hall. He was made up as a Western cowboy and wore a black mask. The police heard of his presence and the reserves were called out and surrounded the hall. But somebody also gave the alarm to Ides, for as the police rushed up the stairs the young criminal got out of a rear window, slid down a rain pipe and slipped away in the night.

It was not long after that when the police were notified that Ides was at hime home in Broadway, between Fourth and Fifth streets. Six men were sent to take him. Upon their arrival they captured a companion of Ides. Then, while two watched the front of the house and two the rear, Captain O'Leary and Sergeant McGurn started to search the house. Somehow Ides eluded them and gained a small window under the porch. Suddenly he rushed by the policemen who were supposed to be on the watch for him, taking them completely by surprise. Ides pulled his revolver and, firing as he retreated, held the police men back until he had gained a start down the street. He caught a trolley car at the next corner and rode away to safety.

A Battle In the Woods.

Ides had one of the largest bands at that time he had ever organized. Robberies in Middlesex, Union, Somerset and Warren counties occurred night after night, and occasionally the robbers would make a flying trip into other localities. The local police seemed powerless and residents were in constant fear. One of the boldest pieces of work the Ides band did about that time was in Plainfield. One night five or six of them jumped off of a freight train on the outskirts of that city. They held up the first pedestrian they met, obtaining a gold watch valued at $100 and a roll of bills. The man gave an alarm, and as the police were on the lookout for Ides, practically the whole force, led by Chief Kiely, was soon in pursuit, the highwaymen took to the woods, where there was a pitched battle, and finally made their escape. Later that evening they returned to another section of the city, entered a small jewelry store, and, holding up the proprietor at the point of their revolvers, they obtained several hundred dollars' worth of watches and rings. Leaving the store they soon disappeared in the darkness, before the police ever knew of the robbery.

Ides was finally captured in January, 1905, by Chief Tenney and a squad of policemen from Elizabeth. Chief Tenney received word that Ides had been in town that day. He sent several men to Ides' home, but the fugitive had departed. Information was received, however, that Ides had been seen walking toward Aldene just a short time before. The police immediately set out for him. In a lonely spot they came upon a toolhouse along the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. The rays of a light gleamed from a small window. They surrounded the structure noiselessly and, peeking through the cracks, saw Ides standing beside a fire that had been made. Two of his companions were asleep on the floor. All of them putting their shoulders to the door, the police suddenly burst into the room with their revolvers leveled at Ides' head. After one glance around the room and at the small window, which was out of reach, Ides exclaimed, "I guess it's all up, you've got me this time."

When Ides was taken back to the Rahway Reformatory this time the usual iron that is put on the leg of recaptured prisoners, with a bread and water diet, was his lot. He did not complain and conducted himself well. As the result of good behavior the leg iron was finally removed and Ides had the same privileges that were accorded the others.

Ides' Last Escape.

Ides made his fourth and last escape on November 4, 1907. In some respects the break for liberty was as sensational as previous ones he had made. Ides was then working in the tailor shop. He had woven a rope from small pieces of denim and concealed it about him. One Sunday afternoon, while the Protestant prisoners of the prison wing in which Ides was confined were attending religious services in the chapel, he decided that the time had come. The reformatory being overcrowded, many of the prisoners slept on cots in the corridors. There were four prisoners remaining in the vicinity of Ides who were not locked in cells. Ides told them that he had laid plans for escape and that they could come along. One of the men seemed fearful to try and wanted to stay behind. Ides knew that would be dangerous and he threatened to kill the man if he did not accompany him. The five quietly made their way to the top of the four-story stack of cells. There is a distance of eight feet between the top of the fourth tier and the ceiling of the wing. There was a trap door in the latter. It was an easy matter by mounting on one another's shoulders to force open the door and climb into the unused compartment between the ceiling and the roof. Climbing out of a dormer window, they walked along the gutter until they came to the end of the wing, which forms part of the inclosure in place of the stockade. Ides tied one end of his rope to a leader and went down hand over hand, followed by the other prisoners. Three of them were captured within a few days, but Ides and Frank Kissky reached their old haunts.

Ides soon had another band organized and proved as much of a terror as ever to storekeepers and residents of small communities. He seemed to be bolder than he ever had been before and engaged in shoting affrays with the police of several towns and railroad detectives. That he was regarded as a dangerous man is shown by the fact that $500 reward had been offered for his capture, dead or alive. Ides had declared that he would never again be captured alive, and he died true to his boast.

AMUSEMENTS.

Without doubt for variety and general excellence, the program that will be presented at Proctor's Newark theatre during the week beginning March 9, has seldom if ever been equaled. One of the features will be B. A. Rolfe's mammoth production by "The Colonial Septette," presenting musical oddity, depicting life in Virginia during the Revolutionary period. The action of the offering takes place at a country gentleman's estate, on Hallowe'en night. Edward Davis and company in an intense dramatic sketch in two scenes entitled "The Unmasking," Mr. Davis last appeared here in "All Rivers Meet at Sea." Willy Pantzer troupe of acrobats, in fact the feats accomplished by this peerless troupe, beggars discription. Smith and Campbell in a conversational turn that is a positive panacea for the blues. Wheeler Earl, Vera Curtis and company will be seen in a clever slang playlette from the pen of Porter Emerson Browne, called "Gammy Cass." Mr. and Mrs. J. Powers, "The Players," will appear in a potpourri of songs, dances and sayings. The Olympia quartette, memories of the golden mintsrel days, in comedy and music. J. Warren Keane will offer something new in the way of feats and magic. New motion pictures.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

When you get ready to purchase garden and farming implements stop at A. M. Griffen's hardware store. He also keeps a full supply of hardware and builders' marerials and does sanitary plumbing and heating at low cost.

An Edison phonograph or a Victor talking-machine is a thing of beauty and a joy forever and Harry K. Lister, of North avenue, has a large assortment of both; also records for these machines. Drop in and hear them.

Another storm has temporarily delayed the arrival of spring, but it does not prevent shoppers from securing the many good bargains offered by the Woodhull & Martin Company. The concern is showing an exceptional line of women's dress goods of the proper weight and in all the popular shades, while in the housefurnishing goods department there are no end of things to interest one. The men will also want to inspect the fine assortment of goods offered at low prices.

ST. PATRICK DINNER.

Prominent Speakers Will Attend Affair to be Held in Elizabeth March 17.

Prominent members of the Bench and Bar of New Jersey and New York will be guests at the annual dinner of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, of Elizabeth, to be given at the Y. M. C. A. hall in Rahway avenue, Elizabeth, Tuesday evening, March 17. Arrangements for the dinner have practically been completed.

Among those who will attend and respond to toasts are Edward Robert Walker, Vice-Chancellor of New Jersey, who will speak on "Our Country;" Martin Conboy, of East Orange, whose toast will be "The Influence of Irish Character on National Destiny;" the Rev. Dr. Clifford, of Seton Hall, who will respond to "The Day We Celebrate;" Henry J. Breen, of New York, who will speak on "The Irish Soldier;" Edward W. Gray, of Newark, who will talk on "Some New Ideas, Not Necessarily Political," and James Baker, of Jersey City, who will respond to the toast, "As the Spirit Moves."

Thefts in High School.

Thefts from lockers and desks in the Jersey City High School have been reported to the police, and Detective Timothy Murphy is investigating. Principal James Hopkins announced to the assembled pupils yesterday morning that convincing proof had been obtained against two girls and a boy. Police Chief Monahan said that books stolen from the High School library had been sold to a man who would be compelled to restore them to the school.

By KATE AND VIRGIL D. BOYLES

(Copyright by A. C. McClurg & Co., 1907.)

"Hush, Dick, dear boy," said Langford, with a catch in his voice. "You're all right now, but you mustn't talk. You're too weak. We are going to move you across to the hotel."

"But what happened?" he insisted.

"You were shot, you know, Dick. Keep quiet now! I'm going for a stretcher."

"Am I done for?" the weak voice kept on. But there was no fear in it.

"You will be if you keep on talking like that."

Obeying a sign from the doctor he slipped away and out. Gordon closed his eyes and was still for a long time. His face was white and drawn with suffering.

"Has he fainted?" whispered Louise.

The eyes opened quickly. They fell upon Louise, who had not time to draw away. The shadow of the old sweet smile came and hovered around his lips.

"Louise," he whispered.

"Yes, it is I," she said, laying her hand lightly on his forehead. "You must be good until Paul gets back."

"I'm done for, so the rest of the criminal calendar will have to go over. You can go back to—God's country—sooner than you thought."

"I am not going back to—God's country," said Louise, unexpectedly. She had not meant to say it, but she meant it when she said it.

"Come here, close to me, Louise," said Gordon, in a low voice. He had forgotten the doctor. "You had better—I'll get up if you don't. Closer still. I want you to—kiss me before Paul gets back."

Louise grew white. She glanced hesitatingly at the doctor, timidly at the new lover in the old man. Then she bent over him where he lay stretched on the floor and kissed him on the lips. A great light came into his eyes before he closed them contentedly and slipped into unconsciousness again.

Langford rounded up Jim Munson and sent him across with a stretcher, and then ran upstairs for an extra blanket off his own bed. It was bitterly cold, and Dick must be well wrapped. On the upper landing he encountered Mary alone. Something in her desolate attitude stopped him.

"What's the matter, Mary?" he demanded, seizing her hands.

"Nothing," she answered, dully. "How is he?"

"All right, I trust and pray, but hurt terribly, wickedly."

He did not quite understand. Did she love Gordon? Was that why she looked so heart-broken? Taking her face in his two hands, he compelled her to look at him straight.

"Now tell me," he said.

"Did I kill him?" she asked.

"Kill whom?"

"Why, him—Jesse Black."

Then he understood.

"Mary, my girl, was it you? Were those last shots yours?" All the riotous love in him trembled on his tongue.

"Did I?" she persisted.

"God grant you did," he said, solemnly. "There is blood outside the window, but he is gone."

"I don't like to kill people," she said, brokenly. "Why do I always have to do it?"

He drew her to him strongly and held her close against his breast.

"You are the bravest and best girl on earth," he said. "My girl—you are my girl, you know—hereafter I will do all necessary killing for—my wife."

He kissed the sweet, quivering lips as he said it.

"Why, Jim!" cried Langford in surprise. "I thought you had gone with the stretcher."

"I did go," said Jim, swallowing hard. He shifted nervously from one spurred foot to the other. "But I came back."

He looked at Langford beseechingly.

"Boss, I want to see you a minute, ef—Mary don't mind."

"I will come with you, Jim, now," said Langford with quick apprehension.

"Mary"—Jim turned away and stared unseeingly down the staircase—"go back to your room for a little while. I will call for you soon. Keep up your courage."

"Wait," said Mary, quietly. There were unsounded depths of despair in her voice, thought it was so clear and low. "There was another shot. I remember now. Jim, tell me!"

Jim turned. The rough cowboy's eyes were wet—for the first time in many a year.

"They—hope he won't die, Mary, girl. Your father's shot bad, but he ain't dead. We think Black did it after he run from Gordon's office. We found him on the corner."

Langford squared his broad shoulders—then put strong, protecting arms around Mary. Now was he her all.

"Come, my darling, we will go to him together."

She pushed him from her violently.

"I will go alone. Why should you come? He is mine. He is all I have—there is no one else. Why don't you go? You are big and strong—can't you make that man suffer for my father's murder? Jim, take me to him."

She seized the cowboy's arm, and they went out together and on down the stairs.

Langford stood still a moment, following them with his eyes. His face was white. He bent his head. Jim, looking back, saw him thus, the dull light from the hall-lamp falling upon the bent head and the yellow hair. When Langford raised his head, his face, though yet white, bore an expression of concentrated determination.

He, too, strode quickly down the stairs.

CHAPTER XXI.

The Outlaw's Last Stand.

In the morning the sheriff went to the island. He reported the place deserted. He made many other trips. Some times he took a deputy with him; more often he rode unaccompanied. Richard Gordon lay helpless in a burning fever, with Paul Langford in constant and untiring attendance upon him. George Williston was a sadly shattered man.

"I met Black on the corner west of Gordon's office," he explained, when he could talk. "I had not been able to sleep, and had been walking to tire my nerves into quiet. I was coming back to the hotel when I heard Black's shot and then Mary's. I ran forward and met Black on the corner, running. He stopped, cried out, 'You, too, damn you,' and that's the last I knew until the boys picked me up."

These were the most interested—Langford, Gordon, Williston. Had they been in the count, things might have been different. It is very probable a posse would have been formed for immediate pursuit. But others must do what had been better done had it not been for those shots in the dark. There was blood outside Gordon's window; yet Black had not crawled home to die. He had not gone home at all,—a least, that is what the sheriff said. No one had seen the convicted man after his desperate and spectacular exit from the court-room—no one at least but Louise, Mary, and her father. Mary's shot had not killed him, but it had saved Richard Gordon's life, which was a far better thing. It was impossible to track him out of town, for the cattle had trampled the snow in every direction.

The authorities could gather no outside information. The outlying claims and ranches refuted indignantly any hint of their having given aid or shelter to the fugitive, or of having any cognizance whatsoever regarding his possible whereabouts. So the pursuit, at first hot and excited, gradually wearied of following false leads,—contented itself with desultory journeys when prodded thereto by the compelling power of public opinion,—finally ceased altogether even as a pretence.

One of the first things done following the dramatic day in court had been to send the officers out to the little shanty in the valley where the half-breed lay dead across the threshold. A watch was also set upon this place; but no one ever came there.

August had come again, and Judge Dale was in Kemah to hear a court case.

Langford had ridden in from the ranch on purpose to see Judge Dale. His clothes were spattered with mud. There had been a succession of storms, lasting for several days; last night a cloud had burst out west somewhere. All the creeks were swollen.

"Judge, I believe Jesse Black has been on that island of his all the time."

"What makes you think so, Langford?"

"Because our sheriff is four-flushing—he always was in sympathy with the gang, you know. Besides, where else can Black be?"

Dale puckered his lips thoughtfully.

"What have you heard?" he asked.

"Rumors are getting pretty thick that he has been seen in that neighborhood on several occasions. It is my honest belief he has never left it."

"What did you think of doing about it, Langford?"

"I want you to give me a bench warrant, judge. I am confident that I can get him. It is the shame of the county that he is still at large."

"You have to deal with one of the worst and most desperate outlaws in the United States. You must know it will be a very hazardous undertaking,

The Little Posse Started on Its Journey.

granting your surmises to be correct, and fraught with grave peril for some one."

"I understand that fully."

"This duty is another's, not yours."

"But that other is incompetent."

WILSON FARRAND HAS WITHDRAWN HIS CANDIDACY.

Wilson Farrand, '86, of South Orange, has announced his withdrawal from the candidacy of alumni trustee of Princeton University, to be filled in June by the vote of the alumni. His withdrawal leaves William B. McIlvaine, '85, of Chicago, as the only candidate in the field. In a letter to the Princeton Alumni Weekly, Mr. Farrand states the reason for his withdrawal. He says in part:

"When the question of becoming a candidate for election as alumni trustee was first presented to me this year, it was understood that David B. Jones would not stand for re-election and no other candidate was known at that time. Before my candidacy was announced, however, Mr. McIlvaine was nominated by the Chicago association, and since that time it has become clear that the coming vacancy in the board should be filled by a man from west of the Alleghenies. This materially changes the situation and makes evident that the contest, if there be a contest, will be conducted on geographical lines. This, in my judgment, would be unfortunate."

MALION FOUND IT SO, THOUGH NOT IN "THE SUN."

Another Charge Against Green.

Chief Marshal George Weiss, of the North Plainfield police force, yesterday made another charge against George Green, the colored driver who was committed to the State Reformatory at Rahway to appear before the grand jury for a second story burglary near Mountainside several months ago. The charge was presented at the county court at Somerville, charging Green with a burglary near Stelton, and will probably be used against him at his hearing. It was through the efforts of the North Plainfield police that Green was captured.

RECLUSE SLAIN; MONEY GONE.

Mystery Surrounds Murder of Jeremiah Peterson and Robbery of His Home in So. Millville.

Mystery surrounds the death of Jeremiah Peterson, seventy-five years old, a recluse, who was found unconscious at his home, in South Millville, last Sunday by Policemen Reilly and Broden.

When they entered the house they found Peterson lying on the floor suffering from wounds in the neck and face. Chairs were overturned in the room, indicating a struggle. The man was removed to the home of his son, Frank Peterson, where he died yesterday. Dr. F. C. Mayhew stated that the wounds on the neck were probably made by the fingers of a man. Yesterday Peterson regained consciousness long enough to tell his son where his money was hidden in an old trunk.

Young Peterson stated that he found the trunk had been opened and ransacked. He also said that he believed that his father had been tortured and choked in an attempt to force him to reveal the hiding place of his money. The Millville police as yet have no clew to the murderer.

FORCED TO SUPPORT MOTHER.

Hackensack Youth Charged With Turning His Aged Mother Into the Street.

For the first time in the history of Bergen county and for the first time in thirty-one years in the State a son was placed on trial in the Hackensack courts yesterday before Judge Zabriskie for refusing to support his mother.

The defendant was John A. Ackerman, of Park Ridge, and he had gone so far, it was alleged, as to throw his gray haired mother, Mrs. Mary C. Ackerman, out of his home. The poormaster became the complainant and Judge Zabriskie ordered Ackerman to pay his mother $5 a week.

"BLACK HAND" TRAP FAILS.

As the result of receiving a "Black Hand" letter demanding that $200 be placed on his step before one o'clock, William Maute, proprietor of a hotel at Beverly, had policemen remain in his parlor last night, but no one came to get an empty pocketbook on the doorstep.

In case he notified the police Maute and his family were threatened with death and his house was to be burned. The letter is written in Italian, with the usual skull and crossbones in red ink. On the belief that the letter is genuine the authorities are making an investigation.

Contractor Drops Dead.

Bushrod Witherbee, eighty-one years old, dropped dead in Elizabeth avenue in Elizabeth yesterday morning from heart failure. Several persons saw the old man totter and fall, and ran to his assistance, but death was instantaneous. He had just finished a contracting job in the Adirondacks and had come to this city on business. He leaves a wife and eight children.

Women Resent Snub.

Women of Jamesburg are wrought up because the men of the town, assembled in town meeting to form a Citizens' League to fight vice and rum, turned down strong and hard a proposition to invite the women of the town to join in the movement.

Talk About Public Health.

Miss M. C. Phillips addressed the Mothers' Association meeting at the Plainfield High School, yesterday afternoon, her topic being "Public Health." She told of the work of the committee of one hundred appointed in Washington, last year, for the advancement of health and science. The aim is to co-ordinate the work of State and city boards all for one common purpose. The address was so interesting that a request was made that it be given again in the near future when a large audience could attend.

Annual School Meeting.

The annual school meeting of North Plainfield will be held at the Somerset street school Tuesday, March 17. At this time there will be an election of four members of the borough Board of Education. Those whose terms expire are Rev. J. O. McKelvey, Ernest A. Lowe and Allen B. Laing, and a member will be elected to succeed Mayor Samuel Townsend, who resigned from his duties on the board last fall. His unexpired term has been completed by J. Herbert Case.

Conductor Averts Wreck.

Seated in the rear car of a fast Pennsylvania Railroad express Thursday night as it went over the four-track bridge crossing the Raritan River, near New Brunswick, a conductor detected a break in the regular click of the rails and a false sound. He signalled for a stop, and he and others went back on to the bridge with lanterns and found a broken rail. The rails on the big bridge are eighty feet above the river, and following the stalled train was the midnight flyer from New York to Washington and the South.

Funeral of Dennis Carney, Jr.

The funeral of Dennis Carney, Jr., was held this morning in St. Mary's church, Rev. Father Delehanty officiating. A large gathering of relatives and friends was in attendance. Burial was made in St. Mary's cemetery, the pall bearers being Edward Conshee, Joseph Kearns, Fred Wilbee shee, Joseph Kearns, Fred Wilbee, George Gates, George Howe and Peter Benford.

P.H.S. GETS 'TWENTY-THREE,' COMMERCE FIVE WINS

The High School of Commerce basketball five played fifty-seven varieties of basketball in rings around the Plainfield High School five at the city high school gymnasium, and forced the local team to post the high sign for the "Beat It" signal, when the game ended with the score 57-23 in favor of the visitors. The play was fast throughout, but the visitors excelled in team work, and had everything their own way.

At the end of the first half, the score was 27-12 in favor of the Commerce five, and they rolled up thirty more points in the second period, while the local five were making eleven more points. The local five was weakened by the absence of Captain Caldwell. Pierce, captain of the Commerce team, scored twenty-five points for his team, one from the foul line. The summaries:

High School of Commerce—Pierce and Smith, forwards; Joseph, centre; Taub and Archibald, guards. P. H. S.—Mortimer and Robins, forwards; Parsons, centre; Doane and Snyder, guards.

Field goals: Pierce, 11; Smith, 6; Joseph, 4; Taub, 3; Doane, 3; Mortimer, 3; Archibald, 3; Snyder, 2; Parsons. Goals from fouls: Joseph, 2; Doane, 2; Snyder, 2; Pierce. P. H. S. awarded a point on technicality. Referee, Paul Collier; umpire, Caldwell; scorers, Belknap and Woodhull; timers, Belk and Prior. Twenty minute halves.

ELIZABETH TAKES TWO GAMES FROM CRANFORD

The tie for second place in the Central Journal Bowling League tournament between Elizabeth and Cranford Casino was broken on the Park Club alleys, last night, when the county seat boys captured two games and thereby won second honors. It was two out of three games, but the fact that Elizabeth took the first two, the third contest was unnecessary. Elizabeth took the games by score of 840 and 873, while Cranford's scores were 812 and 804.

The bowling match was watched by a large delegation of friends from Elizabeth, Cranford and this city and their favorite team was heartily cheered during the progress of the games. E. Wheelen put a "kink" in Cranford's ambitions when, in the second game, he rolled a score of 202, and Datesman put up a 193. Cranford was unable to reach the double century at any stage, and besides the Elizabethans rolled a more consistent game throughout as the following scores show:

BISMARCKS WIN THE TOURNEY ROLL-OFF GAMES

The Bismarck and Brian Boru bowling teams, of the city championship tourney, met on Johnny Campbell's alleys, last night, to roll off the tie existing between the two for fourth money. The Bismarcks won by taking two games in succession, one of them by a margin of eleven, making it unnecessary to roll the third. A good sized crowd was on hand in expectation of seeing some scores smashed but the pins were in a stubborn mood and only a few good chalk-ups went on the board. The team totals were far below what either side is capable of doing.

Chauncey Stout, winner of the average prize in the contest, banged out 202 in the first game and in the next tumbled down to 118. Captain Ed Britton, who tried to butt a railroad train off the track and was discharged from Muhlenberg Hospital a few days ago, did the best work for the night despite the fact that he had to sight the pins through peepholes in the bandages about his head. His figures were 174 and 210. The Brian Borus failed to get a double century, the nearest to it being a 188 brought home by Harry Ackor. "Doc" Herbert and Ed McMahon, of the Borus and Muir, of the Bismarcks, were from twenty to fifty points below their usual game. Frank McInerney and "Charlie" Runyon each landed one good tally, while Harry Kuehn found it a hard proposition to get over the hundred mark.

The prizes in the contest will be distributed at the alleys Monday night and a meeting of the executive committee will follow immediately afterward to arrange for the new tourney. The entries include near all those who took part in the contest just ended.

Y. M. C. A. BOYS WIN MEET WITH HOPE, 51-3.

The Hope chapel gym team won three third places in the track meet with the Y. M. C. A. boys' department team at the association gymnasium this morning, and the final score was 51-3. The third place in the patota race was won by a Hope chapel boy because the Y. M. C. A. athletes only had two men entered in the event, and these won the other two places. Ulmer, of the Y. M. C. A. team, won a place in every event, taking four firsts and two seconds, for a total of 26 points. Gape and Muir were the point winners for the Hope team. The events follow:

Standing broad jump: Won by C. Lawrence; second, Ulmer; third, Vail. Distance 8 feet 11 3-4 inches.

Three standing broad jumps: Won by Ulmer; second, C. Lawrence; third, Vail. Distance 26 feet, 3 inches.

Running high jump: Won by Ulmer; second, C. Lawrence; third, J. Manning. Height, 5 feet.

Running broad jump: Won by Ulmer; second, Manning; third, Gage (Hope). Distance 17 feet, 1 inch.

220-yard potato race: Won by Ulmer; second, Miller; third, Gage (Hope). Time 58 1-5 seconds.

8-pound shot put: Won by Duke; second, Ulmer; third, Muir (Hope). Distance 36 feet.

HOPES, NEW S. S. A. L. FIVE TRIM FIRST BAPTISTS, 34-22.

The Hope Y. M. C. five, which recently joined the Sunday-school Athletic League, won from the Frst Baptist team by a score of 34-22. At the end of the first half was 18-12 in favor of Hope, and the West End team kept the lead throughout the game. The game was especially free from roughness, only three fouls being called. The lineups and summaries:

Hope Y. M. C.: Rimmer and Snyder, forwards; Mortimer, centre; Hunter and Kenny, guards. First Baptists: J. and L. Manning, forwards; Spear, Mackey, centre; Farr and Fountain, guards. Field goals: Mortimer, 6; J. Manning, 6; Hunter, 5; L. Manning, 5; Snyder, 3; Kenny, 2; Rimmer, Mackey, Fountain. Referee, C. B. Morse; scorer, P. C. Sweeney; timer, Templin. Twenty minute halves.

Protest Basketball Game.

The Seventh-Day Baptist church five have entered a protest against the victory won by the First Presbyterian church team in a recent S. S. A. L. contest, claiming that a member of the Methodist church played with the winning team.

Congregationals Forfeited.

The Congregational church five forfeited the S. S. A. L. basketball game to have been played last night, to the First Presbyterian church team.

Swackhamer Speaks.

The men's supper of the First Reformed church in Somerville last night was a most pleasing event and will long be remembered by those fortunate enough to secure tickets. About 150 people sat around the festal board. Among those who made addresses were former Assemblyman Samuel S. Swackhamer, of North Plainfield; Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan, of Somerville, and Rev. George C. Madock, chaplain of the State Prison, Trenton, and many others.

Welcomed Miss Steiner Home.

The Epworth League of Grace M. E. church gave a social last night in honor of MissM ary Steiner, who recently returned from an extended visit with her sister, Mrs. Charles French, in St. Paul, Minn. The evening was devoted to sociability, including an address of welcome by Dr. Raymond Stevens, after which refreshments were served.

"The Wilhelmina Runyon Class."

Mrs. George F. Opdyke has assumed the position of teacher of the Sunday-school class at the Park Avenue Baptist church, formerly taught by Mrs. Nelson Runyon, and the members have agreed to call themselves "The Wilhelmina Runyon Class," in memory of the late teacher, who served faithfully in the Sunday-school and church.

Miss von Ohl in Demand.

Miss Adele von Ohl has received two very flattering offers, one from Buffalo Bill and the other from "101 Ranch," to appear in their shows which will soon go on the road. She has not yet decided which offer she will accept. Buffalo Bill will open at Madison Square Garden in April and "101 Ranch" opens in Oklohoma.

Good North Plainfield.

During the month of February, there were only eight arrests in North Plainfield. This is about half the number reported for January. Twenty dollars in fines was collected, but of this $10 was turned over to the Borough Board of Health, representing a fine for the violation of the health ordinance.

A Measuring Social.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, a measuring social will be held at Hope chapel tonight. Those attending will pay admission according to height, two cents for each foot and one cent for each additional inch. Refreshments will be served and an informal program will occupy part of the time.

No Y. M. C. A. Men's Meeting.

There will be no men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow afternoon, but instead the men will attend the lecture on Tennyson's "In Memoriam" to be given by Rev. Dr. Herbert Symonds, of Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal, Canada, at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon, at Grace church.

Half Minute Interviews.

FORT'S SUNDAY ADDRESS

Governor Declares Churches Should Vie with Saloons to Attract Young Men.

PRAISES CATHOLIC CHURCH.

He Urges Protestant Churches to Throw Open Their Doors Both Day and Night.

Governor Fort spoke at the twenty-seventh anniversary exercises of the Young Men's Christian Association in Newark yesterday afternoon, during which he urged that the Protestate churches throw open their doors every day and a reasonable part of the night to keep young men out of the saloons. He also held out the Catholic Church as the place where he had seen what he called Christianity in a true sense in the matter of how the worshippers mingled and prayed. The Executive urged the churches to follow in the footsteps of the Young Men's Christian Association bodies in affording attractions for the young and old, and sounded the warning that should the Church fail it would be because the Young Men's Christian Association had superseded it in reaching the hearts of the young men and drawing them closer to Christianity and salvation. The Governor was introduced by ex-Judge Elwood C. Harris, president of the association, who presided.

The Rev. Dr. Jonathan N. Meeker, presiding elder for the Newark district of the Methodist church, delivered the anniversary address and recalled the recent letter of the Rev. John L. Scudder, of Jersey City, threatening the Governor with political death if he failed to support local option. Dr. Meeker turned to the Governor and said:

"The ministry in general have no threats for you. They offer you sympathy, love and prayer. We will uphold you in everything you do that is right."

The Executive referred to the fourteen hundred saloons in Newark, and said that they were places to which the young men were invited, where the doors were thrown open wide and in many instances affording better accommodations than the homes.

"Now, then," resumed Mr. Fort, "all our churches except the Catholic Church keep their doors closed almost every day but Sunday, and I suggest that they should be thrown open every day and a reasonable part of the night, where young men could go and read and spend their time in better pursuit than in these fourteen hundred places to which I referred."

The Governor spoke of present civic righteousness as compared with former years, and said that it was gradually gaining strength.

"It is not always easy to do right," the Governor continued, "and the man who wants to do right may not be able to do so unless he has your support. Another thing, no man can do everything at once. There is no man who will stand for what is right and achieve it without your help. Do not be too ready to criticise a man. I have criticised some men, and will continue to do so, but I have always given them a chance before doing so. The moral sentiment was never better in our State than it is at present, and there seems to be a general rising tide of religion and civic righteousness in this city."

Urging upon his hearers that they take an interest in their State the Governor appealed to them to stand for what is right and good government. "Do not be fanatical and expect everything the first day of the Legislature," he said. "Don't be discouraged by defeat, but keep on at the work for what is right; be loyal at all times to your duty and persistent to the end and you will come out on top."

Union County Court Changes.

The February term of the Union County Court has been concluded and there will be no further business until Monday, March 30, when a colored man named Hunt will be put on trial for the murder of another colored man at Roselle on February 1. Hunt was arrested in Newark on the following day. As the new prosecutor, C. Addison Swift, formerly district court judge, takes offices on W[illegible]lay, his first duties will be t[illegible]secution of Hunt. Walter L. [illegible]i, Jr., of this city, will also [illegible] the duties of his office as assistant prosecutor on Wednesday. [illegible] the retirement of Mr. Swift as district court judge of Elizabeth, his [illegible] will be taken by Clark McK. Whitemore, of that place.

To Tell of Her Travels.

The Woman's Association of the [illegible]gregational church will hold an [illegible]ormal tea at the church tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Mrs. John M. Whiton has promised to give a talk on her recent travels in Greece, Egypt and the Holy Land.

TRINITY WORKERS RAISE $230 FOR MISSION WORK

Miss Mabel Wilson, president of the Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church, has arranged the committees for the year, and the band has announced its annual disbursements for foreign and home missions. COLLEGE SMOKER.

Owen H. Fleming Tells of the Plans.

The committee in charge of the college smoker to be held at the Casino, Friday night, urgently request all those men who have not replied to the postals sent them to do so at once. The time before the smoker is now so limited that it is necessary that the names of all who expect to be present be in the hands of the committee by Wednesday in order that adequate provision may be made for them.

One point that the committee wishes to impress on the college men who expect to attend the smoker is that there will be no speeches of any kind and no mention is to be made of forming any kind of a club. The idea of this year's smoker is for college men to smoke their pipes and cigars, sing their glees, see the vaudeville artists and have a general good time. No seriousnes is to be tolerated. But in order to make the affair a success it is obligatory that those who have not replied do so at once to Owen H. Fleming or Lewis A. Williams.

Miss Rosabelle Phillips a Bride.

Miss Rosabelle Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Phillips, of West Fourth street, and David S. Jackson, of Richmond, Va., were quietly married Saturday night, at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride, Rev. M. A. Alexander, of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, officiated. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Ella Phillips, and Carter Wicks was best man. The bride was gowned in white crepe de chine over white satin and carried white carnations and the gown of the bridesmaid was white silk. The bride was given in marriage by her father. A reception followed the ceremony. The couple will reside in this city.

A Gifted Preacher.

Rev. Dr. J. P. Searle, Dean of the Rutgers Theological Seminary, at New Brunswick, occupied Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck's pulpit in Trinity Reformed church, yesterday morning and evening, delivering most excellent sermons at both services. Dr. Searle is a gifted speaker and those who heard his preaching yesterday were highly edified. The morning text was taken from Psalm 109-9 and the evening discourse was from the text, "Lord thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations," Psalms 90-1.

Funeral of Miss Burtchaell.

The funeral of Miss Dorcas Burtchaell was held this noon at the home of her sister, Mrs. Susan Wadams, of Grove street. The service was conducted by Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, and was attended by a gathering of relatives and friends. The body was afterward taken to Newark for burial in Woodland cemetery.

NEW SCHOOL LAWS TO END FIRE TRAPS

Last week's school horror at Collinswood, Ohio, will result this week in the introduction in the New Jersey Legislature of a series of amendments to the school laws of the State with a view of preventing any local repetition of the catastrophe. It will be asked that the amendments be enacted without delay.

One of the amendments will provide that after September the schoolhouses of the State shall be provided with doors opening outward. The law now provides that no new buildings shall be equipped with doors opening inwardly, but no provision is made for the old buildings. Many of these are still equipped with the inside door traps. It will cost considerable money to remodel the entrances to the old school buildings, but the school authorities of the State believe that it will be well worth the price.

Another amendment will provide that no school door shall be kept locked during the session. It has been the practice in many instances to keep the doors locked to prevent intrusion of tramps or mischevious persons.

Third amendment to the law will make it compulsory to place fire escapes on every school building more than two stories in height. There is no such law now, although many of the newer school houses are equipper with fire escapes on enclosed outer stairways.

All changes in the present laws are being backed by the State Board of Education. In view of the recent calamity at Collinswood it is not doubted that all the amendments will pass.

DOMINIES TO DEBATE THE EXCISE QUESTION.

Rev. E. A. Wasson, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal church, Newark, has accepted the invitation of Rev. Ernest A. Boom, of the Merchantville M. E. church, to debate with him the question of prohibition. Mr. Boom is an anti-liquor adherent, and his proposition to Mr. Wasson for a public discussion of the liquor problem was forwarded Tuesday, the day after Mr. Boom heard the Newark clergyman speak before an Assembly committee, last Monday, in Trenton, against the Crosby local option bill.

In his letter to Mr. Wasson, Mr. Boom offered to discuss the prohibition question at a place and time to be mutually agreed upon. The conditions are that each shall defray individual expenses, discussion shall be held in Newark, Jersey city, Trenton, Camden or Atlantic City. Each will be allowed one hour and a quarter—forty-five minutes to open and thirty for rebuttal. The theme will be "Prohibition, the Principle, the Policy and the Party; Shall We Support Them?" The local committee will provide a chairman.

ACCUSED THE SHERIFF OF FATTENING FEES.

Allegation Is Made at Inquiry Into Jail Riot That Prisoners Are Arrested Unjustly.

Surprising revelations are being made as a consequence of the investigation by the Mercer County Freeholders into the recent riot and attempt at delivery in the Trenton jail.

Sheriff Wilbur, who is serving his last year in office and who is to be the last Sheriff to operate under the fee system, is accused of inducing deputies to fill the jail so his fees can be increased. He is allowed thirty-two cents a day for each prisoner he feeds, and it is said it costs him seven cents for each prisoner.

Charges are made that the Sheriff's deputies arrest many men simply seeking work to fill the jail.

PRIMARY BILL IN DANGER.

Will Meet Defeat Unless Governor Stirs Things Up.

Unless Governor John Franklin Fort stirs up the members of the Legislature, his commission's bill, providing for official supervision of the primary elections of the great political parties to choose delegates to conventions that in turn will select delegates to the Presidential convention, will surely meet defeat.

The bill was introduced in duplicate in the House and Senated simultaneously. The House bill was reported out of the committee on elections by Henry D. Thompson, of Mercer, last Wednesday and held up in the afternoon sitting, because of the opposition of William C. Voorhees, of Middlesex, who maintained that the measure had been rushed out without even a semblance of a committee meeting and before he had a chance to read it.

The Rasores Club to Meet.

The Rasores Club will meet tomorrow morning with Mrs. J. W. Johnson, East Seventh street and Watchung avenue. The subject will be "Walter Savage Landor."

REV. DR. SYMONDS HERE

Canadian Clergyman Conducting Sermon-Lecture Courses at Grace Church.

RECTOR STEVENSON'S GUEST.

Preached at Morning Service Yesterday and Gave Lectures at the Church In the Afternoon and Today.

Rev. Herbert Symonds, M. A., D. D., vicar of Christ Church Cathedral, at Montreal, Canada, is the guest of Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church, and will conduct two courses of sermon lectures at the church during the week. The first lecture of the course on Tennyson's "In Memoriam" was given at the vesper service at the church yesterday afternoon, and he began a series of daily talks on "The Bible in the Twentieth Century" at the church this morning, when he gave the introductory lecture of the course.

At the morning service yesterday, Dr. Symonds occupied the pulpit, speaking on the place of religion in the present day society.

Present Day Religion.

The text of the morning sermon was taken from the sixth chapter of St. Matthew, parts of the 25th and 33d verses, as follows: "Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink; nor yet for your body, was ye shall put on, but seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness."

In the development of his thought, Dr. Symonds spoke first of the people to whom these words were addressed, as compared with present-day society. Those who heard the words, he said, were ordinary peasants, whose interest was primarily in tilling the soil, and securing sustenance from their farms. Today men are engrossed in the same way in their business, and in many cases, church must be secondary to week-day interests.

The underlying principle in both cases is a common one, despite intervening centuries. It is a quest for the supreme thing in life. This the speaker defined as "the kingdom of God among men," as presented by Christ as the supreme teacher. St. Paul's definition of this supreme thing in life is the securing of righteousness, peace and joy. Dr. Symonds spoke of the complicity of the present age in society, exhorting that as a remedy more attention be paid to the quest for the supreme element in life, as defined by St. Paul, and less absorption in the worldly business interests of life. To give religion and the church the supreme place in present day work and pleasure, and to make business and amusement subservient to the seeking after righteousness, peace and joy, would give the church the proper place in the society of today.

Tennyson's "In Memoriam."

The introductory lecture on Tennyson's "In Memoriam," written in memory of Arthur Henry Hallam, the author's personal friend and university mate, who died when a young man, was attended by an unusually large gathering at the church yesterday afternoon. It was given in connection with the evensong service, and Dr. Symonds assisted in the service by reading the evening's Scripture lesson. The full choir was in attendance at the service.

At the outset of his remarks, Dr. Symonds dwelt on the social conditions at the time of the life of Hallam. "That was a hundred years ago," he said, "when my city of Montreal was a mere village, and when your great United States was still but an interesting experiment." He spoke of Tennyson and Hallam as college mates at Cambridge University, where both were members of the Apostles' Club, an organization of a dozen students deeply interested in the political and literary thought of the age.

Hallam's death had a most depressing effect upon Tennyson. It came when the poet was twenty-four years of age, and for seventeen years he published no poetry; indeed, his sole literary work during that period of his prime was a series of disconnected poems afterwards collected at the eulogy "In Memoriam." The various verses of lament were not composed with any idea of publishing them as a single poem, and this accounts for the loose structure of "In Memoriam." The actual composition of the poem covered a period of nine years, and its development and divisions are marked by certain notes of time. The poem contains three distinct Christmas allusions, and the opening verses hint that they were written in the late fall.

The verses as collected are not in the order of composition. Indeed, Sections 9, 30, 31, 85, and 28, were the first written, and in the order named. The epilogue was written in

HEMORRHAGE CAUSES DEATH OF G. L. HOMAN

George L. Homan, son of former Councilman James P. Homan, died suddenly yesterday morning at his father's home on Putnam avenue. He was seized with a hemorrhage while in bed and passed away within an hour afterward. He had been ailing somewhat for the past year with a throat affection but had been attending to his usual duties until Saturday.

Mr. Homan was thirty years old and had lived in Plainfield practically all his life. He was associated with his father in the carriage manufacturing business on Somerset street and enjoyed a wide acquaintance in the city and borough. A wife, who was formerly Miss Maude Mosher, and a sister, Mrs. George Clark, survives him.

The funeral will be held at his father's residence tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

ANOTHER JAIL SENTENCE FOR JULIA SAUERACKER.

Julia Saueracker, who holds the women's record for appearances in the city and borough courts, fell in the police dragnet on this side of the brook Saturday night. Patrolman Vanderweg took her in custody at Plainfield avenue and South Second street after Mrs. Jacob Bergen, colored, had told him that Julia had tried to demolish her home. She went there to board last week, having just been released from the Somerville jail.

When arraigned in court this morning, Julia was positive she had only taken two glasses of beer and as for making trouble at Mrs. Bergen's home she was positive, absolutely positive, that it was all a pack of lies. Just the same, the fair Julia was sorry that the whole thing had occurred and she announced really and truly that she would get out of town if sentence was suspended.

"Your sorrow always comes too late," was Judge Runyon's comment. "Sixty days."

"UNTIL WE MEET AGAIN" HAS PREMIER TONIGHT.

Marguerite Merington's new play, "Until We Meet Again," will be given its premier at the New Plainfield theatre tonight. It will be presented by a cast of superior excellence, headed by Eugene Ormonde, whose success as a leading man in dramatic productions has been most pronounced. The play is described as a comedy, the principal character being an impoverished young German baron whose trials and tribulations for the basis for lots of highly amusing situations.

The production will be seen in nearby cities during the next two or three weeks after which it goes into the Bijou theatre, New York, for its metropolitan presentation.

Voted for P. H. S. Directors.

At a meeting of the Plainfield High School election held at the opening exercises of the high school this morning, an attempt was made to elect a member of the board of directors to take the place of Charles Loizeaux, who has left school. The balloting resulted in a scattered choice, none of the six pupils voted upon receiving a majority necessary for election. The three highest, Harry VanZandt, 1910; Arthur Titsworth, 1908, and F. Clyde Doane, 1909, will be voted on at another meeting tomorrow morning.

Orchestral Music a Feature.

The Sunday-school session at Trinity Reformed church yesterday was made especially interesting, when an orchestra assisting in the singing of hymns. The orchestra comprised the following: Miss Lillian A. Force, pianist; Edmund D. Young, cornet; Elmer P. Wheeler, flute; Chauncey P. Wheeler, violin; and Mr. Wharton, clarionet. It is the intention, if possible, to make the orchestra a permanent feature of the Sunday-school sessions hereafter.

Fire Visits Quick Lunch Room.

The Baltimore quick lunch room, located in James E. Martino's small structure on West Front street, caught fire from a gasolene stove shortly after 6 o'clock Saturday night and started to burn up. The prompt arrival of the fire department in response to an alarm from box 12 saved it from destruction. The loss is placed at $100 nearly all of which is on the building. The business is conducted by Walter Hamilton, colored.

Gov. Hughes' Father to Speak Here.

Rev. D. C. Hughes, father of Governor Charles E. Hughes, of New York, will address the men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon, May 3. Dr. Hughes is a retired Baptist minister, living in Brooklyn. He is a powerful speaker, especially prominent as an organizer of religious work.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF WINFIELD S. DECKER

The funeral service of Winfield Scott Decker was held at the late home, 944 West Fourth street, yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. There was a large attendance of relatives, friends and neighbors, including many from the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, where the family has been active in all departments of work. Rev. E. E. Roberson, pastor of the church, officiated. He read appropriate Scripture selections, after which he made a few remarks from the text, "Where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest."

The speaker referred to the Christian spirit exemplified by Mr. Decker through his long illness of intense suffering, of his patience in waiting for the end and his willingness to go to that better land. During the service a quintet comprising Mrs. Richard Gilbert, Miss James, William Berger, Harry Lude and John W. Daub sang a hymn, "Penitence," and Mrs. Gilbert sang "That Will Be Glory," as a solo. Miss Charlotte Aldrich was at the piano.

There was a large and beautiful display of floral tributes, including pillows, wreaths and many bunches of roses which were banked about the casket. This morning the body was taken to Mariners Harbor, where a service was held this afternoon in the Methodist church of which Mr. Decker was a life-long member and an active worker. The burial was at Springville, Staten Island.

BAPTISM NOT ESSENTIAL SAYS BAPTIST MINISTER.

In discussing the question "Is It Necessary to Be Baptized to Be a Christian?" at the Park Avenue Baptist church, last night, Rev. A. E. Finn made a lengthy presentation of the theme. In the first place the pastor declared in the negative in answering the question, holding that it is the duty of one to become a Christian, and having done so, it is then his duty to be baptizel in obedience to God's command.

Mr. Finn dwelt especially on the point that baptism is an act of obedience to God and for a child of God not to be baptized after having experienced that change, he is doing something directly contrary to the divine injunction. He made a strong plea to the unconverted to accept Christ and then be baptized. He referred to the ordinance of baptism, that is immersion, according to the principles of the Baptist faith, as symbolical, the act of being buried with Christ in baptism, and he felt sure that when one became a Christian he would want to follow Christ and obey his commandments.

EAGLES ENTERTAIN THE VOGEL MINSTREL TROUPE.

Following the performance of Vogel's minstrels at the New Plainfield theatre, Saturday night, the members of the troupe were entertained by Plainfield Aerie, No. 866, F. O. E., for whose benefit the show was given. The artists adjourned to the Eagles' club house on East Second street, where they were met by the members of the minstrel and house committees. Proprietor Vogel marshalled his men and they gave a lot of good stuff during the informal program that pleased everyone. Refreshments were served in conclusion.

The minstrel committee was composed of Horace J. Adams, chairman; Sylvester Abieneste, Hugh Reilly, Michael J. Higgins and Edward J. McCann. The aerie will net a substantial sum as a result of the benefit.

Changes in Church Choir.

F. C. Iglehart, Jr., who has been the baritone member of the quartet at the First Presbyterian church during the past two years, has resigned to take the position of conductor of the choir at the Hillside Presbyterian church, at Orange. Elmer D. Cutting, the tenor of the choir, has also resigned. Both Mr. Iglehart and Mr. Cutting have many friends at the church who regret their retirement, recognizing their long and faithful services. J. H. Herder, of Somerville, will take Mr. Cutting's place next Sunday on trial, but arrangements for a baritone have not been completed as yet.

Star Course Affair.

The last of the season's Y. M. C. A. star course of entertainments will be given at the association auditorium tonight, when the Hawthorne Musical Club, a novelty concert company, of Boston, will present a program of vocal and instrumental music. This company consists of four musicians, playing fourteen different instruments.

Arrested as Suspicious Character.

William Sloane, colored, was picked up by the police, last night, as a suspicious character. In court today he told Judge Runyon that his home was in Fishkill, N. Y., and he was walking to Philadelphia. He was told to keep on travelling and chased out of headquarters on the run.

TEACHERS OPPOSE BILL

Somerset Pedagogues, by an Overwhelming Vote, Condemn Tenure of Office Measure.

DETRIMENTAL TO DISCIPLINE.

After County Superintendent Krebs Explains Bill's Provisions Teachers Register Decided Protest.

Henry C. Krebs, superintendent of the North Plainfield schools, and county superintendent of Somerset, spoke on "The Tenure of Office for Teachers" at the meeting of the Somerset County Teachers' Association, held at Somerville, Saturday. The "tenure of office bill," introduced by Assemblyman Leavitt, provides that after successive appointments for three years, teachers hold their positions continuously, unless charges are brought against them in writing. These charges may be preferred by tax payers or school authorities, and the teacher against whom such charges are brought may retain counsel for defense.

The bill was framed some time ago, and was favored in resolutions passed at the State Teachers' Association in the recent convention. The matter was brought up the last day of the convention, and the measure was endorsed by the 125 teachers present. There are about 10,000 teachers in the State, and few of them are in favor of the bill. It is customary for many of the teachers to leave the convention before the last day, and but a small percentage of them were present at the time the bill was endorsed.

Superintendent Krebs spoke at length on the unfairness of the bill before the Somerset county teachers. After his remarks, in which he claimed that the few teachers who had framed the bill's endorsement did not represent the sentiments of the State teachers by their action, he asked for a secret ballot of the seventy-five county teachers present. There was further discussion before the voting, and when the "straw ballot" was taken, it was found that only ten teachers present were in favor of the bill, sixty-five voting against it.

The bill passed the Senate last week and will be brought before the Assembly within a few days. The Somerset county teachers will petition Assemblyman W. W. Smalley to use his influence to kill the bill when it comes up before the Assembly.

LADIES' AID SOCIETY GIVES MEASURING SOCIAL.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, a measuring social was given at Hope chapel Saturday night. Admission was charged according to the height of the person entering at the rate of two cents for each foot and a cent for each additional inch. The measuring made lots of fun.

An informal program was the social's feature and the principal contributors were Miss Marie Newman and Mrs. L. R. Howard, who rendered several vocal and instrumental selections. Miss Newman also recited and a phonograph was operated by Mrs. Robert Hangliter. Refreshments were served in conclusion. The proceeds from the affair will be used for the rebinding of the chapel hymnals.

The committee in charge was made up of Mrs. L. R. Howard, chairman; Mrs. F. A. Weber, Mrs. Charles Vincent, Mrs. William Jones, Mrs. Fred J. Wharton, Mrs. Oscar Pierson, Mrs. Thomas Henry, Mrs. William Vogel, Mrs. James Herron, Mrs. Fannie Rushton and Mrs. Terry.

Witness Fell Down.

The Kunzman-Isaacson disturbance case was again called in the city court, this morning, and ended with the dropping of an $8 fine on Samuel Isaacson. He brought along a friend to prove that he was not to blame for the racket at Kunzman's place on West Third street last Thursday night, but when put on the stand the witness corroborated all that Kunzman had said. From the expression on Isaacson's face it was hard to determine which hurt him the most, the fall-down of his witness or the giving up of the eight bones.

Want Council to Govern Licenses.

Mayor Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield, has received a letter from John Garriety, secretary of a Newark organization, in which he requests the Mayor and Council of the borough to endorse a measure transferring the power of granting liquor licenses in boroughs from the county court to the borough officials. The letter stated that a bill to this effect had been introduced at Trenton, and urged the borough fathers to frame resolutions endorsing it.

Before Police Board.

Patrolman Nicholas Myers has been summoned to appear before the Councilmanic police board tonight.

ARC LIGHTS TO BE CHEAPER.

Paterson Corporation Makes Reduction When Municipal Lighting Bill Is Decided On.

To head off a municipal ownership lighting bill that was to be introduced in the Legislature next week the Public Service Corporation has consented to reduce the price of county arc lights from $140 to $100 a year. The present contract for ten years has three years to run.

Several previous efforts on behalf of the county authorities to have the price reduced have been ignored by the Public Service Corporation, and it was decided a few days ago to have a bill introduced authorizing the county to issue bonds for a lighting plant to supply not only the rural districts, but also Paterson and Passaic.

Miss La Boyteaux, formerly of the borough, but now of Brooklyn, who has been visiting Dr. and Mrs. Chas. Moore, of West Front street, has returned.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Haring and daughter, Mabel, and Mrs. John Koechlin and daughter, Carlyn, of this city, have been visiting Mrs. J. J. Maier, of Bound Brook.

Col. John F. Wilson, of "Tunlaw," who has been confined to his home for several weeks with bronchitis, is able to be out again. His daughter, Mrs. Truitt, has about recovered from a severe illness.

Oppose Local Option.

The Essex Trades Council went on record Friday night as being unanimously opposed to prohibition at the National Capital and also local option in this State, on the ground that thousands of organized labor men in the country would be thrown out of work. It was shown that among the organizations that would be affected are brewers, bottlers, coopers, maltsters, masons, engineers, firemen, plumbers, painters, bartenders, waiters, cigarmakers, carpenters and musicians.

Columbia and Central Lodges, A. O. U. W., will be represented at the annual meeting of the Grand Lodge to be held at Atlantic City on Thursday and Friday.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

H. G. Thompson, of Savannah, Ga., wanted in that city on a forgery charge, was arrested in Burlington last night and committed to the county jail to await requisition by the Georgia authorities.

At Friday night's meeting of City Council of Gloucester City the Finance Committee reported that the $75,000 street improvement bonds have been sold to the Prudential Life Insurance Company at par and accrued interest.

William Nelson, forty years old, of Trenton, fell and was rendered unconscious by his head striking a rail on the track of the Reading Railway while a fast train was approaching yesterday. A man saw his danger and pulled him off the road just in the nick of time.

Thomas Komeczny, of Philadelphia, who was arrested February 13 for robbing the poor box of St. Peter's Roman Catholic church, Riverside, and was caught after a chase by Rev. Joseph Goth, was Friday sentenced by Judge Horner at Mt. Holly to one year in the State prison.

An experimental mile of stone road built by the Cape May County Board of Freeholders in West Cape May has proved so satisfactory that there is a strong sentiment favorable to the making of stone instead of gravel roads wherever possible. The cost is said to be very little greater.

Recorder O. Glen Stackhouse, of Camden, declares that he is not dead. This despite the fact that a publication of the Pitman Grove Cottagers' Association has him in a list of those who have departed. Recorder Stackhouse is a member of the association and summers at the Methodist meeting place.

Fresh incentive to the business interests of both communities to build a transdelaware bridge between Burlington and Bristol was given yesterday by the announcement of the withdrawal of the ferryboat William E. Doron from service between March 9 and 20. The boat at this time will undergo annual inspection and repairing.

Joseph H. Moore, alias Thomas Lewis, was arrested on the charge of passing a forged check for $6.50 on David Faust, a Camden insurance agent. It is said that several others accepted spurious paper from the accused, who is now in jail serving a sixty-day term for disorderly conduct and for whom a detainer has been lodged.

Discovering a law that permits the appointment of a county auditor at $1,500 a year, and the Atlantic freeholders deciding that such an official will be needed because of the new law requiring an accounting monthly of all fees received in the offices of sheriff, county clerk and surrogate, there is a scramble among place holders for the berth.

At a spirited meeting of the Audubon Board of Trade Friday evening emphatic opposition was expressed by some of the representative citizens of that borough against reported action of the New Jersey Legislature having had presented to them a bill calling for the annexation of a portion of Hadden Township, of which this borough is a part, and a strong adverse resolution was unanimously adopted.

Convicted of breaking into the farm-house of Albert Bates, near Haddonfield, Richard Smith, white, and William Johnson, colored, were sentenced to seven years in State prison at hard labor by Judge Joline in Camden Friday. At the time the robbery was discovered a large knife and an axe were found back of a door, which convinced the court that the men would have committed murder had they been caught at work in the house.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

The showing of spring goods at "The White Store" is attracting the attention of all shoppers. Countless bargains are constantly offered both men and women and you will be able to save money on every purchase. The house furnishing goods department is second to none and you will find many things there that will be useful in your home. Inspect these goods before going elsewhere.

Both of Them.

"Jimmie," said the merchant solemnly, at the eleventh hour, "we have forgotten to get a fresh supply of stamps."

And the office boy, in his excitement, responded with "Goodness, sir, so we have! If we ain't a couple of blunder-headed idiots!"—Tit-Bits.

French Flower Market

A Pretty Show and Sale of Flowers for Hats

Just imagine yourself at the March de la Madelene on the Boulevard des Capucines, in Paris, where the Parisians go for their cut flowers and plants, and you will have some idea of the flower show we are going to make this week in our Millinery Shop. Here is the very typical representation of the French Flower Market, with its canopied booths, its baskets of flowers and the girls to sell them. That this is the grandest showing of flowers for hat trimming that has ever been made in the State you will agree when you walk along this flower lined miniature Parisian street, which extends the full length of the millinery store. We know you will be delighted with this exhibit and more than pleased to get new and beautiful flowers at such prices.

BASEBALL.

A dispatch from Allentown states that Hugh McKinnon, owner of the Atlantic League franchise of that city, intends to withdraw from the league, as he opposes the plan of the other club owners to secure protection. It is the opinion that Allentown will be given a berth in the Union League.

Jack Thoney is expected to be willing to sign a Boston American League contract on the condition that the Toronto club pays over to him $1,500 of the money received for his purchase.

The Toronto club has signed a young catcher named Sullivan. He is a Westerner and has played with strong independent teams in Chicago for the past two seasons.

The Boston Americans have signed Jimmy McHale, who played in the outfield for the Stockton (Cal.) team last season.

The Chicago White Sox contingent of twenty-seven players has reached Los Angeles.

The Chicago Cubs have begun training at West Baden Springs. After a sojourn of two weeks at that resort the Cubs will go to Vicksburg, Miss., for a stay.

The Toronto club is reported to have paid $1,500 for Sam Brown, the Boston National catcher.

Ned Hanlon says that the Orioles next season will be the highest-salaried combination outside of the sixteen big league clubs.

Hank Byers, the big Baltimore catcher, is taking the baths at Mt. Clemens, Mich., and expects to be in tip-top shape when the Eastern League season opens. Reports from the resort state that Byers and Doc Moriarity, the former Newark pitcher, are seen chumming together every day.

Arthur Irwin, of New York, according to a dispatch from Washington, D. C., has been selected to manage the Union League team of that city next season.

A dispatch from Toronto states that the Toronto club has sold First Baseman Flynn to the St. Louis Nationals for $1,500.

Socks Seybold, of the Philadelphia Athletics, severely injured his knee, while sliding into the home plate with the winning run in the game against New Orleans. Seybold is likely to be out of the game for some time.

Clara Blaudick, the Leading Woman with Cyril Scott, in "The Royal Mounted," at New Plainfield Theatre Thursday Night.

If Manager Ganzel gives his consent the Cincinnati club will put through a deal by which Johnny Kane, Bunny Pearce and $5,000 in cash will be handed over to the Chicago Cubs for Del Howard and Heine Zimmerman. Garry Herrmann says he will spend big money to give Cincinnati a winner next season.

Two years ago when the Tri-State League was an outlaw the clubs in that circuit induced many players to desert the major and minor leagues with offers of big salaries. The men who put up this money for pure sport soon became tired of getting poor returns for their investments so they hoisted the white flag and were admitted to organized baseball. Incidentally about twenty of the players who had jumped contracts on the reserve rule to get big money in the Tri-State were placed under a ban which prevented them from signing with any leagues or clubs outside of that organization. Now the Tri-State club owners are beginning to square accounts for they have cut salaries all around and the players are finding themselves in an odd predicament. They must either accept the terms offered or retire from baseball, something they are not, as a rule, anxious to do.

It has always been this way in the history of baseball, except in the case of the American League. When Ban Johnson expanded his popular circuit he offered big money to the stars of the National League to jump, and these players are getting practically the same money today. After the Brotherhood revolt in 1890, however, the players, who had been dictating their own terms, were forced to accept big reductions in their pay, especially when the twelve club league, a real monopoly, was organized.

If ball players were able to write the amount of their salaries in their contracts there is hardly a doubt that the club owners in leagues large and small would soon find their pockets empty. The prosperity of baseball in all of the leagues last year has caused more kicking over salaries than for twenty years, so that it will not be a surprise if a salary limit is fixed on a graded plan according to leagues before many more seasons roll by.

Connie Mack's Philadelphia Americans are making rapid strides at New Orleans. Mack has his regular players in the field now and the work of Jimmy Collins at third base is said to be a revelation. Mack says that Collins is as fine as he was when he led the Boston Americans in the championship several years ago and that the presence of the veteran on the Quaker team means that the chances for the pennant are even better than last season.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

It has been announced that arrangements had been completed for the annual crew races between Yale and Harvard and that they will be held on the Thames river at New London on Thursday, June 25.

Owing to a difference of opinion existing between the Chicago University faculty and Coach Stagg on football matters, it is reported that the latter may tender his resignation.

There is some slight chance that Tom Longboat and Albert Shrubb will finally settle their differences. Shrubb, after he has met his engagements on the other side, will return to this country in April for an extended stay. He has been matched to run Johnson, an English professional, for a big purse.

Joseph P. Willetts, '09, of Skaneateles, N. Y., has been elected captain of the Harvard hockey team for next season.

The Harvard crew is contemplating an English trip this year, and the Crimson eight may be one of the crews named for the Olympic regatta at Henley on July 28.

The Crescent A. C. seven, leaders in the Amateur Hockey League, will play the University of Toronto team, for international honors at St. Nicholas Rink, in New York, on March 14.

Cyril Scott, in "The Royal Mounted," at New Plainfield Theatre Thursday Night.

The racing season in Cuba will be opened at Havana on March 12. There will be racing every day, including Sundays.

Pat Dunne and Billy Karrick are mentioned as possible successors to the late John Rogers as trainer of Harry Payne Whitney's racers.

The Yale crew began work on New Haven Harbor this week, and from now on there will be daily practise. The men did excellent work despite the cold weather.

Delegates to the annual meeting of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America decided that the next annual field meeting should be held on Franklin Field, Philadelphia. Fordham College was reinstated to membership in the association, which is made up of the leading universities and colleges in the United States.

The association decided by a unanimous vote to take control of the Intercollegiate Cross-country Association so that hereafter all intercollegiate cross-country contests will be under its auspices. The delegates voted $1,000 for the use of the college team that is to represent America in the Olympic games.

The association elected the following officers for the coming year: Clarence G. Bamberger, of Cornell, president; vice-presidents, Donald Abbott, of Amherst, and Harry Hill, of Michigan; secretary, A. J. MacGrath, of Union College; treasurer, Henry Hall, Jr., of Columbia; executive committee, G. T. Townsend, of Yale; Guy Emerson, of Harvard; J. Haveron, Jr., of Princeton, and J. H. Cochran, University of Pennsylvania.

GOLF.

The handicap committee of the Metropolitan Golf Association is now criticised for being too energetic. The vigorous call for responses from clubs made each winter is considered essential by the committee, which maintains that a spring list would be next to impossible were a more leisurely method adopted. Ralph Cracknell, who has been chairman of the Massachusetts Golf Association handicap committee for several years, does not appear to be impressed with this policy of haste, as may be gathered from his remarks on the subject:

Handicappers of the metropolitan district players are urging the attention of club committees to their call for the rating for 1908. Is it not rather early to do so? The later a handicap list can be issued, so long as it is in time for the opening tournament of the season, the more satisfactory it is likely to be. It gives a chance to the club committees to include new members and to leave off those who resign.

Cutting the list down to those handicapped up to 9 from par was liable to result in indifference, but it is denied that such is the case. High class players are not difficult to handicap, for much is known about them. It is the long handicap men who are improving and the mediocre men who are falling off in play that need attention. Moreover, they are the players who appear to take the most interest in the ratings, though the really good players are not so indifferent to where they are placed, as could readily be supposed.

In this State a system which entailed the necessity of players with a handicap of more than 9 applying to their club secretaries for certificates of their rating from some player who received 9 or less on the official list would appear to be so much like abandoning the State list altogether that it would be a most unpopular innovation.

The State handicapping committee will ask for the club handicap lists shortly, and just before the season opens the club handicappers will be asked for additions or revisions. The score allotted each course for handicapping purposes will be given, and the committees will be asked to handicap on the best form of the players, leaving out extraordinary performances.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The Inter-Ocean Amusement Company's production of Marguerite Merington's new comedy, "Until We Meet Again," will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre tonight. In the cast of characters come the following well known dramatic artists: Eugene Ormonde, Josephine Victor, Mabel Caruthers, Seymour Rose, Charlotte Lambert, Rogers Lytton, Dickey De Laro, Russell Bassett and Mildren Hutchinson.

Cyril Scott is to appear in an entirely new line of work in the new play that Cecil and William de Mille have written for him. The first performance in this city will take place at the New Plainfield theatre on Thursday night. The title of the play, "The Royal Mounted," was only decided upon after the piece had been in rehearsal a couple of weeks. To understand it thoroughly one must know that the story deals with certain adventures of a dashing lieutenant of the Canadian Northwestern Mounted Police—one of the finest cavalry corps in the world. The scenes are laid in the Province of Alberta, and open at the Police Barracks, Glengary. The authors say that they have excelled their plays of "Strongheart" and "The Genius" in this latest venture. It is of the melodramatic class in which "The Great Divide" belongs, but the scenes and the motif differ entirely. It is said to be new in every sense of the word.

For the annual tour of that distinguished actor, Thomas E. Shea, who will appear at the New Plainfield theatre for two nights, March 27 and 28, Cohan and Harris have provided, in addition to that popular classic, "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," a new play by Eugene Thomas entitled "A Soldier of the Cross." Mr. Shea has hitherto been identified with work along nearly every other line than that of Ajax, the gladiator, in which character he will be seen in the new play. Almost the entire gamut of emotional and heroic parts has been essayed by Mr. Shea, but the public will now have the rare opportunity of seeing him in a new role. Mr. Thomas has written a Pompeiian drama filled to the brim, it is said, with all the intensely human attributes: Pride, love, hatred, revenge and heroism. All the qualities of the ancients animate his characters and make them live again. An eruption of Vesuvius will be one of the features. Cohan and Harris, it is said, have provided an exceptional supporting company.

BREAK UP SWINDLERS' GAME.

Dummy Telephones Confiscated in Hoboken Place, Which Appeared To Be Real Poolroom.

Police Chief Hayes, of Hoboken, has unearthed a swindle which, it is believed, has been worked there for some time. No arrests were made, for at the time the raid was made there was no one in the place, but implements of the swindlers' craft were seized.

There was a poolroom wherein some easy "come-on" with money would be made to believe that a scheme had been discovered whereby the poolroom could be beaten. When the "come-on" had his money down he was given a "sure thing," and on this would wager his bet. The "sure thing" would turn out a killing for the poolroom proprietor, and he and his accomplices would divide the cash.

When the place in Washington street was visited telephones with no connection and one connected with the Hoboken central were found. There were also "dope" sheets and other paraphernalia to indicate that some sort of a game had been played there.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

THE ACKERMAN BILL'S FATE.

Some remarks by Governor Fort reported in Friday's Tribune are to be earnestly commended to the consideration of political leaders in New Jersey for application to a variety of matters. He was speaking of the selection of delegates to the Republican National Convention, and he said in effect that he believed that the time was past in that State when any little company or clique of men could get together and say who should not be delegates. In that he was doubtless right. The State convention, and no less an authority, will select the delegates-at-large. And it may be confidently added that it will select men truly representative of the best Republican sentiment of the State.

The Governor's words have also, as we have suggested, a wider application—for example, to some pending measures before the Legislature. We trust that the time is past when any coterie of self-appointed bosses could get together and say what bills should and what should not be enacted. In particular, it is to be hoped for the sake of the State and of the Republican party that no such sinister disposition can be made of the Civil Service bill which has already passed the Senate and is now before the Assembly. That the latter house should take sufficient time to consider the measure carefully is fitting. It may be able to suggest some desirable amendments, though the bill, as Senator Ackerman drafted it, seems to be about all that could be desired. But it should be understood plainly that the emasculation or killing of the bill would be not only deplorable for the State, but also politically disastrous to those who did the deed.

The bosses may, as reported, issue an edict that the bill must be killed. But bosses' edicts are not exactly what they were. The people of the State of New Jersey have not forgotten that the Republican party in its platform last year specifically and emphatically pledged itself to the enactment of such a measure and that Governor Fort both before and after his election and in his inaugural address spoke strongly in favor of it. That the Governor still favors it is of course not to be questioned. It remains for the House of Assembly to make good the pledge of the platform on which its members were elected. Indeed, both party platforms declared for a Civil Service law, so that Democrats as well as Republicans are pledged to the enactment of such a measure. We cannot believe that the bill of Senator Ackerman will fail. But since there has been talk about its defeat having been ordered by the bosses, it is well to recall the declarations of last year's campaign, and to remember, too, how the voters of New Jersey have now and then dealt with politicians who have broken their pledges and have defeated and defied the popular will.—New York Tribune.

EARLY SPRING IN WATERBURY.

Robins, Bluebirds and a Drunkard Usher in the Season in Connecticut.

Waterbury, Conn., March 9.—Louis F. Haase, large owner of real estate, saw bluebirds auctioning off their winter toggery in convention in Cheshire yesterday. The robbins already are building nests in Beckley quarters, Kensington; pussy willows are out in Bolton for spring showing, and "Jim" Hickox has gone to jail again as a "common drunk" in Brooklyn.

Hickox is a good weather sign, as when spring shows eagerness to manifest itself "Jim" always acquires his barometric spree, the season's first, lest he might be called, he says, to do manual labor.

FORMER PLAINFIELDER "MAKES GOOD" AS A MINER

Bringing with him an atmosphere of the towering Rockies and a verification of the statement that Plainfield boys can "make good" no matter where put, James Slorah, a former West Ender, has returned to the city after two years of activity on the Pacific coast. He was summoned from his manifold duties as the master mechanic of the Blue Ledge copper mine, on the border line between California and Oregon, because of the serious illness of his father, Robert Slorah, of McDowell street. The response was as rapid as horses, stage coaches and railroads would permit but it required eight days for him to reach New York. Fortunately, the illness of the father assumed a favorable turn before he arrived in Plainfield and it was a happy household that greeted him instead of one of sorrow.

Mr. Slorah was brought up in the West End and was one of the promising young men who aided in the growth of Hope chapel. He learned the machinist trade at the Pond shop and branching out after his time had been completed, engaged in a number of enterprises, finally becoming travelling erector for a Jersey City engine manufacturing company. Through this position, he was sent to Oregon to erect the machinery of the Blue Ledge mine in the Sisku mountain range, an enterprise backed by Eastern capital. At the completion of his task he was about to return to Jersey when it was made known to him that there was no one in the mountains who could properly care for the engines and he was prevailed upon to remain, a large salary being the inducement.

Though absolutely unfamiliar with mining, the young Plainfielder became greatly interested in the manner of extracting wealth from the bowels of the wonderful Rockies and was soon out of the "greenhorn" stage. He was advanced from one position to another until he finally became master mechanic and is now one of the most important individuals of the 100 men making up the "camp," as the mining settlement is called.

The Blue Ledge shaft is located high up in the mountains fifty miles from the Pacific coast. From some of the peaks reached after a hard climb it is possible on clear days to see the broad bosom of the Pacific. The nearest settlement of any size is Jacksonville, some ten miles away, while the nearest city is Medford, Oregon, forty miles distant. The latter place came into existence eighteen years ago but now has a population of 12,000 and is growing rapidly. In coming to Plainfield, Mr. Slorah was compelled to travel by horseback and stage coach the entire distance between the Blue Ledge mine and Medford, a journey requiring about thirty hours. At Medford a train can be taken to San Francisco direct.

The former Plainfielder speaks glowingly of the country in which he has cast his lot and asserts that it is just beginning to develop. He declares there are unequalled opportunities for young men within its confines as it not only abounds in mineral wealth, but offers exceptional advantages for farming and lumbering. Apples frequently grow to nineteen inches in circumference and the Sisku Valley pears are famed all along the coast. The ordinary miner receives from $3.50 to $4.50 a day and pays from seventy-five cents to a dollar for board. Eight hour shifts prevail everywhere and the actual labor is very light because of modern machinery used.

Lumbering is also an important industry and scores of men from all parts of the country are hewing out substantial fortunes by marketing the white and red furs, sugar pines and hemlocks that cover the mountain slopes.

The climate is one of the features of the country and is greatly appreciated by Jerseyites. It never gets colder than twenty degrees and snow fell this winter for the first time in five years.

While the Blue Ledge camp has 100 men at present, it frequently numbers 200. Mr. Slorah devised a plan to heat every house in it by steam from the power plant and by the same method supplies hot water to the families by a system of piping. When he first took hold of the position, his residence in the East caused him to feel the lack of telephones and in the past year he had the camp connected up on a circuit and a line stretched to Medford to facilitate the ordering of supplies. The merchants of Medford became interested in it and as a result they are now soliciting subscriptions with a view to installing an exchange in the city.

Mr. Slorah will remain in Plainfield for the next two weeks and will then start West in order to be at the Blue Ledge by April 1.

WOMAN DROWNS FROM BARGE.

Anna Warrell, wife of Captain Warrell, was drowned yesterday by falling from a Lackawanna Railroad coal barge, of which her husband had command, at Fourteenth street, Hoboken. Captain Warrell, his wife and daughter returned to the barge from a visit to New York and he went into the cabin with the child, leaving the woman to follow. As she did not appear he put his men to work with grappling irons. The body was recovered in about fifteen minutes.

MR. WRIGHT ASKS FOR JOB.

Democratic Assemblyman Petitions Governor Fort to Name Him on Public Utility Board.

Edward H. Wright, Jr., of Newark, Democrat, and an Assemblyman last year, has made formal application to Governor Fort to be named one of the four commissioners provided for in public utilities control legislation which is expected to be enacted by the Legislature. While in the Assembly he introduced and fought to passage the original Public Utility law, under which the present Railroad Commission is operating, and he therefore regards himself as a logical candidate for membership in the proposed new commission.

"Individual responsibility for the existence of the present Railroad Commission lies on my shoulders," he has written to the Governor. "At the time the bill was pending I could have stayed the passage of it by raising my hand, but I gave the people the best legislation I could get at that time. I was the first one to advocate that class of legislation. When my bill was defeated and the Senate substitute came up I held out for such a bill as you and Senator Colby are advocating today. I know of no one who could justly oppose my candidacy, and I am of the opinion that you believe in rewarding the honest efforts of decent men, no matter what their politics are.

"No one after watching Commissioner Whiting's admirable work wants him reappointed more than myself, but I feel sure that if you thought the individual qualifications of any two candidates merited your favorable consideration, you would not let the question of political patronage or the fact that they came from the same county mitigate against either of them."

BUY OIL OF COMPETITORS.

Lockhart Brothers, Standard Stockholders, Think Their Own Gasolene Is Too Costly.

Pittsburg, Pa., Mar. 9.—The Standard Oil Company has protested to some of its stockholders for buying gasolene from competitive concerns. One of the prominent cases was that of the members of the Lockhart family. Charles Lockhart, founder of an estate estimated at $125,000,000, made his money in Standard Oil and the estate is one of the largest bond and stock-holders.

J. Marshall Lockhart and James Lockhart are both owners of automobiles, as is also Lee Mason, their brother-in-law. Agents of the Standard Oil Company ascertained they were buying gasolene from the Waverly Oil Company, a small independent concern with a plant adjoining that of the Atlantic Refining Company. The Standard inspector remonstrated with the Lockharts and called attention to the fact that, as holders of large blocks of stock, they were setting a bad example in patronizing a competitor. The Lockhart brothers are quoted as telling the Standard agent that as soon as the Standard could meet the price of the concern they were buying from, which is two cents a gallon below the Standard price, they would consider their product favorably.

Governor to Be Guest.

Governor Fort and former Governor Stokes will be among the guests at a dinner to be given for Colonel Charles W. Fuller, of Bayonne, at Opera House Hall, on April 23.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The rains of the past few days have made trouble for residents along Bonegut Brook, which is greatly swollen and has flooded the cellars. At the last meeting of the Borough Council, G. Sumner Smith called the attention of the borough fathers to the damage being done by this brook, stating that it was necessary for him to have his cellar bailed out with regular frequency. Within the past few days, the water has found its way into the cellars of several abutting property owners. A committee of the Council, composed of Councilmen Apgar, Berkheiser and Churchill, has been appointed to investigate the matter and will report the conditions at the next Council meeting, after which steps will be taken by the borough to correct the damage being done by the overflowing of the brook.

Charles E. Tinsman has purchased fifteen acres of land at the corner of Washington avenue and Greenbrook road, the site of "The Old Curiosity Shop," part of the old Randolph farm. He will retain part of the property, a tract of five acres, where he will erect a house for himself. The remaining ten acres has been divided, and two plots of three acres each have been sold to two Plainfielders, who will build there during the summer. The remaining four acres will also be sold for building purposes.

Charles Robinson, the negro convicted on five distinct charges for abusing small boys in Dunellen, will be sentenced at the New Brunswick court Friday by Judge Booraem. A petition for leniency has been filed by about a score of residents of Dunellen. W. S. Angleman, Esq., of Plainfield, is attorney for Robinson.

The new Sunday-school books recently purchased for the Methodist church library, were put in circulation yesterday for the first, and were in great demand. There are about eighty new books.

A union baptism service was held at the New Market Baptist church yesterday, in conjunction with the Seventh-Day Baptist church. Special music was a feature of the service.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The local school is as safe a building as any shoolhouse in the State, and not a fire trap as stated in another paper Saturday afternoon. The building is modern, with wide stairs and halls. All its doors open on the outside. There are fire escapes on the building and regular fire drills have been held for a number of years. The building has been emptied of pupils at drills in less than two minutes.

Willie Deegan, who has again taken charge of his hotel, expects to remain a boniface this year, having decided not to play professional baseball.

Mrs. Edward D. Johnston led the meeting of the B. Y. P. U. and Port Watch Societies held last night in the parlors of the church.

The Farther Lights Society of the Baptist church held its monthly meeting yesterday afternoon in the church.

The weekly meeting of the Epworth League was held last night in the class rooms of the Methodist church.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Paff, Sr., entertained friends from out of town yesterday.

Mrs. Ferdinand Schmidt entertained relatives from out of town over Sunday.

Mrs. Edward L. Hand has returned from a visit with Newark friends.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

A birthday party was given at the home of Mrs. Lewis Randolph in honor of their only daughter Elma's fifth birthday on Friday, March 6. These were present: George Bunting, Miss Elma Randolph, Mrs. G. Bunting, Mrs. R. B. Manning, Mrs. David Bigley, Miss Therest Brundage, Miss Myrtle Randolph, Miss Gertrude Bunting, Miss Theresa Bohl, Miss Loretta Bohl, Beatrice H. Attlee, Miss Florence Winters, Miss Marion Bigley, Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Randolph, Albert Randolph and Helen Bunting.

The prayer meeting will be held as usual tomorrow night. Miss Florence Johnson will take part, and the pastor will speak.

Mrs. Albert Soper, who has been staying in the village for a few days with relatives, has returned to Jersey City.

Editor Had Money to Burn.

A man giving his name as John Curlestone was arrested in Paterson yesterday by the police at the Susquehanna Railroad station for giving money away. The prisoner, who was under the influence of liquor, gave his home as Hoboken, but it was learned that he was an editor of a Morris County weekly. This report was not believed at first on account of the free-handed disposal of money, but it was verified later.

ADVISES PRAYER IN SEARCH FOR HUSBAND.

Bishop of Buffalo County Urges Spinsters of Catholic Parishes to Wed.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 9.—As a solution to the problem of the great unwed, the Right Rev. Charles Henry Colton, Bishop of Buffalo, has recommended all the unmarried spinsters of marriageable age under his spiritual guidance to pray for suitable partners.

The recommendation is contained in a circular letter addressed to all the rectors of parishes and in the diocese and was read in all the Roman Catholic churches in Buffalo at all the services yesterday.

It came at as a conclusion to a matter relative to the new marriage laws of the church as recently prescribed by His Holiness Pope Pius and created a profound sensation.

The Bishop impressed on all the unwed of marriageable age that it was the sacred duty of the greater part of the human race to marry, and he asked that they take the matter into serious consideration, and conscientiously consider it. The only exception made by the Bishop in his letter were those who contemplated entering holy orders.

NEW BOROUGH HALL'S DOORS OPEN INWARD.

Alleged Faulty Construction of Staten Island Building to Come Before Improvement Board.

Collinswood's catastrophe, wherein nearly two hundred school children lost their lives, has brought up the question of alleged faulty construction of the new Borough Hall of Staten Island. At the next meeting of the Board of Public Improvements Alderman John J. Collins will bring to its attention the fact that the Borough Hall at St. George, where hundreds of employes are quartered, has doors which open inward.

Borough Hall is three stories in height, and in the event of fire and a panic the doors opening inward might result in loss of life. Recently, when the city conducted a sale of property for unpaid taxes and assessments, hundreds of men, women and children crowded the building and blocked the doorways and halls.

DISEASES CLOSE SCHOOLS.

Diphtheria, Scarlet Fever and Measles Afflict Very Many Pupils in Cranford.

Owing to the existence of many cases of contagious diseases the Cranford public schools were closed by the Board of Education Friday for an indefinite period.

There are four cases of diphtheria, three cases of scarlet fever and more than forty cases of measles among the schaal children. One death from diphtheria occurred yesterday. Owing to the large number of cases of measles the attendance in the schools has fallen off considerably. There is hardly a neighborhood that is not affected by the disease. The schools will not be opened until conditions improve.

Only Daylight Saloons.

The Excise Board of Lincoln, Neb., has adopted a rule providing for all daylight saloons, beginning at the new municipal year in May. The hours for opening and closing are 7 a. m. and 7 p. m., and the license fee is to be $1,500.

BRILLIANTS.

It is an awkward thing to play with souls,
And matter enough to save one's own.
—Browning.

One by one thy duties wait thee;
Let thy whole strength go to each
Let no future dreams elate thee,
Learn thou first what these can teach.
—Adelaide A. Proctor.

Loveliest of lovely things are they,
On earth, that soonest pass away.
The rose that lives its little hour
Is prized beyond the sculptured flower,
Even love, long tried and cherished long,
Becomes more tender and more strong,
At thought of that insatiate grave
From which its yearnings connot save —Bryant.

Lord who art merciful as well as just,
Incline thine ear to me, as child of dust;
Not what I would, O Lord! I offer thee,
Alas! but what I can.
Father almighty, who hast made me man
And bade me look to heaven, for thou are there,
Accept my sacrifice and humble prayer;
Four things which are not in thy treasury
I lay before thee, Lord, with this petition—
My nothingness, my wants,
My sins and my contrition.
—From the Persian.

SPORTING NOTES.

Alfred Vanderbilt is selecting trotters for use on the Venture coach in England. He bought fifteen recently.

Jack Thoney, for whose release the Boston Americans have paid $8,500, was the leading slugger of the Eastern league.

Terry McGovern now claims the distinction of giving the name of "Tommy Burns" to our illustrious champion heavyweight.

The 697 active tracks in membership of the American Trotting Association held 719 meetings last year, offering $2,150,915 in purse money.

Richard Cröker has nominated the three-year-old filly Rhodora, his entry for the classic races for three-year-olds in England, for the Ascot Gold cup, one of the great races of England for mature horses.

THINGS THERTRICAL.

Harry B. Smith is writing a new show to be called "The Air King."

"The Witching Hour" is to be produced in London, and "Arizona" in Berlin.

In Louis Mann's new play he will have a serious charactre just touched with humor.

An English production called "The Girls of Gothenburg," is to be sent to this country in the spring.

An association of dramatic play agents has been formed which will control the rights of 500 plays.

Tim Murphy is said to be meeting with success in Frederick Paulding's comedy, "Two Men and a Girl."

THE ROYAL BOX.

The kaiserin does not wear birds, but most of her hats are trimmed with ostrich plumes.

Her majesty Queen Alexandra has lately conceived a great liking for fencing and is now taking lessons from one of the best known fencing masters in London.

Prince Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden, who by the death of King Oscar has become crown prince, is an ardent sportsman and loses no opportunity to further the interests of the ancient Norse athletic games.

The dowager Queen Margherita of Italy has just sold all her horses and carriages and transformed her stables for use by motor cars only. This is the first royal household in Europe to make so sweeping a change.

ANIMAL TALES.

Harlan W. Kingsbury, of Sterling, Mass., saw a fox carry off his tomcat one night recently. He says that the cat put up a good fight, but that the fox was too much for it.

Willis Clark of Marion, O., offers to bet $100 that his Maltese cat can catch a fox in a straightaway run before he crosses a hundred acre field after the fox has a three minute start.

Judge Proctor, of Montgomery county, Mich., offers to trade his dog, which, he says, will dig bait for fishing, for the hen of Lawyer I. B. Miller, of Youngstown, O., which is said to be fond of chewing tobacco.

In Training.

Clergyman—So this is your boy, is it, Mrs. Jones?

Mrs. Jones—Yes,sir. Step up and give the gentleman your right hand, Tommy.

Mr. Jones (the heavyweight champion)—'Ere stop it, spoilin' the kid. Remember what I told you, sonny—always lead off with your left!—London Opinion.

Good Medicine.

"You are lots thinner than you used to be."

"Yes, indeed, I am."

"Taking an obesity cure?"

"Yes; we've stopped housekeeping and gone to boarding."—Houston Post.

TO OBLIGE A LADY

By ARMIGER BARCLAY

(Copyright.)

Eileen Grant, "the beauty of the north," as the society papers called her, stood on the broad steps of the Hydro, while Lord St. Garth, a little way off in his auto, sat watching her as she read and reread the telegram she was holding.

He was not yet acquainted with the lady, but he looked forward to a promise made him by her friend, Mrs. Charteris, to present him that evening. In the meantime all he could do was to admire her and wonder on the frown on her distractingly pretty face.

"I won't!" exclaimed Eileen under her breath, crumpling up the telegram. "Yes, I will!" she amended with sudden inspiration as her eyes fell on the waiting car. "In a place like this he'll imagine I'm a friend of the people it belongs to. It's the only way of getting there and back by dinner time. Yes, I'll chance it!" she whispered desperately.

She gave a cautious glance over her shoulder. Mrs. Charteris was out of sight. Throwing discretion to the winds she walked quickly up to the car.

"How long will it take you to drive me to Ottersham?" she asked, getting in.

The barefaced appropriation of his car almost took St. Garth's breath away. For a moment he was speechless. Then the humor of the situation came home to him and restored his equanimity.

"It depends," he answered good-humoredly. "If you'll chance being held up—"

"Oh, I'll risk anything!" she interrupted. "Only get me there by lunch time!"

Her eagerness to be off was infectious. St. Garth felt it. Besides, he was ready enough for an adventure in such pleasant company. He forgot all about the man he was waiting for.

Eileen sank back with a sigh of relief. She credited herself with having bluffed the driver, and the consequences of her recklessness did not disturb her greatly. The man might get into trouble, but she promised herself to make that up to him with a generous tip. All she thought of now was to get home in time to put an end to a situation that had grown intolerable to her. She spread out the crumpled telegram and read it once more. "Manby coming to-night about announcement for Morning Post. Expect you to meet him," it ran.

"I won't! I won't! I won't!" she muttered through set teeth. "I won't be married to a man I detest just because he's rich! I'll do anything rather than. I'll say I'm married already! Or, at least, engaged! I'll—" She relapsed into troubled meditation.

St. Garth went fast. Abducting a pretty woman at her own request was a novelty that tickled his fancy. But while it amused, it puzzled him. What on earth, he asked himself, could have happened to this attractive girl to account for her mad-cap act of piracy?

Her whole mind was concentrated on a means of escape from the prospect of a distasteful marriage.

"If only I could make them believe I'm already engaged!" she mused desperately. "But to whom?"

Her hand lay idly on the edge of the door. Abstractedly it slid into the pocket of the upholstery below. Quite unconsciously her fingers closed upon an envelope within it and drew it forth. It was addressed to the Viscount St. Garth. The words meant nothing to her—nothing but an unfamiliar name, for Mrs. Charteris had not yet mentioned it. Suddenly she caught her breath.

"Lord St. Garth?" she asked herself in an awed whisper. "Why not? He'll never know! And it will give me time!"

Her pretty brows smoothed out. She restored the envelope to its pocket and turned her attention to the progress of the car.

"I want you to take me to the Grange," she commanded. "Do you know it?"

"By name," returned St. Garth. "It's the Grants place, isn't it? I'm always reading about the beautiful Miss Grant in the papers." Something impelled him to add: "Are you her lady's maid?"

Eileen flushed hotly, but maintained a dignified silence. How could he, with a voice and manner so much above his station, be guilty of such a mistake?

There was silence between them while the car passed through the lodge gates, swept up the drive and stopped at the entrance to the Grange. Eileen got out.

"You can take the car to the stables," she said with a touch of hauteur. "I shan't want you till four o'clock. See that they give you some lunch in the servants' hall."

The last words were in the nature of a snub for his presumption in confounding her with a lady's maid. She turned her back and entered the house.

"This beats everything!" chuckled St. Garth as he drove off. "But I'll see it out for the fun of the thing."

His next half hour was full of new experiences. At the stables he underwent a reception that was so sociable as to be disconcerting; and when, in the servants' hall, under the scrutiny of several young women, his name was requested for the purpose of formal introduction, he very nearly gave himself away. Only just in time did he remember to call himself John Percival—his first two Christian names—and under this incognito he made the acquaintance of half a dozen new friends.

With the meal came the butler, now free from attendance on his betters. He wore an air of suppressed excitement, patent to everybody but St. Garth, who was too occupied with the novelty of his position to notice it.

"Any noos, Mr. Lawrence?" inquired the cook curiously.

"Ah!" exclaimed the butler winking at St. Garth. "I 'ave the pleasure to inform you of a piece of family noos as will gratify you one an a.l. It's the breakin' off of Miss Eileen's engagement to Mr. Manby—"

"No!" was the general ejaculation.

"You're certain sure?" queried the cook incredulously.

"Mrs. Wall, does anythin' ever escape me—inside the door or hout?" reproved the butler. "The engagement, I say, is broke off. And why? Because our young lady 'as bettered 'erself by acceptin' a more temptin' hoffer—" he bowed across the table to the guest—"from our friend's noble guv'nor, Lord St. Garth!"

John Percival, Viscount St. Garth, dropped his knife and fork into his plate with a startling crash!

Shortly after four St. Garth was on his way back to the Hydro with the incomprehensible young lady who had professed to be engaged to himself. He was dumbfounded. He had looked at her once or twice hoping to gather from her face some clue to her strange conduct, but all he read there was an irritating calmness of demeanor.

As Eileen, in a cloud of white lace and tulle, came downstairs the strains of the waltz told her that the dance had already commenced. Mrs. Charteris, waiting for her in the hall, came forward with a little rush.

"Come along, Eileen, I want to introduce you to somebody," she said, and began piloting Eileen among the groups gathered round the ballroom doors. "Here he is!"

Eileen was inattentive. Reaction had followed her morning's escapade. She did not look up as the man indicated came towards them.

"Lord St. Garth, let me introduce you to Miss Grant."

Mrs. Charteris prattled on conventionally. Eileen did not hear a word. She was staring blankly into the face of the man whose car she had commandeered, and, dreadful thought, whose name she had appropriated as that of her affianced husband!

"We're engaged, are we not?" teased St. Garth, pausing long enough to complete Eileen's consternation. "For all your waltzes," he added.

Eileen knew that she was found out. She was being laughed at, and she dared not resent it. She allowed him to appropriate her programme, and remained impotent while he scribbled his name across the virgin surface.

"I thing I deserve the whole list," he declared as he led her among the dancers.

All through the waltz Eileen struggled to regain her composure, and at the first pause began an incoherent string of excuses and apologies. But St. Garth cut her short.

"Oh, I don't mind a bit," he interrupted, willfully misunderstanding her. "They did me jolly well in the servants' hall. What fun it will be when they see me next time!"

"Next time!" echoed Eileen in alarm.

"Next week, I mean," corrected St. Garth mischievously. "When you introduce me to your people."

Eileen gasped in mingled fear and stupefaction.

"Please, please take me out!" she implored.

St. Garth conducted her to a quiet corner of the hall. "Why did you do it?" he asked.

Then she poured out the agonized confession that could no longer be held back. She went into reasons; urged the temptation of a name on an envelope; she pleaded expediency; she expressed contrition; she was almost reduced to tears, and when her humiliating admissions came to an end she looked imploringly at St. Garth hoping for forgiveness, but not daring to expect it.

"You're in a tight place," said he judicially.

Eileen nodded dolefully.

"What about me?" he went on. "I'm in a hole as well—compromised!"

Eileen looked penitent.

"And unless you promise to take my advice I can't get you—or myself—out of the mess."

"I'll promise—anything!" she faltered.

"Come on, them," said St. Garth, rising. He led the way to the deserted writing room and opened a book of telegraph forms.

"Will you write it for me?" he asked.

Eileen sat down with a pencil in her trembling fingers.

"'To Mrs. Grant, the Grange, Ottersham,'" dictated St. Garth.

Eileen caught her breath.

"Go on," he ordered, and she wrote the words.

"'Percival and I motoring down tomorrow. Wedding arranged for next month!' Now sign it."

"O—h, I can't!" she cried weakly.

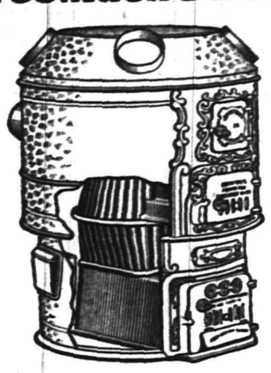
"You must. You can't get out of it," he protested. "You took my car, you've taken my name, and now, by George, you've got to take me as well!"

Eileen wavered between inclination and pride.

"I think I'd better indorse this—first!" she murmured shyly, her face all rosy as she signed the telegram.

"Great Scot! Won't old Lawrence have a fit when he sees me!" laughed St. Garth as he kissed her.

Did You Burn Too Much Coal?



It's cheaper to have a good furnace, to say nothing of the comfort. The best furnace is the

By KATE AND VIRGIL D. BOYLES

(Copyright by A. C. McClurg & Co., 1907.)

"My dear fellow," said the judge, rising and laying his hand on Langford's big shoulder, "do you really want to undertake this?"

"I certainly do."

"Then I will give you the warrant, gladly. You are the one man in the state to do it—unless I except the gallant little deputy marshal. You know the danger. I admire your grit, my boy. Get him if you can, but take care of yourself. Your life is worth so much more than his. Who will you take with you?"

"Munson, of course. He will go in spite of the devil, and he's the best man I know for anything like this. Then I thought of taking the deputy-sheriff. He's been true blue all along, and has done the very best possible under the conditions.'

"Very good. Take Johnson, too. He'll be glad to go. He's the pluckiest little fighter in the world,—not a cowardly hair in his head."

So it was agreed, and the next morning, bright and early, the little posse, reinforced by others who had earnestly solicited the privilege of going along, started out on its journey. The rains were over, but the roads were heavy. In many places, they were forced to walk their mounts. No one but the initiated know what gumbo mud means. Until they took to the hills, the horses could scarcely lift their feet, so great would be the weight of the sticky black earth which clung in immense chunks to their hoofs. When they struck the hills, it was better and they pressed forward rapidly. Once only the sheriff had asserted that he had run across the famous outlaw. Black had resisted savagely and had escaped, sending back the bold taunt that he would never be taken alive. Such a message might mean death to some of the plucky posse now making for the old-time haunts of the desperado.

The sun struggled from behind rain-exhausted clouds, and a rollicking wind blew up. The clouds skurried away toward the horizon.

At White river ford, the men looked at each other in mute inquiry. The stream was a raging torrent. It was swollen until it was half again its ordinary width. The usually placid waters were rushing and twisting into whirlpool-like rapids.

"What now?" asked Baker, the deputy-sheriff.

"I'm thinkin' this here little pleasure party'll have to be postponed," vouchsafed one of the volunteers, nodding his head wisely.

"We'll sure have to wait for the cloud-burst to run out," agreed another.

"Why, we can swim that all right," put in Langford, rallying from his momentary set-back and riding his mount to the very edge of the swirling water.

"Hold on a minute there, Boss," cried Jim. "Don't be rash now. What's the census of 'pinion o' this here company? Shall we resk the ford or shall we not?"

"Why, Jim," said Paul, a laugh in his blue eyes, "are you afraid? What's come over you?"

"Nothin'. I ain't no coward neither, and ef you wasn't the Boss I'd show you. I was just a thinkin' o'—somebody who'd care—that's all."

Just for a moment a far-away look came into the young ranchman's eyes. Then he straightened himself in his saddle.

"I, for one, am going to see this thing through," he said, tersely. "What do you say, Johnson?"

"I never for one minute calculated on doing a thing else," replied the deputy-marshal, who had been standing somewhat apart awaiting the end of the controversy, with a good-humored smile in his twinkling blue eyes.

Paul urged Sade into the water. He was followed unhesitatingly by Munson, Johnson, and Baker. The others held back, and finally, after a shoft consultation, wheeled and retraced their steps.

"I ain't no coward, neither," muttered one, as he rode away, "but I plumb don't see no sense in bein' drowned. I'd ruther be killed a roundin' up Jesse.'

The horses which had made the initial plunge were already in water up to their breasts. The current had an ominous rush to it.

"I don't care. I didn't mean to hold over and let our quarry get wind of this affair,' cried Langford over his shoulder. "Keep your rifles dry, boys!"

Suddenly, without warning, Sade stepped into a hole and lost her balance for a moment. She struggled gallantly and recovered herself, yet it weakened her. It was not long before all the horses were compelled to swim, and the force of the current immediately began driving them down stream. She was a plucky little cow pony and loved her master, but it was about all she could do to keep from going under, let alone making much headway against the tremendous pressure of the current. Langford's danger was grave.

"Steady, my girl!" he encouraged. He drew his feet free of the stirrups so that, if she went under, he would be ready to try it alone. Poor Sade! He should hate to lose her. If he released her now and struck off by himself, she might make it. He had never known White river to run so sullenly and strongly; it would be almost impossible for a man to breast it. And there was Mary—he could never go back to her and claim her for his own until he could bring Black back, too, to suffer for her father's wrongs.

At that moment, Sade gave a little convulsive shudder and the water rolled over her head. Langford slipped from the saddle, but in the instant of contact with the pushing current, his rifle was jerked violently from his hand and sank out of sight. With no time for vain regrets, he struck out for the shore. The struggle was tremendous. He was buffeted and beaten, and borne farther down the stream. More than once in the endeavor to strike too squarely across, his head went under; but he was a strong swimmer, and soon scrambling up the bank some distance below the ford, he turned and sent a resonant hail to his comrades. They responded lustily. He had been the only one unhorsed. He threw himself face downward to cough up some of the water he had been compelled to swallow, and Munson, running up, began slapping him vigorously upon the back. He desisted only to run swiftly along the bank.

"Good for you," Jim cried approvingly, assisting Langford's spent horse up the bank. Coming up to the party where Langford still stretched out full length, Sade rubbed her nose inquiringly over the big shoulders lying so low, and whinnied softly.

"Hello there!" cried Paul, springing excitedly to his feet. "Where'd you come from? Thought you had crossed the bar. Now I'll just borrow a gun from one of you fellows and we'll be getting along. Better my rifle than my horse at this stage of the game, anyway."

The little party pushed on. The longer half of their journey was still before them. On the whole, perhaps, it was better the crowd had split. There was more unity of purpose among those who were left. The sun was getting hot, and Langford's clothes dried rapidly.

Arrived at the entrance of the cross ravine which Williston had once sought out, the four men rode their horses safely through its length. The waters of the June rise had receded and the outlaw's presumably deserted holding was once more a peninsula. The wooded section in the near distance lay green, cool and innocent-looking in the late summer sun. The sands between stretched out hot in the white glare. From the gulch covert, the wiry marshal rode first. His face bore its wonted expression of good-humored alertness, but there was an inscrutable glint in his eyes that might have found place there because of a sure realization of the hazard of the situation and of his accepting it. Langford followed him quickly, and Munson and Baker were not far behind. They trotted breezily across the open in a bunch, without words. Where the indistinct trail to the house slipped into the wooded enclosure they paused. Was the desperado at last really rounded up so that he must either submit quickly or turn at bay? It was so still. Spots of sunlight had filtered through the foliage and flecked the pathway. Insects flitted about. Bumble bees droned. Butterflies hovered over the snow-on-the-mountain. A tutrle dove mourned. A snake glided sinuously through the grass. Peering down the warm, shaded interior, one might almost imagine one was in the heart of an ancient wood. The drowsy suggestions of solitude crept in upon the sensibilities of all the men and filled them with vague doubts. If this was the haunt of a man, a careless, sordid man, would this place which knew him breathe forth so sweet, still, and undisturbed a peace

Langford first shook himself free of the haunting fear of a deserted hearthstone.

"I'd stake my all on my belief that he's there," he said, in a low voice. "Now listen, boys. Johnson and I will ride to the house and make the arrest, providing he doesn't give us the slip. Baker, you and Jim will remain here in ambush in case he does. He's bound to come this way to reach the mainland. Ready, Johnson?"

"Not ef the court knows herself, and I think she do. Me and Johnson will do that there little arrestin' job and the boss he'll stay here in the ambush. Ef anybody's a countin' on my totin' the boss's openwork body back to Mary Williston, it's high time he was a losin' the count, for I ain't goin' to do it."

He guided his horse straight into the path.

"But, Jim," expostulated Langford, laying a detaining hand on the cowboy's shoulder, "as for danger, there's every bit as much—and more—here. Do you think Jesse Black will tamely sit down and wait for us to come up and nab him? I think he'll run."

"Then why are you a shirkin', ef this is the worst spot o' all? You ain't no coward, boss, leastways you never was. Why don't you stay by it? That's what I'd like to know."

Johnson grinned appreciatively.

"Well, there's always the supposition that he may not see us until we ride into his clearing," admitted Langford. "Of course, then—it's too late."

Jim blocked the way.

"I'm an ornery, no-'count cowboy with no one in this hull world to know or care what becomes o' me. There ain't no one to care but me, and I can't say I'm a hurtin' myself any a carin'! You just wait till I screech, will you?"

"Jim," said Langford, huskily, "you go back and behave yourself. I'm the boss—not you. You've got to obey orders. You've sassed me long enough. You get back, now!"

"Tell Mary, ef I come back a dead-er," said Jim, "that women are s'perfluous critters, but I forgive her. She can't help bein' a woman."

He gave his horse a dig with his knee and the animal bounded briskly forward.

"Jim! You fool boy! Come back!" cried Langford, plunging after him.

Johnson shrugged his shoulders and wheeled his horse into clever concealment on one side of the path.

"Let the fool kids go," he advised, dryly. "I'm a lookin' for Jess to run, anyway."

The two men rode boldly up toward the house. It seemed deserted. Weeds were growing around the door-stoop, and crowding thickly up to the front windows. A spider's silver web gleamed from casing to panel of the warped and weather-stained door. The windows were blurred with the tricklings of rain through seasons of dust. Everything appeared unkempt, forlorn, desolate.

There was a sound from the rear. It carried a stealthy significance. A man leaped from the protection of the cabin and was seen running toward the barn. He was heavily armed.

"Stop that, Black!" yelled Langford, authoritatively. "We are going to take you, dead or alive—you'd better give yourself up! It will be better for you."

The man answered nothing.

"Wing him with you rifle, Jim, before he gets to the barn," said Paul quickly.

The shot went wild. Black wrenched the door open, sprang upon the already bridled horse and made a bold dash for the farther wood—and not in the direction where determined men waited in ambush. What did it mean. As his horse cleared the stable, he turned and shot a vindictive challenge to meet his pursuers.

"You won't take me alive—and dead, I won't go alone!"

He plunged forward in a northerly direction. Dimly he could be seen through the underbrush; but plainly could be heard the crackling of branches and the snapping of twigs as his horse whipped through the low-lying foliage. Was there, then, another way to the mainland—other than the one over which Johnson and Baker kept guard? How could it be? How Langford longed for his good rifle and its carrying power. But he knew how to use a pistol, too. Both men sent menacing shots after the fugitive. Langford could not account for the strange direction. The only solution was that Black was leading his pursuers a chase through the woods, hoping to decoy them so deeply into the interior that he might, turning suddenly and straightly, gain time for his desperate sprint across the exposed stretch of sand. If this were true, Baker and Johnson would take care of him there.

Black returned the fire vengefully. A bullet scraped his horse's flank. His hat was shot from his head. He turned savagely in his saddle with a yell of defiance.

"You'll never take me alive!"

The fusillade was furious, but the trees and branches proved Black's friends. It was impossible to judge one's aim aright. His horse staggered. Another bullet sang and purred through the foliage, and the horse fell.

"My God, Jim!" cried Langford. "My cartridges are out! Give me your gun!"

For answer, Jim sent another bullet whistling forward. Black, rising from his fallen horse, fell back.

"I got him!" yelled Jim, exultantly. He spurred forward.

"Careful, Jim!" warned Langford. "He may be 'playing 'possum,' you know."

"You stay where you are," cried Jim. "You ain't got no gun. Stay back, you fool boss!"

Langford laughed a little.

"You're the fool boy, Jim," he said. "I'll go without a gun if you won't give me yours."

They rode cautiously up to the prostrate figure. It was lying face downward, one arm outstretched on the body of the dead horse, the other crumpled under the man's breast. Blood oozed from under his shoulder.

"He's done for," said Jim, in a low voice. In the presence of death all hatred had gone from him. The man apparently had paid all he could of his debts on earth. The body lying there so low was the body of a real man. What ever his crimes, he had been a fine type of physical manhood. He had never cringed. He had died like a man, fighting to the last.

Jim slowly and thoughtfully slipped his revolver into its holster and dismounted. Langford, too, sprang lightly from his saddle.

Black had been waiting for this. His trained ear had no sooner caught the soft rubbing sound of the pistol slipping into its leathern case than he leaped to his feet and stretched out the crumpled arm with its deadly weapon pointing straight at the heart of Langford of the Three Bars.

"Now, damn you, we're quits!" he cried, hoarsely.

There was not time for Jim to draw, but, agile as a cat, he threw himself against Black's arm and the bullet went wild. For a moment the advantage was his, and he wrested the weapon from Black's hand. It fell to the ground. The two men grappled. The struggle was short and fierce. Each strove with all the strength of his concentrated hate to keep the other's hand from his belt.

When the feet of the wrestlers left the fallen weapon free, Langford, who had been waiting for this opportunity, sprang forward and seized it with a thrill of satisfaction. Command of the situation was once more his. But the revolver was empty, and he turned to throw himself into the struggle empty-handed. Jim would thus be given a chance to draw.

At that moment Black twisted his arm free and his hand dropped like a flash to his belt, where there was a revolver that was loaded. Jim hugged him closely, but it was of no use. The bullet tore its cruel way through his side. His arms relaxed their hold—he slipped—slowly—down—down. Black shook himself from of him impatiently and wheeled to meet his great enemy.

"Quits at last!" he said, with an ugly smile.

Quits indeed! For Jim, raising himself slightly, was able to draw at last; and even as he spoke, the outlaw fell.

"Jim, my boy," said Langford, huskily. He was kneeling, Jim's head in his arms.

"Well, boss," said Jim, trying to smile. His eyes were clear.

"It was my affair, Jim, you ought not to have done it," said Langford, brokenly.

"It's all right—boss—don't you worry—I saw you—in the hall that night. You are—the boss. Tell Mary so. Tell her I was—glad—to go—so you could go to her—and it would be—all right. She—loves you—boss—you needn't be afraid."

"Jim, I cannot bear it; I must go in your stead."

"To Mary—yes." His voice sank lower and lower. An added paleness stole over his face, but his eyes looked into Langford's serenely, almost happily.

"Go—to Mary in my stead—boss," whispered. "Tell her Jim gave his boss—to her—when he had to go—I used to think it was 'Mouse-hair'—I am glad it is—Mary—tell her good-bye—tell her the Three Bars wouldn't be the same to Jim with a woman in it anyway—tell her— —"

And with a sigh Jim died.

NEW BRUNSWICK GIRLS LOSE TO P.H.S. 39-2

Outclassed in every department of the game, the girls' basketball team of the New Brunswick High School could only score two points against the Plainfield High School girls in a one-sided basketball game at the High School gymnasium Saturday afternoon. The final score was 39-2. The visitors made their points from the foul line, Miss Carson and Miss Simms netting the ball in the second half, after fouls had been called on the Plainfielders.

The New Brunswick girls could not score in the first half, when the P. H. S. five rolled up twenty-seven points, the former getting seven baskets and a foul, and the latter six baskets. A feature of the game was the excellent work of the local team's guards, Miss Crampton and Miss Andrews, keeping the ball well out of the vicinity of the visitors' basket during the entire game.

The New Brunswick girls made their two points in the second half, while Miss Fleming was making four more baskets and a foul, and Miss Moodey scored a basket and a foul. The game was witnessed by a big delegation of high school pupils. The summaries:

P. H. S.—Miss Barbara Fleming and Miss Harriet Moodey, forwards; Miss Dorothy Merrill, centre; Miss Louise Andrews and Miss Esther Crampton, guards. N. B. H. S.—The Misses Carson and Simms, forwards; Miss Reynolds, centre; Miss Stout and Miss Felter, guards. Field goals: Miss Fleming, 11; Miss Moodey, 7; goals from fouls, Miss Fleming, 2; Miss Moodey. Referee, Charles B. Morse. Fifteen minute halves.

HOLY CROSS SECONDS WON FROM P. H. S. SCRUBS.

The second team of the Holy Cross Club defeated a picked team from the Plainfield High School at the Holy Cross parish house gymnasium Saturday afternoon by a score of 32-22. The game was well played and closely contested, though the church five kept a small lead most of the time. The lineups and summaries:

Holy Cross Seconds—Coyle and Moran, forwards; Nash, centre; Stine and R. Vail, guards. P. H. S. Scrubs—Clark and Runyon, forwards; I. Vail, centre; Bristol and Berne, guards. Field goals: Coyle, 5; I. Vail, 5; Moran, 4; R. Vail, 4; Runyon, 4; Clark, 2; Stine, 2; Nash. Twenty minute halves.

Y. M. C. A. Five Won.

The Y. M. C. A. basketball five won from the Twenty-sixth Ward Y. M. C. A. team at New York, Saturday night, by a score of 25-22. The game was marked throughout by close guarding and brilliant shooting. At the end of the first half, the local five were in the lead 14-13, and maintained a lead of a few points throughout the game. When the teams met earlier in the season, in this city, the Plainfield five won bya big margin.

1742, and the prologue after the completion and collection of all the sections. The entire collection was referred to by Tennyson as "The Way of the Soul," and reflects his feelings, ranging from the storm of grief and agony of loss to the final sense of peace, predominating the last part. The final conviction is that "Immortal Love" is triumphant, and that the whole creation is moving to some Divine goal of blessedness.

The Bible as Literature.

Dr. Symonds began his series of sermon-lectures on "The Bible in the Twentieth Century" with an introductory talk at Grace church this morning at 10 o'clock. The church was well filled, mostly with women.

In taking up the discussion of his subject, Dr. Symonds said that divers points of view of the Bible yield rich results. The Bible is the same from age to age, but men's minds are constantly changing in their attitude toward things, constantly yielding great things previously undiscovered in the Word of God.

"I come not to destroy," said Jesus. It seemed as though He were destroying, but He was only drawing out that which had been obscured. The same may be said of the present, modern method of Bible study, and although men are somewhat disturbed about the new methods and the new spirit, it is development, not destroying, but impelling. New power, new light, new inspiration will come out of the spirit of the age in the final results.

Dr. Symonds sketched his outline for the week's lectures, before beginning upon the sub-topic, "The Bible As Literature," which will be concluded tomorrow. "Literature," he said, "is of two classes: That which is ephemeral and that which is permanent. Of these, only that which survives is true literature, for a book can only live because of its intrinsic worth. We must think of the Bible as a great National literature, just as we have English literature, French literature, or American literature. It discloses the spirit of the age; it is the expression of a wonderful people,—their contribution to the world. No other people had such a conception of God. The writers of the Bible gathered and expressed the spirit of their age in their writings.

"How does the Bible resemble other literature? It contains legal codes, which form a part of all national literature. It contains legendary as well as mythical writings. Greek and Roman mythology is helpful, and had its place in the training of the early races. In the childhood of a nation, there is a proper place for mythology. Then there is history in the Bible. Poetry, too, for the Psalms are veritable poems in themselves, even to the rhythm. Philosophy also may be found in the Hebrew literature—a practical application of the rule of God to life. In the New Testament, there is much valuable biography.

"I have only brought before you this morning the human element in the Bible. But everything that is good, everything that is stimulating, ennobling in literature, must come from the one Eternal God. Therefore we are not bemeaning the Bible to say that it is human.

"Christianity is the revelation of God through human life, so we may say that the Bible itself is an incarnation, revealing God through human means. Men surely have been extreme and one-sided, but this we may not denounce, because we know that all will come forth in true worth, and each book occupy its place in the great temple of truth."

DANGER FOUND IN EAST ORANGE SCHOOLS.

As a result of the investigation into East Orange school conditions by an official of the Board of Education of that city, several recommendations for correction of existing evils will be made following the trip through the schools Saturday morning of Mayor William Cardwell, Vernon L. Davey, Superintendent of Schools and other city officials.

It has been pointed out that the main entrance of the city High School has doors opening inward. This entrance is principally for teachers and visitors, as there are four exits for the pupils, two at each end of the big building in Winans street. Mr. Davey declared that the State and county authorities had allowed the doors to remain in their present position after an investigation showing the entrance and the exit were not for the general use of pupils.

Approaches to the fire escapes in the rear of the structure also open inward and the escapes are only iron ladders. Mr. Davey says use of the fire escapes was badly considered, owing to the ample width and fireproof condition of the four main exits. The fire escapes are said to be almost useless for emergency, as only one pupil can go down at a time.

At the old Elmwood school there are wooden stairways and no fire escapes. It is expected that the officials will insist on improvements there. An assembly is on the third floor for the children, and the State law requires fire escapes on all buildings more than two stories in height. The four exits are at widely separted points, and the officials say children could use any of them easily, as it is improbable a fire would reach all the exits in the same time.

RIVER VICTIM IDENTIFIED.

Body Taken from the Passaic in Newark Was That of Jane Murdoch, of Harrison.

Positive identification was made late last night in Nulting's Morgue, Newark, of the body of a woman which was found in the Passaic river at the foot of Lombardy street, Newark, as that of Jane Murdoch, a widow, about forty years old. She had been employed for the last two months as housekeeper for Emile Lhote, a widower, and his three children, at No. 425 William street, Harrison, N. J.

Raymond Lhote, eldest son of her employer, identified the body and the clothing. Several persons living in John street, Harrison, who did not give their names, also identified the body as Mrs. Murdoch. Beyond the fact that she is said to have friends in Harrison and a young son, the Lhotes know nothing about the woman. She had complained of illness for several days, and on Wednesday did not act as usual, and when she retired in the evening said she was very ill. On Thursday morning she was missing.

It is believed she left the house during the night, and being in poor physical condition and probably mentally upset wandered to the Passaic river docks or to the Clay street bridge approach, where a new bridge is being erected, and fell into the water.

BISHOP O'CONNOR ON NEW MARRIAGE LAWS

To make clear to the Roman Catholics of the diocese of Newark the new requirements for lawful marriage by members of that faith, Bishop John J. O'Connor, of the diocese, yesterday sent to every pastor in his jurisdiction a formal letter detailing the new regulations which will be operative on and after Easter Sunday. The Bishop at the same time constituted every regularly appointed assistant priest in the several parishes a proper officiating priest for marriages within the several parishes, making it compulsory, however, for the assisting priests to obtain permission from the pastor or rector of a parish before officiating.

Bishop O'Connor announces that the Catholic church will not recognize any engagement of marriage which is not in writing, signed by the two parties and two witnesses as well. Oral announcements of engagements will not be considered. All marriages of Catholic to Catholic or Catholic to non-Catholic must be performed before a regularly constituted priest, the Bishop emphasized in his formal letter. Marriages performed by any other authority, magistrates, non-Catholic clergyman or civil authority, will be held invalid as well as unlawful. The wedding must be witnessed by two persons and priests are forbidden to marry outside of their own parishes, even though the parties to the marriage are members of their parishes, without the formal consent of the priest in whose parish this wedding is performed. Any wedding performed without this permission having first been obtained, according to the Bishop's orders, will be considered invalid.

It is also urged that parties to be married must plight their troth in the parish where one has a home, or at least a month's residence, prior to the ceremony. None of the former impediments to marriages is removed.

BOY HIRES FATHER TO WORK FOR HIM.

Fifteen-Year-Old Merchant Also Employs Big Brother While He Attends Business College.

St. Louis, Mo., March 9.—McKinley Edmiston, fifteen years old, a student at a St. Louis business college, knows what it is like to have his father and big brother work for him. He also enjoys the experience of studying business methods after he has made a success that would make many grown men proud. He came home one night about two years ago and said to his father:

"I'm going in the newspaper selling business. I've got three dollars; will you lend me five?"

His father, J. D. Edmiston, at that time chief clerk and registrar of the office of State Inspector of Grain for Illinois, made the loan.

McKinley made use of the basement of his home for a distributing station. His business grew until he had thirteen boys working for him. He paid back his debt. When trade grew too large for the basement Mr. Edmiston purchased an old street car and had the station moved. Mc. Kinley made use of modern methods in interesting the boys working for him. He gave them a banquet at his home one night and planned other amusements for them.

Before long the street car was also outgrown and a newly built store rented. About that time Mr. Edmiston gave up his office, which paid him $150 a month, in order that he might help his young son. McKinley Edmiston was able to pay his father a better salary than the State of Illinois. Fruit, candy and notions were added to the newspaper trade.

Mr. Edmiston and another son, Clyde, will take care of the business until McKinley has finished his business course. He is a brother of "Chick" Edmiston, third baseman on the Kansas City baseball team.

GENERAL MEYER IS DEAD.

Representative from Louisiana and Member of Naval Committee Succumbs in Washington.

General Adolph Meyer, of New Orleans, Democratic Representative from Louisiana and a member of the House Naval Committee for many years, died at Washington, D. C., yesterday morning after an illness of several weeks. He was on the road to recovery from a complication of diseases when a relapse came.

Born October 19, 1842, he was a student at the University of Virginia until 1862, when he entered the Confederate army and served until the close of the war on the staff of Brigadier General John S. Williams, of Kentucky. At the close of the war he returned to Louisiana and has been engaged largely in the culture of cotton and sugar cane.

General Meyer was elected to the Fifty-second and Fifty-ninth Congresses inclusive and was one of the important members of the House Naval Committee.

OBITUARY.

Dennis M. Bermingham.

Dennis M. Bermingham, son of Mrs. Edward Bermingham, of West Sixth street, died suddenly Saturday night at the State Hospital at Morris Plains. He was employed until a short time ago at the Pond Tool Works and had a wide acquaintance in the West End. He was a member of Court Plainfield, No. 1144, I. O. F., the Machinists' Union and the Pond Mutual Aid Society. Surviving him are four sisters and one brother, Patrolman Richard Bermingham, of the local force. The funeral will be held in St. Mary's church Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock and burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. James Breakey.

Mrs. Frances E. Breakey, wife of James Breakey, died Saturday at her home, 1544 Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn. She was the mother of Mrs. George W. Winans, of Somerset street, and had other relatives in the city and borough. She had always lived in Brooklyn but visited here frequently. Besides her husband and daughter, she leaves two sons. The funeral will be held at Mrs. Winans' home tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Burial will be at Hillside.

Richard Bowen Brown.

Richard Bowen Brown, aged seventy-two years, died this morning at the home of his sister on Berckman street. He had been ailing for several months. The funeral arrangements have not been made.

PERSONAL.

Margaret Smith, daughter of Mrs. Leonard S. Smith, of Duer street, is detained at home with an attack of the measles.

Gladys Colthar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey F. Colthar, of Duer street, is recovering from an attack of the mumps.

Mrs. Eugenia Vanonia and family, formerly of this city, but late of New York, have again taken up their residence at 950 Park avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Blatz have returned from their wedding trip to Bermuda and for the present are stopping with Mr. Blatz's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Platz on Somerset street.

VICAR-GENERAL PLEASED WITH THE "BISHOPS" LAW.

Monsignor John A. Sheppard, vicar-general of the Newark Diocese of the Roman Catholic church, when asked Saturday if he had anything to say regarding pending excise legislation at Trenton, significantly replied:

"I congratulate the bishops of New Jersey on the success of their bill, and the number of converts that have recently been made to it. The brewers and saloonkeepers now seem to be in favor of it, and anxious to enforce its provisions, and notwithstanding its mutiliation by Senator Avis, it seems to be growing popular."

FIRE IN RAHWAY Y. M. C. A.

Heating System Causes Blaze Which Does Several Thousand Dollars Damage.

The Young Men's Christian Association building, at Nos. 77 and 79 Irving street, Rahway, was damaged by fire yesterday morning. Fire originated in the general secretary's room in the heating system and before it was subdued did several thousand dollars' damage in the auditorium, reading and library rooms.

The gymnasium and bowling alley departments were damaged only by water. The losses on building and furniture are fully covered by insurance.

WILLIAM T. MANNING DIES.

Was Campaign Manager for Alton B. Parker in Presidential Race.

William T. Manning died yesterday at his home, No. 429 West Ninety-second street, New York. In last October Mr. Manning was stricken with pneumonia, and since then had been in ill health.

During Alton B. Parker's Presidential campaign Mr. Manning acted as his manager. He is survived by his widow and one child. Funeral services will be conducted by the Elks at his late home tonight.

Red and Yellow Sunsets.

The boys and girls have often heard perhaps that a red sunset is indicative of fine weather the next day and that a yellow sunset is indicative of rain, but do they know the reason? When the vapor of the air is on the point of condensation, but is not actually condensed, the beams of light meet with little resistance, and the red rays are bent down to the eye, because they require the least refraction. On the contrary, when the vapor of the air is actually condensed into clouds there is more resistance to the beams of light, and therefore the yellow rays are bent down to the eye, because they are more refracted than are the red rays.—Chicago News.

To Oppose Primary Bill.

Hudson's Assemblymen will oppose Governor Fort's primary bills, providing for the election of delegates to conventions by direct vote. One of the reasons advanced against the bills is that the law would saddle an unnecessary expense on the different counties of the State.

These terms describe the new serial we will begin publishing in the near future entitled:

The Escapade

A Post-Marital Romance

By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

In this story Dr. Brady introduces to his readers an American girl of the revolutionary period who has become the wife of an English naval officer. The marriage is a happy one until the wife is introduced to English society into which she does not fit, and a serious quarrel and separation follows her first house-party, and My Lord finds he must "a courting go" a second time to win back the affections of his wife.

In the story is another demure American maiden to whom love is appealing for the first time, and who follows the fortunes of her friend and countrywoman very much against her wishes.

No story by Dr. Brady would be considered complete did the ocean not enter into it, and in this one his heroine is a daughter of an American sailor and merchantman, and she takes to the water fearlessly when attempting to escape from her marriage bonds.

You will be interested in the clever tale, and in the way in which King George takes a part in again bringing together the estranged couple.

There is a subtle humor and appealing pathos woven together in the rapid action of the story, in the whole of which there is not a single dull line. We will present it to our readers in the near future with the conviction that it will appeal to each and every one of them.

P. H. S. FIRE DRILL TEST

Faulty Signal Conditions, Cause of Long Delay in Emptying Building.

QUICKER IN THE BOROUGH.

North Plainfield's Time Eighty Seconds; Plainfield's Trial Test Over Five Minutes, In Drills Today.

Failing to hear the school fire alarm gong, pupils of the Plainfield High School, assembled in the school auditorium for a singing lesson this morning, did not know the alarm had been sounded until Miss Katherine Ball, one of the teachers, went in to the auditorium and told Principal Travell that the fire gong was ringing. This was a minute and twenty seconds after the clanging of the bell began. The building was not emptied of pupils until slightly more than five minutes had elapsed after the bell was rung.

The alarm was sounded by James D. MacNab, head of the school commercial department, at the suggestion of an outsider who happened to be in the building. The various classes of the building, numbering more than 250 pupils, together with Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, Principal Ira W. Travell and Principal Lester Messeroll, of the Dunellen schools, who was a guest, were having the regular Tuesday morning singing lesson in connection with the opening exercises of the day. Charles L. [illegible] singing instructor of the Plainfield schools, was leading the pupils in the singing of "Christ Is Risen," one of the Easter carols.

The ringing of the alarm bell was a complete surprise to the entire school, faculty and pupils. As soon as the bell sounded, about a dozen pupils, who were not in the assembly hall at the time, filed quickly out. Someone fastened back the outside doors of the building, so that the other pupils could pass out. According to several of the teachers, the classes in the singing, and the last knowledge they had that it was ringing was when Miss Ball came in and spoke to Mr. Travell. When the pupils passed out, there was a slight congestion at the two doors from the auditorium into the halls, but none of the pupils seemed in any haste to leave the building.

Dr. Maxson, in explaining conditions at the city schools, said:

"As soon as I saw the account of the Collingswood fire I began a systematic study of each school building in the city to discover what improvements in conditions of the buildings and in the fire drills could be made to give the fullest safeguard against panic in case of fire, I had already given orders for electricians to examine the bell system in each building and make it as complete as possible; and to carpenters to make any changes that were necessary to make the exits from every building as easy as possible. The parents can feel assured that if anything can be discovered to make things as perfect as possible it will be done."

Speaking to a Daily Press reporter later, Principal Travell said: "The alarm was a complete surprise. I never knew that it was ringing until Miss Ball spoke to me on the platform. Yesterday I requested Mr. Maxson to have two more alarm bells put in the building. One of these will be in the typewriting room, where the noise of the typewriters prevents the pupils from hearing the gong in the front hall of the building, and the other is to be in the manual training room in the basement. I shall recommend to Mr. Maxson that an alarm bell also be installed in the auditorium. When the pupils are singing, it is impossible to hear the alarm bell from the hall. You come up to the school next week sometime, and we'll show you how we've corrected this flaw pointed out in our fire drill system."

Borough's Good Record.

At the fire drill held at the Somerset street school, North Plainfield, at 11 o'clock today, the building was emptied in eighty seconds, though the pupils marched out according to a system tried for the first time by Supervising Principal Henry C. Krebs. In speaking of the drill to a Daily Press reporter, Mr. Krebs said:

"I tried an innovation in the drill this morning. I am planning to have drills at which certain of the exits will be purposely cut off, so that the pupils will be less liable to panic if this should ever be the case. At the drill this morning, the teachers led the classes from the building. In case a door is found shut off, the pupils are to follow the teachers to another door. We can improve on the time, I think, but the pupils were all back at work within three minutes after the alarm sounded, so you see we didn't take much time from work.

"Hereafter I shall require silence on the part of the pupils as they pass

PRODUCE MAN CHARGED WITH FALSE PRETENSE

Accused of systemically robbing the firm through charges for goods not delivered, Nelson LaBau, aged twenty-seven years, was arrested in Neuman Brothers' store this morning. He was locked up at Police Headquarters on a specific complaint of false pretense and later was arraigned before Judge Runyon. He waived examination and was held in $500 bail.

According to the complainants, LaBau was formerly employed by the grocerymen but more recently has been conducting a general produce and dairy business. He made deliveries of eggs and other supplies at the store and would go to the cashier for his money. It was his custom to tell the amount due him and it would be paid without further investigation, the figures being entered up in the cash amount. He fell into the habit, it is alleged, of calling for more than he was entitled to and it is estimated that the firm has been robbed in this way of $410. The egg bills became so large that the items were closely followed and the cause was discovered.

LaBau resides on Clinton avenue, just over the city line, in Piscataway township and has enjoyed a large trade among local merchants.

P. E. CLERGYMAN SPEAKS AT WARREN'S BANQUET

At the Men's Association dinner held last night at Warren chapel, Alexander Irvine, of New York, gave an interesting informal talk on "The Christianizing of Socialism" as an after-dinner address. Mr. Irvine is assistant rector of the Church of the Ascension, in New York city, and is prominent as a worker among the city's poor.

In speaking of his work, Mr. Irvine explained that it is his custom to have an open discussion of Socialistic problems in the chapel of his church at the conclusion of the Sunday evening service. These meetings are attended by all classes of men, from prominent educational men of the city, authors and public speakers, to the poor people of the slum districts. Each speaker is allowed five minutes to discuss some problem of Socialistic nature. The discussions are often carried late into the evening.

The turkey supper proved a great success. Nearly 100 meals were served and the "victuals" were declared to be "first-class." The committee in charge of the cooking was composed of the wives of the various officers of the organization, of which Andrew Stiglitz is president. During the supper, music was furnished by an orchestra of five pieces, led by Whitney Frazee.

PRESBYTERIANS AND BAPTISTS WIN IN S. S. A. L. BASKETBALL.

The First Presbyterian church five clinched their lead in the Sunday School Athletic League basketball contest by defeating the Hope chapel five by a score of 32-28 at the association gymnasium last night. The Hope five could not get the lead throughout the game.

In a close game in the same league at the Y. M. C. A. last night, the First Baptist church five defeated the Seventh-Day church team by a score of 18-16. The score was 10-9 in favor of the Seventh-Days at the end of the first half, but they could not keep the least in the last period.

Mr. Murray's New Class.

The Bible Study Committee of the Young Women's Christian Association announce with pleasure that the first meeting of William D. Murray's Tuesday class will be held this evening at 8 o'clock. This class will meet each Tuesday evening during Lent and will consider several of the minor prophets. It is an unusual opportunity for expert and attractive teaching.

First Patient in Isolation Ward.

The new isolation ward at Muhlenberg Hospital which was given by Mr. and Mrs. James W. DeGraff, of Central avenue, which was recently completed, is now occupied by a contagious disease case for the first time. Miss Pipper, of this city, who is suffering a light attack of diphtheria, was removed there yesterday for treatment.

"Bob's" Dog Gets First Prize.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fitzsimmons are at Buffalo, where their $5,000 French poodle took first prize of $500 at the dog show being held there. One of the Buffalo newspapers published a fine picture of "Bob" and the poodle, in connection with his visit to that city.

DOBSON HAS A CONTRACT

East End Cop Must See That Seventeen Bad Boys Go to Sunday School.

ALL WERE IN CITY COURT.

Arrested for Trespassing and Damaging Property, Sentence Is Suspended On a Promise.

If you owned a grain mill or a cold storage building and a gang of boys broke in the place every Sunday to play crap and hide-and-seek and incidentally steal everything in sight and smash window panes as a side pastime, wouldn't it jar you? Sure it would and that's why Harry Dunham and Peter J. McDonough, who occupy the former Hygeia ice building on upper North avenue, got real mad and asked the police to round up the youngsters who have been making the place a rendezvous.

Patrolman George Dobson swooped down on the gang last Sunday afternoon and between those he caught running through the combined mill and ice house and the ones he recognized as they ran away, he had seventeen of them in the city court this morning. They ranged in ages from nine to seventeen years and the session was held up for half an hour while two cops busied themselves getting their pedigrees. The following were the names answered to:

Joseph Pratz, Mike Montaferro, Antone Margentino, Will McCarthy, Peter Colucci, Antone Santbarbory, Samuel Harper, Joseph Scottbar, John Margentino, Francis Kane and Louis Pratz, all white; Morris Somerset, Frank Peterson, Frank Somerset, George Martin, James Coleman and Walter Robbins, colored.

Mr. Dunham and Mr. McDonough informed the court that the damage they have suffered through the depredations of the boys aggregates a thousand dollars. The trouble had been going on for a long time, they said, and in addition to what had been stolen and broken they were always in fear that the building would be set on fire. On several occasions workmen found the butts of cigarettes in places were it would be very easy to start a blaze. Both complainants expressed a willingness to press no serious charges or demand pay for the damage occasioned if the depredations would stop and this was promised.

Several of the boys declared that an older fellow named Brown had been the one who was stealing eggs, grain, pigeons and other things from Mr. Dunham's place and the police will make an effort to get him. Before sentence was suspended every one of the seventeen gave Judge Runyon his solemn word that he would go to Sunday-school on Sundays in the future and Patrolman Dobson was delegated to see that they do it.

FORTY DAYS A TRIFLE.

Catherine Cahill Sounds Judge Runyon's Praises for Giving Her a "Light" Sentence.

Released from jail only yesterday morning after completing a sixty days' sentence at Elizabeth for drunkenness, Catherine Cahill, well known to the police, started on a booze feast last night and was soon in a helpless condition. Patrolman Messler gathered her in and this morning Judge Runyon gave her forty days in which to straighten out.

As Catherine was put back in a cell, a prisoner in an adjoining compartment who had also received a forty days' sentence, was wailing what an awful hardship it was to be dealt with so severely.

"Arrah now, behave," exclaimed Catherine. "Sure, Judge Runyon is the finest man in the county. Whisper now, forty days is nothin' at all, at all, but a trifle. Begorry I expected to get ninety or more and it's satisfied I am."

Berkshire Industrial Farm Work.

At a meeting of the Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church to be held in the church parlors on Monday night at 8 o'clock, the work of the Berkshire Industrial Farm is to be presented by two of the officials at that place. The farm is an institution established for the reclamation of wayward boys, and, in the opinion of those who have made a special study of the boy problem, is doing a remarkable work. The character of the work will be illustrated by stereopticon slides in color. The club extends an invitation to the men of other churches who may be interested to attend.

Police Board Meeting Postponed.

The Councilmanic Police Board was unable to meet last night owing to the illness of Frank Randolph, the chairman. In consequence it was postponed until tomorrow night when Patrolman Nicholas Myers will be brought before the board on charges of violating the rules of the department.

LOVELL HEAD OF BOARD

He is Elected President of Plainfield's Public School Directing Body.

ABBOTT IS THE VICE PRESIDENT.

Resolution Condemning Scheme to Divert School Moneys Obtained by Statutes' Provision.

Leander N. Lovell was elected last night by the Board of Education as president of that body to succeed the late Dr. John B. Probasco, who held that position for fifteen years Charles F. Abbott was chosen to take the place of Mr. Lovell as vice-president.

It was decided not to arrange the standing committees until William S. Tyler, the newly-elected member, takes his place on the board. This means that the announcement of committees will not be announced by President Lovell for at least a month.

The scheme on foot in the Legislature to divert school moneys obtained from the Perkins railroad tax and other sources, met with the disapproval of the educational directors who passed the following resolution unanimously:

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Board that a reduction of the State school tax will be prejudicial to the cause of education in New Jersey; that the State school tax rate should stand as now and that the revenue from the taxation of the railroads should be paid into the school treasuries as provided when the law which produced such tax was passed; also

Resolved, That the clerk be directed to convey to the Senator and Assemblymen from this district this action of the Board with a request that they use their influence against the passage of any bills intended to change the school tax or divert the railroad money.

POLICE CAPTURE COUPLE IN EARLY MORNING RAID.

Following up complaints made by neighbors in the vicinity, the police raided a small shop in Exchange alley at an early hour this morning and arrested two of a number of young men and women who have been holding all night carousals in the place. In court today they described themselves as Albert Sutterlin, of Orange place, and Mary Willis, no particular home. They had no statement to make when arraigned and both were given forty days in jail.

Patrolman Messler testified in court that a crowd has been breaking into the place after the proprietor went home and an effort has been made several times to catch them. Five or six were inside at about 12 o'clock last night, but when the cops were ready to make the raid, all had gone but Sutterlin and the Willis woman. They barricaded the door and refused the bluecoats admittance when they knocked and managed to keep them out until 5 o'clock. At that time the owner of the place was roused out of bed and devised a way for the officers to get in.

George Chapman Taught the Lesson.

George A. Chapman, of the First Baptist church Sunday-school taught an interesting lesson on "Jesus Hea'ing the Blind Man," at the meeting of the Plainfield Sunday-school Teachers' Union in the Y. M. C. A. last night. Miss Lillian A. Force gave a very helpful talk on the subject of "Easter Program," as used in Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school. Three new members were elected at the short business meeting which followed. There was a large and gratifying attendance of teachers and Sunday-school workers.

Last Star Course Entertainment.

The Hawthorne Musical Club, composed of a quartet of instrumentalists, was the attraction at the Y. M. C. A. last night, on the occasion of the last of the season's star course entertainments at the association. A program of instrumental and descriptive selections was rendered and each member of the company came in for a share of the applause.

Rodman—Marvin.

The marriage of Cary Selden Rodman, of New York, and Miss Nannie Van Nostrand Marvin will be silemnized at the home of the bride, 133 East Thirty-ninth street, New York, on March 16. Mr. Rodman is a nephew of Rev. E. M. Rodman of East Seventh street.

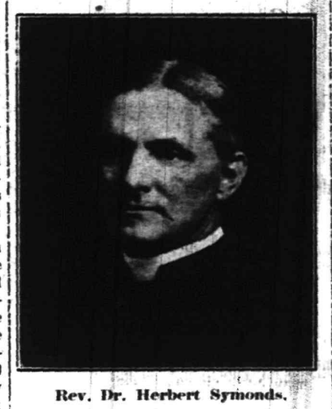
LENTEN LECTURES PLEASE

Rev. Dr. Symonds Talks on "In Memoriam" and the Bible as Literature.

AT GRACE P. E. CHURCH DAILY.

Many Attend Literary Lectures By Prominent Canadian Vicar Now In This City.

Continuing his lectures on Tennyson's "In Memoriam" and "The Twentieth Century Bible," Rev. Dr. Herbert Symonds, vicar of Christ church, Montreal, spoke before capacity congregations at Grace church yesterday afternoon and this morning. The lecture in each case was



Rev. Dr. Herbert Symonds.

Dr. Symonds, who is Rev. E. Vicar Stevenson's guest for the week in this city, was unanimously chosen the successor to Vicar Steen, of Christ church, Montreal, on the death of the latter. He was graduated from Trinity University, Toronto, in 1889, in the same class with Gilbert Parker, the novelist. Dr. Symonds was in the university with Bishop Brent, of the Philippine Islands; Bishop Seadding, of Colorado, and Bishop Anderson, of Chicago. Upon graduating, he was made lecturer at Trinity College, and later appointed professor of Theology at the same institution. In 1892, he resigned this chair to become rector of St. Luke's church, Ashburnham, Peterborough, Ontario. In 1901, he became head master of Trinity College School at Port Hope. This is one of the largest schools for boys in Canada. Dr. Symonds received his degree of D. D. from Queens College, Kingston, 1901.

The Tennyson Lecture.

The topic of the second lecture in the Tennyson course, given yesterday afternoon at Grace church, was "'In Memoriam' in Relation to the Age." In speaking of the development of the poem by the various additions, or cycles, the lecturer said that its scope had gradually enlarged until it included the discussion of many problems of the age. Tennyson lived at the time of the beginning of a new age,—the age of science, evolution and criticism. His dominating thought was that faith must be distinguished from forms of faith which are subject to continual change.

The new age produced two schools of thought in the Anglican church,—the "High" and the "Broad" church schools. The high church was opposed to the new methods, the broad churchman welcomed the reforms and sought to use them. In conclusion, the lecturer said that every new movement involves both gain and loss, and stated that science and faith were more in accord fifty years ago than they are today.

This Morning's Lecture.

Dr. Symonds gave the second of his lectures on the Bible this morning at the church. In referring to the Bible as literature, in continuation of yesterday's lecture, he said that it showed not only a variety of literature but a variety of style worthy of attention. It was the work of many authors, and it is possible to distinguish the differences of method and manner in the writers of the books of the Bible just as in literature at large.

The lecturer emphasized particularly the difference between the Hebrew literature and other literatures. "After an application of modern methods," he said, "after the most searching criticism, we may still say that our fathers were right. The Scriptures occupy a unique position in literature; the Bible is still preeminently The Book."

"There is a single sustaining note to the whole work," he went on, "in that it looks at all things from the point of view of the eternal. All things are a reflection of the might and wisdom of the Infinite and Holy God. This is a distinguishing feature of the Bible, and one which may be noted in all its divisions. Then, too, it deals in a large measure with the law. This is the true law. I be-

TYLER, ELECTED TO THE BOARD OF EDUCATION, WILL RESIGN FROM THE COMMON COUNCIL

Chosen as Dr. Probasco's Successor, for Educational Work, He Will Quit His Services as a City Father.

ANNOUNCEMENT A SURPRISE.

William S. Tyler, for five years the leader of the reform movement in the city government and the most aggressive member of the Common Council during the same period, has been elected a member of the Board of Education and will not serve out his third term as a city father. This announcement is made officially, F. B. Clark, secretary to the Board of Education, having given due notice of the new honor bestowed on the progressive Third warder and Mr. Tyler himself having admitted to a representative of The Daily Press that he would quit the ordinance-making body to become a director of educational work.

The selection of Mr. Tyler to fill the vacancy on the Board of Education caused by the death of Dr. John B. Probasco, for fifteen years head of the Board, comes as a general surprise not only to the taxpayers but to the city officials. Mayor Charles J. Fisk, when told of the appointment this morning by a representative of this paper, declared that it was the first intimation he had had of the selection. He was not aware that the Board had considered any candidates. Some friends of the mayor, this afternoon, were somewhat indignant that he had not been officially notified that the Board had determined to take any early action to fill the vacancy, although they were not displeased that Mr. Tyler should be the fortunate man.

When The Daily Press representative asked Mr. Tyler this morning what plans he had made, the Third ward Councilman expressed some surprise that his selection had been announced. He stated that he knew several days ago that the Board had been considering his name, but that this intimation was the first news he had that the appointment had been announced by the Board.

"It would be very congenial work for me," said Mr. Tyler, "to assist in the work of the Board of Education. I have always been much interested in educational work and particularly in the Plainfield schools. At present I am serving my sixth year as a member of the Common Council and it had been my intention to quit at the end of my third term in that body. While a member of the Common Council is has always been my aim to do my full duty and I hope I fulfilled the trust reposed in me by the taxpayers."

"I think Governor Fort is right when he takes the position that no man should occupy two offices at the same time and it is my purpose to resign from the Common Council in order to assume my duties as a member of the Board of Education. I will not take the oath as a member of the Board until my resignation is accepted by my colleagues in the Council. The resignation will be sent to President Tolles at once and I expect that it will naturally be accepted at the next meeting of the city fathers."

When Mayor Fisk was apprised of the Board's action, he stated to The Daily Press representative that it would not be becoming in him to say anything until he had been officially notified. He did not know that the Board contemplated filling the vacancy at this time.

Mr. Tyler is responsible for much of the good city legislation during the last five years. He is largely responsible for the excellent excise ordinances of this city, which served as a pattern for the Bishops' law, now on New Jersey's statute books. The saloon zone ordinance is another of his many original ideas of municipal government. Mr. Tyler is a son of the late Col. Mason W. Tyler, one of the most prominent men in the community in his time.

Somerville Election.

The annual meeting of the taxpayers of Somerville for the election of three members of the Board of Education will be held next Tuesday at 7:30 o'clock in the assembly room of the public school building. The terms of Jacob Nevius, Arthur P. Sutphen and Dr. A. L. Stilwell have expired. By reason of the uncertainty of the railroad tax the State Superintendent has advised the districts to defer the vote on the appropriations until a subsequent meeting.

MISS MATHEWSON TO WED DR. LUFBURROW

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Elizabeth C. Mathewson, niece of Dr. Charles B. Mathewson, of Sandford avenue, and Dr. Charles B. Lufburrow, of West Front street. The wedding will probably take place during the coming summer. Miss Mathewson has made her home in this city with her uncle since the death of her father, Dr. William Mathewson, a few years ago. She has been prominent here, especially in musical circles, being a member of the First Baptist church choir. She has also taken part in the several productions given by the Plainfield Operatic Association. She is popular in a large circle of acquaintances.

Dr. Lufburrow is one of the prominent physicians in the city and like Miss Mathewson has musical talent. He has also been prominent in local amateur operatic productions. During the past few years he has held the position of city physician and is an active member of the Plainfield Medical Society.

KIRMESS IS PLANNED AS HOSPITAL BENEFIT

The Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital finding itself in need of a considerable sum of money in order to close the fiscal year without debt, has decided to hold a kirmess during the week beginning May 11, at the New Plainfield theatre. The affair will be under the personal direction of Miss E. S. Florance, of Elizabeth, and it is her plan to use local talent.

The kirmess will be similar to one held some years ago in the old skating rink and will include a number of fancy dances with spectacular effects. Miss Florance has taken charge of several affairs of this kind and has had much success. It is expected that society will lend its efforts toward making the coming event a success and many prominent men and women will be found taking part in the dances. A committee from the Board of Governors will have general supervision of the kirmess.

The committee appointed last night to plan the details for the kirmess is as flolows: Mayor Charles J. Fisk, Henry L. Hall, William C. Kinney, S. D. Lounsbery and Edward H. Ladd, Jr. Miss Florence has been requested to meet the committee Thursday night at the home of Mayor Fisk, when there will be a general discussion of plans, after which a more extended announcement will be made.

HOSPITAL GOVERNORS APPOINT ASSISTANTS.

At the March meeting of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, last night, the medical board reported the number of patients for February as follows: Remaining at last report, 31; admitted, 49; total number, 80; discharged cured, 35; improved, 5; not improved, 1; died, 7; remaining, 32; number of hospital days, 929; operations, 46. In the dispensary the number of patients was 39 and there were 85 visits of patients.

The following physicians were appointed by the board as assistants of the medical board for the year ending April 30, 1909: Drs. Marcus L. Clawson, J. Hervey Buchanan, Albert Pittis, Frederick J. Hughes, Peter B. Cregar and Alfred F. Van Horn.

Agriculturists to Meet.

The regular meeting of the Somerset County Board of Agriculture will be held in the court room in Somerville on Saturday afternoon, March 28, at 2 o'clock. At this session the members and friends will have the pleasure of hearing Franklin Dye, secretary of the New Jersey State Board of Agriculture, who will open the meeting with an address on "Agriculture Principles in Farm Practices," which will be followed with a general discussion. Abram A. Cortelyou is president of the county board and Arthur P. Sutphen secretary.

Men's Club Musicale.

The Men's Club of the First Presbyterian church is planning for an elaborate musical to be given at the church on Thursday night, March 26. The artists will be Joseph McIntyre, pianist; Sigmund Culp, of New York, violinist, and Miss Anna L. Case, soprano. The program will be one of exceptional merit.

The Lesson of the Eagle and the Weasel

The familiar story goes that once, when an eagle pounced upon a weasel and soared with it high into the air, the weasel fastened its fangs deep into the eagle's breast and commenced to draw its life-blood. The eagle tried to shake the weasel off, but the weasel hung on until the eagle fell lifeless to the ground.

There is a moral in this for every sufferer from coughs or colds. Don't let your cough hang on—for every day it weakens your lungs and gradually wears down your system until serious lung troubles develop.

DR. D. JAYNE'S EXPECTORANT is the oldest and most reliable cough remedy known. For 77 years it has been successful in relieving and curing Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Pleurisy, Inflammation of the Lungs, Croup and Whooping Cough. It is sold by all druggists in $1.00, 50c. and 25c. bottles. Get it for your cough today.

Jayne's Tonic Vermifuge is a gentle and effective tonic for adults and children. A safe Worm Cure.

C. M. SANFORD

(Formerly with Messrs. J. Wiss & Sons.)

After Fifty years of active business life, the firm of Wm. T. Rae & Co. has retired.

With its passing into history goes a reputation for sterling integrity, reliability and honesty such as few concerns can boast of, and which it will be my earnest endeavor to maintain.

In announcing my advent into this business and continuing that of Messrs. Rae & Co., there are several facts which I wish to make public, namely:

(1) That it will ever be my purpose to live up to and not "on" the reputation which the house of Rae & Co. has established.

(2) That my stock of Diamonds and other Precious Stones, Gold Jewelry and Clocks will not only be as varied and comprehensive as that of any other Newark store of this character, but absolutely dependable and moderately priced as well.

(3) That I shall offer an Optical Service second to none in the city. This department, while under my personal supervision and direction, will be in charge of a skilled Eye Sight Specialist —W. E. Small, Ref. D.

(4) That Watch and Jewelry Repairing shall constitute an important part of my business, and that all such work entrusted to me will be executed satisfactorily and promptly by experts whose qualifications are the best.

To serve you faithfully and well and merit your good-will and patronage is my desire.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

BOUND BROOK AND VICINITY.

Thomas Gorman, of Port Washington, Long Island, is spending some time at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Mary Gorman, near South Bound Brook.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Putney are entertaining Miss Otta Griffith, of West Chester, Pa., at their home at Somerset street and Mountain avenue, Bound Brook.

Rev. Clarence S. Wood, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church of Roselle, will preach in St. Paul's Episcopal church of Bound Brook, tonight.

Mrs. Eugene Duryea and Mrs. C. J. Smith, of South Bound Brook, have returned from a visit to friends in Somerville.

Mrs. H. E. Jewett, of Clinton street, South Bound Brook, is spending some time with relatives in Brooklyn.

Mr. and Mrs. I. S. Whiting, of Watchung road, Bound Brook, are spending several weeks in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wilson, of near South Bound Brook, are visiting friends in Philadelphia.

Miss Marjorie Littell, of Newark, is a guest at the home of L. J. Mathies, of Bound Brook.

Mrs. Harriet Polhemus, of Union avenue, Bound Brook, is visiting friends at Far Hills.

NORTH BRANCH.

Mr. and Mrs. John Glaser, of Newark, and Mr. and Mrs. John I. Mills, of Pottersville, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Glaser, at North Branch. Mrs. Glaser entertained a number of friends last week in honor of her birthday.

Special services will be held in the Presbyterian church at Pluckemin every evening this week. Rev. Thos. D. Wesley, the pastor, will be in charge and will be assisted by neighboring ministers.

Miss Alice Wyckoff, of Brooklyn, has been visiting her parents, Rev. and Mrs. B. V. D. Wyckoff, at the Reformed church parsonage at Readington.

Mrs. Richard W. Hoagland, of Neshanic, has returned home, after spending two weeks with friends in New York and Princeton.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Smock, of Readington, have been entertaining Frank Allegar and family, of Somerville, for a few days.

M. D. Ten Eyck and sister, Mrs. Van Fleet, of Three Bridges, were recent guests of Mrs. Belle Van Fleet at South Branch.

Miss Mary Van Fleet, of North Branch, has returned from a visit to relatives in Somerville.

Miss Stella Little, of Trenton, has been spending a week with relatives at North Branch.

Ralph Van Pelt, of North Branch, returned Thursday from a visit in New York.

WESTFIELD.

In order to test the efficiency of the fire drill at the Prospect street school, Frederick Decker, chief of the Westfield Fire Department, recently went to the schoolhouse, and without any previous warning to either teachers or scholars, rang a fire alarm on the school bell. At the same time, to add to the realistic effect, a hose wagon and firemen were stationed outside. The schoolhouse was emptied in two minutes, without any disorder.

Willard W. C. T. U. of Westfield will be entertained at the home of Mrs. H. E. D. Jackson on Dudley avenue this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Irving I. Carpenter will represent Westfield Lodge of Woodmen at the State convention to be held at Atlantic City on Thursday.

RARITAN.

Michael Enright, of Somerset street, has been spending a few days in Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Hunt have returned from a visit to relatives in Newark.

Miss Emily Lauby, of Brooklyn, is a guest of her uncle, Rev. J. J. Zimmer.

Pinky Posies.

Very pretty blossoms in the many and varied shades of pale or salmon-pink or rose, lemon-yellow, white or deeper amber form lovely trimmings to tulle, lace or mousseline de sole hats for restaurant or theatre wear. The twigs are hidden 'neath the splendor of floral beauty, while a tiny bunch of pale green leaflets here and there stands out from a mass of delicate color.

On Terra Firma.

"What does become of all the pins?" cried Mrs. X, as she vainly sought for one on her dressing table. "I know, mamma," cried her little son, who had just begun to study Latin. "They fall to the earth and become terrapins."—Harper's Weekly.

—Mr. and Mrs. Herman A. Weber, of 138 Liberty street, will remove to their new home on West Front street, near Sycamore avenue, April 1.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian church will hold a business meeting Thursday night.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church will meet in Vincent chapel, this afternoon, and elect officers.

The Young People's Association of the First Baptist church will have charge of the mid-week prayer meeting tomorrow night.

The Sunshine Mission Band of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will meet Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The leader will be Mildred Brownlee.

An adjourned meeting of the official board of the First M. E. church will be held tomorrow night after the prayer meeting for consideration of the budget.

The Men's Club of the Seventh-Day Baptist church will hold a regular meeting in the church parlors Sunday night and enjoy a program of special interest.

The women of the First Baptist church have given up the plans for the pastor's reception indefinitely and it is not known at present whether it will be held this year or not.

The Men's Club of the Congregational church will meet tonight and be entertained by George W. Duryee, of New York, humorist and story-teller. There will be a social hour, music and refreshments.

Those received into membership at the First M. E. church at the last communion service include Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. George J. Robbins, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Osmun, Mr. and Mrs. Melle Hyekema and Mrs. W. W. Warnock.

The Epworth League of the First M. E. church is planning to give a "Dutch Supper" in Vincent chapel, Friday night, March 20. It will be an unique affair and in order to make the affair a success the co-operation of all the members of the church and friends is requested.

PERSONAL.

F. E. Kinsman, of Sherman avenue, is home from a business trip to Boston.

Mrs. Charles Delehunt, of West Second street, is detained at home with a severe attack of the grip.

Henry Piker and his daughters, the Misses Piker, of West Front street, will move to Westfield, April 1.

Mrs. Alexander Cuthbertson, of Philadelphia, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Charles W. Runyon, of the New Madison.

Miss Laura Hangliter, formerly of this city, but now of Trenton, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hangliter, of Monroe avenue.

Miss Anna Case, soprano soloist at the First Presbyterian church, will take part in a musical to be given at Bound Brook, Monday night, March 23. Last Saturday she sang at a musical given in New York for the benefit of public school teachers.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

Try the kind of coal sold by V. W. Nash, Sr., of Watchung avenue, if you would obtain the best results. Lowest market prices.

E. B. Maynard's barber shop on North avenue is equipped with all the latest conveniences and it is the ideal place to get a hair-cut, shave, shampoo or electric massage.

George F. Brown, of Somerset street, is always ready to talk real estate, life or accident insurance. His list of properties is desirable, and it will be to your interest to consult him.

Translucent Enameled Jewelry.

This is certainly peculiarly Twentieth Century, and so many women nowadays have learned the art of making enamel that it especially appeals to us. Most of such ornaments are large, taking the form of brooches or pendants, and are made after the fashion of old paste, intermingled with gems. Some of these pendants and brooches are in the shape of flowers or fruit, and faithfully copy the colors of both. Gold wire often intersects the enamel. A bunch of grapes has the tendrils and leaves in gold, the grapes represented by pearls, while green tints are represented by emeralds.

New Hat Ribbons.

New hat ribbons show an immense white polka dot on deep colored backgrounds, such as dark red, navy blue, golden brown and green. Three yards will make a generous bow, with some to spare for draping the crown. The net bows, both plain and ring dotted, can be bought ready for adding to the hat all wired, and will cost less than $3. These are very pretty and airy-looking and just the thing to take the place of the velvet bow on a silk hat.

Roselle Stores Were Open Sunday.

Roselle, March 10.—As the authorities of Roselle Park failed to cooperate with him in enforcing the "blue laws" in the boroughs, Mayor Charles MacQuoid, of Roselle, who successfully closed the places of business in the borough a week ago Sunday has dropped further action in the matter. As a result, the stores in the town were doing their usual business Sunday.

George Turnbull, the far driving professional who had the Highland Golf Club green last season, has gone to the Knollwood Country Club. The South Orange Field Club is going to continue another season without a "pro."

The Fox Hills Golf Club boasts of having five former national champions on its roster. They are Walter J. Travis, Findlay S. Douglas, Eben M. Byers, Charles B. Macdonald and H. Chandler Egan. A few years ago the club decided to confer an honorary membership upon the player who was fortunate enough to win the national title, provided he made application in the regular way.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Mrs. Stephen T. Ellis, one of the prominent pioneer women of Vineland, was found helpless from paralysis on her bedroom floor yesterday.

State officers of the Patriotic Order Sons of America will attend the fifth anniversary of Washington Camp, No. 84, of Gloucester, on March 16.

Rev. George F. Schmidt, son of Police Sergeant William Schmidt, of Bayonne, who recently went under an operation for appendicitis at Richmond, Va., is recovering, and will be taken to Bayonne in a few days.

William S. Cassady, of Clayton, had just left his gasoline engine Saturday when it went through the roof like a cannonball, scattering shingles in every direction and making people think there was an earthquake.

Alfred Taylor, twelve years old, of Vineland, broke his arm the first time he tried a stunt on the bars of the new Young People's Association. Hurrying home, he surprised his mother by holding up the broken limb and smilingly exlaiming: "Well, mother, I've been initiated."

Amelia Biddle, sixteen years old, of Riverside, playfully inflated a toy baloon with illuminating gas. Then she placed the tube in her mouth. Some time later she was found in a death-like stupor by members of her family. A physician was hastily summoned, who restored her to consciousness.

Material is on the ground at most of the railroad crossings of the West Jersey and Seashore Electric Railway to cover the third rail for a distance of fifty feet each way. This will not satisfy Assemblyman Cattell, however, and he will insist on the passage of his bill for covering the rail the entire distance.

Agreeing with her fiance that fashionable church weddings are a nuisance, Miss Mary Elizabeth Morrison, whose parents are residents of Mt. Holly, and Frank W. Sooy, member of the law firm of Bourgeois & Sooy, counsel for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company in South Jersey, stole a march upon their families by going to St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church, Atlantic City, Saturday night and plighting their troth.

Consternation is expressed by a number of Millville citizens who have learned that while they have paid their taxes to the regular collectors the money has not been turned into the city treasury. Complaint was made to the Council by some of the taxpayers whose properties have been advertised for sale, and to substantiate their claims they produced receipts from the ward collectors. Council instructed Delinquent Tax Collector Dooling to proceed against the collectors' bondsmen legally unless the money involved is paid at once.

Prosecutor Engene Emley, of Passaic county, last Saturday sent out notices to a number of lawyers informing them that the State would expect to have them make good in instances where they had gone security for persons who had disappeared. Frederic Beggs was notified to produce $1,000. He went bail for an Armenian some time ago, and the man, who was charged with a serious offense, decamped. Abram Klenert will be called upon to make good $500. He went security for Mrs. Tony Angelo. She has left the country. Louis Grunauer paid up $100 for a client for whose bail he went some time ago.

FRIENDLY SONS' PLANS FOR DINNER COMPLETED.

The final arrangements for the annual dinner of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick at Elizabeth have been completed and the list of guests is filling up so rapidly that the committee will find it impossible to receive any more acceptances after tomorrow, the date set in the invitations. The full list of speakers, with the toasts to which they will respond, is as follows:

"Our Country," Vice-Chancellor Edward R. Walker; "The Day We Celebrate," the Rev. Cornelius J. Clifford; "The Influence of Irish Character on National Destiny," Martin Conboy; "As the Spirit Moves," Hon. James Baker; "The Irish Soldier," Henry J. Breen; "Some New Ideas, Not Nesessarily Political," Edward W. Gray.

Dr. Stephen T. Quinn has been selected as toastmaster for the evening, and the following members have been appointed to act as the reception committee:

Hon. P. J. Ryan, Robert M. Kellogg, John F. Kenah, Amos Andrews and John J. Collins.

BASEBALL.

President P. T. Powers will doubtless issue a call for the spring meeting of the Eastern League this week. One of the first things the moguls will likely do is to adopt the new rules relating to the soiling of the ball by the pitcher and the one relating to crediting the batter with a sacrifice hit when he brings a run in on a flyout to the outfield when one man is out, as passed by the joint rules committee of the American and National leagues recently in New York. The latter rule will be welcomed by all players, as it means that batting averages will soar higher next season. Jimmy Mullen, of the Indians, should be overjoyed over this rule, as last season he probably brought more runs across the plate on his long hits to the outfield than any other player, although he did it at a sacrifice to his individual batting record. Next to Mullen, perhaps, Bud Sharpe's batting average also suffered for this reason. While the players are pleased over this new rule, the fans are happy over the rule which will prevent the pitchers from soiling the ball by rubbing it on the ground, and the familiar cry of "don't delay the game" will be heard less frequently from the grandstands and bleachers next season.

Dave Zearfoss, who caught for Newark in the old Atlantic League days, has signed a contract to captain and catch for Wilmington next season.

The Pennsylvania-New Jersey League will meet in Trenton on March 18, when the circuit will be completed and a schedule committee appointed.

"Tommy Leach will not go to Brooklyn or to any other city in organized baseball. He will play in Pittsburg or he will not play at all." Barney Dreyfuss made this remark yesterday in Pittsburg when asked about the rumor that Brooklyn had asked for Leach. It is evident that Dreyfuss has his mind made up on the Leach question, and that he will do his best to drive the little fellow out of organized baseball if he does not soon come into line.

Yale has begun experimenting with a pitching machine for its baseball squad. The device, patented by T. H. Cahill, of Holyoke, Mass., was tried yesterday and found to work well. It has not been decided to purchase one, as the Yale nine expects to begin outdoor work next week.

GOLF.

The time is at hand for the nearby golf and country clubs to be stirring themselves with a view to securing desirable tournament dates for the coming season. Already a number of clubs, as if realizing the advantages of applying early, have obtained official metropolitan sanction. They include the Garden City Golf Club, the Wykagyl Country Club and the Shinnecock Hills Golf Club.

Other organizations usually prominent in the competitive game yet to be heard from are the Lakewood Country Club, the Morris County Golf Club, the Nassau Country Club, the Englewood Golf Club and the Baltusrol Golf Club. With regard to the last two clubs it may be said that they are practically provided for, as they are to hold the New Jersey and metropolitan amateur championship tournaments, respectively.

The Country Club of Atlantic City holds an open tournament every spring, and while it does not come within the Metropolitan Golf Association limits, it, of course, tries not to conflict with Lakewood. Both are expected to be heard from shortly. It is also understood that Morris County will conduct another invitation affair in the fall. For that matter, the Fox Hills Golf Club, which is showing signs of renewed life, is contemplating the advisability of holding a week's carnival of golf next October. Provided present plans go through, there will be a two days' tournament open to professionals, a three days' tournament for amateurs and a one day competitions for women.

The golf committee of the Forest Hill Field Club at a meeting on Monday night decided to renovate the clubhouse and lengthen the course. One improvement will be an additional hundred yards to the first hole. This will make the hole considerably more than four hundred yards and one of the longest on the course. At present the eighteen-hole circuit is rather short, covering a playing length a trifle less than 5,500 yards.

WOMEN RAISE $1,200 FOR FOREIGN MISSIONS

Encouraging reports were presented, officers elected and an interesting address on foreign mission work given at the annual meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, yesterday afternoon. Nearly one hundred members and friends of the society were present. The reports showed that the present membership is 225 and during the past year $1,200 had been raised chiefly to pay the salaries of teachers at the foreign mission stations in Brazil, Siam, India and China. A balance of $100 was voted to the general fund to be drawn upon as needed.

These officers were chosen for the year:

President, Mrs. Isaac L. Miller; first vice-president, Mrs. J. S. Zelie; second vice-president, Mrs. W. C. Hubbell; third vice-president, Mrs. John Gray Foster; secretary, Mrs. Orton G. Dale; treasurer, Mrs. William Hoyt; superintendent of collections, Miss Julia Scribner; secretary of literature, Mrs. Isaac Field; young people's secretary of literature, Miss Elsie Harmon.

After the business, Mrs. Charles Newbold Thorpe, who has just returned from a trip around the world, where she visited the Presbyterian mission stations, gave a brief account of her journey. She is the president of the Philadelphia Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbytrian church, of which the Elizabeth Presbytery is a part, and she gave most encouraging reports from the field. She said that many erroneous reports are often circulated about the foreign mission work, but from actual knowledge she declared that the Presbyterian church has cause to be proud of the fine work being accomplished in the efforts to lead the heathen to Christ. The address was full of interesting facts and the speaker was very enthusiastic in the presentation of them.

A social half-hour was enjoyed after the meeting during which tea was served under the direction of Mrs. George P. Mellick and Mrs. George H. Condict.

out. Talking may lead to shouting, and that might cause panic in some cases. The pupils will all march out in step, as far as this is possible. It will mean greater speed, and will avoid crowding. It has been suggested to me to have the marching done to the beat of a drum at fire drills, and I think this is an excellent plan.

"With a view to having the pupils pass in an orderly manner to another exit in case one of the doors is purposely locked before the drill, I have prepared specific directions for the different classes, directing each teacher what to do in leading her class out if she finds one door of the building locked, or the exit cut off."

Brunswick on Water Wagon.

At the meeting of the Board of Water Commissioners of New Brunswick last night, announcement was made that the average daily consumption of water in that city for February exceeds 3,000,000 gallons, the largest in the history of the department. Members suggested that the temperance wave had something to do with it.

Farmer Hangs Himself.

Beujamin Magee, a farmer, who was sixty years old, hanged himself at Matchaponix, in Madison Township, twelve miles from New Brunswick, yesterday morning. Magee lived with his sister, Mrs. Suydam, and her husband. He was a widower.

REPORT UTILITIES' BILL

Substitute for Measures Introduced Reported in Each House Last Night.

ASSEMBLY BILL IS RADICAL.

It Is a Combination of Martin's and His Substitute—Senate's Is Conservative, It Is Believed.

The House committee on judiciary last night at Trenton reported a substitute for the public utilities commission bills that had been referred to it. The substitute goes further in its provisions than any measure of the kind that has ever been introduced in the Legislature, providing, among other things, that the commission it aims to create shall have the power to place a valuation on all the property of all railroads and other public utility corporations in the State. During the afternoon there was a long session of the committee, and it was finally voted to combine Majority Leader William P. Martin's bill, House No. 4, and his supplemental measure, House No. 70. The supplement provides that the regulating authority of the proposed commission shall be extended to telephone, telegraph and water companies, thus covering the entire field of public utilities.

In the Senate the committee on municipal corporations reported a substitute for the three utilities bills that have been introduced in that branch of the Legislature, Senate Nos. 17, 31 and 35. The new measure goes as far in the direction of conservatism as the House substitute does in the other direction. It eliminates entirely rate-making feature, which has been a bone of contention for two years in legislative debate.

McCarter Protests.

President Thomas N. McCarter, of the Public Service Corporation and its subsidaries, was in Trenton practically all day yesterday, and for two hours was closeted with Senator Samuel K. Robbins, leader of the majority, and introducer of bill No. 31, which has been looked upon as the administration measure.

"Mr. McCarter objected to practically the entire bill," Mr. Robbins said afterward. The president of the Public Service Corporation had an amendatory clause that is understood to have been rejected. What it was he would not state. Mr. McCarter spent some time in the office of Governor Fort and talked with most of the other State leaders. For a time he and Senator Robbins were shut in a Senate committee room with State Assessor Davy Baird, of Camden, Republican boss of South Jersey. Mr. McCarter told the officials that the whole aggregation of them seemed to be carried away with the proposition to pass a radical public utilities measure. He made strenuous objections.

The Senate committee substitute retains the Robbins amendment to his own bill, providing for a fine of $100 per day for persons of the commission adjudged guilty of violation of the measure's provisions, the fine to be exacted during the continuance of the violation. The provision for five days' notice to the company before a hearing on accidents is included, but provision is made that any member of the commission or its inspectors may investigate at the scene of the accident without notifying the company. Under the provisions of the substitute the commission may isspe subpoenas on its own initiative.

To Discuss Bill Soon.

Senator Everett Colby, of Essex, will move today that the substitute bill be made the order of business on Wednesday morning, the 18th. The member from Essex made the motion last night, but withdrew it when he saw that Senator Bloomfield H. Minch, chairman of the committee on municipal corporations, was not in his seat. It is his idea that at least one day will be required to thrash out the measure.

"The committee on judiciary agreed to the report of the two bills which I have introduced," said Mr. Martin, who, in addition to his leadership, is chairman of the committee. "We added the provision for the valuation of the railroad property, as that will assist the commission greatly in its work. The appropriation for the work of fixing the true value of the property is a matter for the committee on appropriations to consider. Governor Fort recommended that the commission be given this power."

It is argued by those favoring vesting the commission with authority to fix a valuation of railroad and other utility property, that the commission will not be able to fix rates so that a fair dividend may be earned unless the value of the property involved is known accurately.

The House substitute provides that all railroads must require the posting of the time of the arrival of all trains in their stations. Mr. Martin secured the adoption of a motion to have the combined bills printed and on the desks of the Assemblymen tomorrow morning. It is probable that there will be a move to debate the bill this week.

DR. TOMLINSON'S LECTURE

MANY BATTLES IN THIS STATE.

Over One-quarter of the Engagements Took Place Here and Jersey Furnished Troops In Number.

"New Jersey in the Revolution" was the subject of a lecture of unusual interest given before the Men's Club of the First Baptist church, last night, by Rev. Dr. Everett Tomlinson, of Elizabeth. The divine has made a special study of the great part taken by New Jersey troops in the Revolutionary War and his writings for young people have attracted widespread attention.

He disputed the accuracy of statements published in general history giving the New England States so much credit in the Revolution, contrasting their achievements with those of what he termed modest New Jersey. He declared that one-quarter of the war was fought in New Jersey and but very little of it in the New England States. The only trouble seemed to be that New Jersey had not been given due credit.

"Why, New Jersey gave more lives in the Revolution than all the New England States put together," said Dr. Tomlinson, "adn the heroism of her troops is well known. There were countless deeds of valor on the part of men and women which have never been recorded in history. This I know from a personal investigation."

The speaker recalled the fact that during a large part of the war Gen. Washington maintained his headquarters in New Jersey, which he considered a most advantageous point to direct the fighting of the troops. He gave a vivid picture of Washington crossing the Delaware, an incident that is known to every student of history, and of the great suffering and bravery of the troops on their nine mile march through the State, when the weather was bitter cold and the snow was deep. At the conclusion of Dr. Tomlinson's lecture the audience arose and sang "America." The lecture room was appropriately decorated with American flags for the occasion and after the talk the members of the club enjoyed a social half-hour.

DUCK AS HIS CELLMATE.

Fowl Locked Up with Perth Amboy Man Who Was Held as Chicken Thief.

Perth Amboy, March 10.—The inability of the police to discover the owner of a duck which two boys were caught trying to sell for a small fraction of its value made it possible for Sergeant James Mulligan to give Metro Zurginsky a cellmate when he was locked up last night charged with stealing chickens. Zurignsky was arrested by Patrolman Christian Jensen and taken to police headquarters. When the cause of the arrest was made known to him, Mulligan exclaimed:

"A chicken thief, is he? Lock him up with the duck."

The duck had spent three days in a cell and it manifested no little curiosity when Zuriginsky was put in with it. The man's wife paid a fine imposed upon him for being drunk and secured his release when the owner of the chickens refused to prosecute. The duck is still held.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

With an interesting program of plays, Thomas E. Shea will be presented by Cohan and Harris at the New Plainfield theatre on March 27 and 28. Mr. Shea's program includes "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" and a new play entitled "A Soldier of the Cross," in which Mr. Shea will appear as Ajax, the gladiator. It is said that complete productions have been arranged for each of the plays and that a strong supporting company has been engaged.

Cyril Scott, under the management of Samuel Claggett, comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday evening in a play by the authors of "Strongheart" and "The Genius," Cecil and William de Mille, that has been called "The Royal Mounted." It deals with life in the lumber camps of the Canadian Northwest and the adventures of one Lieutenant O'Byrne of the Canadian Mounted Police. Scenically it is to be a very elaborate affair and differs entirely with anything Mr. Scott has ever before essayed. It is said to be in the class of "The Great Divide" and "The Squawman" as far as variety and interest are concerned, but it differs in color and locale. There is, according to rumor, some brilliant detective work shown in the development of the story and a series of love episodes that are not of the maudlin order, but are of the fascinating quality that hold together the warp and woof of the play. Added to this we have promise of a cast that will do credit to the production. Clara Blandick who was leading woman with Kyrle Bellew in "Raffles," will play the heroine, and several other of the principals are Charles B. Wells, Charles Lane, Brigham Royce, Elwood Bostwick, Charles Lamb, Griffith Evans, Duane Wager, Harry Powell, George Archibald and Ethel Wright.

James Forbes, author of "The Chorus Lady," in which Rose Stahl is appearing, has written another comedy, the title of this being "The Travelling Salesman," in which Henry B. Harris will present Thomas W. Ross at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday, afternoon and night. The scenes of the new comedy show successively the interior of a depot, the sample room of a hotel, and the office of a village store in Grand Crossing, a small Middle West town, which when the play opens is in the throes of a land boom. To this town Bob Blake, a travelling salesman, comes on Christmas Day. Here he meets Beth Elliott, whose legacy, a tract of land adjoining the town, is in the hands of the township for sale for unpaid taxes. Blake's employer has already learned that the railroad wishes to acquire the property, and he has decided to buy it from Beth Elliott and re-sell at a profit to the railroad. But Blake's admiration for the girl decides him to take a hand in the matter himself. The complications which follow are splendidly dramatic and are said to be full of comedy. The company supporting Mr. Ross is an admirable one, including such well-known players as Marion Kerby, William Beach, May McCabe, Percival Moore, Arthur Shaw, Harry D. Blakemore, Maud Sinclair, Ernest Lamson, Edward M. Dresser, Nicholas Burnham, R. C. Turner, Frances Golden Fuller and Martin Fuller.

What He Would Do.

Wishing to learn what his nephew would say, Uncle Jack asked little Fred. "What would you do if you stood at the root of a tree with your foot on a live rattlesnake, a tiger was crouching on a branch ready to spring and you saw a wild Indian running at you with uplifted tomahawk?"

"I should wake right up," was the unexpected reply.

A Young Heroine.

Miss Mary Eva Chase, of Brookline, Mass., is the youngest person to receive a medal from the Massachusetts Humane Society. She is only 5 and was struck and severely injured last autumn by an automobile while trying to save a playmate from being run over.

AN ORDINANCE

WHEREAS, The portion of Hill Street (sometimes called Hill Avenue), between South Avenue and Woodland Avenue is shown on a map entitled "Section 2, City Map of Plainfield, Union County, N. J., 1870," filed in the office of the City Clerk of the City of Plainfield September 20, 1870, and

WHEREAS, The Central New Jersey Land Improvement Company, Union County Investment Company, Dorsey W. Hyde and Henry P. Talmadge are the sole owners of the fee and of all the property abutting anywhere on such portion of said street, and have applied to the Common Council of said City to vacate such portion of said street pursuant to Chapter CXXXIII, P. L. 1888, and other laws governing the matter, and it is to the interest of the city that such street should be vacated:

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the portion of Hill Street (sometimes called Hill Avenue), lying between South Avenue and Woodland Avenue, as shown on a map entitled "Section 2, City Map of Plainfield, Union County, N. J. 1870," be and the same is hereby vacated pursuant to the Acts of the Legislature in such case made and provided.

Adopted by the Common Council, March 2, 1908; approved by the Mayor, March 2, 1908.

LITERARY

The March number of the Woman's Home Companion again captures public notice with its charming cover picture of a Japanese girl—one of the daintiest magazine covers that has appeared in years. This issue is the Spring Fashion Number, and for it Grace Margaret Gould, the fashion editor, has prepared many delightful pages, illustrating in detail the advance spring styles.

American mothers fail,—not all of them, but enough to cause alarm. This is the proposition which Mrs. Anna A. Rogers stes out to discuss in the March Atlantic. As in her trenchant divorce article, "Why American Marriages Fail," published in the same magazine last September, Mrs. Rogers deals with her topic with ungloved hands. American children are experiments tried more or less frantically by ignorant and unprepared mothers is one of her spirited assertions.

The American Magazine is taking up the Presidential candidates in a big way. The other day Secretary Taft told his campaign managers to keep their hands off New York State. Rather than anger his enemies, and split the State, he chose to take his chances and let Governor Hughes go to the convention with New York's 72 votes. Of course Taft is still in the running, and William Allen White will soon present a character sketch of him in The American Magazine.

The principal contribution to the March number of Everybody's is an appreciation of Governor Hughes by Erman J. Ridgway. It is a sketch of the personal side of the Governor, told in direct, conversational language. No less timely, and of widespread importance, is an article by Lieut. Hugh Johnson, U. S. A., entitled "The Lamb Rampant," pointing out in powerful terms the stagnation of the American Army system.

Editors are at liberty to make use of the paragraphs in this broadside as they see fit. In case it is desired to reprint more of an article than is here given, permission should be obtained from the editors of the Atlantic, 4 Park street, Boston. The contents of each number of the magazine are copyrighted. Kenyon Cox, who writes on Augustus Saint-Gaudens in this issue of the Atlantic, is a New York art critic and a portrait painter of some note.

Timeliness characterizes the March Century. Mr. Andrew Carnegie goes back to the beginning of his experiences with railway rates and rebates, in 1856, when he was secretary and telegraph operator under Thomas A. Scott, general superintendent of the Pittsburg division of the Pennsylvania Railway, and his presentation of present day conditions and needs comes with unquestioned authority. The story is interestingly, even dramatically, told. How to be happy and prosperous on a "One-Acre Ranch"—prosperous in the sense of a comfortable living and a growing bank account—the actual experience of one city man in the Northwest is told by W. H. Kirkbride.

The March number of Scribner's Magazine opens with a paper of adventure by Arthur Ruhl, who crossed the Andes in Winter, from the Chilean side to the Argentine foot-hills, about 150 miles. The Andes here rise to an appalling height, and Mr. Ruhl was assured that to make the trip in winter was one of extreme hazard. He took the journey lightly, and before his gay spirit the hazards dwindled to ordinary hardships with amusing incidents by the way, all of which he tells in the most graphic manner.

The March McClure's leads off with an article on Governor Hughes by Burton J. Hendrick. "People know so little about him," has been the univalsal complaint, and Mr. Hendrick's article is a most timely turning on of the light. Ellen Terry's monthly contribution is a chapter called "Memories of Booth and Sarah Bernhardt," in which many other famous ones figure besides the great American actor and the ethereal "Miss Sarah."

It is safe to say that a more striking story than "Simeon Tetlow's Shadow," which Jeanette Lee contributes to the March number of The Smart Set, has not appeared in any recent magazine. It grips the reader's attention from the very first sentence, and in quite a remarkable manner retains the interest to the very end. Especially notable is this novel in that it contains no love-story whatever, but the dramatic interest is so intense and the swing of the story so rapid that the reader is carried along breathlessly to the denouement.

When Rudolph was kidnaped by a tramp things did not "come out" as the tramp had expected. The story appears in The Red Book Magazine. Porter Emerson Browne wrote it and it is called "The Kidnaping of Rudolph Nothing."

In its first-of-the-year announcements, Lippincott's Magazine promised some big things for the coming twelvemonth, and no time is being lost in making good these promises. The March number contains an unusually fine novelette called "Lady Thoroughbred, Kentuckian," by Will Levington Comfort, who seems destined to become one of the few really great latter-day American authors.

LANGFORD of the THREE BARS

By KATE AND VIRGIL D. BOYLES

"I Love You," He Said.

(Copyright by A. C. McClurg & Co., 1907.)

CHAPTER XXII.

The Party at the Lazy S.

Mary stared thoughtfully into the mirror. It was a better one than the sliver into which she had looked more than a year before, when Paul Langford came riding over the plains to the Lazy S. A better house had risen from the ashes of the homestead laid waste by the cattle rustlers. Affairs were well with George Williston now that the hand of no man was against him. He prospered.

Louise stepped to the door.

"I am in despair, Mary," she said whimsically. "Mrs. White has ordered me out of the kitchen. What do you think of that?"

"Louise! Did you really have the hardihood to presume to encroach on Mother White's preserves—you— a mere bride of five months' standing? You should be grateful she didn't take the broom to you."

"She can cook," said Louise laughing. "I admit that. I only offered to peel potatoes. When one stops to consider that the whole county is coming to the "house-warming" of the Lazy S, one can't help being worried about potatoes and such minor things."

"Do you think the whole county is coming, Louise?" asked Mary.

"Of course," said Louise Gordon, positively, slipping away again. She was a welcome guest at the ranch, and her heart was in the success of tonight's party.

Mary had dressed early. As hostess, she had laid aside her short skirt, leather leggings, and other boyish "fixings" which she usually assumed for better ease in her life of riding. She was clad simply in a long black skirt and white shirt-waist. Her hair was coiled in thick braids about her well-shaped head, lending her a most becoming stateliness.

Would Paul Langford come? He had been bidden. Her father could not know that he would not care to come. Her father did not know that she had sent Langford away that long-ago night in December and that he had not come back—at least to her. Naturally, he had been bidden first to George Williston's "house-warming." The men of the Three Bars and of the Lazy S were tried friends—but he would not care to come.

Listen! Some one was coming. It was much too soon for guests. The early October twilight was only now creeping softly over the landscape. It was a still evening. She heard distinctly the rhythmical pound of hoofbeats on the hardened trail. Would the rider go on to Kemah, or would he turn in at the Lazy S?

"Hello, the house!" hailed the horseman, cherrily, drawing rein at the very door. "Hello, within!"

The visitor threw wide the door, and Williston's voice called cordially:

"Come in, come in, Langford! I am glad you came early."

"Will you send Mary out, Williston? I need your chore boy to help me water Sade here."

The voice was merry, but there was a vibrant tone in it that made the listening girl tremble a little. Langford never waited for opportunities. He made them.

Mary came to the door with quiet self-composure. She had known from the first the stranger was Langford. How like the scene of a summer's day more than a year past; but how far sweeter the maid—how much more it meant to the man now than then!

"Father, show Mr. Langford in," she said, smiling a welcome. "I shall be glad to take Sade to the spring."

She took hold of the bridle rein trailing to the ground. Langford leaped lightly from his saddle.

"I said 'help me,'" he corrected.

"The spring is down there," she directed. "I think you know the way." She turned to enter the house.

For an instant, Langford hesitated. A shadow fell across his face.

"I want you to come, Mary," he said, simply. "It is only hospitable, you know."

"Oh, if you put it in that way—," she started gayly down the path.

He followed her more slowly. A young moon hung in the western sky. The air was crisp with the coming frost. The path was strewn with dead cottonwood leaves which rustled dryly under their feet.

At the spring, shadowed by the biggest cottonwood, she waited for him.

"I wish my father would cut down that tree," she said, shivering.

"You are cold," he said. His voice was not quite steady. He took off his coat and wrapped it around her, despite her protests. He wanted to hold her then, but he did not, though the touch of her sent the blood bounding riotously through his veins.

"You shall wear the coat. I—do not want you to go in yet."

"But Sade has finished, and people will be coming soon."

"I will not keep you long. I want you to—Mary, my girl, I tried to kill Black, but—Jim—" his voice choked a little—"it hadn't been for Jim. Black would have killed me. I thought I could do it. I meant to have you. Jim said it was all the same—his doing it in my stead. I came to-night to ask you if it is the same. Is it, Mary?"

She did not answer for a little while. How still a night it was! Lights twinkled from the windows of

"It is the same," she said at last, brokenly.

Her eyes were heavy with unshed tears. "But I never meant it, Paul. I was wild that night, but I never meant that you or—Jim should take life or —or—give yours. I never meant it!"

His heart leaped, but he did not touch her.

"Do you love me?" he asked.

She turned restlessly toward the house.

"My father will be wanting me," she said. "I must go."

"You shall not go until you have told me," he said. "You must tell me. You never have, you know. Do you love me?"

"You have not told me, either," she resisted. "You are not fair."

He laughed under his breath, then bent his sunny head—close.

"Have you forgotten so soon?" he whispered.

Suddenly he caught her to him strongly, as was his way.

"I will tell you again," he said, softly. "I love you, my girl, do you hear? There is no one but you in all the world."

The fair head bent closer and closer, then he kissed her—the little man-coated figure in his arms.

"I love you," he said.

She trembled in his embrace. He kissed her again.

"I love you," he repeated.

She hid her face on his breast. He lifted it gently.

"I tell you—I love you," he said.

He placed her arms around his neck. She pressed her lips to his, once, softly.

"I love you," she whispered.

"My girl, my girl!" he said in answer. The confession was far sweeter than he had ever dreamed. He held her cheek pressed close to his for a long moment.

"The Three Bars is waiting for its mistress," he said at last, exultantly. "A mistress and a new foreman all at once—the boys will have to step lively."

"A new foreman?" asked Mary in surprise. "I did not know you had a new foreman."

"I shall have one in a month," he said, smilingly. "By that time George Williston will have sold the Lazy S for good money, invested the proceeds in cattle, turned the whole bunch in to range with the Three Bars herds, and on Nov. 1 he will take charge of the wordly affairs of one Paul Langford and his wife of the Three Bars."

"Really, Paul?" The brown eyes shone with pleasure.

"Really, Mary."

"Has my father consented?"

"No, but he will when he finds I cannot do without him and when—I marry his daughter."

Hoof-beats on the sod! The guests were coming at last. The beats rang nearer and nearer. From Kemah, from the Three Bars trail, from across country, they were coming. All the neighborhood ranchmen and homesteaders with their families and all the available cowboys had been bidden to the frolic. The stableyard was filling. Hearty greetings, loud talking and laughter floated out on the still air.

Laughing like children caught in a prank the two at the spring clasped hands and ran swiftly to the house. Breathless but radiant, Mary came forward to greet her guests while Langford slipped away to put up Sade.

The revel was at its highest. Mary and Louise were distributing good things to eat and drink to the hungry cowmen. The rooms were so crowded many stood without looking in at the doors and windows. The fragrance of hot coffee drifted in from the kitchen.

Langford stood up. A sudden quiet fell upon the people.

"Friends and neighbors," he said, "shall we drink to the prosperity of the Lazy S, the health and happiness of its master and its mistress?"

The health was drunk with cheers and noisy congralulations. Conversation began again, but Langford still stood.

"Friends and neighbors," he said again. His voice was grave. "Let us drink to one—not with us to-night—a brave man—" in spite of himself his voice broke—"let us drink to the memory of Jim Munson."

Silently all rose and drank. They were rough men and women, most of them, but they were a people who held personal bravery among the virtues. Many stood with dimmed eyes, picturing that final scene on the island in which a brave man's life had closed. Few there would soon forget Jim Munson, cow-puncher of the Three Bars.

There was yet another toast Langford was to propose to-night. Now was the opportune time. Jim would have wished it so. It was fitting that this toast follow Jim's—it was Jim who had made it possible that it be given. He turned to Mary and touched her lightly on the shoulder.

"Will you come, Mary?" he said.

She went with him, wonderingly. He led her to the center of the room. His arm fell gently over her shoulders. Her cheeks flushed with the sudden knowledge of what was coming, but she looked at him with perfect trust and unquestioning love.

"Friends and neighbors," his voice rang out so that all might hear, "I ask you to drink to the health and happiness of the future mistress of the Three Bars!"

THE END.

Corselet Skirt.

The skirts brought well above the waist line remind one a good deal of the corselet skirt that was done to death two or three years ago. It must be noted, however, that the new models do not show the seams of the old style corselet skirt above the waist line and defining it, but the material falls perfectly straight without curve to below the line of the hips. This is a model that amateurs should hesitate to attempt and women not quite sure of their carriage should never by any chance adopt it.

FRIDAY.

It's heaps of fun to be a boy,
When Friday comes along;
That day a boy don't mind a bit,
No matter what goes wrong.

Sometimes on Friday we are good,
A reg'lar model class;
The teacher smiles at 3 and says,
"The first line rise and pass."

We get our hats, our books we strap;
And whistling a tune,
We hurry out. There's nothing like
A Friday afternoon.

You say it's odd that Friday should
A part so noted play?
Just ask a boy, he'll tell you why;
The next is Saturday.

When to Breed Ewes.

Ewes should never be bred under one year of age, and in buying a flock to begin with this is as good an age as any to get them. One may have trouble, however, in getting ewes of this age, as most men like to keep their young ewes and sell off their old ones. As with other classes of live stock, older sires and dams usually give stronger and more vigorous offspring than do those bred for the first time, but the difference is not great. In fact, females thoroughly matured bred to good sires, give just as good results as their older mates. And this is as true with sheep as with other animals. Ewes from yearlings up to four years give the best results. When they get much over that it is a good plan to sell them and let the other fellow take the risk of having old, toothless ewes on his hands.—Farm Progress.

Feed for Young Pigs.

The younger an animal the more mineral matter it requires in its food, says Farm Progress. When very young pigs are growing they are producing bone very rapidly in proportion to size and consequently require more phosphate in their food, especially of lime in a soluble condition. Milk contains all the necessary substances for pigs, but after awhile they become of such size as to be unable to consume enough milk to supply them, as they must drink about eight times as much water in the milk as there are solids. To supply this deficiency cornmeal is added, but cornmeal is deficient in mineral matter. Bran, ground oats, chipstuff and finely ground clover hay (scalded) in addition to the milk and cornmeal will prove advantageous.

Seizing the Opportunity.

A little girl and her aunt went for a walk the other day, and as they walked, the aunt caught her skirt on the sharp edge of her shoe heel, and tore off several inches of lace.

"Will you tear it off for me, dear?" she asked. "I cannot mend it now."

The accommodating little girl dropped on her knee, and for several minutes there was a sound of tearing—really much more tearing than was necessary to remove a piece of lace several inches wide.

"Haven't you finished yet?" finally asked the aunt.

"Yes," said the little girl, rising wearily. "I was taking all this off, I wanted enough for my doll's skirt while I was about it, and the little bit you tore wasn't enough."—Illustrated Bits.

Reseeding Meadows.

Permanent meadows and pastures often are benefitted by reseeding. Many vacant spots produce weeds because there is no grass plant to occupy the place. If there are any tiny bare spots, it pays to sow a mixture of clover, timothy, redtop, etc, on the land in the early spring. A sharp spike tooth harrow run over the ground before and after the seeding does a lot of good. A light dressing of manure—a few loads per acre put on with a spreader—gives greater returns than when plowed down for corn, as is the usual practice. A heavy sod is a sure foundation of profit in farming, and we pay too little attention to securing it.—Alva Agee in National Stockman.

Card Party Etiquette.

From the moment of beginning the game each player should remember that it devolves upon her to pay strict attention, to play her best, and under no circumstances to criticise. She is not likely to do the latter when not interested in the game, but when indifferent, the fact is all too apt to be patent in the carelessness of her own play. This is not only inconsiderate to her partner, but rude to both her and the hostess. Each guest knew before accepting that she had been invited for cards, and did she not care to play a refusal should have been sent. Once present, it is her duty, and the part of politeness, to feign attention and interest, even though she feel none.

A Tucked Sleeve.

One gets rather weary of the everlasting sleeve formed of big, careless tucks caught up one over the other from elbow to shoulder; but a newer idea is seen in the tucked sleeve that is treated perpendicularly, not horizontally!—and the tucks are just as big and careless and loose, and taper off right up into the neckband, the rest of the blouse—the bodice part of it—overhanging a corselet skirt or one of the prevailing cummerbund belts.

Couldn't Hit Him.

Mother—"Why didn't you come tell me when that bad boy upset you in a snowbank, instead of throwing bricks at him?"

Archie—"Huh! What good would it do to tell you? You couldn't hit the broadside of a barn."

TWO SCHOOLS NECESSARY

Jacob Kirkner, Former President of Board, Discusses School Accomodations.

BUILD ONE SCHOOL AT A TIME.

Darrow Avenue Structure, He Believes, Could Be Erected for $90,000—Then Clinton Avenue to Be Considered.

Former President Jacob Kirkner, of the Plainfield Board of Education, is one of a number of West End residents who will agitate the erection of a school in the vicinity of West Front street and Clinton avenue as soon as the Darrow avenue school, for which plans have recently been submitted, is completed. In speaking of the matter to a Daily Press reporter, Mr. Kirkner said that the new West End school will not meet the needs for school accommodations in that part of the city, and that the movement for a school building north of the railroad tracks should still be actively carried on.

"The new Darrow avenue building is not going to supply the need of a school north of the railroad," said Mr. Kirkner, "but I think it wise to wait a while after the completion of this new building before actively agitating the matter of a second school in the West End. The Darrow avenue school will simply alleviate the crowded conditions that exist today in the Washington and Irving schools.

"I understand that the Washington School, which at present has seven classes, has been sold to St. Mary's church for a parochial school. At the Irving School, where there are regularly twelve classes, five extra classes, of about forty pupils each, have been formed, and in order to accommodate them in the school, it has been necessary to adopt a schedule of morning and afternoon sessions for the different classes. These are the conditions that will be improved by the erection of the Darrow avenue school, which will accommodate the Washington School classes, and the extra classes of the Irving School.

"I believe that the Darrow avenue building plans, as submitted by the architects to the Board of Education, could be bettered by another arrangement of the class rooms, which woud give freer access to the stairways. But primarily, I object to these plans for the new building as involving too great expense. If it is necessary to build another school in the West End, and Superintendent Maxson, in his report on the matter at the conference with Mayor Fisk, acknowledges that it is, the taxpayers should be consulted before such an amount ($109,000) is expended for one of the schools.

"While the new building is not an elaborate one, I believe that its cost should be reduced to about $90,000. This can be done by omitting many of the decorative features, both exterior and interior, and need not necessitate any radical change in the plans.

"I should very much like to see a second public school building erected within a short time in the vicinity of Clinton avenue and West Front street, north of the railroad, for the accommodation of the children in that community, who, under present conditions, have so far to go to school. I do not think it a good policy to expend even as much as $150,000 on two schools at one time. The taxpayers should be taken into consideration. I do think, however, that as soon as the Darrow avenue building is completed, steps should be taken for the second West End school, which should be made of sufficient size to accommodate the future as well as the present needs for a school in that locality."

For Schoolboys Meet.

The first of a series of interscholastic indoor athletic games between Cranford, Westfield and Roselle school boys has been arranged, to be held at the Athletic Club rooms at Cranford, Saturday afternoon, March 28. The program will be made up of the following events: 220-yard dash, senior; 220-yard dash, junior; 440-yard run, 800-yard run, half-mile relay race, thirty-yard dash, running high jump, standing broad jump, shot put, twelve pound. The following conditions govern the entries: Senior races, contestants must be under twenty-one years of age. Junior races, contestants must be under sixteen years of age. Special race, contestants must be under twelve years of age.

Second Team Defeated.

The first team of the Y. M. C. A. basketball players defeated the second team in a well-played game at the association gymnasium last night. The final score was 49-25. At the end of the first half, the first team was in the lead, 35-11. Collier scored the most points, getting eleven baskets and scoring once from the foul line.

Cooper Stopped Runaway.

Jumping from the rear of a truck on which he was riding, Edward Cooper, a driver employed at Stonewall Jackson's sales stables, stopped a galloping, unguided horse, belonging to Max Mintz, of the Boulevard, at the Somerset street bridge yesterday afternoon. The animal had been on a wild run down Somerset street, having slipped its bridle while Mintz was in a house on upper Somerset street, and broken away from the tie post. It was hitched to a light wagon. No one was injured in the runaway, but the horse was slightly cut. After stopping the runaway, Cooper led the frightened animal to the curb and tied it fast. It was later found by its owner.

Minstrels at Borough High School.

The Gold Medal minstrel rtoupe, which has been appearing in the suburbs for the past three years, will present its black-face entertainment in the North Plainfield High School tonight for the benefit of the athletic association. The advance sale of seats has been very large and a capacity audience is expected. The show will include the regulation first party, specialty numbers and a closing sketch.

OBITUARY.

Barney Carey.

Barney Carey, fifty-two years old, a stone mason, well known in Plainfield and Somerville, died at his home in the latter place yesterday, from a complication of diseases, after a long illness. He leaves a widow and two children. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning in the Catholic church at Somerville. Rev. Father Bogaard will officiate. Burial will be in the Union avenue cemetery near Bound Brook.

Blaze Menaces Block.

New York, March 10.—For a time grave fears were felt for the safety of the Siegel-Cooper store during the progress of a fire which broke out early this morning in the five-story building at 38 West Eighteenth street. A number of brownstone boarding houses were also in danger. Chief Croker estimates the loss at $250,000. Several of his men were injured by falling glass sent forth in showers from the burning building by a back draught. Most of these were treated by ambulance surgeons on the ground and then went back to duty.

Will Meet Salaam Temple Nobles.

The Nobles of Salaam Temple who reside in Plainfield are asked to assemble in the Masonic Hall Association tonight for the purpose of meeting Nobles Egner and Fancher from the Arab Patrol. Matters relative to the proposed entertainment to be given here in the near future will be discussed.

In the City Court.

Albert Stenka, unable to speak a word of English, was arraigned in the city court this morning, on a charge of helpless intoxication. Official Interpreter Joe Manhattan told him what he was arrested for and conveyed Judge Runyon's message for him to clear out and behave himself.

Decision Reserved In Marchne Case.

The charge against John Marchne, accused by railroad detectives of stealing a crate of eggs from a freight car, was heard in the city court after several adjournments this morning. Testimony was taken from a half dozen witnesses and at the conclusion Judge Runyon announced that he would reserve decision until Saturday.

lieve, as it is the human expression of the will of God for man.

"From the point of view of a historian, with his scientific method, the history of Israel, as set forth in the Bible is defective. But we must not make too great a demand upon the historian of Israel, but should try and appreciate his point of view. His aim was not so much to record facts as to use the historic matter in indication of the guidance of God. The prophets wrote history, using things of the past to indicate what we might expect in the future." Dr. Symonds illustrated this point at length by reference to the Biblical account of the siege of Samoria.

Speaking of the poetry of the Bible Dr. Symonds said that it was essentially epic poetry, but quite different from the epic poetry of other peoples. The honor and glory of man is never described, but the honor and glory of God is always given. This is an antithetical difference from Homeric poetry.

In conclusion, the lecturer spoke of the biographies of the Bible, stating that the most important books of the Bible are biographical. "We rise to a climax," he said, "for the first note of the Book rises and swells in its nobler strains 'til at last it bursts in the noble tone of the biography of God. We are not going to lose our Bible. Critics cannot take the Bible away from us; indeed they are striving to make it plainer, more practical and more useful to modern difficulties."

THIS DECISION HITS AT SALOON-KEEPERS.

Trenton, March 10.—According to an opinion filed in the Supreme Court yesterday in a Burlington excise case the law prohibiting a saloon or hotel within 200 feet of a church means that the distance must be measured in a direct line and not around a corner to the entrance to the place for the sale of liquor. The suit was brought by Charles M. Lanning against the Burlington Excise Board for a certiorari to review a resolution of the board refusing Lanning a license.

The Board refused to grant the license because it claimed Lanning's building was less than 200 feet from the curtilage of Broad M. E. church. The Supreme Court sustains the act of 1906, which was involved, and affirms the resolution of the Burlington board. The costs are placed on the complainant.

Counsel for Lanning held that the building was not within 200 feet of the church curtilage, as meant by the act of 1906, because the entrance was more than 200 feet distant.

BARS SALOON NEAR CHURCH.

Supreme Court Affirms the 200-foot Inhibition of License.

Justice Trenchard filed for the Supreme Court at Trenton yesterday an opinion which sustains a resolution of the Excise Board of Burlington in refusing to grant a saloon license to Charles M. Lanning, upon the ground that his hotel was within 200 feet of the Broad Street M. E. church.

The court says the purpose of the Legislature was clearly expressed in language not the least ambiguous and very definite, to the effect that no licenses shall be granted in a new place within 200 feet of a church, measured between the nearest point of the same and the nearest point of the building where in such liquors are intended to be sold.

TYLER AS A CITY FATHER

His Five Years Service in the Common Council Marked by Numerous Achievements.

SOME OF HIS WORK RECALLED.

Succeeded In Having Excise License Raised and Saloon Zone Established—Municipal Ownership Ideas.

Prompted by only the highest motives and with a desire to serve the city where he can accomplish the most good, William S. Tyler will soon retire from the Common Council, as stated in The Daily Press of yesterday, to become a member of the Board of Education, filling the vacancy caused by the death of Dr. J. B. Probasco. Although the announcement yesterday occasioned considerable surprise, it was known to his intimate friends that the change was contemplated.

Mr. Tyler is now serving his sixth year in the Common Council, having first been elected in 1903, and a fact that is perhaps is most gratifying to him is that only in one campaign has he had opposition to his candidacy. That was last fall, when Joseph M. Shellabarger was a candidate for the nomination. Those who remember the primary contest in the Third ward, know how hard the opposition fought to defeat the reformer. In that ward a nomination by the Republican party has always been equivalent to an election and with the one exception there never was any doubt about the success of Mr. Tyler's candidacy.

During the six years Mr. Tyler has been in the Council he has passed through many exciting periods in which he has been the central figure. He has had the unusual success of generally carrying his point, even when bitterly opposed by those who thought differently. This fact was demonstrated in his persistent fight to establish the saloon zone, restricting the sale of liquor to the business part of the city. He had made an exhaustive study of the subject, especially in Minneapolis, where a similar ordinance has been in force for years. When Mr. Tyler introduced the question in the Common Council, it was met with laughter and many believed it to be a good joke. This did not discourage him and after four years he saw the ordinance passed. Even those who are apposed to the Third warder in many ways, are said to agree today, that the restrictive measure is one of the best in the efforts to control the liquor business.

The part taken by Mr. Tyler in opposing the sale of liquor by John Goff on West Front street, near Clinton avenue, is considered one of his greatest achievements. As a result the legalized liquor traffic has been kept out of that residential part of the city. He was the leader in a raid on Goff's place, the results of which are still fresh in the minds of a majority of the people in Plainfield.

Following the raid came the trial of Chief of Police Kiely on charges preferred by Mr. Tyler and other members of the Common Council, and while the accused was not convicted Mr. Tyler's friends believe that the trial brought about a better condition of things in the police department. Goff was subsequently fined $1,00 for repeatedly violating the excise laws.

Among other important measures advocated by Mr. Tyler include the investigation of the city water supply with a view to obtaining a municipal plant and the efforts to obtain a better electric light contract with the Public Service Corporation, both of which were started by Mr. Tyler and later taken up by other committees.

Still another thing accomplished by Mr. Tyler was the raising of the liquor license fee from $700 to $1,000 in the face of strong opposition, backed by the New Jersey Retail Liquor Dealers' Association. The adoption of this ordinance has resulted in an increase in the fee in other parts of the State.

Mr. Tyler has also had decided views on many questions of public importance. He has opposed an increase in wages to firemen and policemen, believing that they are well paid; he has always been opposed to the issue of bonds of a large denomination, except in the erection of public schools and sewer improvements. His plan has been to issue short time notes in small amounts for improvements so that they can easily and readily be retired.

The Third ward member has served on nearly every committee in the Common Council and has been chairman of some of the most important ones. His faithfulness in attending sessions of the Common Council and looking out for the city's interest is a matter of record and his colleagues without a single exception have expressed regret that he is to retire from the body.

Mr. Tyler's resignation as a Coun-

MRS. JOHN M. WHITON TELLS OF HER TRAVELS

The women of the Congregational church held a reception at the church yesterday afternoon, at which time Mrs. John M. Whiton, who recently returned from a trip abroad, gave an informal talk of much interest. She spoke more especially of the trip through the Mediterranean, and of her visit to Gibraltar, Spain, Greece and Constantinople. She also distributed many beautiful photographs taken on the journey, which gave an excellent idea of the places visited.

At the close of Mrs. Whiton's talk, Mr. Whiton happened to stop in at the meeting and he gave an interesting account of the Sultan going to prayers, accompanied by a thousand soldiers. He witnessed this sight and the description was all the more enjoyable.

During the first part of the program Mrs. Theodore Mantz, soprano, favored the audience with a solo. The church parlors were tastefully decorated for the occasion by a committee comprising Mrs. Curtis Bates, Mrs. C. L. Goodrich, Miss McIntosh and Miss Bessie Millar. They also had charge of the refreshments which were served during the social half-hour following the reception.

ITALIAN MISSIONARY TO TELL OF HIS WORK

The bi-monthly congress of the local Christian Endeavor Union will be held tomorrow night at the First Presbyterian church. At 7:30 o'clock there will be a discussion of work by the prayer meeting committee, of which Charles Neagle is the chairman. All members of prayer meeting committees in the various societies, together with others who may be interested, are invited.

The regular session will begin at 8 o'clock, when the secretary will present several important communications and amendments to the constitution will be made. The nominating committee appointed at the last mass meeting will present its report. "Work Among the Italians" will be the subject of a talk to be given by Rev. Mr. Serafini, of Trenton, who will also present plans for carrying on a similar work in Plainfield.

It was expected that State President J. T. Sproull, of Arlington, would attend, but another engagement prevents his from doing so. He will be present at the meeting to be held here in May, when questions pertaining to holding the State Christian Endeavor Convention in Plainfield in 1909, will be discussed.

SALVATION ARMY NATIONAL STAFF BAND TO PLAY.

Captain and Mrs. Victor Jones, of Elizabeth, will conduct the meeting tomorrow night in the Salvation Army Hall on East Second street, at 8 o'clock.

Captain Lewis Larkin will be the leader next Saturday night, and Adjutant Walter Mabee will conduct the meetings next Sunday.

Captain Hopkins has arranged for the National Staff Band to visit the city and conduct musical evangelistic services on Saturday and Sunday, March 28 and 29.

Men's Club Entertainment.

Under the auspices of the Men's Club of the Congregational church an excellent entertainment was given last night by George Duryea, humorist and story-teller. A musical program was expected, but the artists disappointed the club. After Mr. Duryea furnished an hour's entertainment, refreshments were served. The club decided to expend $20 for a stereopticon lantern for use in the church and one new member was elected.

Musical Entertainment at Trinity.

A musical and literary entertainment will be given at Trinity Reformed church, Monday night, March 23, by the quartet choir of the church, assisted by Miss Justine Roberts, elocutionist, of Brooklyn. The affair will be held in the lecture room under the auspices of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of the church and a program of exceptional merit will be presented. An offering of twenty-five cents will be received at the door.

For Road Supervisor.

Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union, introduced in the State Senate at Trenton yesterday a bill authorizing the State Roads Commission to expend $3,600 a year for the services of a supervisor to examine plans and specifications for roads.

To Modify Pure Food Law.

Senator Frelinghuysen, of Somerset, introduced in the State Senate yesterday a bill amending the pure food law of 1907. The measure permits the sale and distribution of modified milk for the use of infants.

FIRE DRILLS GALORE NOW

Pupils Have Practise at the Morning Exercises in all Local Schools.

TWO DRILLS AT N. P. H. S.

Schools To Have Alarm Bells In All Assembly Rooms—Fire Escapes at P. H. S.

Aroused to the realization of a flaw in the fire drill system of the local schools by an unexpected fire drill during the morning singing exercise at the Plainfield High School yesterday morning, city and borough schools had fire drills during the morning exercises this morning. At the Plainfield High School, the alarm was again sounded this morning, and the pupils filed out quickly and without confusion. At the North Plainfield High School there was also a drill, and the pupils made their usual quick time to the exits, despite the fact that the alarm was sounded while the school was singing when the bell was sounded. All the teachers were in the assembly room, and County Supervisor Henry C. Krebs was leading the singing when the alarm sounded. The bell was perfectly audible above the music.

Not satisfied with emptying the building in the record time of fifty seconds for 750 pupils, using all the exits, Mr. Krebs had a second fire drill, he had given instructions to have the pupils follow their teachers, and this morning had the main entrance of the building locked, so that the pupils who generally leave by this door, had to go to the north door of the building.

This plan of cutting off one exit was not announced before hand, except in a general way in the rules made public at the school yesterday. When the boy monitors ran ahead of the classes to open the doors of the main entrance, Mr. Krebs told them to leave it shut and locked. The 180 pupils who generally leave by this entrance, followed their teachers when they found the door locked, and there was not the slightest disorder. The building was emptied in two minutes and fifteen seconds.

Mr. Krebs announced today that an alarm signal connecting the two schools with the North Plainfield fire department will be immediately installed. This will summon the fire apparatus by the mere pressing of a button.

More Alarm Bells.

Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, of the Plainfield schools, gave orders yesterday for fire alarm signal gongs to be installed in the assembly rooms of all the schools. This will be done at once. At the Plainfield High School five more alarm bells will be immediately installed, in addition to the four already situated in the buildings. The new bells will be situated in the gymnasium, the manual training room, the typewriting room, the janitor's office and the auditorium. It is reported that these bells are to have a different sound from the bells heretofore, which sound very much like the bells in use to indicate the change of recitation periods, and may be confused with them.

After having had the matter under consideration for the past two months the Plainfield Board of Education has finally decided to have fire escapes put at the blind exits of the High School auditorium. An iron platform, with steps leading to the ground, will be immediately installed.

The matter has been pending action by the board since the erection of the new building. At each side of the auditorium, near the stage, is a large door. These doors were designed for fire exits, but no means of descent to the ground was provided when the building was formally accepted by the Board of Education. From the door sill to the ground is a distance of about six feet. The matter of having a fire escape built at each of these exits has been persistently agitated by one of the High School teachers.

"Shower" for Miss Ernestine Smith.

In honor of Miss Ernestine C. Smith, of Madison avenue, a "shower party" was given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Asa F. Randolph at her home on Park avenue. There were about thirty guests and each one brought a dainty gift for Miss Smith, accompanied with appropriate rhymes. During the afternoon refreshments were served and Miss Smith in addition to the gifts received the hearty congratulations of her friends.

Funeral of Mrs. James Breakey.

The funeral service of Mrs. James Breakey was held yesterday afternoon from the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Winans, on Somerset street. Rev. L. R. Howard, of Hope chapel, officiated. The burial was in Hillside cemetery and the pall-bearers, all nephews of Mrs. Breakey, were Isaac Winans, Silas Winans, Truman Bilyeu, Clarence Bilyeu, Walter Titus and Samuel Titus.

SHARPERS GOT HIS COIN

Two Suave Strangers Deposit a "Diamond" as Security for Loan of $25.

POLICE AFTERWARDS NOTIFIED.

Pretending to Be Friends of Former Hotel Proprietor, Pair of Bunco Men Work Their Game Here.

During one of the busy periods at a North avenue hotel early last night, a couple of genteel strangers entered the place and inquired of Proprietor W. J. Poulson if "Al" Staats, who formerly owned the hostelry, was about the premises. When told that he had sold out and gone to Florida, the two men seemed greatly disappointed and held a conference between themselves in a corner. In a few moments they returned to the desk, one of them taking a diamond ring from his finger and putting it in an envelope. He asked Mr. Poulson if he would be kind enough to place the trinket in his safe until morning, remarking at the same time that the two were going out for a short walk but would return later to engage a room for the night.

The proprietor complied and was about to put the ring away when the same man grew confidential and asked, on the strength of his old-time friendship with "Al" Staats, if Mr. Poulson could let him have a $25 loan on it. Mr. Poulson could and he did. He is an old time hotel man and a former sheriff of Hunterdon county and argued with himself that he certainly knew a good stone when he saw it. He believed the one he held was worth at least twice the loan asked for.

The strangers failed to return after the hour they said they would and late last night Mr. Poulson concluded to have a second look at the ring. When he got it out where the rays of an electric light shone full upon it, he simply said "stung" and got in touch with the police.

Today all the cops in the city are looking for two friends of "Al" Staats. One of them, who handed up the ring, is described as being about five feet eleven inches in height, apparently thirty-five years old and smooth shaven. He wore a white vest and a brown derby. His companion appeared to be sixty years old, had mixed gray hair and a Van Dyke beard. He also wore a brown derby.

NEW PRIMARY BILL.

Limits State Supervision to First-class Cities.

Senator Everett Colby yesterday introduced in the State Senate a bill that is a duplicate to the measure extending State supervision to primaries for delegates to State and Congressional conventions that in turn select delegates to the national party conventions. The original bills are opposed by the party bosses.

The Colby bill would limit the State's supervision to first-class counties. It is not believed that such a plan would hold water, as it appears to those discussing it that the State should supervise some primaries and that others should be held simultaneously under partisan supervision.

Miss Force Entertained Her Class.

Miss Lillian A. Force, of Duer street, entertained her Sunday-school class from Trinity Reformed church, last night. There are ten members of the class and there was only one absent. The young women had a most delightful evening playing games and enjoying the social features. Refreshments were served under the direction of Miss Force and altogether the gathering proved a pleasant and profitable one.

Permanent Stage Lights.

A permanent system of electric lights for the stage of the Plainfield High School auditorium is to be installed immediately. Superintendent Maxson arranged for this innovation yesterday, because the temporary wiring for wing lights and overhead lights is not considered safe. The new wiring will be completed for use by Saturday night, when the junior class of the school is to give a play in the auditorium.

Made $50 For N. P. H. S. A. A.

The North Plainfield High School Athletic Association netted more than $50 last night as the result of a black-face entertainment by the Gold Metal minstrel troupe. The money will be used for the purchase of baseball and track uniforms for the teams. Clarence Steiner was chairman of the school committee in charge of the entertainment.

Admitted to New Jersey Bar.

W. Lester Glenney, of Stelle avenue, a New York lawyer, who recently passed the New Jersey State examination, was admitted to the New Jersey bar today at Trenton.

M'CAULEY WAS SCRAPPY

CITY BLUECOAT GIVES HELP.

Roundsman Messler Finally Arrests Fighting Prisoner, Who Is Kept Overnight In City Jail.

Arrested through the combined efforts of city and borough police officers, James McCauley, who has a police court in North Plainfield as a hard drinker, was taken to the city lock-up by Patrolman Messler shortly before midnight yesterday and transferred to a borough cell this morning by Marshal Lemuel Pope. McCauley escaped arrest by the borough policeman by running across the Somerset street bridge and then engaging Pops in a rough and tumble fist fight just over the county line. Pope's whistle for help brought Messler, who locked McCauley up for the night.

When Pope came to the city court this morning to get his prisoner, he handcuffed his hands behind his back as soon as he was brought from the cell. Chief Kiely refused to allow him to lead the prisoner through the streets in this way and the officer had to return to North Plainfield police headquarters for the key to the nippers before he could take him to the borough jail.

Late pedestrians of Somerset street saw a fierce bare fist fight between the borough officer and his prisoner, who rolled together on the brick pavement just out of the borough limits. McCauley got in a fight with a man in front of a Somerset street saloon. Blows were exchanged and McGauley knocked the fellow down. Pope heard the rumpus and started in pursuit of his man. The race ended near the bridge, where the officer engaged with his man. The two rolled about on the ground. Pope striving to choke McCauley. The prisoner beat, punched and kicked the officer, and a by-stander finally got possession of Pope's whistle and blew for assistance. Messler came up, and as the borough marshal by that time had the handcuffs on his man, the arrest was easy.

McCauley is now in a borough cell, and will come up for a hearing before Borough Recorder Dolliver at the session of court tonight.

ENTERTAINS PLAYMATES ON BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY.

In celebration of his tenth birthday, Clifford Feiring, son of William Feiring, entertained thirty of his playmates at his grandmother's home on Harrison avenue, yesterday afternoon. The children enjoyed music and games for several hours, a donkey party being one of the features. For this prizes were awarded, Willie Rilling geeting first, Gussie Bremer second and Pauline Maury the booby. Refreshments were served in conclusion.

The decorations in the dining room were pink and white and were very pretty. Master Feiring received many presents appropriate to the occasion.

"Western Cyclone" to Speak.

The members of the Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union will hereafter hold its meetings Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock, instead of 3 o'clock as before. Monday afternoon, Miss Lounsbury led the devotional service and Miss Nettie Beeching taught the lesson. The topic was "An Aid to Sympathy," taken from Miss Margaret Slattery's text book on "Talks with the Training Class." At the institute to be held on May 26, C. D. Meigs, of Indianapolis, known as "The Western Cyclone," will speak. He is the international Sunday-school secretary.

Home Department Conference.

There will be a conference of the Home Departments of the Plainfield, Westfield and Fanwood Sunday-schools in Trinity Reformed church, Wednesday afternoon, March 18, at 2:30 o'clock, at which time Mrs. Karnell, the county superintendent, is anxious to have a large number present. The home department visitors of Trinity Reformed church will assist at an informal reception to be held after the meeting.

Changes at the Hospital.

In the appointment of assistants to the medical staff at Muhlenberg Hospital by the Board of Governors, Dr. P. B. Cregar will take the position of assistant in the X-ray department, while Dr. Frederick J. Hughes, a new appointment, takes Dr. Cregar's place.

GRAND ARMY VETERANS ARE WELL ENTERTAINED

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., gave an entertainment in G. A. R. headquarters, last night, which was largely attended by veterans from Elizabeth, Rahway and this city, together with members of the Women's Relief Corps and friends of the organizations. I. L. McVoy was in charge of the program. The gathering was notable for the fact that there were three past department commanders present, W. C. Smith, of this city; John Atkinson, of Elizabeth, and James D. Atwood, of Massachusetts. Each one made a short address, as did also Dr. John Younglove, of Elizabeth, and Commander Harry Barnes, of the Rahway Post.

An interesting part of the program was the music furnished by Comrade Joseph Wright's phonograph, which was operated by Elston Leonard. The machine is an especially fine one and a large number of records were used. In addition H. Warren Rankin, of Sandford avenue, entertained the company with a clever performance of sleight-of-hand. After the entertainment about thirty lunchboxes were sold and a large sum realized as profit. W. C. Smith was the auctioneer. Those who purchased the boxes then enjoyed refreshments and a social time.

$100,000 WATERWAY IS FORT'S DEMAND

Governor Fort sent to the Legislature yesterday a special message transmitting the report of an investigation made by the State Board of Geological Survey respecting an inland waterway along the Atlantic coast between Barnegat bay and Cape May.

Governor Fort in his message favors the waterway and urges an appropriation of $100,000 at the present session to construct that part of the waterway which will lie between Barnegat bay and Atlantic City, a distance of thirty-two miles.

He also urged the passage of Senator Hand's bill for the creation of a State Waterways Commission.

The commission's report estimates that the waterway for pleasure boats from Bay Head to Cape May, 100 feet wide and six feet deep, may be built for $278,000.

While the message was being received Speaker Jess was holding for delivery to the clerk's desk the bill of Senator Hand for the Inland Waterways Commission. He immediately put the bill in the House, and it passed finally, only needing the signature of the Governor to be effective.

Funeral of Dennis Bermingham.

The funeral of Dennis Bermingham was held in St. Mary's church this morning, when a solemn requiem mass was said for the repose of his soul. It was said by Father Delehanty as celebrant, Father Dunphy, of Dunellen, as deacon and Father Sciolla as sub-deacon. The floral tributes were very numerous and included set pieces from Court Plainfield, I. O. F., the Machinists' Union and the Pond Tool Beneficial Association. Delegations from each of these organizations attended the funeral. Burial was made in St. Mary's cemetery, the following acting as pall-bearers: Cornelius McCarthy, Daniel McAfee, John Hines, Jeremiah Callahan, Frank McCabe and David Doyle.

P. S. C. to Install Catch Basins.

Mayor Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield, in company with F. H. Gordon, road master of the P. S. C., made a tour of inspector of the borough trolley system this morning and as a result of requests by the Mayor, catch basins will be immediately installed between the trolley rails at Codington avenue and a point several hundred feet south of Pearl street. At these places, standing water gathers between the rails and makes the roadway muddy because the water on the tracks cannot be carried off by the borough storm sewers.

Ladies' Aid Society Elects.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church elected these officers at the annual meeting held in Vincent chapel, yesterday afternoon: President, Mrs. L. M. French; first vice president, Mrs. Nelson A. Miller; second vice president, Mrs. Henry A. McGee; secretary, Mrs. Charles H. Lyman; treasurer, Mrs. Nelson Y. Hull. The reports for the year showed the society to be in fine condition, financially and otherwise.

George L. Homan's Funeral.

The funeral of George L. Homan, who died suddenly Sunday morning, was held yesterday afternoon at the home of his father, J. P. Homan, of Putnam avenue. Rev. A. C. McCrea, of the First M. E. church, officiated. Burial was made in Hillside cemetery.

DEAL IN LOCAL PERMITS

Prisoner Tells of New York Concern's Traffic in Peddlers Licenses for Plainfield.

BARGAIN PRICES PREVAIL.

According to Lipkitz, a Grant Street, New York, Firm Has a Variety On Sale at Twenty-five Cents a Day.

Through the arrest of Max Lipkitz, a young New Yorker who was caught by Patrolman Saffron yesterday as he was about to begin peddling gas mantles on Liberty street without a license, the local police learned today that a clever scheme of buying and selling Plainfield permits of this kind exists in the metropolis. The prisoner was arraigned in the city court this morning and in the course of a plea to be let go told Judge Runyon that if he wanted to be dishonest he could have secured a license issued under another name at a cost of seventy-five cents a week.

"Your Honor," said Lipkitz, "there's a wholesale supply house on Grant street, New York, known as Cooperberg's, where they have licenses to peddle in nearly every city and town in northern New Jersey. They are taken out by peddlers who afterward quit the territory and the house buys the permit, afterward renting it out until the time expires. When I started to sell mantles after being thrown out of my work as a printer, I was offered licenses in Plainfield, Hackensack, Englewood and Montclair for twenty-five cents a day or seventy-five cents for each week. In this way, the wholesale house gets back what was paid for the license and the young peddlers just starting out are not compelled to invest from $10 to $25 for a permit in each place they visit."

Judge Runyon advised Chief Kiely that it would be policy for the police to look into the Cooperberg scheme and keep a watchout for the licenses about town in the possession of lessees. A large number have been taken up for this reason within the past two years and the number will probably be doubled. Judge Runyon also suggested that steps be taken to adopt some scheme whereby the man to whom the license is issued might be identified upon it, a matter that will be taken up in the near future. Lipkitz was let go on suspended sentence.

ACTOR AND PLAYWRIGHT COME NEAR TO BLOWS.

A dispute between author and star, at rehearsal, yesterday, regarding how the actor should read his lines, resulted almost in fisticuffs. The author who assumed the aggressive was Cecil B. deMille and the star in question was Cyril Scott. The playwright in the first heat snatched the manuscript from the prompter and started for the exit, but he was intercepted by one Samuel Claggett who, incidentally is the manager of Scott and is making the production. William deMille, co-author with Cecil of the play, entered at this dramatic moment and tried to pacify his brother, but the argument between Scott and Cecil became so heated that the members of the company began to take sides with the result that everyone got mixed up in the dispute.

The part that the deMilles have written for Scott is that of a young Irish aristocrat who has crossed the Atlantic and entered the service of the Canadian Mounted Police. Cecil deMille was not satisfied with the way that Scott was dealing out the "brogue of the dialogue." The star claimed to know more about it than the author and said that he would throw up the part rather than make the young hero a conventional stage Irishman. Young deMille had saturated himself with the real dialect of the "ould sod" through association with recent arrivals from County Clare, and that Scott being an American-born actor, of necessity would require to acquire the proper accent. Mr. Claggett came to the rescue at this juncture, "Where were you born Cyril?" Why "in the heart of Ireland, of course. Not more than three miles from the spot where the hero of this play was born."

Young deMille stepped back and looked around in an abashed manner for a moment; then he stretched out his hand to Scott and said "I think I'll try and educate some of these "Canucks" in the play—I'm much nearer home in that." And the rehearsal proceeded. The show will be produced tomorrow night at the New Plainfield theatre.

LaBau Secures His Release.

Nelson LaBau, of Clinton avenue, who was arrested yesterday on a charge of false pretense and held in $500 bail, secured his release last night. The bail was furnished by William Hamilton, of South Plainfield.

RETIRED BUSINESS MAN FAVORS NEW THEORY

E. H. Lambert, of Everett, Massachusetts, Believes Stomach the Seat of Life.

One of the most interesting statements made recently concerning the much discussed Cooper theory, that has spread over the country during the past year, is made by E. H. Lambert, a retired business man, whose home is at 115 Francis Street, Everett, Mass.

Mr. Lambert has this to say in connection with Cooper and his medicines: "Some time ago I read an article about this man Cooper, in which he claimed that stomach trouble was directly responsible for most ill health. He went on to say that, although his medicine did nothing but get the stomach in sound condition, it would, in many cases, remove kidney and liver trouble and various other ailments. He argued from this that the stomach was the main cause of sickness, and stated that the success he has had with his medicines was due entirely to this fact.

"I am now fully convinced that this theory is correct, and believe Cooper has a really remarkable medicine, judging from my own experience.

"I have been a sick man for five years. Three years ago I was told by a physician that I had Bright's disease of the kidneys. I have treated constantly for this trouble since, without results. After reading the article I have mentioned, I purchased some of this man Cooper's medicine. I have been astounded by what it has done for me. I was relieved to some extent within 24 hours. Today my health is better than for five years, and so far as I can tell, my kidney trouble has disappeared.

"My wife, who had stomach trouble for some time, tried the preparation after noting its action in my case, and her improvement is fully as marked as mine. She now eats heartily three times a day without any distress whatsoever. Her nervousness has also left her. I certainly believe this man's success is fully justified, as he undoubtedly has a wonderful medicine."

We will gladly describe the remarkable record made by the Cooper medicines to all who wish to know of them.

ATLANTIC COUNTY PROSECUTOR NAMED

Governor Fort took the Atlantic county Prosecutor fight in his own hands at Trenton, yesterday, turned down the demands of both the "organization" and the "reform" elements and named an independent Republican to the office by sending to the Senate the nomination of Clarence L. Goldenberg, following the precedent he established when he named an outsider in the Bergen county judgeship fight. The nomination was accompanied by one of the Governor's characteristic statements.

This action by the Governor is more of a slap at the "organization" than at the "reform" wing of the Atlantic county Republicans. It is a particularly severe blow at the gambling element of the seaside resort, which has every reason to fear the campaign which Goldenberg will wage against all wrongdoing. Goldenberg was not mentioned among those urged for appointment. Senator Wilson, Assemblyman Keffer and the organization backed Henry J. Wootton, City Solicitor of Atlantic City, while Colonel Walter Edge, Henry W. Leeds and some of the leading hotel men there wanted C. C. Babcock.

Governor Fort's statement follows:

"Clarence L. Goldenberg, appointed Prosecutor of Atlantic, is about forty years old. His father was a Jerseyman, and he was born in Cape May, in this State. His father was first lieutenant in the Thirty-seventh New Jersey regiment in the Civil War and was severely wounded. His father moved to Philadelphia when he was quite a young man, but he returned to this State in 1902 and located in Atlantic City. He was admitted an attorney in 1903 and a counsellor in 1906. In the great reform fight in Atlantic City in October, 1905, which resulted in the exposure of the Common Council and the resigning therefrom of several members on account of alleged frauds and bribery in the Trinidad Lake asphalt contract, he was the lawyer who unearthed the corruption and compelled the resignations at that time, representing the Citizens' League, composed of twenty-six representative citizens in Atlantic City. In all this work he acted gratuitously, refusing compensation. He is recognized and is known as an independent Republican."

Other nominations made yesterday were: Member of the State Board of Education, Ninth district, Ulamor Allen, of the County of Hudson, reappointed.

Manager of Sanatorium for Tuberculosis Diseases, Theodore Senseman, of the County of Atlantic, reappointed.

Tenement House Supervisor, Edwin West, Jr., of Bergen, re-appointed.

Fish and Game Commissioner, William A. Logue, of Cumberland, re-appointed.

Manager of State Village for Epileptics, Mrs. Brice Collard, of Hudson.

All appointments were received in executive session and referred to the Judiciary Committee for confirmation later.

DE ALVANDROS IS IN PATERSON JAIL

Paterson, March 11.—Four of the principals in the shooting of Charles de Alvandros Saturday night by his supposed mother-in-law are now in the county jail. Martha Hurd, the much married young woman, who Alvandros says he married in New York three months ago, and Edwin Hurd, her Paterson husband, were committed yesterday afternoon, after being subjected to a "third degree" examination by Police Chief Bimson and the policemen. Mrs. Hurd at first denied that she was married to Alvandros, but later admitted that a ceremony might have been performed without her knowledge.

"I first met Alvandros about a year ago when I went to him to have my fortune told," she said, "and he invited me to have a drink with him in a saloon in Eighth avenue. I remembered nothing after taking the drink, and I am sure I was drugged. Next morning Alvandros said we were married."

After the shooting, about midnight Saturday, Mrs. Hurd, her husband and her mother fled from the Governor street home and walked ten miles to Teaneck. It was daylight when they reached there and took a car for Fort Lee. Mrs. Hurd and her husband declared that they had made up their minds to return to Paterson when the police located them.

Police Chief Bimson is convinced that Alvandros, besides being a bigamist, has a record in other ways that should be investigated. He believes that Alvandros has been implicated in swindling operations in various cities.

Mrs. Winfield S. Decker and daughter, Miss Ada Decker, of West Fourth street, are spending a week with relatives at Mariners Harbor, Staten Island.

Dr. Charles B. Mathewson, of Sandford avenue, is able to be out again after being detained at home for a number of weeks with an attack of grip and stomach trouble.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Thrown to the street when a team he was driving was struck by a trolley car at Third and Berkley streets, Camden, yesterday, David B. Collier, of 4 South Second street, sustained several bruises.

Charged with demanding a nickel from Joseph Shreve on the street and making a threat, David Clark, colored, who says he lives in Philadelphia, was sent to jail in default of $1,000 bail in Camden police court yesterday.

Roy Woolley, eighteen years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Woolley, of 132 Main avenue, Ocean Grove, was found yesterday in the basement of the Neptune Township High School. He was removed to his home, where he is under the care of Dr. W. K. Robinson. He appears mentally unbalanced.

The victim of a revolver which he did not know was loaded, William Burgess, twenty years old, of 1056 South Second street, Camden, died in Cooper Hospital last night from a bullet wound of the stomach. Burgess was cleaning what he thought was an empty revolver when a cartridge that had been left in the chamber exploded.

Rev. G. D. Hadley, pastor of St. John's Protestant Episcopal church of West Hoboken, last night notified the vestry of St. John's Protestant Episcopal church, Jersey City, that he had decided to accept the call to that church. He will be prepared to take charge of the parish next June, when Rev. Elmer S. Forbes, rector, who resigned, will leave to take up social settlement work.

While answering an alarm for a small fire in Broadway yesterday the firemen of Neptune Hose of Long Branch had a thrilling experience. They entered Broadway about two minutes before the Oceanic Engine Company. There was a race, and the Neptune led by a good distance, but the Oceanics were gaining. As the Neptunes reached Second avenue and Broadway there was a sudden bump and the front axle parted. On galloped the horses, while the driver tried to bring them up. The animals went about two hundred yards before they were stopped. The Oceanics, who were tearing along behind them, escaped a collision only by the skilful horsemanship of the driver.

TO INSPECT GRADE CROSSINGS.

State Railroad Commission Orders Inspectors to Visit Every One in State and Make Report.

At yesterday's meeting of the State Railroad Commission at Trenton orders were issued to inspectors to visit all grade crossings in the State and report on the degree of perfection provided by the railroad corporations.

The commission received a petition from Wharton against the rebuilding of a powder plant near the tracks of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, it being held that the rebuilding of the mill on the old site will be a constant menace to life and property. The old mill was recently blown up.

BIDS SOUGHT AT RAHWAY.

Contractors Who Desire Reformatory Inmates' Services Asked to Submit Proposals.

Rahway, March 11.—The services of 100 inmates of Rahway Reformatory for five years are soon to be available to any contractor who desires to employ them. Proposals are being sought by the management from outside bidders for such work as may be approved by the commissioners. Contractors are asked to state the highest sum guaranteed earned daily by each inmate employed, the amount of finished product expected monthly and the extra pay that will be allowed to the inmates for work in excess of that regularly stipulated.

Any changes made on the premises necessary to the manufacture of any particular line of goods must be paid for by the contractor, whose clerking and superintending force must also be paid for by him. Proposals will be opened March 25 at the reformatory.

OPPOSED TO ANNEXATION.

Belleville Township Will Fight Bill to Make It a Part of Newark.

Belleville, March 11.—Residents of Belleville Township opposed to the annexation of the municipality to Newark have issued a circular to citizens urging them to fight the project and aid in defeating the bill soon to be presented to the Legislature.

The circular declares that a local government is in a better position to know the needs of a community and to care for them than a governing body four miles away. A community that has increased in population ninety-two per cent. in ten years, it says, should be allowed to continue its growth without being hampered by change of government, unless it can be shown there is something radically wrong in the system in which such growth occurred. The Firemen's Relief Association has appointed a committee to go to Trenton and oppose the annexation scheme.

NEW POLICE HEADQUARTERS.

Old Rooms at Elizabeth Being Abandoned for a More Commodious Habitation.

Elizabeth, March 11. — Police headquarters here are being changed from the rear of the city hall to the front part of the building, which has been entirely renovated for the purpose. In their new abode the Elizabeth police will have as commodious quarters as any department of its kind in the State. There is a private room for the chief, one for the captain and a separate room for the sergeants and deskman, while the rear room adjoining the cells is for the patrolmen. There are ten cells, six for men and four for women. All the rooms are heated by steam and lighted by electricity. The court judge has a fine room in which to hold his court, and also has a private room. The ceilings are twelve feet high.

Manager Stallings is a great admirer of Kid Elberfield, the peppery shortstop of the New York Americans. Elberfield was brought out by Stallings when the latter was manager of the Detriot Americans. In those days, said Stallings a few days ago, Elberfield was referred to as "The Human Fire Cracker" by Detroit fans.

Jack Cullom, who umpired in the Atlantic League last season, has filed an application with President P. T. Powers for a trial in the Eastern League next season. Despite the turbulent times in the outlaw circuit Cullom stuck through the season and was rated as the most competent official in the league. Cullom also officiated successfully at Summit, Plainfield and Westfield in past seasons.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

There will be an eventful opening at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night, when Cyril Scott will appear for the first time in the new play called "The Royal Mounted." It has for its leading character a young lieutenant of Canadian Northwestern Mounted Police, who is ordered to start on a mission of life or death to run to earth an outlaw. The story savors of strong melodrama, but it is said to be of the class of "The Great Divide" and "The Squawman." Besides containing a plentiful sprinkling of comedy, the names of the authors warrant this assumption and the star of the attraction has never been known to lend himself to the commonplace of dramatic work. Samuel Claggett, under whose direction Mr. Scott has appeared during the past three seasons, has had the play in preparation for several months, and the warrant is an evidence that company and production will be of the highest order.

"The Travelling Salesman," a new comedy by James Forbes, author of "The Chorus Lady," will be presented by Henry B. Harris with Thomas W. Ross as star at the New Plainfield theatre, Saturday afternoon and night. The new play is in three acts and has to do with a travelling salesman whose business takes him to a small town in the Middle West known as Grand Crossing, which is just at that time in the excitement of a land boom. Beth Elliott, an enterprising American girl, owns a piece of property left her by her father which adjoins the township, and which is at present in the hands of the local authorities for sale because of unpaid taxes. A certain Martin Drury with whom the travelling salesman works, has been informed that the railroad wishes to acquire the land for an improvement of their tracks, and he proceeds to buy it and cheat Miss Elliott out of her just profit. But the travelling salesman who has fallen in love with the girl takes a hand in the matter himself, which brings up a number of complications which are said to be extremely dramatic and very amusing. The cast supporting Mr. Ross is a fine one, including as it does Marion Kerby, William Beach, May McCabe, Percival Moore, Arthur Shaw, Harry D. Blakemore, Maud Sinclair, Ernest Lamson, Edward M. Dresser, Nicholas Burnham, R. C. Turner, Frances Golden Fuller, and Martin Fuller.

Reports to the effect that Thomas E. Shea's new piece, "A Soldier of the Cross," is the best vehicle in which he has been seen, will be appreciated when Cohan and Harris present him at the New Plainfield theatre on March 27 and 28. Besides the new play, that popular classic, "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," will be revived with an elaborate production. A well known company of players, it is said, will support Mr. Shea.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

No doubt you are now planning to have your house painted and papered and it will be to your advantage to let Charles Conover & Co., of Elmwood place do the work. Prices reasonable.

Mystery of the Woods.

Califon, March 11.—Mystery surrounds the finding of two women's hats and fur boa in a secluded spot in Hell Mountain, one mile from Mountainville, along the road leading from that place to Fairmount. The hats and boa are in the possession of former Freeholder David Clark Farley, of Mountainville. They were found Saturday by Mr. Farley alongside of a tie heap, and as yet no clue has been found of the owners. Some persons believe the owners have been murdered and their bodies are hidden in the wooded lands thereabouts. Searching parties have been organized and the greater part of the mountain searched, but without result. The hats are red, trimmed with black ribbon, but contain no marks of the maker or any clue as to where they were purchased. The boa is about four feet in length and of high grade.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

Unless the unforseen should happen, the coming season will go down as a memorable one in golf history. Most important, or, at least, of most general interest at this time, is the international phase of the game, of which there are unmistakable signs of activity along several lines.

The first instalment of American women golfers sailed for the other side a few days ago. They were three Boston experts—the Misses Phelps and Miss Alice Underwood. Later Miss Margaret Curtis, the national titleholder, and her sister Harriet, the former champion, may decide to repeat their visits of a year ago. From this vicinity, Miss Elsa Hurlbut, the well known Morris county player, who was secretary of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association last year, will sail shortly.

Something decidedly novel, however, is the proposed invasion of the foreign links by a number of prominent college boys. Ellis Knowles, of Yale, the present intercollegiate champion, and W. T. West, of Princeton, will head a team of American collegians. They may be joined by Robert Abbott, of Yale; W. H. Wilder and W. Fellowes Morgan, Jr., of Harvard, and Ralph Peters, Jr., of Princeton. As the golfers mentioned are among the best in the college world on this side of the Atlantic, they would constitute a team in every way representative.

Plans relative to this trip are now being perfected. The players are keen to go, and the only thing that may stand in the way is the securing of paternal consent. The only previous instance on record where rival collegians of this country and Great Britain met in international conflict on the links was in 1903, when the Oxford-Cambridge team made its memorable visit to America. How well this team, so ably captained by John L. Low, acquitted itself while here is to this day the subject of frequent "nineteenth hole" sessions. The visitors, it will be remembered, won every match they played save one, and among their victims was a team representing the Intercollegiate Golf Association.

There has been a marked advancement in the game in this country since then, especially among the college boys. H. Chandler Egan twice won the national championship while a student at Harvard, and only last July W. T. West, of Princeton, had every one guessing because of his sensational rounds in the national tournament of Euclid. The players who are likely to go abroad next summer are unquestionably strong, both individually and collectively. Abbott has been famous for several years as a titanic driver. His reaching of the second green at the Nassau Country Club during the last intercollegiate championship with a drive and a cleek is an instance of his prowess. This hole is five hundred yards long and uphill.

BASEBALL.

It cannot be denied that there is considerable disappointment in the announced plans and schedule for this season by the Inter-City Amateur Baseball League and in the minds of many fans there is considerable doubt as to the wisdom of forming a four team league, comprising Y. M. C. A., Clinton Avenue, Scotch Plains and the Jr. O. U. A. M. The strength of the first three named clubs is known, but practically nothing is known about the team to be put in the field by the Juniors. Besides the arrangement is not going to produce the rivalry desired.

There was a movement on foot to form a league which would take in Somerville, High Bridge, Flemington, Elizabeth and Plainfield. With such a combination of six teams, including two from this city, there would be such a revival of the game as has not been seen here since the old days.

The fans along the line were red hot for such a league, but according to the present outlook the lovers of baseball in this city will be doomed to disappointment. Not that the four team league will fail to play good ball, perhaps, but they will meet so often that before the season is half over the result can be predicted. Everyone here knows the kind of a game put up by the Y. M. C. A., Clinton Avenue and even Scotch Plains and with all due respect to the Juniors, it is now the opinion that there will be but three clubs in the race. It may be otherwise, but that is the prevailing opinion now. If it is not too late, it is suggested that the league officials get together promptly and try to increase the membership by at least two more clubs and let the best ones available be picked so that the race during the season will be worth while.

There will be three new ball parks in the Eastern League circuit next season, Toronto, Montreal and Rochester.

Manager Jack Dunn in his efforts to secure a fast shortstop for the Orioles may try out Charley Walton, a promising youngster of Easton, Pa.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPH OF ROSELLE PARK BOY.

Roselle Park, March 11.—Edward Smaney, thirteen years old, a grammar school boy of this borough, has invented and constructed a wireless telegraph instrument with which he successfully receives and transmits messages to and from the government stations along the New Jersey coast. Smaney, who is the son of George F. Smaney, a printer, resides with his family in Chestnut street, and attends the grammar school in Roselle Borough, where he has succeeded in interesting the larger boys of the High School in his invention, and constructed an instrument in the school laboratory. He has organized an electrical club at the school called the Alpha Epsilon Gramma, and is instructing the members in the fundamental principles of electricity.

Since a little boy of five or six years of age Smaney has been of a mechanical turn of mind, amusing himself during his play hours by building and operating mechanical playthings. As soon as he was able to read Smaney took a liking to textbooks and mechanical papers, spending the time that his classmates used in playing by pouring over every book he could find on electrical and chemistry.

His first real invention came when he was a student at Public School No. 129, Brooklyn, where he then lived. Reading in one of his books the different parts of an electric light, he became interested, and buying the necessary material he successfully constructed an incandescent light. He became an enthusiastic worker until he had perfected and operated a telephone system from his home in Green street to the home of a playmate several blocks away.

During his studies he became acquainted with George Krouse, another student, who was interested in electricity, and together they planned and built a wireless station in the rear of Smaney's home. Here they amused themselves by sending messages and receiving them for some distance around their neighborhood. It was not until Smaney moved into Roselle Park last May that he perfected his instrument. Erecting his station in the rear of his home in Warren avenue he experimented with the original apparatus, until he succeeded in constructing a station that was perfect in every detail. After completing his instrument, which is a combination of the Marconi, De Forrest and Fessendon systems, he began to receive the messages as they were flashed from the stations along the New Jersey coast.

Still carrying out his studies, he soon was able to transmit and receive these messages, and amused himself by translating the messages to his friends.

After getting the telegraph perfected Smaney set to work on a wireless telephone. He had planned and made drawings of several instruments when his home, which caught fire several months ago by an overheated furnace, was destroyed, and most of his laboratory equipment was demolished, including the wirelss station in the rear of the house.

Moving into a flat on Chestnut street, he was unable to carry out his plans on account of the lack of room, so he was obliged to move his workshop to the High School laboratory, where he now has succeeded in building another wireless telegraph instrument with which he is able to operate for a short distance.

Russell Opposed to Bill.

Surrogate George E. Russell, of Essex, is opposed to the bill introduced by Assemblyman Henry Young, Jr., at Trenton yesterday afternoon for the appointment of a public administrator for estates where the next of kin is unwilling or unqualified to act. He was at Trenton to work against it and some other measures.

THE FORUM.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Richard Bowen Brown.

"Honor's a sacred tie, the law of kings. The noble minds distinguishing perfection, that aids and strengthens virtue where it meets her, and imitates her actions where she is not."

These lines of Addison's come to mind in contemplating the life and character of Richard Bowen Brown, whom we bore to his last resting place yesterday.

A neighbor writing to his sister, says of him: "His was a rare nature. 'A gentleman to the manor born,' is a sincere and appropriate tribute. No one could meet him without recognizing his innate nobility, high breeding and genial characteristics. When I have passed him on the street his bow and pleasant smile of recognition ever extended a gracious greeting. I admired the old time courtesy of which he was a perfect exponent."

Mr. Brown was born in Park place, New York, then the Fifth avenue of the city. His mother was Caroline Rogers, daughter of Charles Platt Rogers, of the old Long Island family. His father was an importer of the firm of Brown and Howe, and was one of the founders and the first president of the Mercantile Library; a man of considerable literary attainment, devoting much attention to his son's education. And his son kept well the pace his father set for him. His mind was a storehouse of knowledge, a mine of information. His modesty and extreme sensitiveness made him something of a recluse so that "they that run" knew him not. But to his friends he was a most interesting figure, a most charming companion. They knew him to love him and admire him. He never married. He and his sister lived together in their beautiful home which he built on Berckman and Front streets. He was a devoted brother and son. He had recently retired from active business.

As To Fire Drills.

Editor, The Daily Press:

An item concerning the New Market school recently published in another Plainfield paper would tend to give to those unfamiliar with the actual facts the impression that suitable precautions have not been taken to ensure the safety of the pupils in case of fire.

The existing conditions would by no means warrant such an inference, since the principal, Mr. H. G. Glaser, has trained the pupils by many fire drills throughout the school year, often giving them as frequently as twice a week.

Pupils of few schools, if any, have had more repeated or more thorough practice in the fire drill; this is proved by the fact that the average interval between the stroke of the gong and the time that the last pupil passes through the exit is about 50 seconds.

It would therefore seem that the fire drill in the New Market school has been practised as frequently and has been made as efficient as the most exacting critic could demand.

ROOSEVELT USURPER, SAYS ALTON B. PARKER.

Characterizing the lawyer of today as the man upon whom has fallen the mantle of the "tribune of the people," and calling upon him to oppose any movement of the federal government toward infringing upon the "rights of the state and the people," ex-Judge Alton B. Parker last night delivered a slap at President Roosevelt in an address before the Law Academy of Philadelphia, on the occasion of the 123d anniversary of the founding of that organizaton.

"Many thinkers," he said, "there are who have watched with deep solicitude the attempts of the federal government to strengthen its power at the expense of the states and the people—attempts with which have been interwoven warnings to the federal judiciary which have but one meaning, either to its members or to us: 'Keep your hands off my policies.'

"Indeed, no attempt is made by our resourceful President to conceal his desire and intention to have the federal government take possession of powers not granted to it, but reserved to the states and the people.

"Did he not say in your own state: We need through executive action, through legislative and through judicial interpretation and construction of law, to increase the power of the federal government. If we fail to thus increase it, we show our impotence.' History does not record a bolder assertion by the head of a government to seize power reserved to the people."

The subject of Judge Parker's address was "The Lawyer's Duty in the Preservation of Civil and Religious Liberty." It was the fifty-seventh consecutive annual address before the Law Academy, and more than 200 lawyers were present, including judges of State, city and federal courts. John C. Hinckley introduced the former unsuccessful Democratic candidate for the presidency.

WOODBRIDGE PASTOR EXPLAINS

The Rev. E. O. Demcot Writes to Social Club on Liquor Question—Declares All Is Amicable.

According to the Rev. E. O. Demcot, pastor of the Presbyterian church in Woodbridge, whose attack upon the Woodbridge Social Club involving charges of liquor selling and desecration of Sunday at dances, aroused that community to a high pitch of indignation, all is again amicable there. Mr. Demcot said yesterday that he had not retracted any of his statements, but that when so much feeling was displayed explaining his action, and saying it was his duty to insist upon the observance of the law, particularly with regard to the sale of liquor, and that they agreed to conform with the law.

The Rev. Mr. Demcot added that he did not believe the community was against him in the position he had taken and he was quite sure his congregation was with him, although a large part of it consists of members of the club. As to heated encounters in the streets with various persons who objected to his course, he said those stories had been exaggerated.

"The observance of the liquor law in this part of New Jersey," continued the minister, "has always been lax and I felt that I should be untrue to my trust as a churchman if I did not do all in my power to correct the situation."

VOTE FOR ANNEXATION.

Elizabeth Aldermen Willing to Take in El Mora If Legislature Is Agreeable.

Elizabeth, March 11.—By a ballot of 18 to 4, the Board of Aldermen of this city, at a special meeting held Monday night, voted to take in El Mora, which lies in the western outskirts of Elizabeth, but at present is a portion of Union Township. The debate on the matter was long and spirited. The aldermen opposed to the annexation were Edward Nugent, John S. Sauer, Alfred A. Stein and John P. Fuhrman, Democrats.

A large number of the residents of El Mora petitioned the aldermen some time ago to be annexed to it, and Monday night's action was the outcome of this appeal. It does not follow, however, that this action is decisive. The Legislature has yet to pass upon the matter, and it will require a legislative enactment before Elizabeth can take the deciding step. It is pretty certain that the rest of Union Township will oppose the project.

Senator Kean lives in Union Township and will have something to say on the matter when it comes up for approval by the Legislature. Monday night's vote by Elizabeth's aldermen, it is said, can only be regarded as an expression of individual opinion.

Alderman Nugent offered as an amendment that the matter be submitted to the people of Elizabeth to pass upon by a referendum vote next fall. This proposition, however, was voted down.

KEARNY CHURCH DIVIDED.

Sixty-five Quit Knox Presbyterian Sunday-school and Form Independent Organization.

Kearny, N. J., March 11.—Sixty-five seceders from the Knox Presbyterian church, at Kearny, have organized an independent Sunday-school, to be known as the Calvary Sunday-school of Kearny. The action of the pastor, the Rev. Roland S. Dawson, in ordering several pupils from the Sunday-school three weeks ago because they would not read in concert with him caused the trouble, and as a result an entire class, with the teacher, left the church.

Friends of the pupils rallied about them and extended their sympathy. The outcome is the new school, which has elected these officers: Superintendent, Archibald MacArthur; assistant, Alfred G. Hutchinson; secretary, George T. Howe, and treasurer, Wayne Stone. The new school meets in a hardware store Sunday afternoons.

The Rev. Mr. Dawson contends that the present trouble was brought about by persons who did not agree with his methods of conducting the church.

MILL HAND SAVED BY GIRL.

Miss Head Grabbed Ankles of Man Being Drawn in Machine at Bloomfield Plant.

Alexander Smith, twenty years old, employed at the plant of the Combination Roll and Rubber Company in Bloomfield, had a miraculous escape from death at the mill yesterday afternoon, when his arm was caught in the belting. Miss Laura Head caught the man by the ankles as he was being drawn into the machinery and held on until the engine was stopped.

Smith's arm was fractured in two places.

To Protect Elizabeth Schools.

The Elizabeth Board of Education's committee on building and repairs, in conference with the president of the board, John P. Reilly, decided last night to ask the Board of School Estimate for an appropriation to cover the installation of fire hydrants and lines of hose in all local schools as well as to put direct fire alarm systems in all schools. This action is the outcome of an investigation into the conditions of schools here as to safety in case of fire.

Cost of Running Nation.

Washington, March 11.—At the White House yesterday Representative Tawney, chairman of the House committee on appropriations, expressed the opinion that the appropriations of Congress at this session would be kept within $900,000,000, exclusive of appropriations for battleships. If there are two new battleships, he said, the total would be about $930,000,000, and if there are four the total would reach $940,000,000.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Peter Staats was drawn as juror on the petit jury which will serve during the April term of the county court yesterday. There are fifty-four members of the new panel. Last term there were sixty, an increase from forty-eight. The court decided yesterday that sixty were not needed, and left a margin of six over the statutory number that must be on the panel in capital cases. The Piscataway members are B. DeWitt Giles and William F. Randolph.

Concluding his lecture on "A Trip to Egypt and the Holy Land," given a week ago, Rev. Theodore L. Gardiner, of Plainfield, gave an interesting illustrated talk at Friendship Hall last night. The lecturer related incidents and described scenes from his personal experience, showing about seventy-five slides. The lecture was under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, and was largely attended.

A Lenten social affair to be numbered among Dunellen's most successful social events was the informal house party held last ngiht at the home of Mrs. Sarah C. Fisher. There were about fifty guests present and dancing was a feature of the evening. At midnight a collation was served.

Father E. J. Dunphy, of St. John's church, preached at Bound Brook last night, at special Lenten devotions at St. Joseph's church.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

GAVE WIFE WHISKEY.

Montclair Man Smuggled It Into Jail, but Was Caught.

Because he smuggled a flask of whiskey and a package of tobacco to his wife, who was in the Montclair police lockup, being unable to pay a fine of $5 imposed on her by Recorder Yost, Joseph McKeon, of Newark, an umbrella mender, residing on Centre street, Montclair, will spend the next sixty days in the Caldwell penitentiary. His wife's sentence, in lieu of the fine, was increased from ten days to thirty days in the county jail. The couple were arrested Monday on charges of disorderly conduct, and fines of $5 each were imposed. McKeon paid his fine and returned to the jail with the whiskey and the tobacco.

NO REWARD FOR FOXES

Somerset County Freeholders Decide Not to Offer the $3 Premium as Provided.

MANY PETITIONS CONSIDERED.

No Action Taken On North Plainfield's Requests for Some Road Improvements.

Hereafter the Somerset County Board of Freeholders will not pay any premium for the killing of foxes found within the limits of the county. By a unanimous vote at the March meeting of the board yesterday, a resolution was adopted providing that the State law of 1902 referring to the destruction of foxes and the payment of a premium for them, not apply to Somerset county.

Director Thomas E. Gibson reported that the State Commissioner of Roads had approved the specifications, surveys and maps of the three sections of roads known as the Millington, Watchung and Franklin Township roads and that he had advertised for bids for the same to be received at a meeting of the board on Tuesday morning, March 24, at 10 o'clock at the Court House, Somerville. The action of the director was approved and when the board adjourned it did so to meet on that date.

Citizens and taxpayers of Bedminster township petitioned the board to change a certain section of the road leading from Pluckemin to Burnt Mills. The petition was referred to counsel.

A petition from Henry C. S. Sebring, of Neshanic, in reference to a waterway along the stone road at that place, supplemented by a report from County Engineer Doughty was referred to the committee on roads. No action was taken upon the request of Col. Nelson Y. Dungan, who appeared before the board and urged the improvement of the road known as the Sourland Mountain road in Hillsborough and Montgomery townships.

A letter was received from Bolton Hall, representing the Berkeley Heights Association, in which he strongly objected to any attempt to change the grade of the Watchung road, along which the association owns sixty-four acres, known as the Phil. Acker farm in the township of North Plainfield.

The board awarded the contracts for the construction of two culverts in Bridgewater township.

No action was taken on the petitions received from the North Plainfield requesting the board to open up and macadamize two stretches of road in the borough. One thoroughfare referred to was the extension of Watchung avenue and the other Greenbrook road. As the extension of Watchung avenue would be only a quarter of a mile the board is not likely to undertake the improvement, it being understood that no road less than a mile be considered. It is the belief that the macadamizing and extension of Greenbrook road can be accomplished. It is said to be the desire of many boroughites to have this road extended from Somerset street through to Moynihan's Hotel, Bound Brook, a distance of three miles.

HARVARD CLUB OFFERS PRIZE TO BRIGHT PUPIL.

The Harvard Club of New Jersey offers a prize of $250 to the student entering the freshman class in Harvard College or the Lawrence Scientific School in the fall of 1908 who has passed the best examinations.

This prize is open only to students of good character taking their final examinations in June, 1908, who have been actual bona fide residents of New Jersey for an entire school year immediately preceding that month and who have spent the year in a New Jersey school. Every candidate must send his name to Charles Grant Shaffer, secretary, 18 Hedden terrace, Newark, N. J., on or before June 1, 1908, stating his residence and the school at which he is preparing.

Results of preliminary examinations counted for admission will be considered in awarding the prize.

One half of the amount of the prize will be paid upon mtariculation and the other half on or before February 1, 1909.

A similar prize will be awarded in 1909 and 1910 and it is desirable, though not necessary, that candidates for the prize to be awarded in those years respectively shall notify the secretary of The Harvard Club of New Jersey of their intention to compete previous to the time for the preliminary examinations so that they shall receive proper credit therefor.

Doctor Accuses Doctor.

Dr. Launcelot Ely, of Somerville, was yesterday given until Tuesday to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed for a partnership between himself and Dr. Lewis M. Lanning, also of Somerville. In the bill it is claimed that the two physicians formed a partnership on July 21, 1907, and that Dr. Lanning was to give up his practise in a year from date. It is alleged that Dr. Ely appropriated the proceeds which, according to the agreement, were to be divided.

"Good Books to Read Aloud," Recently Added to the Public Library.

Andrews, Mary R. S.—Militants. 1907. "Nine stories 'of a mystic sentimental inspiration' with charming Kentucky settings and Kentucky heroines."

Bacon, Josephine Dodge Daskam.—Domestic adventurerers. "Here is something to be strongly recommended as a panacea for the peculiarly debilitating effects of the servant problem."

French, Anne Warner.—Susan Clegg and a man in the house. "To be recommended heartily to people who may have found refreshment in 'Three men in a boat,' 'Chimmie Fadden,' or the sea worthies of W. W. Jacobs."

Hall, Eliza Calvert.—Aunt Jane of Kentucky. "A little more humour as pungent and appealing as that in the opening sketch, 'Sally Ann's experiences,' and 'Mrs. Wiggs' would have had a rustic rival."

Lee, Jennette Barbour. — Uncle William. "Uncommoly well-done sketch of a large hearted dweller by the sea, who loves his home and his fellowmen, and has 'big, kind ways.'"

Little, Frances.—Lady of the Decoration. "This book has somewhat of the thing that gave the 'Saxe-Holm' stories their success a generation ago; that popularized the first novel or two of the late Maria Louise Pool that on a higher literary plane gave the work of the Brontes its lasting value."

Mood, Winfield Scott.—Pickwick Ladie. "Dainty in touch, with humor that is real, and pervaded by an atmosphere of good society."

Page, Thomas Nelson.—Under the crust. "In the seven stories which make up the volume, the discerning reader will find the characteristic idealism of Mr. Page expressing itself in delicate and sympathetic studies of men and women."

Poorsen-Schwartz.—Woman's victory. "There is a fineness and acuteness in these sketches, for they are little more, that few fiction writers of our day can equal."

Reed, Myrtle.—Spinner in the Sin. "This story—especially the earlier part of it—has both charm and originality, its diction being excellent, and the characters, if not altogether like-like, well imagined."

Smith, F. Hopkinson.—Romance of an old-fashioned gentleman. "A charming story of simple plot and well defined characters." "The romance of an old-fashioned gentleman is both beautiful and true."

Smith, F. Hopkinson.—Veiled Lady. "There is so little of the cynic and so much of the humanitarian in the 'staid old painter' as he calls himself in this his latest volume of gentle tales, that we rejoice in the older fashion and the mellow mood of most of the stories."

Webster, Jean. — Jerry Junior. "The book like the author's other works is a 'delightful bit of nonsense.'"

Wiggin, Kate Douglas.—Old Peabody Pew. "One of the prettiest novelettes of this season, as well as one of the most delightful from a literary point of view." "A characteristically bright tale of a New England life full of sentiment and humor."

Zangwill, Israel.—Ghetto Comedies. "Strong, artistic, short stories of the Jew."

SCIENCE NOTES.

Public attention has been recently directed to the Paulo Affonso Falls and the San Francisco river, situated in Brazil. The falls are 230 miles from either Pernambuco, which has a population of 200,000, or Rahia, with 230,000 people. The average flow of the river is 1,000 cubic meters per second, and between Jatoba and Piranhas, a distance of about 65 miles, the fall is 756 feet, 400 of which takes place in the rapids, extending about 15 miles. This vast undeveloped water power will become in time the nucleus of a great industrial region.

The scrap heap of a large industrial company is a decidedly interesting affair and a rather valuable asset. That of the New York Edison Company for last year was sold approximately for $200,000. The material included 632,000 pounds of scrap copper, 359,000 pounds of pig lead, 71,000 pounds of mixed metals and approximately 500 tons of iron. This does not include the materials which were redeemed for further use.

Pronounce Slayer Insane.

While New Brunswick lawyers were at Washington yesterday in preliminary argument on the appeal before the United States Supreme Court from the death sentence pronounced on Frederick Lang, twenty-three years old, who killed his niece because she would not marry him, he was examined by two local physicians in the Middlesex county jail here and pronounced insane. These physicians controverted Dr. Britton D. Evans, the "brainstorm" alienist of the Thaw trial, who had examined Lang and declared him to be sane.

EVER HAVE IT?

If You Have, the Statement of This Plainfield Citizen Will Interest You.

Ever have a "low-down" pain in the back?

In the "small," right over the hips?

That's the home of backache.

It's cause by sick kidneys.

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Plainfield people endorse this. Read a case of it:

Mrs. Julia Hynes, of 523 Sixth street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "For nearly a year I was suffering from a severe pain in the loins, or what is generally called backache. I was also afflicted with a stiffness or lameness of the limbs and the kidney secretions were highly colored and contained some sediment. Any remedies that I took to clear up the kidney secretions and rid me of my aches and pains did me apparently no good. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills doing so much for people suffering as I was, so began using them, getting a supply at Randolph's drug store. Though at first I saw no change in my condition, I soon began to have less pain in my back and my limbs were not stiff any more. I kept right on with their use and took them several months, with the result that they cured me of my trouble for which I am glad to endorse them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

NEW YORK MERCHANTS INDORSE THE FOWLER BILL.

A committee from the Merchants' Association of New York, introduced to the President yesterday at Washington by Representative Fowler, of New Jersey, protested against the Aldrich bill and indorsed the Fowler measure. The committee submitted a statement to the President declaring that the Aldrich bill "proposes to fasten upon us an extension of the vicious principles now inherent in our present currency system, with its legal tenders in large measure the flat money of the government and its national bank notes based on government debt as security." The President did not express his views.

The statement called attention to the fact that the question was not one of party politics and should not be influenced by partisan considerations. The present currency system, it was stated, was "an inheritance from the crude and hasty financing imposed upon this country by the dire necessities of a civil war, and we business men are still facing the perils of inelastic currency, unresponsive to the demands of trade, and which, by reason of these defects, has caused to some the loss of millions of money and has imposed on us a risk, at frequent intervals, of panic and disaster." The Fowler bill, it was urged, was designed to correct these defects "by basing it upon principles which have been tried and proved by our own experiences before the Civil War or by that of other communities; and to eliminate one extensive risk attendant upon industrial operations, which is now an unnecessary element of the cost of our products to the consumer and an obstacle to the extension of our foreign trade."

SICK-ROOM TIP.

How to Change a Sheet Without Disturbing the Patient.

When changing sheets it is often not advisable to move the patient, and in order to prevent any risk of chill and blankets shold be left undisturbed while the upper and lower sheets are slowly withdrawn and the fresh ones substituted.

To do this a good plan is that of fastening the edge of the old sheet to the clean one by means of three or four safety-pins, and the former, after having been untucked at the bottom and sides of the bed, drawn away by degrees until the other takes its place. When a "draw sheet" is used the patient should be made to lie in the side, and the original sheet rolled up as far as it will go, the new one, half of which is worked into a long roll, being laid alongside.

If the patient is then made to turn over to the other side of the bed, the old sheet can be easily removed and the new one unfolded and laid flat.

Right Handedness.

The problem of right-handedness, Dr. George M. Gould concludes, is solved by two military and social facts: (1) From the first use of implements of offense and defense, the left or heart side have been protected by the shield and the left hand has been called the shield hand; (2) and the free or right hand was not only employed for the spear but for counting in primitive barter and other purposes, becoming necessarily dominant in all active operations. The peculiarity seems to be entirely absent in lower animals. Squirrels that hold nuts in their forepaws, cats that strike at insects or play with mice, and even monkeys and gorillas, give no suggestion of a preference for paw or eye of either right or left side.

Electrocuting Animals.

The slaughter of animals for food by electrocution is being experimented by Dr. Leduc, a French scientist, who has been conducting his investigations in the French abattoirs. He has been using the intermittent low-tension currents and says that he is satisfied that the system is painless, the central functions of perception being first destroyed and then those of circulation and respiration, so that there is neither suffering nor reaction in the animals thus killed. The Doctor is endeavoring to devise some piece of apparatus by which the killing of cattle may be accomplished by electricity with economy and celerity.

Running as a Cure.

"Dromotherapy," just added by a French physician to the rapidly growing list of "cures," is a systematic running exercise, beginning with a slow pace and gradually increasing with the patient's training. The treatment, already tried upon about 200 patients with great success, is specially recommended for persons who are weak and invalids without having any organic disease.

A Syllable Typewriter.

A syllable typewriter is now being produced, says The International. According to reports, a model is made that, if not yet practically, at any rate in principle, solves the problem of reproducing oft-recurring syllables, as, for instance, con, dis, tion, ly, etc. The machine is of a size that can be easily carried, being about 28 by 17 by 7 inches. The keyboard contains 35 additional keys for syllables.

CHAPTER I.

In Which It Is Shown That Marriage Does Not End All!

The romance of life—in novels!—is usually pre-marital. No matter in what wild fury of passion and tempest, outward and inward, the young people may have been plunged, their author seems to think that he has quieted the raging seas of adventure with the oil of his pen—or of his typewriter!—when he has led them to the altar. In the minds of the creators of the children of fancy practically nothing ever happens after the forging of the hymeneal bond. In the world it is usually different.

The circumstances preceding the marriage of Ellen Slocum and Bernard Carrington the protagonists of this veracious chronicle of disturbance, were sufficiently unusual in themselves to have given rise to a number of interesting and highly exciting episodes, upon which with great reluctance I refrain from dilating, for Ellen Slocum belonged to an old and very respectable family domiciled in Philadelphia since the days of William Penn, while Bernard Carrington was an English baron of ancient and honorable lineage whose seat was a dilapidated castle in Dorset.

Ellen was an orphan, her mother having died in giving birth to her. Her father, deceased shortly before her marriage, had been a prosperous merchant and shipowner. Bernard's father, also eliminated from the story, had been a gambler and a spendthrift who had broken his wife's heart and dissipated his own fortune. Consequently, Ellen was blessed with a superfluity of this world's goods which more than matched Lord Carrington's lack of the same. Ellen was a staunch patriot, a rebel and a revolutionist therefore. Lord Carrington was a promising lieutenant in the English navy. In some qualities happily he resembled his mother rather than his father.

Without entering into the details of their previous acquaintance, suffice it to say that they had met while Lord Carrington was a prisoner of war at Philadelphia, and married. The American Revolution was over at the beginning of this romance and the scene is set at Carrington castle in England. Ellen's money, or a considerable portion of it, had been cheerfully used by her to rehabilitate the ancient seat of the family of which she was now become the chatelaine.

There had been much business to attend to in the two years that had elapsed since their marriage; leave of absence had been obtained for Lord Carrington, arrangements for the converting of much of Lady Ellen's property into available securities which could readily be turned into cash, and a deal of planning and working with the architects and builders and so on, so that the marriage had been a happy one despite the fact that there had existed, and still existed, an original difference of temperament and environment between the two as great as had been that between their station in life and places of birth.

The time had arrived, however, when all the preliminaries having been gotten rid of, it was necessary that she should step forth as one of the great ladies of England into which station her money and Carrington's position easily inducted her. Her qualifications for filling that distinguished role were a strong and vigorous young body, a proud and high spirit, a pure and innocent mind, a lovely face, manners simple and unsophisticated, and an unbounded devotion to her handsome and distinguished husband. There was in her blood some strain of the sea and she had spent half her life on her father's ships. She could handle a small boat, or even a great ship, as well as a sailor for instance. And Lord Carrington had amused himself by teaching her how to use pistol and small sword almost as well as he.

She had the disabilities of her qualities, too. She had never touched a card; she had never ridden a horse, she did not even know the steps of the minuet or any other dance, and until her marriage she cared little about that prime feminine pursuit called "following the fashion." The two had been so busy in their first comradeship, there had been so much voyaging between England and America, necessitated by their plans, that there had been no time for these things as yet.

The two lovers had lived for each other and much alone during the period preceding the opening of this story, but with his castle now completely repaired and his fortunes thoroughly rehabilitated, Lord Carrington must needs exploit his good luck by showing his beautiful wife with whom he was very much in love and of whom he was inordinately proud, and eke his castle, to some particular and intimate friends of both sexes—men and women of fashion of earlier and less innocent days. The introduction of several varieties of Adam and a number of distinct species of Eve in this hitherto serpentless Eden caused the trouble to begin. The marriage had stood the test of isolation, the greatest test that could be imposed. Was it to break down before the lesser trial of association? We shall see.

It was an excited and angry Ellen who confronted her lord and master in her boudoir late one autumn night—or to be quite accurate, early another autumn morning. And my lord of Carrington was by no means cool himself, although he was more remarkable for natural imperturbability of manner than his hasty and beautiful wife.

As she spoke with him, however, she let down her hair and carefully removed those extraneous arrangements which had enabled her to raise it towerlike above her brows, doffed her silks, unclasped her stays and assumed a more convenient negligee, in which she was not less charming, as preparation for the imminent fray. It was to be the culmination—the minor culmination that is, the greater would come later—of a series of annoying incidents since the opening of the castle to the house party. My lord and my lady both had grievances which each was eager to present for the calm and dispassionate judgment of the other.

First in Lady Ellen's mind was Lady Cecily Carrington, a cousin several times removed of my lord's. The relationship was not near enough to render my lord immune nor was it remote enough to warrant indifference. Indeed, Carrington had had a rather difficult part to play. Ellen had discovered that an ancient love affair had subsisted between her husband and Cecily and she imagined—not without cause—that Cecily, a representative product of the vicious society of her time, was endeavoring to fan the embers into a flame. Nor could she detect in Lord Carrington's method of handling the situation any very pronounced desire to quench the fire, and his conduct toward his fair and, if reputation did not too greatly belie her, frail cousin, was not distinguished by self-restraint. In Ellen's eyes Carrington manifested a very catholic taste in the eternal feminine, for he gave much unnecessary attention to Hon. Mrs. Monbrant, a widow putatively at least, for no one knew where Hon. Mr. Monbrant was. His wife gave out that he was dead, but that testimony was not of great value. At any rate if he lived, he was wise in his generation and he kept under cover.

In the house party there was another eternal—in more senses than one!—feminine in the person of the ancient and imperious duchess of Dulward. Her great age precluded the possibility of jealousy of Carrington in Ellen's mind, but the chatelaine of the castle did not like the ponderous and vicious dowager any more than the younger pair who were making the running apparently for the affections of her husband.

There was only one woman in the castle whom Ellen really did like, and that was Mistress Debbie Slocum of Massachusetts. In making up the house party Ellen by a freak of circumstances had desired to include some one from her own land. As fortune would have it, a ship opportunely arrived in Portsmouth bearing Mistress Deborah Winthrop Slocum as a passenger, consigned to her kinswoman and friend, the chatelaine of Carrington. Deborah was the exact antithesis of Ellen, a quiet, staid, prim little Puritan, with all the characteristics of the Massachusetts branch of the family, utterly out of place in the society of Lady Cecily and la Monbrant, but not without a certain very definite charm of her own. Her type did not appeal to Carrington, however, and therefore Ellen loved her.

My Lord Was by No Means Cool Himself.

Having surveyed the woman through Ellen's eyes, we may take a look at the men through those of her husband. First in rank there was the duke of Dulward, a hard drinker, a high player and a rich liver; Admiral Benjamin Kephard, a jolly old sailor, and General, Honorable George Athelstrong, an Anglo-Indian soldier on the retired list. The qualities that distinguished the duke of Dulward were common to Athelstrong, in a less de-

Proposals for Furnishing Crushed Stone and Material for Culverts and Crosswalks.

Pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, at the regular meeting held March 2, 1908, notice is hereby given that the Committee on Streets and Sewers will meet at the office of the Committee, No. 152 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, on Thursday, March 26, at 8 o'clock p. m., at which time and place said Committee on Streets and Sewers will receive sealed proposals for furnishing crushed stone, and for furnishing material for culverts and crosswalks as follows:

For crushed stone for the remainder of the year 1908, the bids to state the price per ton of 2,000 pounds, for furnishing the following sizes, viz:

Fine screenings, ½ inch stone, 1¼ inch stone and 2½ inch stone, in such quantities, and delivered at such places in the city as the Street Commissioner may direct.

The above must be of the best quality trap rock; free from soft stone, dirt or other foreign matter, equal in every respect to the samples in Street Commissioner's office and in every way acceptable to the said Street Commissioner.

Separate bids will be received for the four different sizes of stone in three different grades, A, B and C, as shown by the samples correspondingly marked in Street Commissioner's office, and the right is reserved to accept the lowest bid for each of the different grades of stone.

The stone must be weighed on such scales as the Street Commissioner may direct, and a voucher or weigh bill must be delivered with every load to the said Street Commissioner or his authorized representative.

Also for furnishing the following materials for culverts and crosswalks:

Cover stone for culverts not larger than 4 feet by 3 feet by not less than 3½ inches in thickness, per square foot.

Curbing 16 inches by 4 inches, 3 to 6 feet long, per lineal foot.

Curbing 20 inches by 4 inches, 3 to 6 feet long, per lineal foot.

Crosswalk stone 24 inches by not less than 4 inches, 3 to 4½ feet long, Belgian edge, per lineal foot.

Crosswalk stone 30 inches by not less than 4 inches, 3 to 4½ feet long, Belgian edge, per lineal foot.

No Erie, Pennsylvania or similar stone will be accepted.

Upon receipt of the bids or proposals the Committee on Streets and Sewers will immediately proceed to unseal the same and publicly announce the contents in the presence of the parties bidding or their agents, provided said parties or their agents choose to be then and there present, and also make proper record of the prices and terms.

The right to reject any or all bids is expressly reserved.

By order of the Common Council and the Committee on Streets and Sewers.

J. T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.
Dated Plainfield, N. J., March 2, 1908.

AN ORDINANCE

WHEREAS, The portion of Hill Street (sometimes called Hill Avenue), between South Avenue and Woodland Avenue is shown on a map entitled "Section 2, City Map of Plainfield, Union County, N. J., 1870," filed in the office of the City Clerk of the City of Plainfield September 20, 1870, and

WHEREAS, The Central New Jersey Land Improvement Company, Union County Investment Company, Dorsey W. Hyde and Henry P. Talmadge are the sole owners of the fee and of all the property abutting anywhere on such portion of said street, and have applied to the Common Council of said City to vacate such portion of said street pursuant to Chapter CXXXIII, P. L. 1888, and other laws governing the matter, and it is to the interest of the city that such street should be vacated;

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the portion of Hill Street (sometimes called Hill Avenue), lying between South Avenue and Woodland Avenue, as shown on a map entitled "Section 2, City Map of Plainfield, Union County, N. J. 1870," be and the same is hereby vacated pursuant to the Acts of the Legislature in such case made and provided.

Adopted by the Common Council, March 2, 1908; approved by the Mayor, March 2, 1908.

Greece perhaps owing to their different stations. The party was completed by the presence of Sir Charles Seton and earl of Strathgate. Seton, who was Carrington's most intimate friend, had enjoyed a weakness for Ellen since he first saw her, but the friendship between Carrington and himself had been so true that nothing had been allowed to disturb it—as yet! Now Seton had succumbed to the charms of Mistress Debbie, and as Mistress Debbie clung to the lee—if this were not a nautical romance, I would say, sheltered herself beneath the wing—of Lady Ellen. Seton was consequently always about the pair, and with masculine blindness Carrington jumped at the wild conclusion that there could be no attraction for his friend except what lay in Ellen's charming personality.

So much by way of introduction.

FORT, JR., EDITORIAL CHEERS LIQUOR MEN

The political surprise of the last few days at Trenton was occasioned by the appearance in the Lakewood Times, edited and owned by Leslie R. Fort son and private secretary to the Governor, of a leading editorial in which the editor took the field against the Crosby local option bill, the measure which will either live or die in the House of Assembly this week.

As Editor Fort, in his capacity as private secretary to Governor Fort, must have knowledge of the mind of the chief executive of the State, his editorial is considered ex-cathedra, hence the surprise, for the local optionists have been counting on Governor Fort as their friend all the time.

Editor Fort, with the inside knowledge of coming legislative action which a Governor of this State always has when he has a majority of his party behind him, argues that local option was not an issue of the late campaign in which his father was elected Governor; that the bishops' law was the issue and that it would be unwise and fatal to further Republican successes in this State for the legislators to depart from the issue and pass a local option bill.

He goes a little further, saying that local option, as defined in the Crosby bill, would work out badly; that it is inequitable; that if the State is to have local option it would be well to have "real" local option and allow a community to vote on the whole question, Sunday saloons and all.

Coming on the eve of the reporting of a local option bill or its killing in House committee, this editorial has certainly caused the friends and enemies of local option to sit up and take notice.

Chairman Moxon, of the House municipal corporations committee, will go over the local option bill with his committeemen tomorrow afternoon. They will have numerous briefs on the question to consider, among them being one from Charles C. Black, erstwhile Democratic candidate for Governor and now circuit judge of the Hudson circuit.

New Local Option Bill.

It has been said that the committee would not report the Crosby bill, but put out a substitute embodying the features of the other bills now before the Legislature. This is currently believed, but there are no other liquor bills of state moment in the House; they are in the Senate. Still it is possible that the House committee will try to settle the whole matter for the House and the Senate by embodying in the bill to be reported the features in the other bills.

How they can report a bill for high license and leave out local option no one can see, for they would be immediately attacked by the local optionists, the Methodist Conference meeting at Millville this week keeping in close with local option legislation and ready to pass resolutions condemning any show of cowardice on the part of the Legislature, should it dodge the question. It is generally believed that some kind of a local option bill will now be passed, but what kind no one knows.

Legislators Fear League.

Some of the legislators will vote for a local option bill when it is reported by the committee this week, through fear of what may be done to them by the Anti-Saloon League, when they come before the people of their respective districts for re-election if they fail to do so. They will not admit the truth of this assertion if asked, but they fear the Anti-Saloon League.

They know that last year the Anti-Saloon League representatives openly declared that any legislator who voted against local option, or any other measure which the organization wanted, would find himself strongly opposed in whatever part of the State he was located if he ever ran for public office again, whether to return to the Legislature or for anything else. They know, too, that the league carried out its threat in several parts of the State during the last political campaign and election.

P.H.S. FIVE CLINCH BASKETBALL TITLE

Definitely establishing their title to the local interscholastic basketball championship, the Plainfield High School five won a hotly contested game from the North Plainfield High School team, their most formidable rivals, at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium yesterday afternoon. The final score was 32-25, and the city school boys were in the lead throughout.

The Plainfield team was weakened by the absence of Captain Caldwell and Russell Morris, but Chauncey Murphey, who played his first regular game with the team last week, made good with a vengeance and his playing was a feature of the game. He scored seven baskets and proved the quickert and most accurate shot of the double quintet. For the borough five, Byron McClintock showed up the best in the scoring, also being responsible for fourteen points, and scoring the only foul made during the game. The close guarding of Clarence Steiner was a prominent defensive feature of the borough's game. At the end of the first half, the score was 16-12 in favor of P. H. S. The lineups and summaries:

P. H. S.		N. P. H. S.
Murphey	right forward	Overton
Mortimer	centre	B. McClintock
Parsons	right guard	Steiner

Field goals: Murphey, 7; B. McClintock, 7; Mortimer, 4; Snyder, 3; F. McClintock, 3; Doane, 2; Overton, 2; Parsons. Goal from foul: B. McClintock. P. H. S. awarded a point on technicality. Referee, Listman; scorers, Woodhull and Powlison; timers, Prior and Becker. 20 minutes halves.

NEW PROSECUTORS TAKE THEIR OATH OF OFFICE.

Prosecutor C. Addison Swift, Assistant Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., and District Court Judge C. McK. Whittemore were sworn into office this morning in the Union County Court. The oath of office was administered by County Clerk J. C. Calvert before Judge E. S. Atwater. After the new men took office the retiring prosecutor, N. C. J. English, made a lengthy speech, reviewing his work in office and thanking the court for its uniform courtesy.

Remarks were also made by Mr. Swift, Mr. Hetfield and Judge Whittemore and each one was prseented with a bouquet of flowers. The one received by Mr. Hetfield came from Robert McAdam, a member of the Union County Board of Elections, and a former associate.

Had Her Boarder Arrested.

On charges of theft preferred by his landlady, Mrs. Perrin, of Harmony street, an Elizabethport man, who has been rooming in the borough for the past two weeks, was haled before Justice of the Peace Clark Mundy, last night, charged with having stolen $11 from her bureau drawer. The man told a straight story at his hearing, and will come up before the borough justice again tonight. Mrs. Perrin missed the money Monday, after she found that a key to her room had been taken from the mantel in the living room.

The Sermon-Lecture Course.

Continuing his Lenten sermon-lectures at Grace church, Rev. Dr. Herbert Symonds, of Montreal, gave the second of his talks on Tennyson's "In Memoriam" at the church yesterday afternoon, and spoke on "The Literature of the Bible" at the lecture this morning. The lectures will be continued daily for the remainder of the week.

After Mr. Tyler's Place.

Joseph A. Shellabarger is again mentioned as a candidate for the Common Council, this time to fill the unexpired term of William S. Tyler, whose resignation will be received at the next meeting of the city fathers. There are a number of other candidates for the place.

PERSONAL.

Miss Estelle White, of Raritan, has returned home after a visit with friends here.

Mrs. Fred Dixon, of West Fifth street, has been visiting relatives at Perth Amboy.

Dr. Richard Moldenke, of Watchung, who has been in Chicago on business, will return home this week.

George W. Rockafellow, of West Second street, was able to leave the house today for the first time after an illness of ten weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Blatz, who have just returned from their honeymoon, have leased a suite of rooms in the Jackson building.

Factory Inspector Andrew McCardell, of West Front street, is expected home the last of the week from a business trip to Chicago.

Dr. Walter Probasco, of Chicago, who was called to Plainfield by the death of his father, Dr. J. B. Probasco, has returned home.

J. Alexander Wilson, of Grove street, who has been confined to the house by rheumatism for the past few weeks, is somewhat improved.

Councilman Frank Randolph, of West Front street, who has been detained at home by illness, is much improved and hopes to leave the house today.

Horace J. Martin, Sr., of Duer street, has broken ground in Orchard Park, near the Watchung silk mill, in the borough, for a home which he expects to occupy in June.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wilson, of Craig place, left las week for an extended trip through the South. They are accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Allen Coddington, of Somerset place.

HE DESPISES WOMEN WHO SHIRK THEIR DUTY.

"This is the one body that I put even higher than the veterans of the Civil War," was the enthusiastic preliminary remark of President Roosevelt yesterday in receiving delegates to the Congress of Mothers at the White House in Washington.

Continuing, the President said:

"Now, I want you to think of what I have just said; I never say what I don't absolutely mean, and I am accustomed to weighing my words. The good mother, the wise mother—you cannot really be a good mother if you are not a wise mother—is more important to the community than even the ablest man; her career is more worthy of honor and is more useful to the community than the career of many, however successful, can be."

Mr. Roosevelt reiterated his well-known views on race suicide. He condemned men who treat women badly. "But," he added, "woman who shirks her duty as wife and mother is just as heartily to be condemned. We despise her as we despise and condemn the soldier who flinches in battle. The woman who, whether from cowardice, from selfishness, from having a false and vacuous ideal, shirks her duty as wife and mother, earns the right of our contempt, just as does the man who, from any motive, fears to do his duty in battle when the country calls him."

Imprisoned Horse Killed by Train.

A horse belonging to "Jack" Ryan, who lives on lower West Fourth street near Guinea Egg pond, wandered away from in front of Nelson's hotel at New Market, Monday night, and got onto the Lehigh Valley tracks. It trotted down to bridge 28 near Samptown and fell between the ties just as a fast freight bore down upon it. The animal was struck and cut to pieces and the runabout attached to its was reduced to splinters.

Heater Causes Slight Fire.

A slight fire at the home of G. Howard Frost, on Woodland avenue, resulted in a still alarm being turned in at 9:40 this morning. Apparatus was sent out from headquarters and the trouble was stopped in a few minutes. The blaze was on the first floor and was caused by a Baltimore heater. The damage was trifling.

Baker—Whitman.

Miss Florence Whitman, of Jamaica, Long Island, and Joseph Baker, of this city, were quietly married Saturday night at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. George Goodfellow, of Audubon, N. J. They left for Washington, D. C, and on their return will reside in this city.

Kirkland Endorsed for Sheriff.

The Downtown Republican Club of Elizabeth last night endorsed Robert Kirkland, of that city, for sheriff to succeed William Lawrence.

ADMITS FORT'S RIGHT TO GO TO CONVENTION.

Politicians Visit State Capital and Discuss Case.

Much might be written of the situation that has developed because of the fact that six men are anxious to be delegates-at-large to the national convention at Chicago in June. But it all simmers down to this: That the six men—Governor Fort, U. S. Senators Kean and Briggs, former Governor John W. Griggs and David Baird—are still in the field at the least highly receptive.

Many politicians were at Trenton yesterday and last night. Among them was Mr. Griggs himself, Hamilton F. Kean, Frank H. Smith and a dozen or so county chairmen. Nothing definite has occurred to clear the situation. All admit that if the Governor asks to go to the convention precedent gives him that right, which will be respected. It is not granted that the Governor can select the other three, however. The sentiment among the majority of the State politicians is for an uninstructed delegation to Chicago.

WIFE HAD MONEY.

She Takes Back to Boston Her Wandering Husband.

William Fein, of Boston, was arraigned before Recorder Lazarus yesterday morning, at Bayonne, charged with having deserted his wife a year ago. Mrs. Fein several months ago got trace of her husband and after trailing him from city to city finally located him at Bayonne and caused his arrest. Fein told the court that he had left his wife, but was willing to return to her and promised to care for her. He said he was without funds.

"I have enough money to pay his fare and my own back to Boston," said Mrs. Fein, and the recorder said as he dismissed the complaint:

"Take him. He belongs to you; and see that he behaves himself." The couple departed, smiling.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Dr. Ward el-Ward, a native of Palestine, will give a travelogue at the First Presbyterian church tonight at 8 o'clock. The public is invited.

Rev. C. A. Jones, superintendent of the Congregational Home Missionary Society, will address the meeting to be held at the Congregational church tonight. His subject will be "Home Missions in Our District."

CITY JOTTINGS.

—The Sesame Club will meet tomorrow morning at the residence of Mrs. W. Chamberlain, 318 East Sixth street.

—White Label canned goods represent the best there is. Neuman Brothers sell them; special price by lots of a dozen or more.

FOLKS AND THINGS.

Seven hundred and forty trolley cars were destroyed by fire in New York the other night. The company will immediately place an order for 740 dozen straps.

Certain Republican editors who don't like Taft are preparing an awful dish of crow for their summer eating.

Timmy Woodruff and Parsons in their Presidential attitude are evidently as New Yorkers in favor of Hughes but as Yale men ag'in' his nomination.

Want to stick some friend on a question? This is from a civil service examination, too. Ask him what street in New York City has four sidewalks and a park at the same place. Answer: Forty-second from First avenue to Second. The sidewalks are the two in the tunnel and the two in the street overhead, and the little space between the latter is known as Ryan Park.

Here's another on which you may win a bet. Ask your friend what street in New York the Manhattan theatre (the old Standard), just south of Thirty-third street, or Trainer's cafe, on the corner, is on. If he naturally says "Sixth avenue," wager him that it isn't. That block of what seems to be Sixth avenue from Thirty-second to Thirty-third is officially Broadway, as the numbering of the buildings shows. This is on account of Broadway striking Sixth avenue at the little triangle opposite. The west side of the avenue, although a direct line, thus becomes Broadway for just one block.

Of course to "stick" anybody with the civil service poser or "sting" him with the Broadway-Sixth avenue catch, you will have to find one who does not read The Press. Then you can advise him to subscribe to the family paper, get wisdom and save wealth.

Force of Habit.

He was thoroughly a business man, and judged everything by its size and weight, which was natural enough since he dealt in things that we sold according to their avoirdupois. One day somebody asked him if he had any children.

"Yes," he said, "I've got 453 pounds of boys and 236 pounds of girls."

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tomorrow night.

Hints for Cold Weather.

Do not allow the lips to become moist when out in the cold, or they will crack. If a veil is worn and the breath dampens the mesh, mop it gently every now and then with a handkerchief.

Do not gaze too long at the snow when it glitters in the sunshine, for it not only hurts the eyes, but lines the forehead and makes a frown.

Do not sit down out of doors to rest when ice skating. Skate slowly with the wind instead.

When chilled after a cold ride or walk, drink a glass of hot water, milk or hot lemonade; remove the shoes and stockings and rub the feet vigorously with a warm, rough towel; do not put them near a fire until the circulation has been restored or chilblains will result; rub cold cream in well, and after removing the greater part with a towel steam the face well to cleanse it and soften the skin after Jack Frost has been at work.

To Clean Plumes.

A good way to clean ostrich plumes, white or colored, easily is by soaking five minutes in warm, clean suds. Draw them lightly through the hand a few times and rinse in warm, clear water and dry by shaking over the stove; then recurl them by drawing each little barb over the dull edge of a knife or scissors.

Stole to Go To Theatre.

James Stegowith and Peter Thompson, each about 15 years old, of Perth Amboy, admitted to Judge Booraem at New Brunswick yesterday afternoon that they had broken into the house of John Arnold there and had stolen his plate. They declared that William Cook, who was also arraigned, had been the ringleader of the expedition; that they had passed the goods out of a window and that Cook had pawned them. They wanted money to go to the theatre, they said, and committed the robbery for that purpose.

FOWLER EXPLAINS BILL

Congressman Outlines Provisions of His Pet Measure and Needed Changes.

GIVES A TALK IN NEWARK.

He Gives in Terse Fashion the Salient Features of Bill He Urges Congress to Adopt.

Charles N. Fowler, Congressman from New Jersey, who is chairman of the House of Representatives' committee on banking and currency, explained last night to members of the Newark Board of Trade and other organizations the details of his elastic currency bill, introduced in Congress last month.

Mr. Fowler told the 350 representative business men who had gathered to hear him that he advocated the following changes, which were provided for in his bill:

The abolition of the present system of securing national bank currency issued by United States bonds.

The use of gold coin as the reserve fund.

A 25 per cent. reserve fund for all banking institutions.

A division of all banking institutions in the United States into twenty districts or zones, each district or zone to be governed by eight men selected by ballot of the banks within the district.

The selection of bank examiners for each zone to be made by the managing board, the examiners to be appointed by the Comptroller.

The issuance of bank notes by each institution, not exceeding twice the capital stock of the institution.

A mandatory ruling to provide for the guaranteeing of 25 per cent. of such bank notes of any bank by the other banks in its zone.

A tax of 2 per cent. on the issues of notes, the proceeds of such tax to go toward retiring the $600,000,000 of silver in circulation on a parity with gold.

A contribution of ¾ per cent. of the general reserve fund by each of the twenty bank districts.

The guaranteeing of the remaining 75 per cent. of the bank notes issued by the general reserve fund.

Each Provision Explained.

Mr. Fowler went at length into the details of each provision of his bill. He declared that under its provisions a bank failure would be impossible. He favored, he said, the bringing of all banking institutions in the country under one system with a uniform reserve fund, "in order that all banks could hold the same kind of reserve—gold coin—or no reserve at all."

He did not look with favor, he said, upon the establishment of a central bank, because he thought that it could not cure the weaknesses in the present currency system, and the time for its establishment was not yet ripe. The products of the country were too diversified to judge of its probable working by the examples set by European banks. Besides, it might be made a powerful political machine in the hands of unscrupulous politicians.

The present system was severely arraigned and characterized as the worst of any civilized nation. It had been in force forty years, and Americans had thought it all right until recently, he said. But if it had been all that was claimed for it other nations would have copied it. Did they?

"Japan adopted it," said Mr. Fowler, "kept it over night, kicked it down the back stairs, over the gate and out the back alley. It wasn't good enough to be fired out the front way. That was the only nation that attempted to copy it."

The causes of the recent flurry were detailed, the processes which led up to it outlined and the present condition of the country's finances discussed. Mr. Fowler declared that in case of war the United States' 2 per cent. bonds would shrink, possibly to as low as 60 per cent. of their face value.

"Incidents of Office Practice."

Dr. Thomas E. Weeks, of New York, gave an interesting talk at the March meeting and dinner of the Plainfield Dental Society at the Hotel Iroquois, last night, on "Incidents of Office Practice." An informal discussion followed. The following dentists were present: Drs. Stelle, Davis, French, Whitford, Mumford, Hillman, George Moore, Charles Moore, Leonard, Giddes, Stevens, Clawson and Egel, the last named of Westfield.

SAILOR AS A ROMANCER

For $5 in Hand, Kuhlman Spins a Great Yarn About Fate of Tillie Starbuck.

HE EVEN KILLS OFF CAPTAIN.

But the Funny Part Comes In When It Is Known That the Narrator Depended On Imagination for Facts.

In consideration of $1 apiece chipped in by the evening newspapermen, William Kuhlman, a young sailor with an ardent imagination who landed in New York yesterday on the Lamport and Holt liner Voltaire, spun a wierd yarn of shipwreck and suffering that concerned Captain William Winn, of this city. The story was spread all over the front pages of the metropolitan dailies last night and as a sea tale was a fine piece of reading, but the true facts were a miserable failure.

Kuhlman represented himself to be the second mate of the ill-fated Tillie E. Starbuck which sailed from New York in command of Captain Winn, whose home is in the Jackson building, on April 1 last. She was some 600 miles off the coast of Chile on July 30 when a terrible storm arose and the vessel was battered to a mere hulk. The Chinese cook was killed by a falling mast but his was the only death that resulted. After drifting about for sixteen days, Captain Winn and his crew of twenty-three men were taken off by the British steamer Cambuskenneth and landed at Coquimbo. At that point they separated and Captain Winn went to San Francisco where he fell victim to inflammatory rheumatism and has since been confined in the Hahnemann Hospital.

That is the truth of the story as told to a Daily Press reporter by Mrs. Winn last night but the yarn that Kuhlman handed to the newspapermen makes him eligible for the presidency of the Ananias Club. He asserted that after trying in vain to save the Starbuck, Captain Winn ordered the crew to take to the boats and that in lowering them twenty men were dashed against the side of the vessel and killed or drowned. Their deaths so unnerved the commander, he said, that he went into the partially demolished cabin and blew his brains out with a pistol.

With five others of the crew, Kuhlman said, he finally got into a boat and sheered off just as the Starbuck sank. The six men then drifted about for forty-eight days, suffering terrible hardships and almost going mad from hunger and exposure. They were finally picked up by the Cambuskenneth, he said, where two of the survivors died and two others became chattering idiots. He remained in Coquimbo until he recovered and then by working his way across the continent secured passage on the Voltaire.

In speaking of the stories in last night's papers, Mrs. Winn declared she could not place Kuhlman as a member of her husband's crew. He claimed to be second mate but this position was held by Andrew Keegan, of New York, while the first mate was Philip A. McVicar, of Oregon. It may have been that Kuhlman was one of the ordinary seamen and being familiar with the wreck as it occurred decided to elaborate the story in order to make some money when he reached New York. His description of Captain Winn's suicide is the most preposterous part of the yarn and might have resulted seriously to members of his family but for the fact that they have been in constant communication with him since he left Coquimbo. He is now recovering from his rheumatic attack and expects to return to Plainfield within a few weeks.

Warren Society's Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel will be held in the Sunday-school rooms tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Tracey, of New York, a prominent worker in this field, will speak, and reports for the past year will be presented. Refreshments will be served in conclusion and an offering for the work at Ellis Island will be observed. All members and their friends are urged to attend.

Judge Whittemore Takes His Seat.

District Court Judge Clark McK. Whittemore, of Elizabeth, who was sworn into office yesterday, took his seat today. The occasion was marked by the presentation of a large bouquet of American beauty roses by the Union County Bar Association. The presentation was made by Judge E. S. Atwater. A number of county lawyers were present at the opening of court this morning.

RIPPER EFFECTS OUR CITY

Bill in Legislature Would Remove from Voters Power to Choose City Judge.

GOVERNOR WOULD APPOINT.

Powerful Patronage In Fort's Control If the Scheme Is Approved By State Lawmakers.

Judges James S. Edwin, of Jersey City, and John Rellstab, of Trenton, and former Judge Algernon T. Sweeney, of Newark, the commissioners appointed two years ago to review the acts relating to police courts, reported to Governor Fort yesterday, and presented a bill which is sweeping in its provisions.

If it becomes a law it will put out of office every police judge in the State and take from the Mayor and governing bodies of municipalies, the appointing power and vest it in the Governor. It would give the Governor the naming of one or more police judges in every municipality, town, township or borough of over 20,000 inhabitants, which would likely include Plainfield as its population is approximately 20,000.

It would provide more patronage for the executive to distribute than Governor Stokes' county tax board law.

A bill increasing the powers of police judges was introduced by Assemblyman Henry D. Thompson, of Mercer. It permits them to try disorderly house, illegal sales of liquor and several other classes of cases not now within their jurisdiction. The prosecutor is given supervision in cases of crime, and the city attorney in cases of violations of city ordinances. The bill is designed to forestall the police court commission's "ripper" bill.

"TOO MANY COOKS" TO BE GIVEN FOR CHARITY

The Cup Bearers' Circle of The King's Daughters is making elaborate arrangements for a play and sale to be given at the Casino on Thursday, April 23. Unusual interest attaches to the production for the reason that it is the work of Miss Louise Saunders, whose talent in this direction is well known locally. The piece is named "Too Many Cooks," and it is said to be the best effort of the bright young playwright. The cast will be announced within a short time. There will be a matinee and evening performance.

In connection with the play an attractive feature will be a doll exhibition, and those who enter their dolls will be bound by the same rules that govern entries for horse and dog shows, that is a small fee will be charged and prizes will be awarded the persons having the best dolly or group of dollies. Among the dolls to be shown will be several that are over a hundred years old.

There will also be a Punch and Judy show to interest young and old and a sale of cake and candies. The proceeds from the affair will be used in the King's Daughters' work and to help the Cup Bearers' Circle in meeting its pledge in support of the city nurse.

At present Miss Saunders is a student at the Sargeant Art School, New York, and during her spare moments she wrote the play to be given here. She is the daughter of former Mayor William L. Saunders.

SHOWER PARTY MARKS HER 65TH BIRTHDAY.

Mrs. James MacCrady, mother of Mrs. H. M. Johns, of Duer street, was given a shower party at her home in Raritan, last Saturday night, the occasion being the anniversary of her sixty-fifth birthday. More than sixty-five post-cards were received from relatives and friends in Long Island, New York, Brooklyn, Newark, Orange, Bloomfield, Keaney, Somerville, Raritan, South Branch, Frankfort, Richmand, Va., Florida, South Africa and this city.

During the day Mrs. MacCrady received a large number of callers who offered congratulations. She also received a great many gifts, among them being sixty-five carnations from her neighbor, Mrs. Evelyn Murray. To make the affair complete there was a birthday cake, with the dates "1843-1908" thereon. The affair was arranged by Mrs. MacCrady's daughter, Miss Anna E. MacCrady, and was a great surprise.

Will Discuss Kirmess Plans.

The committee from the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital having charge of the arrangements for the proposed kirmess will meet with Miss E. S. Florance, of Elizabeth, at the home of Mayor C. J. Fisk, tonight, to discuss plans.

SEVERE ON 'NICK' MEYERS

Sudden Change from Mild Punishments Shown in Police Board's Last Sentence.

REDUCED TO LOWEST RANK.

Haled Before Board for Intoxication Is Fined $204 a Year—Comparison With Other Sentences.

On charges of "conduct unbecoming an officer" in that he was intoxicated while on post, Patrolman Nicholas Meyers was haled before the Police Board, last night. Testimony was offered by Chief Kiely and other members of the department and the defendant was found guilty. After a brief conference, the Board decided that in punishment Meyers should be reduced from Class A to Class E or, as the standing of patrolment is rated, from the highest to the lowest position. The reduction means a difference of $17 a month in his pay.

The penalty inflicted on Meyers is one of the severest the Police Board has yet placed on an officer without "breaking" him and has led to a considerable comment and comparison. For the same offense a short time ago another patrolman, whose record of misconduct is longer than any of his colleagues, was fined $5. Still another patrolman, one who has been on the force but a comparatively short time, was taken off post for intoxication and when arraigned before the Board was fined $15.

Meyers has been a patrolman for fifteen years and though answering to numerous charges, the majority of them have been of a trivial nature.

MILD PUNISHMENT FOR MAN WHO BATTERS COP

For resisting arrest by engaging in a rough-and-tumble street fight with Marshal Lemuel Pope, of the Noth Plainfield police force, whom he punished severely as the two rolled together in the gutter on Somerset street, Tuesday night, was given his choice of $20 fine or twenty days' imprisonment by Borough Recorder Dolliver. McCauley passed up the financial option, and took the term. He will probably serve his time in a borough cell.

The light sentence came somewhat as a surprise to many boroughites who know the story of the fierce fight between officer and prisoner, which only came to an end when Patrolman Messler, of the city police, heard Pope's whistle for help and arrested the prisoner.

Marshal Pope brought the charges of resisting arrest in connection with drunkenness and disorderly conduct at the hearing last night. The borough cop, after chasing his man for three blocks, grappled with him just over the "great divide" which separates the counties of Union and Somerset. Realizing that he could not be arrested within the city limits by the borough officer, McCauley put up an awful fight for freedom. Pope was thrown to the ground, kicked several times in the chest, and caught some stiff blows on body and jaw from the furious prisoner. He got a good grip on McCauley's throat and held fast. Unable to reach his night stick, he attempted to subdue his man with fist blows.

As the two rolled together in the roadway, exchanging blows and kicks, Pope shouted to a by-stander to take out his whistle and blow for assistance. A young man finally secured the whistle from the front of the officer's coat in the general fracas, and his alarm brought Patrolman Messler, just as Pope was ajusting the "nippers." McCauley spent the night in the city lock-up, and was brought to borough headquarters yesterday morning.

Preparing for Minstrels.

At a meeting last night, a committee consisting of Nobles L. B. Woolston, B. Frank Coriell, Henry Woodland and Henry Liefke, was appointed to perfect arrangements for the production of a spectacular Arabian minstrel by the Arab Patrol of Salaam Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., at the New Plainfield theatre on Wednesday evening, April 8.

W. V. Mundy Undergoes Operation.

W. V. Mundy, of Duer street, underwent an operation at Muhlenberg Hospital, this morning, when his leg was amputated above the knee. The operation was performed by Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan and was successful. Mr. Mundy had been detained at home for several months on account of the growth of a cancer on the leg, and amputation was decided upon as the only means of recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Woodruff, of East Second street, are sojourning at Atlantic City.

MAY HAVE BEEN A SUICIDE

Aged Inmate of Industrial Home Ground to Death Under Engine Wheels.

HE WAS IN ILL HEALTH.

John Crowford Killed By Jersey Central Freight Near Rock Avenue This Morning.

John Crowford, an aged inmate of the Industrial Home, wandered in front of a New Jersey Central freight train just east of the Rock avenue crossing at 10:30 this morning, and received injuries from which he died a half-hour later. The engine struck him and he was thrown beneath the wheels, getting badly crushed before the train could be stopped.

Whether Crowford got in front of the freight purposely or whether he became confused is a matter of conjecture. Patrolman Andrew Saffron reached the vicinity soon after he was struck and was informed by people living in the neighborhood that the old man had tried to jump before a train earlier in the day. While no one witnessed the fatality it was said by the crew of the freight that Crowford seemed to have gotten bewildered just before the engine bore down upon him but it seemed as if he had cleared the rails. At the Industrial Home it was said that he had been suffering from a hemorrhage through the night and was quite sick when he went out for a walk.

Crowford was eighty-four years old and had lived in Plainfield a long time. He was at one time employed by the late Dr. Utter, of Park avenue, and afterward worked at odd jobs. He had been at the home for several years.

PRINCIPALS IN P.H.S. SENIOR PLAY CHOSEN

The pupils who are to take the parts of the principal characters in Goldsmith's comedy, "She Stoops to Conquer," to be given by the senior class of the Plainfield High School at the New Plainfield theatre, May 9, have been decided upon and the names were made public today. Chauncey Murphey is to take the part of "Tony Hardcastle;" "Young Marlowe" will be Walter Caldwell; "Hastings," Orlando Lounsbury; "Mr. Hardcastle," Percy Mygrant; "Mrs. Hardcastle," Miss Sara Sanderson; "Miss Hardcastle," Miss Elsa Cook, and "Miss Meville," Miss Esther Crampton. This cast has been selected after a careful try-out of the Thespian ability of the members of the class.

The play "She Stoops to Conquer" was given by the members of the class of 1904, Plainfield High school, four years ago, and scored a big success. Miss Elsie Goddard, of East Ninth street, is coaching the cast, and frequent rehearsals are being held in the High School auditorium. Walter B. Caldwell, who is to take the part of "Young Marlowe," is business manager of the pupils' production, and has completed arrangements to have it staged at the New Plainfield theatre. The other members of the cast will be announced within a week.

Boarder Was Vindicated.

The hearing of an Elizabethport man who was accused of taking $11 from the bureau drawer of Mrs. Perrin, of Harmony street, with whom he was a boarder, was continued again before Justice Clark Mundy at the borough court last night. The boarder, whom Mrs. Perrin had arrested on a warrant as soon as she missed the money, was allowed to go free, for the charge could not be substantiated.

Mrs. De Anderson in Prison.

Mrs. Mary De Anderson began yesterday morning her three years' sentence in State prison for swindling and obtaining goods under false pretenses. She was arrested about three months ago and pleaded non vult to the charges made against her. Sentence was imposed by Judge Ten Eyck ten days ago in Newark.

John G. Jenkins, Dead.

John G. Jenkins, Sr., head of the family that for years controlled a string of banks in Brooklyn which became seriously involved in the panic of last fall, died at 7:40 o'clock this morning at his home at Sea Cliff, L. I. Death was due to an attack of paralysis with which he was stricken at 1:20 o'clock.

President R. I. Tolles, of the Common Council, who has greatly improved from an illness that has detained him at home during the past month, left today for Connecticut, where he will remain for a time in the hope that the change will be beneficial.

THIEVES QUICKLY CAUGHT

Nabbed in Elizabeth With Clothing They Stole from Watchung Ave. Flat.

ADMIT GUILT TO DETECTIVE.

One of the Prisoners Is "Cack" Carter, Who Is Well Known to the Local Police.

Within a few hours after they had entered the homes of William Nelson and Mrs. Mary Guthier, of Watchung avenue, yesterday afternoon, and stolen clothing and jewelry, Walter Carter, alias "Cack," and Walter Baker, colored, were arrested in Elizabeth. Through information furnished by Chief Kiely, the police of that city caught the pair as they alighted from a trolley car on Broad street in that city at 8:15 last night. They were carrying three overcoats and two suits of clothes that had been taken from Nelson's home and when confronted today by Detective-Sergeant John Flynn admitted that they had stolen them.

The prisoners were brought to Plainfield shortly before noon and both gave Jersey City addresses as their home. Carter is well known here having been a Boulevard character for many years and when the police finally made things too hot for him he moved over to Newark. Baker is not known to the police but he is said to have a wide acquaintance among the local colored gentry. The pair will be given a hearing tomorrow morning.

Nelson's home is in the Hand flats opposite East Fourth street, while Mrs. Guthier resides at Watchung avenue and Fifth street, also a flat. Mrs. Guthier claims that two gold stick pins were taken from her home but they were not found on the prisoners and they deny knowing anything about them. The homes were entered late in the afternoon while the occupants were away but during the visit to Nelson's place other tenants noticed the colored men in the hall. They gave a description of them to Chief Kiely and in this way their capture was effected. Word was sent to all nearby cities to watch the trains and trolley cars and the vigilance of the Elizabeth cops did the trick.

Amos Stites, of Somerset street, reported to the police that his flat had been entered yesterday afternoon and a gold watch worth $20 was taken. Carter and Baker are suspected of having been the thieves.

COLLEGE SMOKER PLANS.

Expected That 200 Will Attend the Affair.

Everything is in readiness for the college smoker to be held at the Casino tomorrow night and judging by the number of replies to postals sent out it is expected that fully 200 college men will attend. Preparations have been made for that number. There is to be no set program or speeches. The festivities will begin at 8:30 and the plan is to devote the entire evening to one continuous round of fun.

The college men will have an opportunity to sing all the popular songs, and slips containing the words will be distributed so that there will be no excuse for anyone not joining in the "lung testers." There will be an abundance of good music furnished by stringed instruments and a vaudeville show will help to entertain the gathering.

"Wise or Otherwise?"

Rev. Charles F. Stanley, pastor of the Fifth Baptist church of Newark, and one of the most successful evangelists of his denomination, will speak at the men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon. His topic will be "Wise or Otherwise" The Misses Stanley, who have been associated with Rev. Charles H. Yatman in several series of services, will sing.

West Enders Want Sidewalks.

The question of obtaining sidewalks and new crosswalks is being agitated by a number of citizens in the West End of the city. They feel that that part of the town has been neglected in street improvements and a united effort will be made to get the street committee to give the needed walks.

John Nichol Bereaved.

John Nicol, of East Fifth street, was called by telegraph Sunday to his former home in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., because of the serious illness of his mother. Word came today that she had died yesterday morning from pneumonia. Mr. Nicol will remain at Wilkes-Barre until next Monday.

Wife Has Husband Arrested.

Charles Hope of Harmony street, was arrested last night by Marshal Pope on a disorderly charge preferred by his wife. He will be given a hearing at tonight's session of the North Plainfield court.

LOST A RACE WITH DEATH

After Fleeing from the Fever Zone, Lewis H. Hall Succumbs to Pneumonia.

DIES IN BROOKLYN HOSPITAL.

Eldest Son of A. E. Hall the Victim of Terrible Climate of Venezuela—Burial to Be Here.

Striving desperately to reach home and a colder climate in order to offset the ravages of a South American fever, Lewis H. Hall, a wealthy Brooklyn contractor who formerly resided in this city, lost in a race with death that ended Tuesday. He died an hour after he was rushed to the Long Island College Hospital, a victim of pneumonia, brought on by the too sudden change in atmospheric conditions.

Mr. Hall was the eldest son of A. E. Hall, of Plainfield avenue, and had been in Venezuela for the past two years, superintending a dredging contract at Porto Cabello. About a year ago he began to suffer from the climate and his condition finally became so alarming that it was decided to hurry him North. He was put aboard the Red D liner Philadelphia on her last trip up from Porto Cabello and the company was paid an extra bonus in order to have her sent along at full speed. The steamer made splendid time at the start but from Jacksonville up was constantly delayed by storms.

Mr. Hall's condition became very grave when the colder weather was encountered and the physician in charge had doubts of his reaching home alive. The sick man expressed the wish that he at least be gotten to Brooklyn to see his daughter at her home but it became necessary to order the hospital ambulance by wireless telegraph before the liner arrived at her pier. When the ship docked at Montague street, Brooklyn, Tuesday noon, the ambulance and his daughter were in waiting and he was hurried to the College institution. He had barely been placed on a cot when death claimed the race.

Mr. Hall had many friends in Plainfield, having been a frequent visitor at his father's home after going to Brooklyn to make his home. The funeral will be held at the residence of his daughter tomorrow noon and will be private. The body will be brought to this city and burial will be in the Plainfield avenue cemetery.

LATCHES TAKEN FROM SCHOOL FIRE EXITS

To prevent any possible congestion at the exits of the North Plainfield public schools, the Borough Board of Education has decided to have catches and bolts adjusted so that either of the twin doors will open independently to the other and without turning the knobs. The work of changing the doors was begun at the Somerset street school, where there are six exits, this morning, and a similar improvement will be made at the Watchung school.

The doors are being altered so that they may be easily opened by merely pressing against them. They close with a pneumatic spring, attached to each door, and either may be used independently.

Fire drills have become almost a habit with the local school children, and good time is being made emptying the buildings. There were drills this morning at the Franklin, Stillman and Whittier schools.

Italian Fighters Caught.

Arrested on warrants sworn out by Patsy Troiler, who alleges he was threatened with knives in the course of a fight in the Italian settlement on Watchung avenue, Dominick Pascint and Tony Denzt are in borough cells awaiting a hearing before Recorder Dolliver tonight. Marshals Pope and Keller arrested the men last night.

Cleaning Somerset Street.

Street Commissioner J. Y. Barrett, of North Plainfield, has a gang of men at work scraping Somerset street. Sufficient frost is out of the ground to make this work efficient on the east side of the street, but there is still ice in the gutters on the Hassam pavement, and this is being removed in the cleaning.

Senator Ackerman to Lecture.

"Interesting Pictures of Interesting Places" will be the subject of an illustrated lecture to be given by State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, Thursday night, March 26, at 8 o'clock, for the benefit of the Swedish Pilgrim church.

—A. E. Barclay, of Central avenue, has purchased a model F, 1908 Buick automobile.

NEWARK, N. J.

ANNOUNCEMENT!

Concerning the Retirement of Wm. T. Rae & Co., and of the Continuance of the Business under the Proprietorship of

C. M. SANFORD

(Formerly with Messrs. J. Wiss & Sons.)

After Fifty years of active business life, the firm of Wm. T. Rae & Co. has retired.

With its passing into history goes a reputation for sterling integrity, reliability and honesty such as few concerns can boast of, and which it will be my earnest endeavor to maintain.

In announcing my advent into this business and continuing that of Messrs. Rae & Co., there are several facts which I wish to make public, namely:

(1) That it will ever be my purpose to live up to and not "on" the reputation which the house of Rae & Co. has established.

(2) That my stock of Diamonds and other Precious Stones, Gold Jewelry and Clocks will not only be as varied and comprehensive as that of any other Newark store of this character, but absolutely dependable and moderately priced as well.

(3) That I shall offer an Optical Service second to none in the city. This department, while under my personal supervision and direction, will be in charge of a skilled Eye Sight Specialist —W. E. Small, Ref. D.

(4) That Watch and Jewelry Repairing shall constitute an important part of my business, and that all such work entrusted to me will be executed satisfactorily and promptly by experts whose qualifications are the best.

To serve you faithfully and well and merit your good-will and patronage is my desire.

—The past month has been unusually busy at Muhlenberg Hospital, there being a large number of operations. At present the number of patients under treatment is nearly up to the limit as far as accommodations are concerned.

WORK ON BATTLE MONUMENT.

Frederick MacMonnies Will Begin Next Month to Evolve Princeton Shaft.

Princeton, March 12.—At last, after thirteen years of agitation, it seems as if the Princeton battle monument will be a reality. Frederick MacMonnies, of New York city, has been selected as sculptor, and he will begin work in his studio in the middle of next month.

Under an act of Congress $60,000 was appropriated in 1905. The ground proposed is the triangular plot formed by the junction of Stockton and Nassau streets and Bayard lane. Professor Allan Marquand, of Princeton University, has made a suggestion in regard to the construction of the monument, which will perhaps be carried out. Professor Marquand thinks that, instead of the commonplace statue, a group figure of Victory or of some other allegorical study would be more appropriate. The commemorative idea of the monument will be carried out in bas-reliefs and an inscription on the base.

Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, will meet tonight and receive several applications.

The Women's Relief Corps will meet in G. A. R. Hall tomorrow night to discuss new plans of work.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Samuel Claggett will present Cyril Scott in a new play at the New Plainfield theatre tonight. The piece was especially commissioned for Mr. Scott, the authors being Cecil and William de Mille, authors of "Strongheart" and "The Genius." The title selected after many arguments is "The Royal Mounted," and the subject matter deals with stirring incidents in Northwestern Canada. It contains the spirit and purpose that supplied such plays as "The Squawman" and "The Great Divide," although its story is laid far from the goldfields and the plains, and neither Indians, cowboys nor miners take part in the action. The centre of its evolution is in the heart of the province of Alberta, in and around Calgary, where the Canadian cavalry police patrol. A splendid cast is promised for the new production, and the scenic equipment is said to be very elaborate.

Another Forbes comedy is due in this city next Saturday, afternoon and night, when Henry B. Harris will offer Thomas W. Ross in "The Traveling Salesman," a comedy of American life, whose scenes are laid in a town in the Middle West, and which show the interior of a depot, the traveling salesman's sample room in the hotel, and one of the village stores. Mr Ross will be remembered for his exceptionally fine work in the impersonation of the title role in "Checkers." He will be supported by an exceptionally fine cast which includes Marion Kerby, William Beach, May McCabe, Percival Moore, Arthur Shaw, Harry D. Blakemere, Maud Sinclair, Ernest Lamson, Edward M Dresser, Nicholas Burnham, R. C. Turner, Frances Golden Fuller and Martin Fuller.

"The Two Orphans" is essentially a drama of deeds, and not one of words. Many of its strongest scenes could be played in pantomime, so little do they depend on the lines that the actors read; in this regard they are like some of the best scenes in Shakespearian dramas. Like all really great dramas including "Hamlet" and "Julius Caesar" it appeals to the emotions that are common to all humanity, and not to that small and deliciously naive class that modestly styles itself the intellectually superior one. "The Two Orphans" is a dramatic gem that sparkles against all environments; it touches all hearts, and the sacrificial love of one sister for the other gives all a homily that will last. To tell about the "Two Orphans" would be but reciting an old story, it has been told over and over again, and even in the nursery the good governess will reach the little hearts with a recital of the sisters. "The Two Orphans" will be at the New Plainfield theatre Monday night.

Much interest has been awakened over the announced appearance at the New Plainfield theatre on March 27 and 28, of Thomas E. Shea in a carefully prepared program of classic drama. Mr. Shea's program includes a special performance of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," in which he will appear in the celebrated dual role, and a new play by Eugene Thomas entitled "A Soldier of the Cross." In the last, Mr. Shea will be seen as Ajax, a gladiator who goes through many thrilling adventures in avenging the loss of his stolen daughter. Mr. Shea tours under the auspices of Messrs. Cohan and Harris, who have given a liberal production to each of the plays.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The badly decomposed body of an infant was found in the loft of Carroll's stable, Ramapo avenue, Paterson, yesterday afternoon.

The Bayonne City Republican Club has awarded contracts for an addition to the clubhouse at Broadway and Twenty-ninth street. Work is to be started at once.

A petition is being circulated and freely signed at Clayton asking the Legislature to keep the age limit at which boys may work in the factories at fourteen years.

The small daughter of Professor and Mrs. Louis F. Richards, of Millville, was saved from death by ptomaine poisoning after eating cheese, by the prompt action of physicians.

Rev. William J. Cambron, a former pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist church of Camden, has accepted a call to the First Baptist church, Cincinnati, at a salary of $2,600 a year.

On a trip of the Reading ferryboat Cape May, from Kaighn's Point, Camden, to Chestnut street, Philadelphia, yesterday a colored woman committed suicide by leaping over the guard rail into the river.

On his way to Atlantic City with several horses last night, Walter Boody, twenty-two years old, was kicked by one of the animals at Haddon avenue and Carmon street, Camden, and had his left leg fractured. He was taken to Cooper Hospital.

It is understood that Beach Haven is to have a new postmaster. George H. Walker, who has held the place twelve years, wishes to resign because of ill health, and Assemblyman Crosby has recommended William F. Bears to Congressman Howell.

The condition of Leo Ball, sixteen years old, of Union avenue, Totowa, who was struck in the head by a billiard ball during the progress of a controversy between himself and a young companion in a Totowa clubroom on Monday afternoon, is serious. As yet no complaints have been made against the young man who committed the assault.

A movement is under way by a number of women living in the Centreville section of Bayonne to organize an anti-gambling society for the purpose of assisting the police to stop gambling in that thickly populated part of the city. Complaints have been made that poker and other games are played in a number of cigar and candy stores, and that families suffer because the heads gamble away their wages. Recorder Lazarus has promised to aid in the crusade.

SAYS 10,000 SPORTSMEN WANT GAME BILL PASSED.

Trenton, March 12.—Before the Senate Committee on Game and Fish adjourned the hearing which it gave yesterday on all the fish and game bills pending, several persons were heard besides Chancellor Pitney, who, as told, talked against the game bills.

After Edward F. Duffy, of Newark, had exhibited eggs taken from a duck shot last week, as proof that they breed in this State, and Benjamin P. Morris, former president of the Fish and Game Commission, had derided the need of an anti-spring shooting law in New Jersey, George Batten, president of the New Jersey Sportsmen's Association, presented the views of the 10,000 sportsmen whom he said he represented. Thirty-five newspapers in the State had come out in favor of the anti-spring shooting bill, he declared.

Dr. Fisher, of the bureau of biological survey, was quoted as saying this State is a breeding ground for wild ducks. Mr. Batten asked the committee to report the bill favorably, as well as the bill to prevent shooting of woodcock in July. According to government reports, he said, woodcock are fast decreasing.

Later he said that, despite the statements of Chancellor Pitney, the association will continue to fight because there is no doubt, he said, that the bills will prove a tremendous benefit to sportsmen.

Shame on Him!

"Of course, John," said Mrs. Younghusband, "I like my kitchen quite well, but I'd like to have one of those new portable ranges." "But, my dear," protested her foxy husband, "we'd have to get portable cooking utensils to go with it." "That's so. I never thought of that." —Catholic Standard and Times.

Men Don't Change.

Dad (severely)—And look here, Ethel, you mustn't encourage that young man to stay so late every night. It's disgraceful. What does your mother say about it?

Ethel—She says men haven't altered a bit, dad.

—Mr. and Mrs. Carleton C. Brown have removed from West Front street to Dunellen avenue.

BASEBALL.

There is a movement on foot to organize a new baseball league which would include Plainfield, Somerville, High Bridge and Flemington and the idea has already met with the unanimous approval of a host of fans. The plan is the outgrowth of the disappointment among the followers of the game over the formation of the Inter-City Amateur League and if it is possible efforts will be made to organize one strong team to form the combination with Somerville, High Bridge and Flemington.

The fans in the above-named towns are red-hot for the proposed league for they feel it would result in the old-time rivalry and bring the crowds out in large numbers. Plainfield sports know the kind of ball put up by the teams at Somerville, Flemington and High Bridge and they are anxious that they be brought together in a schedule of games.

All the towns, with the exception of Plainfield are ready to do business and it is now up to the local fans to get busy and organize a team. For that matter either the Y. M. C. A. or Clinton Avenue aggregation would be strong enough to join the new league and there are many who believe that they would make the other teams play their best ball to win.

Aside from the fact that the league would play the game for sport's sake chiefly, the combination would mean the filling of the treasury of each club with money. There is no doubt about the drawing qualities of the clubs mentioned, and the fans in each town would follow their team wherever it played. The fans at Somerville, High Bridge and Flemington are an enthusiastic lot of people and they would like nothing better than to stack up against Plainfield. A number of local fans who have been discussing the proposition will meet soon and see what can be done toward securing a team to represent the city in the new league. If the scheme is practical, and there seems to be every reason that it would be, a meeting of representatives of the other clubs will be called to formulate plans for the season.

The Reading club of the Union League, an outlaw organization, will be managed by Dr. F. C. Reisling, who was one of the star pitchers in the Tri-State League last season. Reisling was draughted from the Toledo club by Brooklyn in 1904 and pitched for the latter club during the following year. In 1906 he had some trouble with President Ebbets over his salary and jumped to the Tri-State League, where he played with Lancaster in 1906 and 1907. He was placed on the blacklist by the National Commission, with the understanding that he could never play outside of the Tri-State again. In jumping to the Union League Reisling has further embarrassed his position, for it is said that if this new outlaw circuit goes to the wall he will be forever barred from organized baseball. Eugene McCann, another former Brooklyn player, will manage another Union League team this year. President Lawson says that the Unions are signing all the players necessary and that the season will begin with all the clubs in good condition.

GOLF.

Just at present an air of mystery pervades the professional atmosphere. Some time ago there was a rumor floating round to the effect that Massy, Braid, Vardon and Taylor, the "big four" on the other side, were likely to come here for the open championship, which is to be held over the links of the Myopia Hunt Club, near Boston, the last part of August. Since then the briefest kind of a dispatch reached here that the quartet mentioned would not visit America for the open. Ordinarily, that would close the incident; but there are reasons for the belief that not only the Myopia Club, but the United States Golf Association, may find it advantageous to make overtures of an exceptional nature to the foreign experts.

That there is discontent among the resident and native born professionals no one can deny. The trouble began in 1905, when the open was last held at Myopia, the claim being that the professionals were not treated fairly by the club. In fact, the "pros" were not accorded any of the clubhouse privileges, not even being allowed to use the telephone. Several of the leading professionals of the country have announced their intention not to compete in this year's open, and plans are under way toward some sort of concerted action. The question has been presented to William Norton, president of the Eastern Professional Golfers' Association.

Should the latter organization decide in favor of a boycott the chances are that a majority of the players would stay away. Of course, there is little doubt that the open will be held as scheduled, no matter how slim the entry may be, but the presence of several of the leading players of Great Britain would lend a tone and class to the Myopia affair, and certainly all who have ever watched a round of expert golf would welcome a visit of the four experts mentioned. This tournament, which gives all a chance to compete for the open championship of the United States, is annually becoming more important. As for Myopia, no links in the country assures a fairer result.

By the time the Ackerman civil service bill gets into the statute books its father won't be able to recognize it.

It has been figured out that Charles W. Morse is liable to an aggregate fine of $111,000 and to 202 years confinement in jail, but then these computations do not take into account that William T. Jerome is still district attorney of New York.

OFFICES ABOLISHED.

New Health Board to Supplant Old Body and Sewage Commission.

The Senate at Trenton yesterday passed bills abolishing the State Board of Health and the State Sewage Commission and creating a new board, to be called the State Board of Health, to assume the duties of the two boards abolished. This is an administration measure. The deposed members are Laban Dennies, Newark, 1908; William H. Murray, Plainfield, 1913; Cyrus T. Brackett, president, Princeton, 1909; Henry B. Rue, Hoboken, 1912; George P. Olcott, East Orange, 1914; Henry Mitchell, Asbury Park, 1912; William M. Lanning, Trenton, 1910; the Secretary of State, the Attorney General and the State Geologist ex-officio. The chief inspector of foods and drugs was George W. Maguire, of Trenton. David S. South was State register of vital statistics. The members of the sewage commission were Charles W. Fuller, chairman; Bayonne, 1908; John H. Capstick, Montville, 1908; William H. Chew, Camden, 1910; Frederick C. Jacobsen, Newark, 1909; H. M. Herbert, Bound Brook, 1909, and Boyd McLean, secretary, Jersey City.

During the discussion of the bills Senator Frelinghuysen expressed himself strongly in condemnation of what he declared to be a disposition greatly to increase the State expenditures. He said there were bills pending that would add $316,000 to the State's annual disbursements.

The Senate passed the bill appropriating $4,000 for equipping the armory of the Essex Troop. The Senate adjourned for the week.

The House defeated a number of amendments intended to make less exacting the bills prohibiting children under sixteen years of age from attending theatres and other places of amusement unless accompanied by parent or guardian. One of the defeated amendments sought to exempt moving picture shows.

Trolley Car Rear Drops Off.

While a trolley car laden with employes from the new State Normal School in Montclair Heights was proceeding over the Valley Road Tuesday evening the rear platform, which was crowded with workmen, dropped off. A dozen men were precipitated into the roadway. Henry Williamson, a plumber, of Orange road, was severely injured. The trolley rope caught around his neck, pulling the trolley off the overhead wire. He was almost strangled. Other passengers dumped into the road were badly cut and bruised. Had the car been proceeding under full headway it is believed that the casualties would have been severe.

CIVIL SERVICE PASSES

Put Through Assembly After Another Important Amendment is Made.

COMMISSIONERS ARE ELECTIVE.

Scheme Afoot to Bring About Ultimate Defeat of the Measure, It Is Reported.

The Ackerman civil service reform bill passed the House last night so amended that the three commissioners for which provision is made are elective by popular vote instead of appointive by the Governor. The elective amendment was adopted through support given to the Democratic minority by eleven Republicans who had been urged to so vote by Republican party leaders standing behind the rail. The Democrats last year insisted on an elective commission.

The opinion freely expressed in the State House was that the elective feature was not so much a further evidence on the break between the Governor and the Legislature as it was the work of the enemies of civil service reform, who knew that the Senate would not accept the amendment when the bill returned to that body for final approval. The bill will probably be buffeted about in the next week or so, and finally considered by a joint conference committee in an endeavor to hit on a compromise.

Ackerman Hears Debate.

Senator Ackerman, who introduced the bill, and who has labored in vain for over two years to get it through, sat beside Majority Leader William P. Martin during the whole tedious day's debate on the measure.

When the roll call began to show some Republicans for the elective amendment introduced last night by Tumulty, of Hudson, Senator Ackerman started for the Governor's office.

"What shall I say to him?" he asked over his shoulder.

"Tell him Dalrymple is killing the bill." Mr. Martin called out loudly enough for Alfred N. Dalrymple, chairman of the Essex County Republican Committee, to whom he referred, to hear.

The Governor took no action last night, advising that the House be left to its own devices, and expressing a hope that the matter might be straightened out and his recommendation for reform in civil service finally enacted into law.

Finally the last vain effort by Edwin H. Ginnelly, of Mercer, to substitute a tenure of office bill was made, the last of the amendments was considered and the bill was placed on third reading and final passage amid laughter that was unrestrained. The House voted unanimously for the measure.

Bill Will Need a Father.

Speaking on the measure just before the vote was taken, James Baker, of Hudson, inspired by the frequent use of the word "affiliation" in the bill, dwelt on the suggestion of fatherhood in the word.

"The bill will need a father," said he, "because when it gets back to the Senate its original parent will have difficulty in recognizing it."

Those who were in the House included Dory Strong, of Middlesex; John Rotherham, chairman of Hudson County's Republican Committee; Chairman Dalrymple and Secretary John R. Flavell, of Essex County's Republican Committee, and a number of lesser lights. At the rail during the day were Comptroller Henry J. West, Treasurer "Dan" Voorhees and other State officials.

Civil service was the first order of business on the calendar. When the House convened at 11:40 the debate began on the bill to keep unaccompanied minors out of theatres. That was quickly set aside and the civil service argument was on. At 2:15 the members stopped for luncheon, resuming at 4 and finally passing the bill about 6 o'clock, having given almost five hours of work to it.

Opposes Change.

Carlton B. Pierce, of Union, was the first to speak for the bill, and was opposed to changing it as prepared by Mr. Ackerman.

Mr. Thompson, of Mercer, secured the adoption of his proposed amendments correcting the title, reducing the salary of commissioners from $3,000 to $2,000 per year and limiting the cost to $25,000 in one year instead of $30,000.

Philip Daab, of Hudson, secured the adoption of an amendment limiting the applicants for positions to residents of New Jersey.

Mr. Young, of Essex, had several amendments adopted, but later when the Tumulty amendment had passed, he acquiesced in the vote being reconsidered and the provisions killed.

Amendments by Mr. Kenny, of Hudson, for a bi-partisan commission were said to be unconstitutional, according to an opinion of the Attorney-General, and were voted down.

Mr. Ginnelly's proposition for the commissioners to serve without salary was beaten.

Mr. Tumulty won out in having the bill changed so that the Governor would have no power to approve or disapprove orders of the commission.

Mr. Sullivan's amendments, still further extending the Colby Senate amendments to give Civil War veterans preference in examinations and appointments, were carried.

Braun Loses.

Mr. Braun, of Essex, was beaten on his big list of amendments, but Mr. Ginnelly won out in having the department heads appointed by Mayors in municipalities placed in the unclassified list.

In arguing the Tumulty amendments Mr. Sullivan said the Democrats had reached the last ditch and would vote against the bill if it wasn't what they wanted. There was much argument as to what the pledges to civil service reform in the platforms of both great parties might mean.

On the Tumulty elective feature the vote was 28 to 25, a majority of those present being necessary to adopt an amendment. Mr. Martin changed his vote to aye, with a view to moving to reconsider action.

The Republicans who voted with the Democrats were: Theodore B. Gibbs, Camden; Edwin H. Grinnelley, Mercer; George W. Housel, Mercer; Martin E. Keeffer, Atlantic; James A. Lyon, Morris; August J. Miller, Essex; Samuel A. Ridgway, Salem; William Roberts, Essex; Corsville E. Stille, Cape May; William C. Voorhees, Middlesex; Henry Young, Jr., Essex.

BATTLESHIPS TO ARRIVE AT GOLDEN GATE MAY 5.

A partial itinerary for the battleship fleet after finishing target practise at Magdalena Bay was announced yesterday by the Navy Department at Washington. It includes visits to San Diego (Coronada), Santa Barbara, San Pedro, Santa Cruz and San Francisco, arriving at the latter place on May 5. The announcement says that the plans for the future movements of all vessels of both the Atlantic and Pacific fleets after the naval review at San Francisco have not as yet been made.

The grand review of the ships of the Atlantic and Pacific fleets in the Bay of San Francisco will take place on May 8. On the day of the review all vessels will be fully dressed and at night the ships will be illuminated.

Kornid Acquitted of Murder.

Adolph Kornid, tried on the charge of murdering Barthlomew Gruico during a quarrel over a woman at No. 161 Morgan street, Jersey City, on March 25, 1907, was found not guilty by a struck jury in Judge Blair's court yesterday. The preponderance of testimony at the trial was in favor of Kornid, it being brought out that Gruico attacked Kornid as the latter entered the hallway of the house in question, and that it was during this scuffle that the fatal shot was fired. Self-defence was the plea in behalf of Kornid.

THE FORUM.

The Police Department.

Editor, The Daily Press:

After last night's action of the police board is it any wonder that we hear constantly of the police force being demoralized? I want to know where justice comes in when one policeman is fined $5 and another $200, although the latter is a policeman of fifteen years standing and the first one only a special.

FAIRPLAY.

SAYS 10,000 SPORTSMEN WANT GAME BILL PASSED.

Before the Senate Committee on Game and Fish adjourned the hearing which it gave yesterday at Trenton and all the fish and game bills pending, several persons were heard besides Chancellor Pitney, who, as told, talked against the game bills.

After Edward F. Duffy, of Newark, had exhibited eggs taken from a duck shot last week, as proof that they breed in this State, and Benjamain P. Morris, former president of the Fish and Game Commission, had desided the need of an anti-spring shooting law in New Jersey, George Baten, president of the New Jersey Sportsmen's Association, presented the views of the 10,000 sportsmen whom he said he represented. Thirty-five newspapers in the State had come out in favor of the anti-spring shooting bill, he declared.

Dr. Fisher, of the bureau of biological survey, was quoted as saying this State is a breeding ground for wild ducks. Mr. Batten asked the committee to report the bill favorably, as well as the bill to prevent shooting of woodcock in July. According to government reports, he said, woodcock are fast decreasing.

Later he said that, despite the statements of Chancellor Pitney, the association will continue to fight because there is no doubt, he said, that the bills will prove a tremendous benefit to sportsmen.

In the Senate yesterday, Senator Colby presented a numerously signed petition in favor of Senate bills 150, 151, 160 and 172, the fish and game bills which are being urged by the Fish and Game Commission.

Don't Want Flags Returned.

Senator Bradley, of Camden, presented a petition yesterday against the return of the captured Confederate flags in the possession of the State from members of the T. M. K. Lee Jr., Post, No. 5, G. A. R., which recommends that the colors be removed from the vaults where they are now kept and returned to the regiment or brigade associations which captured them.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

An Elective Civil Service Commission.

After much amendment and attempted amendment, the civil service bill passed the House of Assembly yesterday in the shape not contemplated by its putative author, Senator Ackerman. As the bill passed the Senate it provided for the appointment of the three commissioners by the Governor. As it finally passed the House yesterday the bill provides for elective commissioners, thus removing the office from the executive control. The appointees by mayors of cities are also made exempt. This radical change in the bill will not be acceptable to the Senate, and in its present shape it is not likely to be affirmatively acted on when it reaches the Senate. Governor Fort cannot look with favor upon a bill that departs so widely from his ideas of what a civil service law ought to be. The evident purpose of men who offered or influenced amendments was to kill the bill and prevent any change in the method of appointments to office and the tenure thereof, and perhaps the most effective weapon was the amendment adopted by the House that the Senate would be sure to antagonize.—Newark Morning Star.

Miss Etta Raybert, of East Second street, is suffering from the effects of a sprained ankle, which detains her at home.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Frequent fire drills are being held in the local school and yesterday afternoon Superintendent Lester Meseroll sounded the alarm, after shutting off the exits at the front of the building. The pupils filed out from the rear doors in less than a minute. There are about 150 pupils in the schools, and the fire drills from time to time are making the possibilities of panic a minimum.

Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, of the Plainfield Public Schools, will lecture tonight at the Presbyterian church. His topic will be "Co-operation between the Home and the School" and he will outline a plan for co-operation between teachers and parents.

The Lenten class of ladies of Holy Innocents church held its second meeting this afternoon in the lecture room of the church. Mrs. A. S. Phelps was in charge of the meeting.

Father E. J. Dunphy preached last night at the mid-week service at St. John's church. Week-day services are held at the church Wednesday and Friday evenings during Lent.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The members of the Baptist Sunday-school and their friends held a social in the church parlors last night. The program arranged consisted of music and lantern slides, "A Trip to Mexico."

The auction sale of household goods at Mrs. Charles N. Flanders yesterday afternoon was well attended. Auctioneer H. Hand was able to clean up the sale in the one afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Battell Loomis, former residents of the borough, but now of Hackensack, have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Thompson, of Park avenue.

The Epworth League of the Methodist church will hold a social Friday night in the church. One of the attractions arranged by the committee is an Irish supper.

A meeting of the teachers committee of the Board of Education met last night in the school parlors.

Miss Caroline Lent, of the corps of school teachers, spent yesterday visiting the Plainfield schools.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., meets tonight in the library rooms.

Riding a Chautauqua.

The citizens of a thriving town of about 6,000 people arranged for a Chautauqua assembly. They held the meetings in a big tent about a mile from the town, and the attendance was large from the first day. An enterprising circum man landed in the town on the second day of the Chautauqua with a steam merry-go-round, which he located about halfway between the town and the Chautauqua grounds.

Along in the afternoon a young man from the country districts was accosted by a citizen of the town.

"Well, Ezry, I suppose you are in to the Chautauqua?"

"I shore am. Jist come from thar now."

"How'd you like it?"

"Fine ez a fiddle! I rode on the durn thing nine times!"—Lippincott's.

A Competent Witness.

A friend of the family had been summoned to testify, much against his will, as to certain domestic disturbances in a Chicago household.

"You saw these blows administered?" asked counsel.

"Yes, sir."

"Did you see the beginning of the quarrel between this man and his wife?"

"I did."

"When was it?"

"Six years ago."

"Six years ago! How is that possible?"

"I was a guest at their wedding," said the witness.—Ladies' Home Journal.

The Burglar's Meal.

Charles Lamb was awakened early one morning by a noise in his kitchen and on going downstairs found a burglar doing his spoons up in a bundle.

"Why d-do you s-s-st-f-teal?" he asked.

"Because I'm starving," returned the housebreaker sullenly.

"Pup-pup-poor fuf-fuf-fellow!" said the essayist. "H-here's a l-l-leg of L-L-Lamb for you."

And, with a dexterous movement of his right leg, he ejected the marauder into the street and, locking the door securely, went back to bed.

Wants to Use Orange Oval.

Playgrounds Commissioner Paltiel Bomeisler, of East Orange, at Trenton, yesterday, had Assemblyman H. Stacy Smith introduce his bill that is intended to give the body of which he is a member the use of Orange Oval for games and public exhibitions, and to charge admission fees. The measure will be opposed by some of the property holders.

Toasting a Deaf Miser.

A deaf man—let us call him Brown—was disposed to stinginess and to getting every dollar he could out of everybody and everything. He never married, but he was very fond of society. So one day he felt compelled to give a banquet to the many ladies and gentlemen whose guest he had been.

They were amazed that his purse strings had been unloosed so far, and they thought he deserved encouragement, so it was arranged that he should be toasted. One of the most daring young men of the company was selected, for it took nerve to propose a toast to so unpopular a man. But the young man rose, and Brown, who had been notified of what was to occur, fixed his face in the customary manner of a man about to be toasted. And this is what was heard by every one except Brown, who never heard anything that was not roared into his ear:

"Here's to you, Miser Brown. You are no better than a tramp, and it is suspected that you got most of your money dishonestly. We trust that you may get your just desserts yet and land in the penitentiary."

Visible evidences of applause made Brown smile with gratification. He got upon his feet, raised his glass to his lips and said, "The same to you, sir."

Little Sally Waters.

Two cushions are placed on the floor, and the children form a ring around them, holding each other's hands. One child sits in the middle, pretending to cry, representing Sally. The children dance around her singing:

"Little Sally Waters sitting in the sun,
Crying because her mother hasn't come.
Rise up, Sally, dry up your tears.
Turn to the east and turn to the west,
And turn to the one that you love best."

Sally rises, wipes her eyes and walks slowly around the ring until she reaches the companion she intends to honor, when she takes her by the hand and leads her to the cushion prepared for her. Both seat themselves, and the children dance around them, singing:

"Oh, Sister Phoebe, how happy were we
The day we sat under the juniper tree.
Put on your cap to keep your head warm,
And two or three kisses will do us no harm."

The two in the middle exchange kisses, the first child rises, takes her place in the ring, and the game is repeated until all have been chosen.

Lincoln's Way.

Lincoln at the commencement of the war was much abused by one of his generals. He was even openly insulted by this man. In his splendid way he put up with that mistreatment imperturbably. But when the thing kept growing more and more flagrant his friends told him he was suffering more than was reasonable or right. But Lincoln only smiled his old, sad, humorous smile.

"I'll hold his horse for him," he said, "if he will only bring us success."

Silage a Valuable Feed.

At a recent extensive feeding experiment of steers carried on by the Kansas Agriculture college it was demonstrated that it cost almost seven times as much to make a pound of grain when hay was fed as when silage was fed for roughage and about six times as much when corn stover was fed as when silage or silage and stover were fed. These facts are well worth thinking over and that very carefully.—Farm Progress.

The Thoughtful Employer.

"Are you aware, sir," said the faithful bookkeeper, "that today is the fortieth anniversary of my service with you?"

The employer took a square box neatly wrapped in white paper from his desk.

"I know it, Mr. Quille," he said, "and I have prepared a little surprise for you. Pray accept this alarm clock, with my best wishes for your continued punctuality."

To Dredge the Delaware.

A concurrent resolution was introduced in the State Senate yesterday by Senator Leavitt, of Mercer, requesting Congress to make an appropriation for the dredging of the Delaware river channel and improving it from Perriwig Bar to the Pennsylvania bridge in Trenton. The purpose is to give Trenton a deep waterway up to the old steamboat wharf near Ferry street.

Passaic Rector Resigns.

The Rev. Robert F. Kelleman has sent his resignation as rector of St. George's Protestant Episcopal church, of Passaic, to Bishop Edwin S. Lines, of the Newark Diocese, to take effect at the close of the current month. The reason he gives is that he has succeeded in putting St. George's on a strong footing, and that it is time for him to build up elsewhere.

Green Stuff for Poultry.

Every thoughtful poultry owner provides some green stuff for the hens in winter. If you have a silo, give them some ensilage. If not, give cabbage or soak some chopped up clover or alfalfa in warm water till soft and feed that to them. It is great egg making food. In default of any of these things apples are good or turnips and pumpkins [illegible]

RECEPIES AND REPLIES

Steamed Lettuce.

Pick apart a head of lettuce, wash carefully, and put into a steamer over a kettle of boiling water (a steamer may be improvised by using an ordinary colander and a pot of boiling water), cover closely, laying a thick folded cloth upon the lid. Boil hard for half an hour, then drain and lay the lettuce leaves upon a hot dish; salt and pepper, and if this dish is not eaten at bedtime to "secure quiet sleep," it will be much improved by pouring over it a sauce piquant.

Orange Jelly.

One ounce packet of the best isinglas or gelatine, four ounces of loaf sugar, six oranges, one lemon, one pint water. Soak the packet of isinglass or gelatine in half a pint of cold water; boil four ounces of loaf sugar in half a pint of water till it becomes a syrup, then add the juice of six oranges and one lemon, and the peel of two oranges and half a lemon. Placeon the fire for a minute, skim well, and add a wineglass of cold water by degrees, to make the scum rise; put in the isinglass, stir till dissolved, and strain through muslin.

Squash Croquettes.

These are usually made of left-over baked squash, or squash may be baked for the purpose. When tender put through a vegetable press. To each pint allow a half cup of soft, fine bread crumbs, level tablespoonful of butter and season well. Mix thoroughly over the fire, and then turn out to cool. When cold form into croquettes, dip in beaten egg, roll in bread crumbs, and fry in hot fat in a wire basket, which comes for this purpose.

German Butter Dumplings.

Three tablespoons of butter beaten until creamy, quarter teaspoon salt. Add three egg yolks and about half-cup white flour and then the whites of eggs beaten stiff. Put in enough more flour to form a spongy mass so that you can cut it with a spoon. Drop the dumplings into boiling soup and cook ten minutes.

Creamed Potatoes.

Cut cold boiled potatoes in neat dice. Make a cupful of sauce by cooking together a tablesponful af butter and one of flour and adding to them a generous cupful of milk. Put in a double boiler, add potatoes and simmer for fifteen minutes. Season well with salt and pepper and serve.

Apple Fritters or Pancakes.

Make a batter of one egg, a quarter teaspoonful of salt, one good cup of milk, about three-quarters of a cupful of flour. Pare and cut apples in rounds, throw them in the batter and fry in plenty of lard. When done sprinkle sugar on top.

Parsnip Coquettes.

Boil five parsnips; when tender take off the skin and mash them fine; mix the same amount of boiled potatoes with the parsnips, then add one egg, salt and pepper to taste; roll in small patties and fry in butter; garnish with parsley. This makes a fine tasting dish.

Appetizing Bread and Butter.

Nothing is more easily prepared or more appetizing than hot bread and butter for an emergency dish. Prepare it by cutting moderately thin slices of bread and spread each with butter. Then stack the slices and stand ten minutes in a stead oven.

Boneless Squab.

Have pork tenderloins "Frenched"—that is, cut in round slices. Make a dressing as for poultry, place a portion between two slices of meat, dredge well with salt and pepper, lay a slice of salt pork over each side, fasten together with wooden toothpicks. Bake a golden brown. These look like squabs and have a fine flavor. Remove toothpicks and serve with "angel apple sauce." To make a sauce procure red cooking apples, wash core and quarter; cook until a fluffy mass, press through sieve, sweeten to taste, add a dash or two of nutmeg; when cold add the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs or more, according to the amount you make. Serve cold, arranged in pyramids, with cubes of currant or bright apple jelly on top.

Quick Potatoes.

In making mashed potatoes I find that by slicing them the same as for French fried will cook in five minutes. Mash and salt, butter and milk, and beat until light.

Potato Noodles.

Mash boiled potatoes fine, mix with enough flour to make a stiff dough, pinch off bits of the dough, roll between the palms of the hands to little strips the length of your smallest finger, throw into a pot of boiling salt water. When they come to the top skim them out, put in colander, and hold under cold running water. When they are cooled stand until dry, fry brown in butter. Serve with steak and tomato sauce.

Mock Cream.

Beat up the whole of a fresh egg in a basin. Pour boiling tea or water over it gradually, to prevent curdling. In flaver and richness this preparation resembles cream.

The Heiress Abroad.

"On your trip abroad did you see any wonderful old ruins?" he asked. "Yes," she replied archly, "and guess what?" "Well?" "One of them wanted to marry me."—Harper's Weekly.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning March 15, 1908.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—The wise use of money.—I Tim. vi, 17-19.

Money may be generally defined as governmentally stamped coin used as a medium of exchange. As a matter of convenience certificates are often is sued instead of coin, which is held in reserve. Nothing looks more innocent than coined gold and silver, and yet what a history is associated with the money of the world, where its selfish accumulation becomes a ruling pas sion and for its sake men will sacrifice honor and everything most dear to them in life! If all the money in the world's history could tell its story, what tragedies would be revealed, what horrors would be unfolded!

But money, while a power for evil, may be and is a power for good. The money is the same. The results depend upon the different ways in which it is used. The same money may build a cathedral or a saloon, a hospital or a house of prostitution, an educational institution or a gambling den, where the lives of men are debauched and ruined. All depends upon the wise use of it or the unwise use. It may be "a root of all evil" or an inspiration to all good, according to how we use it.

The wise use of money is therefore of the greatest importance. Nor does it depend upon the amount of money that is used. It is just as wrong to use $1 unwisely as $1,000,000, though of course with the latter the greater harm can be done. But the young man who spends his dollar in rum, in cigarettes and other sinful practices uses it unwisely as well as the man who squanders a million in riotous living. The miser who selfishly hordes up a few hundred or thousand dollars, the limit of his opportunities, is just as sinful in his use of his money as the man who, having greater opportunities, hordes his millions and delights to hear the rattling of the gold or to count his stocks and bonds. Let us not limit money sins to the rich alone. Though we have very little money, the demand rests upon us to use it in a wise way. The apostle sets for the unwise and the wise use of money: (1) It is unwise because we have money to be high minded. Money develops pride. The rich think very often that it is their vested right to lord it over the poor or those under them. But God hateth the proud and will humble them. (2) It is unwise to trust in money rather than in God. "Trust not in uncertain riches, but in the living God, who giveth us richly all things to enjoy." Riches are uncertain. God is constant, "the same yesterday and forever." How foolish to trust in an uncertainty when it is possible to trust in a certainty, and that certainly greater and more powerful than all the world's riches combined!

The wise use of money is here contrasted with its unwise use: (1) It is wise to do good with money, "that they do good, that they be rich in good works." Money is a most powerful agent for doing good. It is not to be sneered at, as it is by many demagogues. They take all they can get Wisely used, it is a great power. The world's churches, benevolent institutions and works of charity all prove this fact. Our schools, colleges and universities demonstrate it, and thousands of other good works of various kinds bear testimony to the same. What money we have let us do good with it. (2) It is a wise use of money to distribute it wisely among those who are in need. This old world isn't such an awfully selfish world. Let the cry of need be heard in our own land or in a foreign land and rich and poor make haste to distribute and to communicate to the needs of others. (3) A wise use of money lays up for us treasures in heaven. Money cannot save us, but if we are saved and use our money for God and humanity He will reward us in heaven.

The money question is no small one. Young people should seriously consider it. Out of your earnings save something, be it ever so small. Provide for your future and the ability to help others, and if God should bless you with riches use them for Him through humanity. "Freely receiving, freely give."

BIBLE READINGS.

Gen. xxviii, 19-22; Job xxix, 16; Prov. viii, 10, 11, 32-35; I Chron. xxix, 10-15; I John iii, 13-18; Prov. xi, 24-28; Jas. v, 1-6; Acts iv, 38; v, 1-11.

Real Heart of Christian Endeavor.

"Throw a handful of quicksilver upon the earth," said A. J. Gordon, "and it immediately breaks into hundreds of separate globules, each globule reflecting a full orbed sun." Thus each Endeavorer, regardless of name or creed, should reflect a "full orbed" Christ. Christ's heart is the real heart of Christian Endeavor. Christian, it is our high and holy privilege to reflect such a heart as His. He wants us to do it. We can do it if we will. Will we?—Ida Q. Moulton.

"Lo, I Am With You."

[A message from Amos R. Wells, editorial secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor. Written for Ohio Endeavor day.]

The Lord is with us! With us, then,
Is might to move the hearts of men,
And wisdom setting forth the right,
And love that makes it a delight.

The Lord is with us! Nay! Ah, nay!
What if we will not go His way?
What if we turn our steps aside
To ways of selfishness and pride?

His way is fixed by high decrees
Through all of God's eternities,
Pursuing with a purpose blest
The glorious, unchanging best.

His way, not ours! The final bliss,
The crown of all our joys, is this.
"The Lord is with us!" Let us pray
That we be with the Lord alway.

WORTH KNOWING.

For cut or angle worms in house plants a drop or two of ammonia in the water, or put a few pieces of tobacco leaves in the dirt.

The prettiest curtains imaginable may be made from unbleached cotton or muslin. They may be simply feather stitched or cat stitched at the hems, or if you have time buy some plain colored gingham and cut a pretty conventional design from it and stitch it on the curtain at the bottom. A design of geraniums in bright red gingham would be effective, especially if a pretty red tablecloth is spread on the table when it is not in use.

Blue silk which has faded may be restored to natural color by dipping in alum water.

After windows, mirrors, and, in fact, any glass, even cut glass, have been washed a most beautiful polish can be obtained by rubbing with tissue paper. Save all the tissue paper that comes into the house and use it for this purpose.

When a musty odor is perceptible in a room place some charcoal in a dish or hang it up in a little bag of net or cheesecloth. This will purify the air and absorb odors.

People who use the eyes much in reading, writing, sewing, etc., will rest the organs of vision by lifeting the eyes every ten minutes or so, and gazing at some distant object.

THE PENALTY.

Pleasure has bounds. Too greedily pursued
Enjoyment ceases and disgust ensues.
Thus, at first glance, some recent painting viewed,
The verdant lanscape smiles in all its brightest hues,
But stand and gaze awhile, and by degrees
The eyes grow tired, the colors cease to please;
Its beauties vanish, and its faults arise;
You think of other times and criticise.

—Secundus.

Did He See the Point?

A young woman of the official set in Washington at a public function found herself bored by the attentions of a fresh young man, the son of a senator.

Soon after his introduction he proceeded to regale her with a story of some adventure in which he had figured as hero.

"Did you really do that?" she asked, not knowing what else to say.

"I dont it!" was the proud response, and he began forthwith another lengthy narrative, more startling even than the first. The young woman again politely expressed her surprise.

"Yes," said the hero, "that's what I done!"

A third story followed, with another "I done it!" whereupon the girl remarked:

"Do you know, you remind me so strongly of Banquo's ghost in the play?"

"Why?"

"Don't you remember that Macbeth said to the ghost, 'Thou canst not say I did it!'"—Lippincott's.

Where She Was Needed.

At a Sunday-school convention at Louisville, Ky., in answer to the roll call of states reports were verbally given by the various state chairmen. When the Lone Star Stone was called a brawny specimen of southern manhood stepped out into the aisle and with strident voice exclaimed: "We represent the great state of Texas. The first white woman born in Texas is still living. She now has a population of over 3,000,000."

There was a pause for a moment, and then a voice from the gallery rang out clear and distinct:

"Send that women to Wyoming. We need her."—Everybody's.

Interpreting a Prescription.

A lady one day in July visited her physician.

"Madam," said the physician, "you are only a little run down. You need frequent baths and plenty of fresh air, and I advise you to dress in the coolest, most comfortable clothes—nothing stiff or formal."

When she got home her husband asked what the physician had said.

"He said I must go to the seashore, do plenty of automobiling and get some new summer gowns."

Hat Crowns.

They have risen.
How they tower.
And they are trimmed.
The trimming is restricted to them.
Rows of ribbon are knotted round and round.
Posies are tacked round as if draping a tower.
Plumes, buckles, posies and bows are all requisitions.

He Should Learn to Sew.

"My husband annoys me very much," said the clubwoman. "He is so slipshod. His buttons are forever coming off."

"Perhaps," said an old fashioned woman gently, "they are not sewer on properly in the first place."

"That's just it. My husband is one of the most careless sewers I ever saw."

The Guimpe.

It is sheer.
It is not of net.
Or it is of tulle.
It is lined with chiffon.
It has a very high stock.
It molds the shoulders and arms perfectly.

CHAPTER II.
Needles and Pins.

"Sir," began Ellen imperiously, while settling herself comfortably in a chair before the open fire, "you have been pleased to find fault with me about many things which I have borne with what patience I might."

"Patience!" laughed Carrington unpleasantly.

Ellen's eyes flashed.

"You repetition of the word at this juncture serves to emphasize the quality in me, think you not so?" she retorted.

"Pray proceed, madam," answered her husband, dodging the question which indeed was unanswerable from the woman's point of view.

"I shall do so. This morning you actually laughed at me."

"'Fore God, madam, what would you have had me do? Weep? I confess I felt more like it and if I laughed, it was but to turn off an awkward situation."

"And you call it an awkward situation that I was thrown from my horse, do you, and plumped into the brook, and covered with mud, and nearly killed? What made you give me such a horse anyway?"

"I protest. 'Tis the gentlest beast in the stables, and the tamest, I do believe, in all England," returned Carrington bitterly. "A girl of ten could have ridden it."

"Yes, I suppose so," answered his wife with with equal acerbity, "if the girl of ten had been taught to ride all her life. I told you that I couldn't. I hate the animals. Yet you needs must mount me to have me thrown off to make a spectacle to all your fine friends."

"If you remember," said Carrington, "I advised you to stay at home and you insisted upon going."

"What! And have them say that I was afraid to ride to hounds!"

Carrington in the face of this impasse could only shrug his shoulders.

"You're just about as helpful now as you were then. Why didn't you come to my assistance?"

"You lacked no help, madam. I observed that two of the gentlemen at least were by your side."

"You refer to Lord Strathgate and Sir Charles?"

"A good guess, madam, though an easy one, for they are ever by your side."

"And all you could do was to laugh, to join that painted, powdered coquette, your cousin, and that other bedizined fromp by her side, in jeering at your wife. If I had them on the deck of a ship or a tops'l-yardarm, or at a wheel, I'd show them."

"No doubt," returned Carrington sarcastically, "and perhaps if you put on boxing gloves with them, or tried them out with the broad sword, they would be equally at a disadvantage, but one doesn't look for these things in women to-day."

"There was a time," interrupted Ellen swiftly, her lips trembling, and indeed despite these things she was quite woman enough then, but Carrington was so blinded with passion as to be unable to se it, "I have had enough of reminiscence," he began curtly.

"Was it in reminiscence," cried Ellen shrilly, "that you had your arm around Lady Cecily in the arbor this afternoon?"

"Did you spy upon me, madam?"

"Spy!" exclaimed the woman. "Lord Strathgate and I—"

"Damn him!" burst out Carrington. "What was he doing with you in the arbor?"

"He is my friend," returned Ellen, "he and Sir Charles."

"I would not have thought it of Charles," cried Carrington angrily.

"It was they who came to my rescue. It was not they who laughed when I fell."

"I tell you I never felt less like laughing in my life to see you made a fool of and those popinjays rushing to your assistance."

"I have been made a fool of," said Ellen steadily. "I am just beginning to realize it. I was well enough when you were alone with me and you were well enough then, but when others came—"

"By heavens, madam, are you contrasting me with that dandy and rogue, Strathgate?"

"He has never spoken to me other than in terms of the utmost respect and consideration in my life," answered Ellen bravely, "and I—"

"He had better not," burst out my lord grimly.

"And I would to God that I could say the same of my husband!" she continued disdaining his threat.

"If you treated me with any deference and paid more heed to my wishes these difficulties would not arise," said Carrington. "If you would be guided by me—"

"And what, pray, would you have me do?"

"Dance, game, act as the rest do, p[illegible]

[illegible] morning. I'll w[illegible] think you that I would fill the other roles?"

"You might at least try. But you and that canting, little psalm-singing Puritan—"

"That will do, Lord Carrington. You can abuse me. I am your wife; but you shan't say a word about my friend."

"I will say what I please."

"Will you leave my room?"

"I will not."

"Then I will. I swear to you if you do not instantly take your odious self from out my presence I will leave the castle."

"Against my will?"

"Against your will. Against anybody's will."

"And if I prevent?"

"You may be the stronger, probably you are especially since you have forced me to dress in these and lead the idle, vicious life of your society."

Lady Ellen arose as she spoke and kicked vigorously at her stays, which had fallen from the chair upon which she had laid them. It was a great act of injustice to her husband, since nothing would have kept her from being in all things as like to her sisters as she could.

"Madam," began Carrington, astonished at such a charge.

"But you will not overcome me physically without a struggle which will arouse the castle," Ellen ran on hotly. "I am not made of the weak stuff of your fine friends, Lady Cecily and Mrs. Monbrant, even if I did not ride the horse. Now, will you go?"

"As you will, madam," returned Carrington helplessly, "but let me warn you, I'll have no flirting and love-making between you and Strathgate and Seton," he went on with increased rigor. "By heaven, I'll call them both out, host or no host. They shall play at swords if they interfere with me."

"And I," returned Ellen, hotly, "if she were not so weak and puny a thing, would call out in my turn your cousin and her friend. As it is I shall be under the painful necessity of slapping her face if I catch it near to yours again. Now you may go."

Lord Carrington, after a moment's hesitation, seeing the futility of argument or remonstrance under the circumstances, turned and stalked gloomily out of the room. Ellen sprang after him, slammed the door, I regret to state, shot the bolts, sank down in her chair, buried her face in her hands, and cried like any woman for all her nerves of steel.

It was not a pretty conversation. It was not a pretty age and men and women spoke frankly to each other. I assure the reader that I have disguised and moderated it by self-restraint.

CHAPTER III.
Ellen Plays a Game.

The greater climax came the night after. Lady Ellen had declined to ride that day. She had business at home as the chatelaine. Consequently, no mishap had occurred during the daylight. Lord Strathgate had pleaded in disposition and had remained at the castle also, indifferent apparently to the black looks of his host as he rode away by the side of Lady Cecily. Mistress Debbie, who made not the faintest pretense of being interested in hounds, and who indeed cherished a growing sympathy for the fox, had also refused to ride in chase of Master Reynard. Sir Charles Seton had made an ineffectual effort to do likewise, only to be carried off by his host almost by violence and allotted to Mrs. Monbrant for the day's sport.

Evening found the party assembled in the drawingroom. Everybody was in a bad humor. Strathgate, because he had not been able to get a word alone with his hostess; Carrington because Strathgate had been all day at home while he was abroad; Lady Cecily because she had been unable to chase the frowns from her host's brow; Mrs. Monbrant, because Sir Charles Seton had shown himself a distraught and indifferent cavalier, and the duke and duchess because while they had plenty to eat and drink, their hostess' scruples had prevented play; General Athelstrong for the same reason, and Admiral Kephard because he saw everybody playing at cross purposes. Debbie was wretched because her Seton had been appropriated to another.

The only serene one apparently was Lady Ellen. When the men joined the women in the drawingroom after the late supper, it was she herself who proposed cards.

"But I thought, my dear child," began Lady Cecily with covert malice in voice and manner, "that you did not approve of the—er—wicked little pasteboards."

"I have been converted by"—Ellen looked around—"by Lord Strathgate's arguments this afternoon."

Lord Strathgate had not made any arguments that afternoon, but he was too clever not to follow my lady's lead.

"You flatter me, dear Lady Carrington," he murmured, with a knowing glance that made Carrington want to kill him then and there.

"Fore Gad," said the duke, "I never knew that Strathgate could convert anything."

"There are no limits to his powers of depravity," said Mrs. Monbrant, lightly.

"Madam, if I were flattered before, I am overwhelmed now," returned the earl, bowing gravely.

"To be so approved by the voice of authority is enough to turn even Lord Strathgate's head," commented Ellen, quickly.

"Ha! ha!" cackled General Athelstrong, softly, "she had her there."

"Why all this talk that means nothing," said the duchess; "so long as Lady Carrington permits play, we are wasting time. Carrington, you have cards?"

"Plenty," ejaculated my lord, fiercely, turning to a cabinet and bringing out several packs still in their wrappers.

"Egad!" chuckled Athelstrong, "you were prepared for your wife's conversion, were you?"

"Certainly," returned Carrington through his teeth. "When Strathgate applied himself to the task at which I had failed, I knew that he would succeed. Having marked the course of events, I sent to town for the cards and they are here."

"Ellen," whispered Debbie, "you are not going to let them play, are you?"

"I'm going to play myself," returned Ellen recklessly in a loud, clear voice.

"But, my dear Lady Carrington, you don't know one card from another," expostulated the admiral who had observed with dismay the course of events.

"Sir Charles Seton will teach me," returned Ellen, quickly.

"With pleasure, your ladyship," said Sir Charles.

"But you promised," said Deborah artlessly, turning to that gallant young soldier, "to show me that rare old edition of Richard Baxter in the library."

"Baxter, the Saint's Rest!" snickered Athelstrong. "Good Lord, she's got him there."

"It doesn't make the least bit of difference, Sir Charles," began Ellen, commiserating his look of dismay at the sneers and laughter of the company. "I know you would help me if you could, but Miss Slocum has the prior claim and someone else will teach me."

"Why All This Talk That Means Nothing?"

"I will take upon myself that honor," interrupted Strathgate quickly.

"I couldn't have a better instructor."

"No, you couldn't," grumbled the duchess, "but I fear me he will prove a costly one."

"Shall we play?" thundered Carrington, almost beside himself in the situation.

"Immediately, immediately!" began the duke, fingering the pasteboards.

"Shall you and I be partners, Carrington?" queried Lady Cecily sweetly.

"'Tis a most admirable arrangement," said Ellen.

"I agree with you, madam. There you honor me," returned Carrington.

"And 'tis so unfortunate that the partnership shall be of so short duration," continued my lady.

"One never knows," laughed Lady Cecily airily, "how long a game lasts or what the result until it is played to the end."

"Mrs. Monbrant," interrupted General Athelstrong, "you have unfortunately fallen to me."

"Are you a good player, general?" asked the widow brightly. "That's really the important thing in a game for money. You allow us to play for money, Lady Carrington?"

"I urge it upon you," returned Ellen coolly.

"Sir Charles, will you take me to the library?" now interposed the shocked and scandalized little Puritan.

"You will forgive me, Lady Carrington?" said Sir Charles with another vivid blush, turning to his hostess, amid the general mockery.

"I am glad to see you go, Sir Charles," returned Ellen. "There are other books in the library of a similar character which you two will enjoy looking at, are there not, Carrington?"

"I suppose there are, madam, although I have never read them."

"It would doubtless improve your morals if you should," returned Lady Ellen swiftly.

"He! he!" exclaimed General Athelstrong, "my lady's in fine wit tonight."

"And by Gad, your manners too," growled the duke, "but come, let us play."

"Lady Carrington, your instruction awaits you," said the earl, bowing.

"On second thought, Lord Strathgate," returned Ellen, "I don't believe I feel equal to learning a new game."

"Have your religious scruples returned, Lady Carrington," exclaimed Lady Cecily, insinuatingly, "or are you afraid of losing money?"

"My dear child—" began Mrs. Monbrant superciliously.

"I will cut the cards with you, Lady Cecily, or you, Mrs. Monbrant, this instant for a thousand pounds and then we will see which of us is afraid," returned Ellen with wonderful composure.

"You are mad," began Carrington, as the two ladies addressed shrank back in dismay.

"Your pardon, my lord, I am addressing your friends, not you. Do either of you ladies take me? No? Is there anyone then who wishes to tempt fortune in this way? You only play for money and not for the game, I understand. Duke, will you cut me for a thousand pounds? No? Will you, duchess, or you, General Athelstrong?"

"If you make it so, my dear lady," began the general.

"Admiral, I know you don't play," interrupted Ellen, disdaining the little man and his little stake, "so there only remains—" She looked at the other two men.

"I am not yet fool enough to gamble with my own wife," said Carrington bitterly.

Strathgate stepped gallantly into the breach.

"I have not the honor of being your husband, Lady Carrington—unfortunately," he added under his breath—"and I will cut the cards with you for any sum of money—or anything else."

"Done!" cries the lady, "the highest card takes the thousand pounds. I shall have to depend on you gentlemen to tell me which is high, if I have won."

"You may trust to my honor for that, madam," said Strathgate.

As Ellen spoke, she seated herself at a table. The others left their places and crowded around. Here was play such as they had read about but had not witnessed or participated in.

"Ellen," said Carrington, suddenly, "you shall not do this thing. It is madness."

"Must I remind my husband that I play with my own money?" answered Ellen viciously.

That remark was received in a dead silence, broken presently by a sneering laugh from Lady Cecily which cut through Carrington like a knife. His clenched hand went into his bosom, but by a violent effort he mastered himself.

"I shall stand by you," he said to his wife, "with your permission, and see fair play."

"By God, sir!" cried Strathgate, springing to his feet, "does that mean—?"

"It means nothing but that a husband's place is by his wife's side when she ventures fortune, reputation or—honor," returned my lord, very high and mighty.

"Perchance we may play another game when this is ended, Carrington," said Strathgate fiercely.

"At your service for any stake with any counters," returned the other smoothly.

"Sit down, you fools," cried the duchess promptly interfering to prevent the imminent outbreak, "and let's have the game."

"Madam," said Strathgate presenting the pack, "will you cut first?"

Ellen lifted the top card.

"The four of hearts," she exclaimed.

"'Tis a low card, madam," said Strathgate smoothly, "but hearts is the ladies' suit."

"And men's pursuit," laughed Ellen merrily. "Try your fortune, my lord."

"The three of spades," said Strathgate, turning a card. "The thousand pounds is yours and I am the richer in your triumph, madam," he added, bowing gracefully.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

In Chancery of New Jersey

To Margaret A. Gardiner, Adelia C. Nelson, Ida A. Nelson and William J. Nelson, defendants.

By virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey made on the day of the date hereof, in a cause wherein George W. Harris is complainant, and you and others are defendants, you are required to appear, plead, answer or demur to the bill of said complainant, on or before the fifth day of May, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Eight, or the said bill will be taken as confessed against you.

The said bill is filed to foreclose a mortgage given by Edward Nelson, Sarah V. Nelson, Joseph Nelson and you the said Margaret A. Gardner, Adelia C. Nelson, Ida A. Nelson and William J. Nelson to the said complainant, dated March twenty-eighth, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Seven, on lands in the City of Plainfield, in the County of Union and State of New Jersey, and that the names of all the defendants are as follows: Edward Nelson, Sarah V. Nelson, Joseph Nelson and you the said Margaret A. Gardner, Adelia C. Nelson, Ida A. Nelson and William J. Nelson are made party defendants, because you are some of the owners of the mortgaged premises.

Respectfully yours,
CHARLES J. McNABB,
Solicitor for Complainant.

SCHOOL TRACK TEAMS TRAIN FOR TITLE MEET

The track squads of the three local schools are holding daily practises in preparation of the interscholastic track meet to be held at the Y. M. C. A. next Thursday afternoon. Especially active are the track candidates from the city and borough high schools, who realize that Russell Lawrence will make many points for Leal's School. Holding several national school track records and Y. M. C. A. figures, the Leal's School boy will be a formidable opponent in many of the events.

The championship cup, to be awarded to the school winning the greatest number of points in next week's meet, is on exhibition at Rowley's drug store. With it are the medals to be awarded to winners of first and second places in the various events. The cup is a three handled tankard, standing eight inches high. The medals for first place are of silver, for second place bronze. The design shows a seated athlete, and is in high relief. They are mounted with blue and white ribbon, as watch fobs.

BOWLING.

In the preliminaries of a home-and-home bowling match between Nash and Skelly, of this city, and Smith and Hogarty, of New Brunswick, rolled on Johnny Campbell's alleys, last night, the Plainfielders won five out of seven tallies. The local team shot a splendid series, Nash doing especially fine work. His average for the seven games was 203 and his best score a 256. Skelly hit the pins for an average of 191.4, while his best set of figures was 243.

The New Brunswickers were handicapped in being somewhat new to the alleys but Smith proved himself equal to the emergency and banged out an average of 202, his best try being 227. Hogarty went 'way low and his work for the seven games showed an average of 163.6. His high score was 184. The next games will be rolled at New Brunswick and it will be necessary for Nash and Skelly to take only three of the eight games in order to become the winners of the match. Last night's scores were as follows:

SENIORS ARE CHAMPIONS OF P. H. S. CLASS FIVES.

The senior class five of the Plainfield High School won the school basketball championship yesterday afternoon by defeating the freshman team, their most formidable rivals for the title. The game was played at the school symnasium, and the final score was 75-21.

Captain Caldwell, of the regular school team, who is unable to represent the school because of his curriculum standing, was in the line-up for the class team, making thirty-nine of the points for his class. Bohan, of the freshman five, who opposed him at centre, did the best work for the freshmen. The lineups follow:

1908—Line and Dutcher, forwards; Caldwell, centre; Pound, Titsworth and Hammond, guards. 1911—Clark and Bristol, forwards; Bohan, centre; Lindzey and Little, guards.

Yesterday's game was the last of the inter-class league games. The freshmen, who did especially good work when the play for the title started, won second place, the juniors were third, and the sophomores "tail-enders."

CUP AND MEDALS FOR BASKETBALL CHAMPS HERE.

Physical Director George L. Listman, of the Y. M. C. A., received today the championship tankard to be awarded the local school team winning the interscholastic basketball championship. The cup is of pewter, standing twelve inches high, and has three handles. It is appropriately engraved, and the name of the winning school will be added.

Along with the cup came the individual medals to be given to members of the title-winning basketball five. The medals are of silver, bearing the figure of a basketball player in high relief, and the inscription "Interscholastic Basketball Champions." The medals are strung with blue and white ribbon, and will be worn as watch fobs. Cup and medals are displayed in Frank Rowley's store window, and are attracting considerable interest from the Plainfield High School pupils.

"DE-LIGHTED, HOW'D YOU LIKE TO BE VICE PREST."

Prosecutor George Berdine, of New Brunswick, has just returned from Washington, where he had an audience with President Roosevelt. The prosecutor had his little nephew, Alfred Johnson, son of Water Commissioner Leslie P. Johnson, with him. Mr. Roosevelt helped Alfred to a chair and had a pleasant chat with him. Alfred is about the age of the President's younger sons.

"Would you like to be a President when you grow up?" Mr. Roosevelt asked. Master Johnson declared he would.

"Well, I'm going to vote for you when you run," said the President. And Alfred thinks his political machine well started. The machine consists of father, uncle and the President.

The following unauthenticated report of the prosecutor's meeting with the President has also been received in town:

Congressman Howell — President Roosevelt, this is Prosecutor Berdine, of New Brunswick."

Roosevelt—Delighted. Canadian?

Berdine—Oh, no! New Brunswick, N. J.

R.—Oh, yes; New Jersey. Know my friend Fort?

B.—Slightly.

R.—And Colby?

B.—Slightlier.

R.—You're a prosecutor, are you? Prosecute any malefactors up your way?

B.—One or two. Only we call them longer and prettier names.

R.—Bully for you. How'd you like to be Vice-President?

B.—What's that?

R.—A reward for good Jerseymen.

B.—Does every good Jerseyman get it?

R.—Yes.

B.—How many are there?

R.—One.

B.—Better give it to Colby.

KEARNY'S SCHOOLS AND CHURCHES SCORED

As the result of a two weeks' investigation of exits of all public school buildings, public halls and churches, at Kearny, completed Tuesday night, Building Inspector Ralph S. Young submitted his report to the Town Council last night. It was ordered acted upon at once. The inspector especially dwelt upon the exit conditions of seven of the eight public schools.

He found at School No. 1 that class room doors swing inward. In School No. 2 the stairs are not of sufficient width to empty the building quickly. Class room doors of School No. 3 also swing inward.

The inspector recommends an opening between the court and the stair hall. He emphasizes the frightful condition in School No. 5, where in the new annex the pupils in four of the class rooms have no means of escape at all. The inspector recommends that double doors be installed and guard rails put on the stairs. In School No. 7 there is one stairway in the centre of the building and another on the east side. The front door opens inward. From the stage there are two exits, so in case of fire all the pupils from the rear part of the room would have to go to the stage end.

Mr. Young discovered oil stored under the stairways of schools Nos. 4 and 5. He ordered it removed. He also found that doors of classrooms in the parochial schools connected with St. Stephen's and St. Cecilia's churches all swinging inward. The priests in charge were ordered to have double acting doors substituted.

The inspector found that the conditions at the Italian Orphanage, in Passaic avenue, were also of a serious character. There is but one stairway leading to the centre of the four-story building. It is from the first to the fourth floor. Here he found that seventy children slept. All the windows are heavily barred, so that in case of fire escape would be impossible. He recommended that two fire escapes be installed. There are no fire escapes on the dormitory building of the Arlington Catholic Protectory, where 170 boys are cared for.

Mr. Young continued his inspection through Elks Hall, Fraternity Hall, Arlington, Evans and Roches halls and found that all doors swing inward. Like conditions exist in all the thirteen churches of the town.

$100 FOR THIEF DEAD OR ALIVE.

Glen Ridge Offers Reward to Policemen and Equips Them with New $15 Revolvers.

Thieves who have been making things unpleasant for the residents of Glen Ridge are given notice to beware of the policemen in the future, as the latter now have new $15 revolvers. The policemen are to be trained to shoot accurately and for this purpose will have target practice during their spare moments.

The borough spends $4,000 a year for police protection, but the burglars rob many homes, and for that reason the new revolvers have been furnished.

There is a reward of $100 for the policeman who captures a burglar, dead or alive.

To Analyze State's Food.

Senator Frelinghuysen, of Somerset, introduced yesterday a joint resolution authorizing the secretary of the State Board of Health to procure an expert analysis of the water and food used at all institutions in the State and communicate the results to the Senate, House and Governor and the heads of the institutions. The resolution passed without reference under a suspension of the rules.

OFFICIAL TO EXPLAIN.

Hudson Tax Board That Reduced Standard Oil Assessment Half Million.

Mayor Pierre Garven, of Bayonne, yesterday said in regard to the charge of the Hudson County Tax Board that Aries P. Brooke, assessor of Bayonne, had been notoriously unfair in his assessments, that Mr. Brooke is preparing a statement.

Said the Mayor: "The County Tax Board after it struck the tax rate increased valuations in three of the wards to the amount of $500,000 and decreased those of the Standard Oil Company $50,000. During my administration the Standard Oil's valuations were jacked up $2,500,000."

IN QUANDARY OVER STATE RAILROAD TAX

In the State Senate yesterday at Trenton it was learned that State Controller West has asked the opinion of Attorney General McCarter as to his authority to make part payments to the taxing districts of moneys received from the railroad taxation under the decision of the court holding the Perkins act constitutional. It was also learned that the Attorney General has been directed to collect at once $306,419.89 now due from railroads, wrich they do not pay, alleging that under the old law they had the right to pay their taxes quarterly.

Steps are being taken by the financial and legal departments of Newark to make a demand upon the State Controller to distribute the State railroad tax of 1906 to the local school districts, through the various county collectors, in order that Newark's share of the tax, amounting to about $463,000, may be made available for use. An urgent request will be forwarded to the State officials, and an agitation of the subject in the various school districts throughout the State will be begun.

As the law makes it compulsory upon the State officials to distribute the money, the question of bringing legal proceedings, through a writ of mandamus, will be considered by the Newark officials if the request is not complied with.

Reason for delay in distributing the money on the part of the State is said to be doubt on the part of the Controller to distribute it before it is all paid into the State, some of it being held up pending the settlement of railroad tax problems in the courts.

PRINCIPAL DROPPED FROM ORANGE SCHOOL.

Superintendent Riggs Said to Have Decided Against Brady Because Latter Was Rival.

Following a session which lasted until one o'clock yesterday morning the Orange Board of Education decidd not to reappoint Edwin S. Brady, principal of the Cleveland street school. The vote was ten against the principal and four for him. While the Board was in secret session one of the members friendly to Mr. Brady kept a record of the conversation between the warring factions. The most significant utterance was when Jacob C. Taylor, School Commissioner, is said to have asked James G. Riggs, Superintendent of Schools, why he decided against Mr. Brady, although admitting his conduct of affairs was equal to if not superior to that of any other principal in the city.

"Because Mr. Brady was my rival for the appointment of superintendent three years ago," Mr. Riggs is alleged to have replied. Mr. Riggs also stated in the meeting, according to the commissioners, that his reasons for going against Mr. Brady were personal.

Mr. Brady was a school principal eight years and sought the superintendency but was defeated by Mr. Riggs.

Miss Laura M. Reed, for thirty-five years a school intructor and principal of the Park avenue school since 1882, was not reappointed. She will retire in June with a pension. Providing for the changes occasioned by the retirement of the two principals, Stanley C. Dukeshire, was named to succeed Mr. Brady and Warren O. Hagar, of Brooklyn, to succeed Mr. Dukeshire as principal of the Tremont avenue school. Ward C. Moon, of Piermont, N. Y., succeeds Miss Reed.

It is expected there will be a resumption of the contest between the members at a meeting tomorrow night. No statement was made of charges against Mr. Brady.

SAY TELEPHONE TRESPASSES.

Bloomfield Farmers May Bring Actions Against Northeastern Company.

Several farmers in the Brookdale section of Bloomfield have begun suits against the Nothwestern Telephone Company for trespass, as the result of a decision handed down by the Court of Errors and Appeals Tuesday, against the telephone company.

The company two years ago erected a telegraph and telephone trunk line through the Hepburn farm over the protests of the owners, who cut down the poles and wires as fast as they were erected. The company, finding itself outwitted at every point, appealed to the Court of Chancery and an order was allowed giving the concern the right to complete its line.

The Hepburn family, through their counsel, Chandler W. Riker, carried the case to the Court of Errors and Appeals. By the decision the company must now remove their line from the Hepburn property or settle for the right of way, which the owners made a fight to obtain.

Two Hearings Tuesday.

Announcement was made at the close of the Senate session yesterday afternoon of two hearings next Tuesday. One is by the judiciary committee on the Senate firemen's relief bills, and the other on Senate 99, Mr. Silzer's bill for bi-weekly payment of employees of railroads.

TO PUNISH BOYS WHO ROBBED CHURCH BOXES

Robbery of the church contribution boxes by boys has caused indignation among members of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church, Ocean Grove, who have learned the circumstances of the disappearance of money from the boxes despite efforts of one official board to keep the matter from becoming known.

As far as can be ascertained from the books of the financial secretary, G. L. D. Tompkins, the official board, it is understood, has determined the extent of the thefts at between $30 and $35. Discovery of the thefts was made several days ago, but no official action has been taken, although the names of the boys, it is reported, are known to the church officials. Unless settlement is made the boys will be prosecuted.

Announcement of the robbery, it is understood, was made at the official Board meeting Monday night. Conference collections were due and the Board had hoped to show a decided increase in collections for the term, but when it was learned that they were not up to the standard an investigation was made. Accounts were checked back and it was found that regular subscribers were not credited with their proper amounts. Visits to the homes of the "tardy" contributors were made, and when it was found that they had deposited envelopes at the regular time the officers were nonplused. Hasty examination of accounts followed and, it is reported, between $30 and $35 was found missing. The depredations had covered a period of several weeks.

While the method of the thief or thieves has not been definitely learned, it is believed that the boxes, one on each side of the church, at the rear, were emptied of their contents each Sunday afternoon after the Sunday-school session. Between the base of the boxes and the bottom of the door is a small space through which it can be seen whether there are envelopes inside.

It is the custom of H. C. Farrell to collect from the boxes after each church service. In the afternoon no collection is made. During the time between church services members are wont to enter the church and drop in their subscription envelopes, and the amount accumulating during the afternoon is considerable.

With a hatpin and a piece of chewing gum the thief or thieves probably operated, the pin, with a piece of sticky chewing gum placed on the point, being shoved through the opening at the top. In this way the envelope, it has been found, could be removed.

BRAVES DEATH TO SAVE MOTHER WORRY.

Newark Lad of Ten Has Concussion of Brain—Wouldn't Tell of Accident—Likely to Die.

Dennis Doyle, ten years old, of No. 41 Ferry street, is in St. James' Hospital, in Newark, in a critical condition from concussion of the brain, the result of an accident on Sunday.

While playing on a pile of timber after Sunday-school the boy fell, landing head first on a pavement five feet below. He was helped to his home by two companions, but he would not let them enter the house with him. "Mamma would be frightened if she knew I was hurt," he said.

He said nothing about the accident, nor did his elder brother, who knew about it. Both feared it would worry their mother. The boy's sister noticed he acted strangely and called a physician. Even when his trouble was diagnosed as serious the boy did not tell what had happened. When he was taken to the hospital he weakened. There is little hope for his recovery.

GET A PASTOR BY TELEPHONE.

East Orange Presbyterians Sing as R. R. Wicks, in a New York Seminary, Accepts Call on Wire.

Seeking to interest Robert R. Wicks, student at the Union Theological Seminary in a call to become pastor of the Arlington Avenue Presbyterian church, East Orange, to succeed the Rev. Dr. John M. Thomas, the special meeting of the church Tuesday night used novel means and got the prospective clergyman's consent.

Mr. Wicks was decided upon by the congregation and then a long distance telephone call was made on the young man in the seminary in New York. The proposal to go to East Orange was made over the wire. While the student listened at the receiver the congregation sang "Go Labor On, Spend and Be Spent." At the conclusion of the song the joyful congregation was informed Mr. Wicks would accept the call. There was great rejoicing and a hearty "amen" as the affirmative reply was transmitted to the happy people.

Mr. Wicks will be ordained in a few months, and for the present the Rev. Dr. Edward C. Ray, of East Orange, will occupy the pulpit.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, will lead the meeting at the Plainfield Rescue Mission, tonight at 8 o'clock. Mrs. John Manley will sing solos. The public is invited.

NEWARK HOUSE STOLEN.

Owner Finds Few Bricks and Hole in Ground When Laborers Finish Piecemeal Robbery.

August Stedenfeld, of 210 Camden street, Newark, complained to the police yesterday that various persons, to him unknown, have stolen a house belonging to him from No. 252 Central avenue. All that is left of the structure, which was a two and one-half story frame dwelling, is some bricks of the foundation walls. Others have been carried away. The house stood back from the street and was hidden from view behind a high bill posting sign.

Stedenfeld had not seen the house since last July. When he sent his two sons to look it over a day or two ago all they found was some of the foundation bricks and the hole in the ground which had formed the cellar. Neighbors say the laborers have carried the house away piece by piece. The police are looking for them.

New Haven, Conn., March 12.—Edward L. Hearn, of this city, supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus, has appointed Thomas P. Fay, of Long Branch, N. J., chairman of a national committee of the Knights of Columbus, to ascertain the sentiment of the organization in the matter of raising $500,000 for the purpose of endowing the Catholic University at Washington. The other committee members are Festus J. Wade, president of the Mercantile Trust Company of St. Louis, and Maurice Breen, a member of the New York City bar. The committee plans to have councils of the Knights of Columbus vote on the question of a pro rata assessment toward the proposed half-million endowment.

TALK AND PLAY HORSE

Frelinghuysen, Davenport and One Stokes "Orate" at Road Drivers Banquet.

AN HONOR FOR "UNCLE JOE."

Somerset's Senator Elected An Honorary Member of Association at Annual Feast.

Even the horses attached to the hacks lined up in front of Krueger's Auditorium in Newark last night to lead the way home for any of the diners who might have lost their bearings, must have taken pride in their own way at the tributes and praise that leaked out from the banquet hall of the Road Horse Association of New Jersey.

"The horse is king" was the prevailing sentiment at the occasion. It was eulogized in the speeches of prominent statesmen, it was toasted and lauded by the horsemen as a body and the members of the association and their guests cheered it until they, themselves, became hoarse. The poor automobile would have missed more than one spark had it witnessed the glory of its rival.

The banquet was the most successful in the history of the Road Horse Association. With the members it was a case of "eat, drink and be merry," while from the speaker's table the eloquence flowed as freely as the sparkling contents of the bottles of "extra dry."

Four Hundred Horsemen at Tables.

Four hundred horsemen surrounded the tables. It was an elaborate affair, but formualities were dispensed with at times, and a spirit of good fellowship was displayed in the form of songs between courses and cheers between speeches. When at last the final echo had died away and the band struck up "Home, Sweet Home," the diners wended their way home, voting the banquet the "best ever."

President Adam H. Groel opened the formal festivities after the articles on the menu had been stowed away with a brief introductory address, dwelling upon the growth of the association, its splendid financial condition and the steady advancement of the horse-breeding industry in the State of New Jersey.

The Horse vs. the Auto.

Senator Joseph H. Frelinghuysen, who, by the way, observed the anniversary of his birthday yesterday, was the first regular speaker. All ears were pricked up when the Senator took the stand, for he has long been prominent in legal fights between the horsemen and the automobilists, and, as the subject of his address was booked as "The Horse vs. the Auto," the voicing of his sentiments carried particular weight.

Mr. Frelinghuysen did not place any official seal upon his remarks, but some of his companions between the animated steed and the self-propelling vehicle went straight to the mark.

"The auto has come to stay, they say," he incidentally remarked, "but the horse has lived and will live always. No matter how perfect the auto, how great its speed or power, which may be fifty times as great as that of our noble animal, the shrill admonition still floats from the curbstone, 'Get a horse.'

"Even the specially equipped autos in the famous New York to Paris race were conquered by the snowdrifts in the West and time and again it was the horse that had to come to their rescue.

"We enjoy an auto, but do not love it. The auto has no affection for us. The horse is satisfied with half the road, but the auto generally takes the whole and several fields and fences besides."

The Senator went on to say that efforts are being made to obtain legislation providing for additional and improved horse breeding in this State, and that $20,000 would likely be appropriated for the purchase of thoroughbred sires in an endeavor to make little Jersey famous for the breeding of all classes of horses.

After his speech the Senator was chosen an honorary member of the association, an honor heretofore bestowed upon only two Jerseymen, former Governors Franklin Murphy and Edward C. Stokes.

Homer Davenport, the noted cartoonist, delivered an impressive speech, incidentally relating some incidents met in his travels to the Arabian desert, and drawing a series of cartoons of equines and an Arabian chieftain.

Former Governor Stokes declared that he considered himself seriously handicapped following the eloquence of Senator Frelinghuysen and the "poetical grandeur of Mr. Davenport," as he termed it. But the ex-Governor gained the "lost" ground in the homestretch of his address and near the conclusion he held his own well.

DRESS REHEARSAL OF P.H.S. JUNIOR PLAY

Miss Lillian Cronkite will play the part of "Alice Gardner, daughter of the president of the L. I. and W. Railroad," at the presentation of "Miss Civilization," by the junior class of the Plainfield High School in the school auditorium tomorrow night. The play is a comedy by Richard Harding Davis, and the dress rehearsal was held at the school this afternoon. The cast has been coached by Miss Katherine Ball, one of the teachers of the school, and the rehearsal was unusually successful.

The play follows the experiences of the president's daughter who is surprised at her home by three burglars and saves the family plate by 'phoning for the police, entertaining her masked guest rolally until the arrival of the officer, "Captain Lucas," who will be Richard Harrigan. The burglars are "Joe Hatch," Stanley Parsons; "Reddy, the Kid," F. Clyde Doane; and "Harry Heyes," Charles Prior.

"Miss Civilization" will be preceded by "Petticoat Perfidy," a playlet to be used as a curtain-raiser. The cast of this short comedy-playlet follows: "Mrs. Montrevor," Miss Louise Nicholl; "Mrs. Norwood Jones," Miss Ethel Skillman; "Juliet, a maid," Miss Clara Savage.

ORGANIZED CHRISTIANITY DR. KETCHAM'S THEME

In an absorbingly interesting volume of some 300 pages, Rev. Dr. Kneeland Platt Ketcham, formerly pastor of the First Presbyterian church of this city and now of New York, tells according to his ideas what is the matter with the Protestant and particularly the Evangelical churches of the twentieth century. "Organized Christianity" is his theme and plea and the good minister relates why New Testament unity is demanded and is feasible in this age.

By way of introduction Dr. Ketcham declares that there is an evident, widespread and profound disappointment in the spiritual developments of the last seven years and he adds that the "Great Awakening is postponed." Why this is the case and why there should be union of effort and not so much so ecclesiastical union, is the burden of his intensely instructive message.

The volume is published by the author himself at No. 337 West 23rd street, New York, for the reason that he assigns in a neat though sensational circular containing this paragraph:

"Wanted—A New Testament Publisher! It seems Christianity has no publisher in New York. Anticipating the situation and with a view to a "windward position" in the business, the writer of Organized Christianity first sought out the printer, and then offered 'proofs' to a prominent publisher who at once ominously remarked that his business depended on the Denominationalists, and finally refused his imprint solely because, as he said, so many prominent Denominationalists were personally discussed—observing that all the publishers were subject to the same limitations."

Robinson Gets Three Years.

Judge Booream, in the Middlesex County Court, New Brunswick, today sentenced Charles Robinson, colored, of Dunellen, to three years in State prison, following a trial in which charges were preferred by young school boys. Sentence was deferred for a time to allow Judge Booraem to further investigate the case.

"Farmer Orator" In Great Demand.

James E. Martine will be one of the speakers at the banquet to be given by the Friendly Sons of Ireland of Hudson county on Tuesday night, March 17, and he will also speak at the organization and dedication of the Third Ward Democratic Club, of Hoboken, on April 3.

Hotel Man Weds.

Announcement was made yesterday of the wedding of Col. William H. Earley, proprietor of the Somerset Hotel in Somerville, and Miss Emma Neal, of Trenton. The ceremony was performed Monday, January 27, in that city, by Rev. George C. Maddock.

Galatian Re-appointed.

John A. Galatian, of Westfield, was yesterday re-appointed county detective attached to the prosecutor's office. While acting in that capacity under N. C. J. English he established a creditable record and Prosecutor Swift deemed it best to make no change.

Stole Watchman's Wheel.

John Apgar, night watchman at the Richmond street freight yards, reported to the police this morning that someone had stolen his bicycle from one of the platforms about the freight house. It was taken some time during the night.

TRENTON PASTOR TALKS ON WORK AMONG ITALIANS

Rev. Vincent Serafine, pastor of an Italian church at Trenton, spoke on his work among local Italians at the congress meeting of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union held at the First Presbyterian church last night, appealing to the members of the various societies represented to co-operate with him in his attempt to Christianize the local Italians. The pastor said that gospel meetings were being held regularly at Westfield and Bound Brook, but that although there are about 1,000 Italians in this city, but little has been done. He referred to the good beginning made by the Crescent Avenue church society, and urged the co-operation of all other societies. He outlined plans for the work, which will be discussed at a meeting to be held soon by the executive and missionary committees of the Union, including delegates from the various local churches.

At the regular business session of the Union, it was decided to organize a Union choir of forty voices. Joel D. DeGroff, of Dunellen, vice president of the Union, announced that he had completed arrangements with Charles L. Lewis, of the Lotus Glee Club, to conduct rehearsals and lead the choir at mass meetings.

Letters from the State senators and assemblymen, outlining their position on the Local Option Bill, were read by Secretary Charles F. Windham, who also read communications from the United States senators and representatives in reference to the McCumber and Littlefield Bills. The regular election of officers will be held at the next meeting. A plan of inter-visitation of the societies of the Union on April 1 met with general approval, and William Latourette, the treasurer of the Union, invited the various societies to a sun-rise service to be held in Trinity Reformed church on Easter Sunday morning.

Pevious to the business session, Charles F. Nagle, chairman of the prayer meeting committee of the Union, conducted a discussion of the work of his committee. The discussion brought out several valuable suggestions.

FIVE FOUNTAINS FOR THE CITY AND BOROUGH.

Plans are being considered by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals for the erection of several drinking fountains in the city and borough. The matter was brought to the attention of the members by Mrs. E. T. DeForest, of West Second street, and there has been a discussion as to the advisability of placing these fountains where they are most needed.

President Edwin S. Hooley takes the position that two fountains should be located in North Plainfield and three in Plainfield. One of the points selected in Plainfield as desirable for such a fountain is East Fifth street and South avenue, where there is considerable trucking in and out of town.

The idea of having the public school children of the city contribute toward the erection of a large fountain at some central point has also been presented. Officers have been in consultation with the school authorities with a view to ascertaining whether this can be done. It is realized that there are many children who would not be able to contribute more than a penny, but there are others who would probably give more. Another meeting will be held in the near future when more definite plans will be presented.

Spring Cleaning Underway.

City Engineer A. J. Gavett had his street gang out yesterday cleaning the brick pavement on Park avenue, Watchung avenue and Front street. On Park avenue the pavement was washed off by means of a hose attached to a hydrant. When the brick pavement job is completed it is the intention of Mr. Gavett to clean it by this process. If the present weather continues it will not be long before Contractor C. M. Meeker will be able to resume operations and complete his work.

School Board to Meet.

A meeting of the Somerset County School Board Association will be held tomorrow at Somerville, when Dr. J. J. Savitz, superintendent of schools of Union county, will be the principal speaker. His topic will be "The Value of Education." It is probable that the Tenure of Office Bill, and the Avis Bill will come up for discussion at the meeting.

College Men's Smoker Tonight.

All the college men of Plainfield are reminded that the annual smoker will be held at the Casino, tonight, at 8:30 o'clock, and those who attend are assured of an evening of genuine fun. Owen H. Fleming, who has the affair in charge, completed all the details last night and nothing will be left undone in making it the best ever.

CYRIL SCOTT MAKES GOOD

"Prince Chap" Hero Wins Applause in "Royal Mounted" at Premiere Performance.

THE STAR IS WELL SUPPORTED.

Miss Clara Blandick, Brigham Royce, Charles Lane and Duane Wager Seen to Advantage.

Cyril Scott, the handsome young actor who made himself liked by Plainfielders by his clever portrayal of the hero in "The Prince Chap," returned to the city last night in a new play, "The Royal Mounted." The performance was the premiere of the production and brought out some fifty or more prominent Rialto folk. Samuel Claggett, who has guided Mr. Scott's starring tour for the past three years, is the producer.

Far away over the Canadian border, in the vicinity of Calgary, in the province of Alberta, where the fearless and dashing Canadian mounted police make their perilous rides through the forest trails in pursuit of outlaws, the action of the play finds its course. A young Irish officer of the service—just the character that gives Scott fine opportunities—receives orders to hunt down and bring to headquarters an individual whose identity has baffled the entire Northwestern force, for a crime that has been so skilfully carried out that only the keenst detective instinct can recognize a clue. The love interest of the story starts as the first adventure and is tied up with every effort he makes to find the guilty party. Each situation grows in interest until the moment that he wins the woman, when he learns that she is the sister of the man he is in search of, and further the dramatic value of the scene is intensified by the fact that it was in defence of her honor this crime of the brother was committed. The suspense from the moment of the discovery was continued to the finale. If the young officer fails in his duty he is degraded; man. The end was brought about in a very ingenious way.

The young star acquitted himself creditably in the role and he was ably supported by a well selected company. Miss Clara Blandick was clever as the heroine and several bits of splendid character work were given by Duane Wager, Brigham Royce, Harry Powell and Charles Lane. The scenic mounting was the heaviest that has ever been in the playhouse. The action of the piece calls for four distinct sets and the last act was a marvel of stage craft. It showed a mountainous pass that seemed to stretch miles away and lose itself in the distant Rockies.

At the end of the third act, the audience called for the authors and the Messrs. Cecil and William DeMille responded, the former speaking a few words in appreciation of the interest shown in the production.

POLICE SALARY BILL IS PASSED BY THE HOUSE.

The police salary bill, which passed the House Tuesday night, affects all but first-class cities. It provides that members of the police force may only be removed for cause after a hearing.

The minimum salary for new members on the force is $900 per year. After one year the salary is to be $1,000; two years, $1,100, and three years, the maximum, $1,200 a year.

Break-Down at Rushmore Works.

The breaking down of one of the large produceer-gas engines at the Rushmore Dynamo Works, this morning, caused the laying off of about twenty men for three hours. The accident happened about an hour after the men started to work and Mr. Rushmore decided to give employes in that department a little time off. The full force of men returned to work before noon. Mr. Rushmore recently installed two extra large producer-gas engines in his works to meet the increase in business and some delay has been occasioned in getting the machinery to run smoothly.

Sells to Minors; Loses License.

The Jersey City Excise Board has apparently taken to heart the public utterances of Governor Fort for a strict engorcement of the Bishops' law. After a trial that lasted until early yesterday morning David Feingold, who conducts a saloon in Jersey City, was found guilty of selling intoxicants to minors, and his license was ordered revoked. This was the first trial held in Jersey City under the Bishops' act.

Amateur Night.

Several young women will be included among the performers who are booked to contest for prizes at the amateur night performance at the New Plainfield theatre tonight. Moving pictures will be an additional attraction.

NEGROES DENY ROBBING NELSON'S APARTMENTS

Walter Baker and "Cack" Carter, the negroes arrested in Elizabeth on charges of robbing two Watchung avenue flats, pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Judge Runyon in the city court this morning. The specific complaint against them was made by William Nelson, of Watchung avenue, who stated that they had taken $50 worth of clothing from his apartments in the Hand building. At the request of Assistant Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., who took the case as his initial effort in office, the matter was put over until tomorrow morning, bail being fixed at $300 in each case.

As the two prisoners were being put back in their cells, Carter turned to Baker and asked:

"Say Kid, who was that young guy who had the trial put over?"

Baker replied that it was the assistant prosecutor and Carter exclaimed:

"You don't say so; I wonder if the people we took the clothes from hired him to come here and see that we got shoved."

In view of the fact that the two men had pleaded not guilty, Carter's surmise as to who was responsible for Mr. Hetfield's appearance was highly amusing to the officers who chanced to hear it.

HOSPITAL KIRMESS PLANS ARE NOW WELL UNDERWAY.

The committee appointed by the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, Monday night, to plan for the kirmess to be held in May for the benefit of the hospital, met last night at the home of Mayor C. J. Fisk. Miss E. S. Florance, of Elizabeth, who has been engaged to take charge of the affair, was present.

The work of making up a list of those who are to take part in the affair are now underway. It will consist chiefl of various dances and pantomime, while many novelties will be introduced. Eleven years ago a similar affair was held here for the hospital and a very large sum of money was realized.

The kirmess will be held at the New Plainfield theatre for one week commencing Monday, May 11, and no doubt it will be arranged to give matinee performances. In the arrangement of the program and drilling for the dances Miss Florance will be assisted by her sister. Rehearsals will be held at the Casino.

NORTH PLAINFIELD PUPILS PREPARING FOR PLAY.

"The Cricket On the Hearth," a dramatization of the novel by Charles Dickens, will be presented by members of the junior class of the North Plainfield High School at the Park Club, Friday evening, April 3. The cast, which was selected after competition by most of the members of the class, is as follows:

"John Perrybingle," William Hermann; "Mrs. Perrybingle," Miss Florence Fowler; "Caleb Plummer," Clarence Steiner; "Bertha Plummer," Miss Ida Englehart; "Edward Plummer," Tone Overton; "Mr. Tackleton," Eldon Miller; "May Fielding," Miss Gertrude Berkhan; "Mrs. Fielding," Miss Elvira Hoerster; "Tilly," Miss Jennie Nelson; "guests," Miss Ruth Day, Miss Marion Mager, Gay Harley, and Roy Vanderbeek. Regular rehearsals are being held, under the supervision of Miss Stahlberger, who is coaching the cast.

K. R. C. Enjoy Social Time.

The K. R. C., a social organization in the West End, was entertained at the home of James Kenney, on West Third street, last night, the members enjoying an informal social time, during which euchre was played and there was a program of vocal and instrumental music. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Robert Kenney. Those present were James S. Kenney, Robert L. Cuzen, Frank M. Rimmer, Petrus C. Sweeney, Donald C. Mortimer and W. Morris Hunter.

Junkman Fined $3.

Peter Alexander, an Italian junkman, was arrested by Patrolman Dobson, this morning, for running his wagon without a license. He got mad at the officer for interrupting his business and swore a bunch of cuss words on the way to police headquarters. Judge Runyon was holding court when he arrived and he was promptly fined $3.

Italians Fined in Borough.

At their hearing before Borough Recorder Charles M. Dolliver, in the bourough court last night, Tony Denzt was fined $4, and Dominick Pascint was fined $2. The men were arrested on complaint of Patsy Troller, who said they threatened to kill him. Both paid the fine imposed.

—White Label canned goods are acknowledged to be superior to all other brands. Neuman Brothers are the local selling agents.

SIXTY DAYS STRAIGHT FOR REVOLVER DISPLAY

A hurry call to police headquarters late yesterday afternoon sent Patrolman Vanderweg on the run to the home of Mrs. Ella Hoppock at 117 New street, where it was said a bold, bad man was flourishing a revolver and threatening to shoot up the place. The officer located Frank Mohring, a well-known West End young man, at the rear area door of Mrs. Hoppock's apartments, vowing vengeance on some imaginary foe. He held a pistol in his hand that was loaded with healthy bullets and he had ripped one of them through a panel to show that he meant business.

Vanderweg grabbed Mohring and a tussle followed, the cop finally getting a proper hold on him and starting him on the run toward a cell. He had enough rum aboard to make him anxious to see blood spilled but no casualties occurred on the way to Sycamore street. In court this morning Mrs. Hoppock said that Mohring had been causing a distrubance about her home for several days, but why he had visited the place she could not explain other than that she was very well acquainted with his sister. The prisoner had no excuse to offer and Judge Runyon gave him sixty days straight. He was released from jail only a short time ago, having served a term for larceny.

THOMAS SHEA BOOKED FOR REPERTOIRE HERE

An earnest, conscientious and scholarly actor, Thomas E. Shea, will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre soon. Shea is a man well known to Plainfield as an actor, and he is a student and well qualified to fill the role he assumes. Physically heroic, his assumption of these characters is entirely within his grasp.

In the present consideration of the stage the name of Thomas E. Shea must be one of serious contemplation. His supporting company is at all times adequate. He will be seen here for two nights and one matinee, March 27 and 18. His repertoire wil include "The Bells," "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," and "The Soldier of the Cross."

AND STILL THEY COME.

Fire Drills At Local Schools Today Show Excellent Training of Pupils.

At a fire drill held in the Plainfield High School this morning, the pupils cleared the building in record time, and the frequency of the drills has now shown it possible to empty the building in less than two minutes, with no confusion.

At the North Plainfield High School, the building was emptied of the 750 pupils in a minute and fifty seconds at about 10 o'clock, despite the fact that the south door was locked without the pupils being informed of this fact. The pupils passed out quickly and without conversation, marching in columns of two, headed by their teachers. All were back at work again in less than three minutes.

AFTER COAL THIEVES.

Jersey Central Detectives Waging War On 'Em.

The New Jersey Central Railroad is making a strenuous effort to break up the stealing of coal from its cars. A few days ago a gang of Italians stole ten tons in an hour from a car sidetracked at Bound Brook. County Detective Totten arrested one of the thieves and expects to make other arrests this week.

Constable Corcoran arrested James Conboy, William Brown and William Johnson at Raritan yesterday for stealing coal from the cars at that place. They were arraigned before Justice Sutphen in Somerville and sentenced to ninety days each in the county jail.

Mr. Travell Heads Committee.

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the New Jersey High School Teachers' Association, Principal Ira W. Travell, of the Plainfield High School, was made chairman of the standing committee on the relations between high schools and colleges. The other members of the committee are J. J. Hopkins, of Jersey City; W. E. Sterns, of Newark; Arthur Dutch, of Montclair, and Miss Martha Johnston, of Paterson.

Reick Had An Early Swim.

John Reick, of Scotch Plains, took an early swim in the "Back" pond near the felt mill, yesterday, only he didn't go in of his own volition. With several other Plains residents he was on a fishing expedition and while waiting for "bites," began testing the ice on the pond. He ventured a little too far out and suddenly went down in twelve feet of water. He got a thorough bath before he was finally hauled out.

TWICE ATTEMPTED SUICIDE

Hope, Remanded for Grand Jury, Would Kill Himself in a Borough Cell.

MAN THOUGHT TO BE INSANE.

Mayor Townsend Will Have Would-Be Suicide's Mind Examined Before Commitment to County Jail.

Despondent because he had been remanded to the county jail to await the action of the grand jury at his hearing before Justice of the Peace Clark Mundy, last night, Charles Hope, of Harmony street, who was arrested on grave charges preferred by his wife, in which Hope's daughter was concerned, tried twice to commit suicide in his cell in the North Plainfield police station this morning. The first attempt was at shortly after 9 o'clock, when the man tried to hang himself with his suspenders and neck-tie. Immediately after this attempt failed, due to the breaking of the suspenders, Hope gashed his throat severely with a piece of glass broken from the drinking water bottle in his cell.

James McCauley, who is doing twenty days in the cell adjoining Hope's for "beating up" Borough Marshal Lemuel Pope, heard Hope fall when the suspenders rope broke, and heard suicidal gurgles as the desperate man stood in his cell hacking at his throat with the piece of bottle. He raised the alarm by calling for help at the top of his voice. Chief Marshal Weiss, who had just entered headquarters, ran to the cell and knocked the jagged glass from the man's hand.

According to McCauley, Hope had been quiet all night, and this morning had asked for McCauley's belt. The request was refused and the next McCauley heard from his fellow prisoner was the crash when he fell from the suspender hang-rope. He thought Hope had fallen asleep and fallen out of his bunk. Immediately after this, he heard Hope break the milk-bottle used as a drinking vessel in his cell. A sheet-iron wall separates the two cells, but Hope reached his hand, bloody from his wounds in the throat outside, and at the sight McCauley shouted for help. Chief Weiss' prompt action in opening the cell and knocking the glass out of the desperate man's hand, prevented the execution of the suicide's purpose. Hope put up no resistance, but seemed dazed. He was bleeding profusely from some wicked-looking gashes in the throat, and the Chief summoned Dr. A. H. Dundon. An examination showed that no arteries had been severed. His hands were manacled behind his back and Special Officer John Smalley detailed to watch him.

Hope was to have been taken to the county jail at Somerville this afternoon, but his commitment has been delayed by order of Mayor Townsend, who wishes to have him examined for traces of insanity. At last night's session of court, Mrs. Hope appeared against her husband, and her charges were substantiated by her two daughters, who came to the hearing with her.

Hope, who is a man about 45 years old, is acknowledged to be a degenerate. Last year he was brought before Judge Atwater at Elizabeth on similar charges, and was in the Union county jail for three months awaiting the action of the grand jury. At that time, his wife refused to press charges, claiming that she had no proofs. The case was dismissed, and Hope got work in Perth Amboy, though he later returned to his home on Harmony street, North Plainfield.

Scarlet Fever Victims in School.

Four children suffering from scarlet fever, who attended Franklin Public School at East Orange until Monday, has caused the authorities to close the building until next Monday. The four classrooms in which the children sat will be fumigated, and will not be used again until March 23. It is said the parents of the children thought they had measles. The discovery of the true condition of the children was made by one of the teachers.

Inspected the High School.

Superintendent Bigot, of the Rahway public schools, and Mr. Kirkashner, of Rahway Board of Education, were visitors at the Plainfield High School yesterday. Rahway is contemplating the erection of a $100,000 school building and the visitors were much impressed with the arrangements at the local school.

Metuchen's Baptist Church.

Metuchen is going to have a Baptist church some day. Already there are about fifty Baptists there who would like to see a permanent Baptist organization. A Sunday-school has been established and has a good attendance. It meets in Arcanum Hall every Sunday. Sunday services are also held.

HON. S. B. HERMAN IS WELL AGAIN

Noted Oregon Statesman Restored to Health on Recent Eastern Trip.

Hon. Shiller B. Herman, distinguished statesman and legislator of Portland, Oregon, who was recently on an eastern trip, is among those strongly in favor of L. T. Cooper, in the discussion over Cooper and his medicines, which has raged for the past year in cities visited by the young man on his educative campaigns, as he calls them.

Cooper was explaining his new theories and medicines to Boston people during the Oregonian's visit to that city, and in a recent interview Mr. Herman said: "My trip east accomplished more for me than I ever believed possible. It has actually been the means of restoring my health. While in Boston I heard a great deal about this man Cooper and his medicines, and one morning I talked with a Boston banker who told me that he had been relieved by Cooper's medicines after ten years' chronic dyspepsia. For the past twenty years I have been a fearful sufferer with nervous dyspepsia. It has been so bad that it all but forced me to resign from the legislature.

"I was feeling wretchedly that morning, and I made up my mind to try the medicine. I had seen leading physicians without number both East and West. They had been unable to help me in the least, and I no morg believed this Cooper medicine could help me than it could bring a dead man back to life. I really don't know why I bought it. It was like a drowning man clutching at a straw.

"To make a long story short, it has been astonishingly successful in my case. Today I am enjoying a sound stomach and perfect health for the first time in twenty years. I can eat heartily without the slightest inconvenience afterward. I have a fine appetite, and sleep well. I am no longer moody and depressed, and my nervousness has entirely disappeared.

"Any man who has chronic dyspepsia owes it to his family to try this medicine."

In all our experience as druggists, we have never seen anything to surpass the famous Cooper preparations.

—T. S. Armstrong.

ANNOUNCEMENT!

Concerning the Retirement of Wm. T. Rae & Co., and of the Continuance of the Business under the Proprietorship of

C. M. SANFORD

(Formerly with Messrs. J. Wiss & Sons.)

After Fifty years of active business life, the firm of Wm. T. Rae & Co. has retired.

With its passing into history goes a reputation for sterling integrity, reliability and honesty such as few concerns can boast of, and which it will be my earnest endeavor to maintain.

In announcing my advent into this business and continuing that of Messrs. Rae & Co., there are several facts which I wish to make public, namely:

(1) That it will ever be my purpose to live up to and not "on" the reputation which the house of Rae & Co. has established.

(2) That my stock of Diamonds and other Precious Stones, Gold Jewelry and Clocks will not only be as varied and comprehensive as that of any other Newark store of this character, but absolutely dependable and moderately priced as well.

(3) That I shall offer an Optical Service second to none in the city. This department, while under my personal supervision and direction, will be in charge of a skilled Eye Sight Specialist —W. E. Small, Ref. D.

(4) That Watch and Jewelry Repairing shall constitute an important part of my business, and that all such work entrusted to me will be executed satisfactorily and promptly by experts whose qualifications are the best.

To serve you faithfully and well and merit your good-will and patronage is my desire.

AMUSEMENTS.

The dramatic version of George Barr McCutcheon's famous story, "Brewster's Millions," will return to the Grand Opera House, New York, Monday night. Mr. McCutcheon's story has an intensely fantastic scheme. It turns the prevailing mad chase for dollars topsy-turvy and disposes entirely of the almost universal belief that money is essential to either happiness or contentment. The dramatization of the book was done by Winchell Smith and Byron Ongley. Edward Abeles plays the title character, and Miss Mary Ryan is the leading woman. The company includes Emily Lytton, Rosalind Cognlan, Albert Sackett, Grace Arnold, Joseph Woodburn, George Clare, Mabel Moore, Jack Devereaux, Amy Summers, Nestor Lennon, Willard Howe, Gaston Bell and twenty others.

TEPPER'S

will be pleased to show their first installment of new Spring Suits direct from Tepper's Factory at 39 E. 19th Street, New York. If you purchased your Tailor Suit here last season, we feel sure that you will visit our Ready-to-Wear Department again, you know that we handle only well tailored garments, of the season's newest styles, neat, yet chic enough to make them look different from others, but not radically extreme. The prices are low to induce early buying.

We have three splendid models that are being sold from $2.00 to $4.00 higher by the leading New York houses, priced at . . . . . $12.50, $15.98 and $17.50

Spring Clothing

That a Man Can Be Sure About

Sure that the style is right. Sure that the fabrics are from the best looms in the land. Sure that the Clothing is made in a sanitary shop. Sure that every fabric, interlinings as well as woolens, has been thoroughly shrunken, and the inside tailoring done in a manner that insures permanent shapeliness and good looks.

Our showing of Spring Suits and Overcoats offers the widest latitude for choosing. The modest dresser will find here garments with a touch of individuality, but not pronounced beyond his ideas.

The young man who is influenced by striking individuality will find his every desire anticipated. And in every garment there is convincing evidence of the work of master craftsmen.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Indications point to some pretty lively preliminary bouts at the Hackenschmidt exhibition at the Grand Central Palace, New York, on Monday night. Three bouts may be arranged, as there are plenty of good wrestlers who are anxious to prove their skill on the mat. No decision has been reached as yet on an opponent for the "Russian Lion," but Alick Swanson, Jim Parr, Henry Ordemann or Gus Schoenlein may get a chance to try his luck against the champion.

Warren K. Wood, of the Homewood Golf Club, Chicago, led the field of thirty-six players in the qualifying round of the annual championship golf tournament at the Country Club, Pinehurst, Wednesday, with a card of 169. Allen E. Laird, of the Columbia Golf Club, Washington, was second in 173, and John E. Porter, of the Allegheny Country Club, Pittsburg, third in 174.

The Cornell crew candidates were called to the boathouse on Cayuga Lake Inlet Wednesday afternoon for their first rowing practice on the water. The 'varsity and two second combinations had short spins in the shells.

The sixth annual indoor championship meet of the Inter-Settlement Athletic Association will be held in the 7th Regiment Armory, New York, tomorrow night.

The annual horse show of the Riding and Driving Club of Brooklyn will be held on April 28, 29, 30 and May 1. There will be about forty classes. The premium list will be issued next week.

BASEBALL.

The proposition to form a baseball league comprising teams from Plainfield, Somerville, High Bridge and Flemington is being well received by the local fans, who hail with delight prospects to see the old-time rivalry and enthusiasm. At present the only thing needed to make the league a success is the organization of a local team.

It is suggested that the Y. M. C. A. or Clinton Avenue club be selected to represent Plainfield. There is no doubt but that either team would make good and would be able to hold its own against Somerville, High Bridge and Flemington.

Clinton Avenue has little the advantage in that the same team has been playing together for the last four or five years and is now in good condition. With Clifford Randolph in the box, the aggregation could score many a victory over their rivals.

"Phil" Smith is another available slab artist who could be counted upon to deliver the goods and there is no reason why Plainfield should not have a team that would put up a strong fight for championship honors.

Notwithstanding that last season was not considered a good one for the game, Somerville more than broke even and had a little money to spare. High Bridge and Flemington did the same. For this reason Plainfield should be able to do as well.

With a rule preventing each club from spending all kinds of money for players, thereby establishing a limit, it would practically assure a balance on the right side at the close of the season.

Rochester's new baseball grounds has been named "Baseball Park," by President C. T. Chapin. A number of fans of the Flour City favored the name of Chapin Park, but the Rochester president's modesty prevented the indorsement of this suggestion.

According to a report from Atlanta, where the New York Americans are training, Jack Bell, the husky outfielder who shone in the Northwestern League last season, is a candidate for the Newark Indians, if he fails to make good with the Yankees. Big Chief Stallings says he doesn't know anything about it.

Union League fans of Washington, D. C., are jubilant over the report that Manager Arthur Irwin has practically agreed on terms of salary with Ty Cobb, the Detroit hold-out, and Tommy Leach, the Pittsburg star outfielder, who refuses to sign a contract for next season, owing to a disagreement with Barney Dreyfuss on the salary question.

Ritchie, the Brooklyn National League pitcher, has invented a new curve which is labeled the "skidoo ball." Reports from Savannah, where the Phillies are practising, declare it is a hummer.

President Ban Johnson, of the American League, yesterday announced the 1908 staff of umpires will consist of Tim Hurst, Silk O'Laughlin, Jack Sheridan, William Evans and John J. Egan, the latter succeeding Jack Stafford.

Many ball players become dentists, Doolin, the Philadelphia National shortstop, is the latest who has begun the study of dental surgery. "I can fill my pocket in summer playing baseball," said he, "and in winter can fill teeth and also fill my pocket. It looks to me like pleasure."

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

A burglar got into the residence of Stephen Wert, at 852 North Thirty-second street, East Camden, yesterday. A sister-in-law of Wert was aroused by the thief thrusting his hand beneath her pillow in search of valuables. After warning her not to make an outcry he beat a hasty retreat.

Although the occupants of 1005 South Second street, Camden, narrowly escaped asphyxiation by escaping illuminating gas from a pipe broken by a slot meter thief they refused to prosecute John Wallace, nineteen years old, who was arrested for the crime. Wallace got his liberty yesterday after spending two days in jail.

William Mitchell, an employe of the Public Service Corporation at Burlington, became an advocate of artesian water in record time last evening. Mitchell had drawn a glass of chocolate-tinted Delaware river water, such as the city is now compelled to drink, but just as he placed the goblet to his lips he saw in it a live lizard over three inches long.

From injuries received when his head came in contact with a telegraph pole at Minotola while leaning from the cab window of an engine last Saturday, David Gilbert, twenty-one years old, a fireman employed on the West Jersey and Seashore Railroad, died yesterday in Cooper Hospital, Camden. He suffered from concussion of the brain and shock.

A complaint for selling liquor without a license was read to William J. Duffy, in the police court, Paterson, yesterday. Duffy is the proprietor of Arold's Hall, 1001 Main street. Recently he sold liquor in the dance hall adjoining the cafe, this being in violation of the "bishops' law." Liquor can only be served in one room. There will be a hearing in the police court on March 25.

MAKES THEATRE BILL STILL MORE RADICAL.

In addition to widening the scope of Assemblyman Morgan's theatre bill, House 8, at Trenton, which makes it a misdeameanor to allow children under sixteen years to enter theatres or concert or dance halls unless accompanied by their parents or guardians, by amending it so as to include moving picture establishments also, the Committee on Revision of Laws, which had the measure, offered several other amendments to it yesterday afternoon.

One of these referred to the section relating to pool and billiard rooms. The original bill made it a misdeameanor for proprietors of such to permit boys under eighteen to frequent their places. The amendment reduces the age limit to sixteen years.

Another amendment changes the age limit for children entering saloons from eighteen years, as in the bill, to twenty-one years, and makes it a misdemeanor also for saloonkeepers who permit this section to be violated.

Seton Hall Official Shifted.

Bishop O'Connor announced yesterday that the Rev. John A. Dillon, vice-president of Seton Hall College for seven years, has been assigned as temporary pastor of St. Stephen's church, Arlington, during the absence of the Rev. Samuel Hedges, who is seeking health. The Rev. Thomas J. Martin, who was ordained last fall, will fill Father Dillon's post.

Suspends Piece Work.

Pending further negotiations with the various shop unions, the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company officials have suspended the rule establishing piece work in the shops until March 28, when the question whether or not it will go into effect will finally be determined.

YOU CAN TAKE THIS YARN CUM GRANO SALIS

It was when Richard Tague, of South Amboy, was distressed by an unhappy domestic situation that he fell in with an ancient sea captain, one who had been in many strange climes and knew many curious customs of the East and other parts of the world. He listened to Tague's narrative of his martial woes and gave him some advice.

Asked by the vice chancellor what his evidence was, Togue said:

"An old sea captain once told me that if you put the hand of a person who was asleep in salt water and asked them questions they will answer you and never lie. I suspected my wife so one night when she was sleeping soundly I got a basin of water and put plenty of salt in it. Then I put her hand in it and questioned her about her conduct. She answered all my questions and gave me the proof that I needed to establish my case."

Tague said that he also found a letter from another man on his wife eight days after they were married. Mrs. Tague denied her husband's allegations and presented counter charges. Vice Chancellor Walker was in doubt about the salt process of gaining confessions and reserved decision.

"MOSQUITOLESS" SUMMER VISION OF PROF. SMITH.

State Entomologist John B. Smith presented his report on last year's war on mosquitoes at the annual meeting of the Conference Committee on Mosquito Extermination in the Newark Board of Health rooms, Wednesday night. He held out rosy prospects for a "mosquitoless" summer for all of North Jersey if only the officials of Secaucus can be interested in killing off the pests.

To that town, Professor Smith said, can be traced any flight of salt marsh mosquitoes seen in this section of the city during the coming season.

Each member present reported progress in the work in his locality, and all favored a resolution presented by Professor Smith calling for action by the Appropriation Committee of the Legislature. In the regular appropriation Professor Smith asked $75,000, and in a supplemental bill $50,000. Those amounts, the professor declared necessary during the coming season as a new condition of affairs is to be met. Much larger areas are to be ditched and drained, the principal work to be in South Jersey. The committee agreed to work for the desired appropriations.

Professor Smith gave out copies of his report, which came off the presses Wednesday, but in order to save time made a verbal report of what had been accomplished the past year, and referred to what would be taken up this year. He said that with the exception of a few small overlooked areas, the entire salt marsh land in this part of the State had been stripped of mosquito-breeding places. More than 58,000 acres of salt marsh had been ditched and drained.

One of the places remaining untouched by the committee, the professor said, was a small but productive area in Secaucus. This Hudson county town came in more than once for the professor in placing blame for unexpected flocks of culex cantator, a salt marsh specie in far removed parts of this section of the State. He declared that by the opening of the breeding season all breeding places in Northern New Jersey, with possibly Secaucus as an exception, would be wiped out.

Professor Smith said there were localities with square miles of area that would have to be looked after. He called attention to the fact that the Legislature has done nothing so far as an appropriation is concerned.

Officers for the ensuing year were re-elected as follows: President, Dr. Thomas N. Gray, of Orange; vice-president, Dr. J. B. Thompson, of Arlington, and secretary and treasurer, Health Officer Louis J. Richards, of Elizabeth.

Bigamist Gets Three Years.

Joseph M. Cooper, of East Orange, the son of wealthy parents, and said to be a Mason, was sentenced by Judge Blair in Jersey City yesterday on a charge of bigamy, to which he had pleaded non vult, to three years in State prison. Cooper, on September 10, 1906, married Margaret E. Lee at Mount Vernon, N. Y. On October 17 of the same year he married Theresa F. Gormer, of No. 212 Lafayette street, Newark.

—Chief Marshal George Weiss, of the North Plainfield police force, shot a hound which seemed to be developing an attack of the rabies on Grandview avenue yesterday afternoon.

FOR MATRON OR MAID

Every woman should be just as careful in the selection of her footwear as she is in selecting other portions of her wardrobe. The foot is quite as much in evidence as her hat or gown and other women are quick to detect an ill-fitting Boot or one that doesn't meet the requirements of the foot it covers. We employ expert fitters, who will, if you ask their assistance, suggest and try on those styles and shapes which they know to be best adapted to your needs; there is no extra charge for this. It's simply one of those little "extras" that help make this store "the best place in town to do your shoe trading.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Sabbath school institute will be held at the New Market Seventh-Day Baptist church tomorrow, to be participated in by all Seventh-Day Sabbath schools of the vicinity. Rev. W. L. Green, of Brooklyn, field secretary of the Sabbath school board, will be in charge of the meeting, and will be assisted by Dr. H. M. Maxson, of Plainfield; Rev. Dr. T. L. Gardiner, of Plainfield, and Professor Esle F. Randolph, of Great Kills, N. Y.

Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, of the Plainfield public schools, made an address before a large gathering of parents of local school children at the Presbyterian church last night. His topic was "Co-operation between the Home and the School," and he endorsed the co-operation between parents and teachers by the formation of a Mothers' Association.

Carpenters are at work in the school building fixing the doors so that they will swing outward, in accordance with resolutions adopted at the recent meeting of the Borough Board of Education.

Miss M. Elizabeth Herlich is spending the week-end in New York city, visiting friends.

HOUSE COMMITTEE HEARINGS.

School Tax Rate Bill Monday and Primary Measure Tuesday.

Hearings on three House bills were announced in the Assembly yesterday. 269, known as Sheriff Sommer's anti-cocaine bill, will be aired at 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon next by the Judiciary Committee, and at 3:30 o'clock the same afternoon the Committee on Education will take up Mr. Prince's bill, 265, reducing the rate of school tax from two and three-quarters mills to two mills.

The public hearing on Governor Fort's primary bill, 247, which was ordered by the House last Monday night, will be given Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. If this bill is to become effective this year it must be passed the same day, and it is understood a plan is on foot to attempt just that, but that it will be blocked seemed to be the opinion of many of the Assemblymen.

TAFT CLUB AT PRINCETON.

University Students Form Organization to Support Any Candidate.

The students of Princeton University have formed a Taft Club. The approach of the campaign for the Presidency is attracting more than usual interest in college circles. Yesterday afternoon W. G. McLean, '96, of Washington, D. C., addressed the members of the Princeton organization on the life of Mr. Taft and explained the purposes of the Taft supporters.

The club has pledged itself to support Mr. Taft for the Republican candidacy until the national convention, but in case Mr. Taft is not the convention's choice the organization will continue its support for the Republican candidate, whoever he may be.

Woman Succeeds Professor Apgar.

Dr. James M. Green, principal of the State schools, yesterday announced that Miss Gertrude S. Burlingham, of New York, has been selected as the temporary successor of Professor Austin C. Apgar as head of the botany department of the State schools. The engagement is for the balance of the academic year only. The Teachers' Committee of the State Board of Education decided it was best to fill the place temporarily in order that the selection of the permanent head of the department can be considered with deliberation.

Fight Promised in School Election.

A lively battle of ballots over the election of a school trustee will occur next Tuesday evening at the annual meeting of the Westfield Board of Education. Hiram L. Fink, for thirteen years a member of the board, and a member of the Common Council from the First ward, will have the fight of his life for re-election. He is opposed by Dr. Chauncey M. F. Egel, a practising dentist, who is making a thorough canvass of the town for votes, and has secured a heavy following.

Interesting New York Exhibit.

An interesting exhibit under the auspices of the Committee on Congestion of Population is being held at the American Museum of National History, 77th street and Columbus avenue, New York, from March 9 to 22. Rev. Dr. William R. Richards, pastor of the Brick Presbyterian church, New York, and for many years pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church of this city, is a member of the advisory committee holding this exhibit.

Bill Supervisor's Desk Robbed.

Somebody broke open the desk of Supervisor of Bills George A. Grover at the State House at Trenton yesterday and stole what stationery and other supplies there was in it. Nothing of any personal value to Mr. Grover was taken, however, but coming on top of the rifling of Senator Robbins' desk in the Senate chamber last week, it has aroused interest. So far, however, suspicion points to no particular person for either job.

WIDENS JURISDICTION OF THE POLICE JUDGES.

Changes in the police court statutes were embodied in a bill introduced in the House at Trenton by Mr. Thompson, of Mercer, as told in The Daily Press yesterday. The measure, it was said, was put in to forestall the proposed bill to be submitted to Governor Fort by the commission appointed by former Governor Stokes to revise the laws relating to police court judges, though the Mercer county Assemblyman denied this fact, and insisted his act was the result of several months' careful study of the police court system as he had observed its workings in Princeton, Trenton and other cities.

Mr. Thompson's bill largely increases the jurisdiction of police judges by permitting them to try disorderly house, illegal sale of liquor, larceny, embezzlement, false pretense and malicious mischief cases, in which the amount involved does not exceed $25. It also gives county prosecutors supervision in cases of crime, and city attorneys for violations of city ordinances, and makes the court clerks' appointment subject to the governing city bodies.

As for the commission's bill, a rough draft of the proposed measure has been partially prepared, but has not yet been submitted to the State Executive. It is understood the Governor has views of his own about such a law, and that he made some of these known yesterday afternoon to Judge James S. Erwin, of Jersey City, when the latter, who is one of the commissioners, called on him. It is said the Governor called attention to the fact that many municipalities have objected to certain provisions in the talked-of measure, notably the ones providing that none but counselors shall be made judges, and that in cities of less than 20,000 the appointing power shall be vested in the Governor of the State. Mr. Edwin left here with the understanding that he would confer with his colleagues, and, if possible, try and complete the bill for presentation next Monday night.

It is said the bill the commission has in contemplation will fix the salaries of judges in first-class cities at $4,000; in cities of more than 100,000, $3,000, and in cities between 20,000 and 100,000, $2,500. If this obtains legislative approval it would mean an increase of $500 a year in the salary of Newark's police court judges.

At the executive offices yesterday, however, it was declared the bill was still in a partial form of completion and that the draft already prepared would suffer many changes before it was beaten into the desired shape.

Says Hose In School Is Rotten.

Rotten hose in the Chestnut street school building at Montclair was discovered yesterday by the principal, Frank C. Clifton, who tested the lengths that have been in service at the structure. Mr. Clifton found that the water squirted from a hundred fissures when he turned on the tap. Before the principal could turn off the water the upper hall of the building was flooded and the water passed to the floor below.

Despondent Bride Hangs Herself.

Despondent because of ill health, Mrs. Grace Daniels, a bride of a few months, ended her life at the home of her father, John Rehn, No. 81 Clerk street, Jersey City, by hanging herself to the doorknob in the bathroom yesterday. Her husband went on a trip recently, and she went to live with her father. She made an unsuccessful attempt to end her life a few days ago by taking gas.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

One of the most attractive dramatic offering of the year will be seen here tomorrow for a matinee and night performance, when Henry B. Harris will present Thomas W. Ross in James Forbes' new comedy, "The Travelling Salesman." Mr. Forbes is the author of "The Chorus Lady," and may be relied upon for both fine dramatic situations and good lively comedy. The scenes of "The Travelling Salesman" show successively the interior of a depot, the sample room of a hotel, and the office of a village store, in a small town in the Middle West, the action of the play opening in the excitement of a land boom.

"The Two Orphans" is essentially a drama of deeds, and not one of words. Many of its strongest scenes could be played in pantomime, so little do they depend on the lines that the actors read; in this regard they are like some of the best scenes in Shakespearian dramas. Like all really great dramas including "Hamlet," and "Julius Caesar" it appeals to the emotions that are common to all humanity, and not to that small and deliciously naive class that modestly styles itself the intellectually superior one. "The Two Orphans" is a dramatic gem that sparkles against all environments; it touches all hearts, and the sacrificial love of one sister for the other gives all a homily that will last. To tell about the Two Orphans would be but reciting an old story, it has been told over and over again, and even in the nursery the good governess will reach the little hearts with a recital of the sister. The play will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night.

Reports to the effect that Thomas E. Shea's new piece, "A Soldier of the Cross," is the best vehicle in which he has been seen, will be appreciated when Cohan and Harris present him at the New Plainfield theatre March 27 and 28. Besides the new play, that classic, "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," will be revived with elaborate productions. A well known company of players, it is said, will support Mr. Shea.

THE ESCAPADE

A POST MARITAL ROMANCE

By Cyrus Townsend Brady

ILLUSTRATIONS BY [illegible]

"Two thousand pounds against two of yours, for another cut, my lord," said Ellen.

"At your pleasure, madam," returned the earl, who was as reckless and venturesome a gambler as ever entered the game.

"The knave of hearts," said Ellen, turning her card.

"The unmannerly ace of clubs takes in custody your knave," returned Strathgate after making his cut.

"And how stand we now, my lord?"

"I have won a thousand pounds to my misfortune," returned Strathgate.

"Once more, and this time for £3,000."

"I cannot disoblige a lady," returned Strathgate smiling, although his face was growing somewhat pale. Surely this was play such as he had never ventured upon.

"Ellen, stop!" cried Carrington, dropping his hand upon her shoulder.

"My lord, you hurt my shoulder. Thank you," she added as he removed his hand.

The cards were cut again, and once more Strathgate won. Ellen found herself £4,000 in his debt.

"My lady," said Old Admiral Kephard, "you have shown your pluck and courage. God forbid that any here should ever dispute it. Have you not done enough for the honor of America and your house now?"

"I like the game," returned Ellen calmly. "It interests me. Had I known the fascination of it before, I had played long since. Unless my lord Strathgate is weary—"

"Madam, I could play with you forever for any stake," returned Strathgate, utterly oblivious of the frightful glance shot at him by Carrington.

"'Tis £4,000 then. Would you see it on the board?"

"Your word is sufficient for me," replied Strathgate gravely.

Again Ellen lost and found herself in debt £8,000.

"Five thousand pounds the stake now," cried my lady, cutting once more.

"Five thousand pounds, madam," said Strathgate, very white and following suit.

And this time Ellen won.

"How stands the score now?"

"You owe me £3,000," said Strathgate.

"Correct!" cried the old duke. "By Gad, this is interesting!"

"Once more and now for £6,000 pounds," said Ellen, her face flushed with excitement.

The room was now as still as death. Save for the deep breathing of the men and the gritting of teeth upon the part of Carrington, there was not a sound except for the voices of the two players.

Ellen's luck was with her and this time she won.

"And now," she said, "the score is in my favor."

"Yes, madam, for £3,000."

"Do you wish to quit now, my lord?"

"Never," said the earl. "I will play with you to the extent of my fortune."

"I don't promise to go that far at this round," answered Ellen. "I'm new at the game, and I do not wish to play out my whole fortune at the first trial."

"As you please, madam. The game shall stop when you say. What shall the wager be now?"

"Seven thousand pounds," cried Ellen.

And this time fortune was against her, for my lord of Strathgate won.

"'Fore God, the score weaves like a see-saw," cried Gen. Athelstrong. "Now she owes him £4,000."

"Ellen," said Carrington, desperately, "I beg you to stop now."

"Is Lord Carrington afraid his wife will lose all her money?" deftly interposed Strathgate, sneering.

"Lord Strathgate," said Ellen quickly, "confine your attention to me. You play with me, not my husband. Stand back, Carrington," she went on hotly to her husband, choking with rage at the double insult in his guest's question. "You taunted me as a Puritan and a Quaker, and you have all jeered and mocked at me. I'll show you that I can play and lose or win with the best of you."

Back and forth the wagers went with varying fortune between the two until after half an hour's fierce and uninterrupted play Ellen found herself in Strathgate's debt for £20,000, so easily is money lost upon the turning of a card.

"My lord," she said, rising and calmly pushing the cards from her, "that is as much ready money as I have at my banker's. When I play, I pay. What are those things of which I have heard you speak, 'I. O. U.'s' do they call them? Will some one show me how to make one out? The money shall be paid you in the morning."

"Give no thought to that, my lady," cried Strathgate. "It was but an idle [illegible] and I am ready to cancel the obligation and let the evening go as if it were not."

"No, by heaven!" cried Carrington, "when my wife loses she pays."

"This," said Ellen, "is a needless interruption. I have never had the faintest intention of failing to do so. Have you written the 'I. O. U.?' Thank you, duke," she continued as the old man handed her a paper on which he had scribbled. "Are the figures right? Yes, £20,000."

She hastily wrote her name at the bottom of the document and handed it to Strathgate with a gracious bow.

Even jealous, maddened Carrington admitted that she was a gallant loser.

"Now the rest of you may play as you will," she said, smiling gayly upon them.

In Matter of the Application of Alexander Kane, administrator of Patrick Kane, deceased, for sale of Land to Pay Debts. } Order to Show Cause

Alexander Kane, administrator of Patrick Kane, deceased, having exhibited to this court under oath, a just and true account of the personal estate and debts of said deceased, whereby it appears that the personal estate of said deceased is insufficient to pay his debts and requested the aid of the court in the premises: It is, on this thirteenth day of February, nineteen hundred and eight, ordered that all persons interested in the lands, tenements, and real estate of said Patrick Kane, deceased, appear before the court, at the court house, in the city of Elizabeth, on the fifteenth day of April next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause why so much of the said lands, tenements, hereditaments, and real estate of the said Patrick Kane deceased, should not be sold as will be sufficient to pay his debts, or the residue thereof, as the case may require. And it is further ordered, that this order be set up and published in one of the newspapers of this State, as by the statute directed.

If the present good weather continues the brick pavement work will be undertaken on Monday by Contractor C. M. Meeker. Everything is in readiness to begin operations and Mr. Meeker is anxious to complete contract at the earliest possible date.

W. V. Mundy Doing Well.

W. V. Mundy, of Duer street, who underwent an operation at Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday for the amputation of his leg, is doing nicely. He had a good night and today is very cheerful. The prospects for recovery are bright.

OBITUARY.

Henry Sanford Steele.

Henry Sanford Steele, son of Judge Hiram R. Steele, whose summer home is at Avon Park, died yesterday at his father's residence in Carroll street, Brooklyn. He had been ill twenty-two days with typhoid fever. The young man was born in Natchez, Miss., eighteen years ago and was a student at the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute. He was to enter Yale in the fall. The funeral will be held at the father's home at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning and burial will be in the family plot at Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. Catherine McGreary.

Following an illness of two months with heart trouble and complications, Mrs. Catherine McGreary died yesterday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Newman, of West Fifth street. She was in her twenty-seventh year and had always lived in this city. Beside her husband and parents, she is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Charles Keller and Mrs. Daniel Galbraith, and two brothers, John and Thomas Newman. The funeral will be held in St. Mary's church tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock, followed by burial in St. Mary's cemetery.

BUGS IN HOUSE GOOD PLEA FOR DESERTION.

Presence of bugs in the house is reason for a man to desert his wife and family, according to the way law is interpreted in Mercer county court. Ridgway Challenger, a Trenton man, was placed on trial before Judge Reilstab yesterday, and his acquittal on a charge of desertion followed in less than an hour.

His excuse for non-support was lack of work. When asked why he left home, he said, "The little bugs were too many for me."

George Gray was convicted of non-support and desertion after his wife and two daughters testified that he had given them only $5 in three years.

Preparing for Golf Season.

The spring-like weather conditions prevailing is making local golfers restless and if they continue there will be play on the Plainfield Country Club course within the next two weeks. As a matter of fact the course has been open all winter, but the weather has not been of the right sort to promote the interest of the game. George Schoonmaker, as chairman of the Green committee, will soon get busy and attend to many little details prior to the commencement of the active season, which will be during the patter part of April. It is generally customary to announce the season's schedule two or three weeks before the formal opening. President Leighton Calkins favors the plan of opening the course for play as early as possible and this policy will no doubt be adopted.

Civil War Officer Honored.

Governor Fort learned yesterday from F. C. Ainsworth, adjutant general of the War Department, that the new battery being constructed at Sandy Hook will be named Battery Arrowsmith, after Lieutenant Colonel George Arrowsmith, who was a native of Monmouth county, and who was killed at the battery of Gettysburg, July 1, 1863, at that time being colonel of the 157th New York Infantry.

Lizard Found in Glass of Water.

William Mitchell, an employe of the Public Service Corporation at Burlington, became an advocate of artesian water in record time last evening. Mitchell had drawn a glass of chocolate-tinted Delaware river water, such as the city is now compelled to drink. Just as he placed the goblet to his lips he discovered a lizard in the discolored contents of the glass.

C. R. R. Plans Improvements.

The New Jersey Central Railroad is preparing to make an important improvement in the transportation facilities on its Long Branch division from Elizabethport. The division consists of a two-track road and it is the intention to make it a four-track road as far south as practicable.

Begin on Atlantic's Walk Monday.

The first piling for the new steel and concrete walk at Atlantic City will be driven on Monday and the work is to be pushed forward with all speed. Even with the fastest work the job can hardly be finished before mid-summer.

PERSONAL.

William Kelley, of Oak Tree, who has been spending the winter in Florida, has returned home.

Mrs. D. M. Moore and L. E. Moore, of this city, are registered at the Chalfonte, Atlantic City.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Reynolds have returned from their honeymoon and are now visiting the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Waring, of Park avenue. Later they will reside at Orange, the home of the groom.

Miss Anna L. Case, soprano soloist at the First Presbyterian church, will sing at one of Joseph McIntyre's chamber music concerts next season. She will also be the soloist at the musical to be given at the First Presbyterian church Thursday night, March 26, when Mr. McIntyre will be at the piano and Sigmund Culp, of New York, will assist on the violin.

Mr. and Mrs. Sydney B. Weer, of East Hartford, New York, are visiting Chief and Mrs. T. O. Doane, of West Fifth street. During the Civil War Mr. Weer was an orderly sergeant in Company B, 20th Veteran Reserve Corps, and he and Chief Doane were thrown together quite often. Since then they have continued their friendship and an occasional visit is always enjoyed.

HOUSE POLL POINTS TO LOCAL OPTION DEFEAT.

That the Crosby local option bill now before the Assembly seems doomed to death was quite apparent from an unofficial poll of many of the members of the House at Trenton yesterday afternoon. None of the legislators were willing to declare positively what they would do, but they intimated enough to allow one to infer how the tides are running.

The bill will be reported out of committee in a slightly amended form next Monday night and the Assemblymen can then have their say on it to their heart's content. Chairman Moxon, of the Municipal Corporations Committee, which has the measure, says he is going to put it up to them.

As the prophets have it, the known votes against the bill can be considered as two from Camden, two from Middlesex, two from Morris, two from Mercer, one from Warren, eleven from Hudson, eleven from Essex and three from Passaic. This will give more than the required majority to defeat the measure, but, of course, these are only informal figures. It is said, however, they are not far from correct.

NEW HOME FOR NURSES.

Gift of Wm. T. Evans Nearly Ready to Be Turned Over to Hospital.

Plans are almost perfected for the opening of the new nurses' home at Montclair given by William T. Evans. The home will accommodate thirty-six nurses. The basement contains the kitchen and dining room, in addition to a heating plant, coal cellar and storage rooms; the main floor has a reception room, parlors, eight bedrooms and two bathrooms; the third floor, twelve bedrooms and three bath and toilet rooms, one of these containing several shower baths.

Mr. Evans announced on January 1, 1906, that he would give $20,000 for the purpose of erecting a nurses' home on the hospital grounds. No action was taken at once, as the property on which the hospital stands is practically all utilized for other purposes, and it was difficult to determine just where to erect the building. It was then decided that before the money Mr. Evans had proffered could be used additional property would have to be purchased. The donor owned a large tract of land on the east side of Bay avenue, opposite the hospital. He afterward determined to place his gift on that site and present the completed building, land and all, to the hospital authorities, instead of the $20,000 he had promised.

MARTIN ACT COMMISSION IS DEFENDED AT KEARNY.

The Town Council of Kearny has refused to indorse Assemblyman Edward Kenny's bill providing for the abolition of the Martin Act Commission. The Assemblyman in his appeal to the Council stated that $124,000 in back taxes accumulated between 1895 and 1903. The Martin Act Commission had cost the town $23,694 in addition to $4,474 for tax searches. He further cited that the annual expense of the commission was $7,383 for services rendered, not including the salaries of the clerk, treasurer, attorney and collector, which amounted to $5,300, that made an amount equal to more than the salaries of all the town officers.

The Assemblyman characterized the commission as a useless body, and said that the expense imposed upon the town was graft pure and simple.

Ministers to Meet.

The Raritan Ministerial Association will meet in the chapel of the First Reformed church in Somerville next Monday at 10:30 a. m. A large number of ministers from Hunterdon and Somerset counties are expected to attend. Rev. Lucas Boere, pastor of the Reformed church at Lebanon, will read a paper on "A Critical Review of Dr. William N. Clark's Christian Theology."

HUNT CLUB BUYS HOME

Watchung Association Purchases Maltby Homestead Tract of 40 Acres.

CLUBHOUSE READY APRIL 15.

Many Improvemens to Be Made—Steeplechases to Be Held There—The Plans.

One of the largest and most important realty deals was closed last night, when the Watchung Hunt Club acquired by purchase the Maltby homestead and farm comprising forty acres on Plainfield avenue, just over the line in Middlesex county, where the home of the club will be established during the coming month. The property is one of the most valuable in this section of the State and is ideal for club purposes. Aside from the fact that it is to be the home of the Watchung Hunt Club, it is also to be a men's club to be conducted under regulations which will permit the women to hold teas and receptions there.

The homestead is a large one and is equipped with all modern improvements. There is also on the property a modern stables with accommodations for thirty horses, a half-mile training track, together with two small lakes. The purpose is to improve the farm for steeplechase purposes, making it one of the finest in the country.

To Open April 15.

There is also ample room for tennis courts, which will be laid out in the near future, and within a short time the club's pack of hounds will be transferred from the Fisk farm on Park avenue to the new home, where modern kennels will be built. The present idea is to open the clubhouse about April 15 in a fitting manner. The coming steeplechase meet on May 28-30 will probably be held at the Gentlemen's Driving Park, if suitable arrangements can be made. Otherwise the meet will be held at the club's new home.

The present membership of the club is seventy-five, the limit being 150, and during the past few days a larger number of applications have been received, including several from prominent New York horsemen. Negotiations for the purchase of the property have been kept very secret and but few members of the club knew of the plans. It is the intention that the acquisition of the property shall form the nucleus of an outdoor club to be conducted along broad lines. Summer sports will not only be possible, but during the winter the members and their friends will be able to enjoy skating on the lakes.

To Train Ponies.

The farm also affords an excellent place for training purposes and several New York horsemen are already making arrangements to send their polo ponies there. Heretofore, the club has been under great disadvantage in not having a home in Plainfield and under the new arrangement it will be possible to provide the members with all the conveniences of club life and at the same time care for their horses and the hounds on the same property.

The Watchung Hunt Club was organized in 1904 and incorporated in 1905. Thus far three steeplechase meets have been held with great success under the sanction of the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association. The present officers are president, C. J. Fisk; vice-president, Simeon A. Cruikshank; secretary and treasurer, Harvey Fisk; master of field hounds, Lewis E. Waring.

The fact that the club's home is now in Middlesex county it will be able to retain its privileges for hunting in that territory. The organization is entirely out of debt and the outlook is exceedingly bright. The deal for the property was made by Charles H. Lyman.

Husband and Wife Make Up.

Samuel Redd, colored, was arraigned in the city court, this morning, charged by his wife with non-support. The two unfolded a long tale of marital woes that Judge Runyon sought to straighten out and finally succeeded. They agreed to patch up their differences and begin their married life anew.

A Natal Day Affair.

In celebration of her birthday anniversary, Miss Anna orter, of West Third street, was tendered an honorary party at the home of her sister, Mrs. Mrs. Arthur McVoy, of West Fourth street, Thursday night. Fifteen of her friends were in attendance. Cards, music and dancing were the evening's principal diversions and in conclusion a supper was served.

Newark Dog Show.

A dog show will be held at Newark, and not at Plainfield, on March 19 and 20.

CRIMINAL TO JAIL TRUANT SAYS SUPT. MEREDITH

Essex County School Superintendent A. B. Meredith, formerly an instructor in the Plainfield High School, addressed the members of the Second Ward Association of Nutley in the Fortnightly Club house, that place, Thursday night. He spoke for about one hour and a half, explaining sections of the State school law. The part of the law pertaining to compulsory education Mr. Meredith thought was very unwieldy and ought to be changed. Under this section a supposed incorrigible truant could be imprisoned, the speaker said, and he thought it little short of criminal to jail a child for such offenses.

In speaking of the construction of school buildings, Mr. Meredith stated that the schools of Nutley, of which he has charge, in addition to being county superintendent, were in good condition. In case of a fire, he thought, the pupils could get out without danger. Fire drills were held recently, he stated, at the Park and Yantacaw schools and the pupils were out of the buildings within less than a minute after the bell was sounded.

PLAINFIELDERS ABOARD BLAZING "PROVIDENCE"

Through the coolness of Captain Appleby and the perfect discipline of the crew 400 passengers were quietly aroused from sleep at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, when the Fall River steamer Providence caught fire off Hell Gate, and were transferred safely, with all their baggage, to the steamer Richard Peck, which had been summoned alongside by t he blasts from the whistle of the Providence. Among the passengers aboard were some Plainfielders, including William A. Lord, William E. Hoyt and Orville T. Waring.

While the Richard Peck was nearer to the Providence than the steamer Boston, it was said yesterday at the offices of the company that the Boston would have been in ample time to take off all the passengers safely had not the Peck reached her side first. The Boston, which was astern of the Providence, was in wireless communication with her a few minutes after the fire was discovered, in several crates of wool hats on the freight deck.

The Boston replied to the Providence that she would stand by. While clouds of smoke were pouring into the saloon, the stewards went about waking quickly, but with as little ado as possible, the passengers asleep in their staterooms. The passengers were not informed of the fire. The stewards merely said, "Dress at once, please; it is time to get up." They gave the sleepy passengers five minutes to dress and then made another round.

Within ten minutes after the first call every one was up, the Richard Peck was lashed alongside and the stewards and deckhands were assisting passengers from the smoking Providence.

MANY ATTRACTIVE DANCES TO BE GIVEN AT THE KIRMESS

Arrangements have been made for a conference to be held at the Casino, Wednesday morning, March 18, when Miss E. S. Florence, of Elizabeth, who is to have charge of the kirmess for the hospital, will meet a large number of women who are to act as chaperones for the various dances. It has been decided that a pantomime performance will be given each night as a curtain raiser, and there will also be a change of program every day.

Among some of the dances to be given are the following: White Hussar, by the younger society set; New Year's dance, sixteen girls; sailor dance, boys and girls; rose dance, Rustic dance and Jumping Jacks, Dutch and Swiss dances, French and paper dolls, Rainbow, Tarantell and Harlequin dances. One of the most effective figures will be the steeplechase to be given by twenty young people in hunting costume.

Henry L. Hall and Mayor Charles J. Fisk have been appointed a committee on advertising and printing. W. J. Counihan will look after the properties, while Lewis G. Timpson has been put in charge of the program.

St. Patrick's Day Pictures.

In keeping with St. Patrick's day, a special program of Salisbury's pictures will be given at the New Plainfield theatre Tuesday afternoon and night. The feature will be colored views of all the familiar and many unfamiliar scenes in Ireland, a series that has never before been shown in Plainfield. The moving pictures will have St. Patrick's day subjects.

Jacob O. Field, of North avenue, was able to be out today, having been detained at home for a month with a severe attack of pleurisy.

COLLEGE MEN'S BIG TIME

Friday the Thirteenth Only Proved Unlucky to Would-Be Sleepers near Casino.

"THE JOY CHASERS" MADE GOOD

Old and Young, Local College Men Lived Again Undergraduate Days at Annual Smoker.

"..For it's birds of a feather
When good fellows get together,
With the stein on the table
And the good song ringing clear."

"Dull Care" was left at home, and college graduates went back to "those dear old college days" and spent the evening as "under-grads" at the Casino, last night, where good tobacco, good "grub" and "fixins," and good fellows, to the number of nearly 200, got together for the third annual smoker of "The Joy Chasers." It was the college men's night, as the neighbors can testify, and lest there should be any misfortune connected with going home on Friday the 13th, the bunch stayed around until the double six sounded on the city clock before the last college yell was "torn off" and the last "So-long, old man," passed out.

The "smoke fight" was of no predigested character. Harry L. Hall was really toastmaster, and Mayor Fisk really made a "speech," but nobody paid any attention to cut-and-dried order of things and spontaneity was the prompting motive as soon as the big hall got filled with wavy clouds of blue tobacco smoke, the fun began. The singing, although it was marked by more zeal than wisdom, was perhaps the most 'varsity part of it all, for any group of "grads" started up any song they happened to think of, regardless of who else was trying to sing at the time. "Prof. Brown and his Dusky Troupe of Senegambian Songsters and Terpsichorean Troubadours," lived up to what was said about them on the program, and from time to time "'tore' the blue Empyrean limb from limb with lurid melodies." Their efforts were marked by much foot palpitation on the part of everybody and a score of the younger smokers did an elaborate "serpentine" around the hall at a late hour, with accompanying footwork that would make Georgemcohan jealous.

The "feed" was first-class, and, though the "carte de jour" was "subject to change without notice or reason," everybody was happy when the waiters passed out the viands. The menu follows:

"Daschund croquettes, a la James Babbett; Horlick's Malted Milk; Limburger and Grass sandwiches; Garfield tea; Murphys, smothered in vinegar; Omega Oil; Camembert,—Skippers Delight, Fromage Debris; Lemonade; Pre-digested cucumbers; Raspberry Shrub; Sterilized Mocha; and ice cream soda." The "Omega Oil" was especially popular, with "Horlick's Malted Milk" a close second at most tables.

MAYOR AT THE SCHOOLS

With Chief Doane Inspects the City Buildings and Makes Suggestions for Safety.

BOARD OF EDUCATION TO ACT.

Erection of Fire Escapes and Extra Stairways Endorsed—Auxiliary Fire Alarm System In Buildings.

Determined to minimize the danger from fire and panic in the local schools, Mayor Charles J. Fisk, accompanied by Fire Chief T. O. Doane and Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, made a tour of inspection of the city school-houses yesterday afternoon, and as a result of the suggestions pointed out by him and the chief, the Board of Education will take immediate steps to make all needed improvements which will make the Plainfield school children absolutely safe.
